New Scout Flags Dedicated At Service

OMEMEE— (ENS) — Morning service in Trinity United church Sunday was the occasion for the annual church service of Omemee and District Agricultural Society and dedication of the new troop and pack colors of the Omemee Boy Scout group.

These were four beautiful flags, purchased with money recently raised in a community drive for the needs of the group, a scout troop flag, a club pack flag and a Union Jack for each.

The floral decoration for the horticultural service formed the setting for the dedication service conducted by the minister of the church, the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, and the Rev. Charles Richmond, rector of Christ Anglican Church.

FLAGS RECEIVED

The troop colors, presented by Mr. Zufelt to Scout Master John E. Joyce were received on bended knee by the Scout Troop color party, the Union Jack by Patrol Leader Jim Gladding and the troop flag by Patrol Leader Jerry Nelson. The troop's color guard consisted of Garry Whitney and Earl Ruttle. The pack colors, presented by Mr. Richmond to cubmaster Mrs. George Stephenson, were received by Sixer Charles Bent and Sixer Jim Armstrong. Larry Whetung, Donald Hyland and Stanley Nelson comprised the pack color guard. The dedication scerivce terminted with the National Anthem, after which the color parties deposited the flags.

Introducing Mr. Richmond who delivered the horticultural address, Mr. Zufelt mentioned that Mr. Richmond would be leaving Omemee very soon. He spoke of happy relations they had enjoyed as ministers of the two denominations and of the service both Mr. and Mrs. Richmond had rendered to the spiritual life of the village.

"Three kinds of gardens," was the theme of Mr. Richmond's address: the unkept, the half kept, and the beautifully kept. He emphasized the tragedy of the unkept life garden, full of fear, anxiety and insecurity and the half kept, where beauty is being choked by worldliness. He urged self examination to determine whether or not the divine gardener is having His way in making life beautiful.

A solo "Blessed are the Pure in Heart," was sung by Miss Dorothy Connell.

Bell Service Meets the Challenge of the Tornado through SARNIA'S worst night...

When the tornado hit, window glass, dust and debris blasted into the room where operators were working at the long distance and information switchboards. Some of the girls were cut by the flying glass; all were ordered to another floor where it was safer. Even before they were asked to go back, Marna Levan (left above) and Pearl Roberts (right) returned on their own to their switchboards.

Chief Operator Alice Edwards (shown here directing an off-duty volunteer to her post at the switchboard) found all but those more seriously cut anxious to go back to their switchboards, and when the room was made safe by plant men, they did. In addition, girls off duty came in without being called, and rendered first aid, gathered food, cooked meals, and refused to leave until they were no longer required. One girl from Quebec on vacation in Sarnia came in to help. As one newspaper columnist wrote, "the Bell operators were the heroines of the Sarnia disaster".

Truly there are times when no price can measure the value of your telephone service — ready when you want it most. Such a time came to Sarnia on May 21st when the tornado ripped through the downtown area. That night, Bell equipment — the telephone building itself — built to stand up in emergencies, came through one of the toughest tests.

An emergency power unit kept building and equipment alive. Dial mechanism, properly housed, remained undamaged. Light from the Bell—shown above streaming through the building's shattered doorway—was for hours the only electric light in downtown Sarnia. It became a beacon that told of service working for nearly all of Sarnia's 12,000 customers. Less than 1200 telephones were put out of action, and by the end of the next day all but a few of these were back in service—thanks to telephone men from Sarnia, Windsor and Chatham. Outside wires suffered little damage because they were either underground out of harm's way or overhead in rear-lane areas, safer from falling trees.

THE MORNING AFTER — the Bell building stands as a symbol of continuing telephone service.

Foresee Shortage

tain conditions, which are (1) Campbellford will become a Hydro Municipality. (2) This involves certain regulations which are as follows:

No grants to the town of Campbellford. (At the present time, the PUC grant the council each year a sum of money which is used to lower or maintain the tax rate. This is usually from $6,000 to $12,000.)

CUT FREE POWER

No free power to the ball park, community arena, tennis courts or bowling greens as is now the case.

There would be a 10 per cent discount instead of the present 25 per cent for prompt payment of bills.

There will be a general increase in power rates.

There will be an increase in the power bill to the town in regard to street lights.

A HEAVY PRICE

The commission are securing the services of a competent independent engineer for reccommendations, to supply the necessary power.

The remaining member of the board, Howard Hogle, said that things are so indefinite at the present time, that he had no comment to make. He admitted the increased demands for power were making it difficult for the local plant to carry the peak load, but said that the solution to the problem would be up to the commission board.

Whatever the solution to the problem will be, one thing is almost certain. No matter what is decided by the board, it is going to cost money, and lots of it, and this will no doubt be reflected in increased power rates for Campbellford. Citizens here have enjoyed rates lower than most other municipalities for many years, but with the town forging ahead, it looks as if all this will be changed.

New Building

elevator capable of moving a stretcher from one floor to another should be provided. An analysis of the chronic patients in our hospital at present showed 24 patients of whom four are ambulatory, 12 sit out of bed for longer or shorter periods of time, but cannot move about without help; eight are bedridden. Even the four ambulatory patients cannot walk up or down stairs safely."

The report computes at $5.61 the average per patient day cost for s[illegible] alone.

Additional allowance for food, fuel and electricity, laundry, bedding, etc., plus other operating costs raises to $7.41 the average per patient day cost of the housing and care of chronic patients.

It continues as follows: "Against these costs would be set up the revenue that could be obtained from the patients.

24 CHRONICALLY ILL

"Of the 24 patients chronically ill in the present (Civic) hospital, three are private patients, five are public self pay; and 16 are indigent.

"Of the indigent group, 10 are from the city, five from the county and one from another municipality. If this pattern should remain constant, it would mean that one-third of the patients would pay their own way and two-thirds would be charges against some municipality.

"Municipalities are required to pay $2.50 per day for patients in hospitals for the chronically ill, and the provincial grant currently amounts to .41 cents for public ward patients and .08 per day additional for the indigent patients. Total revenue from indigent patients would be approximately $5.99 a day.

DEFINITE NEED

"That there is a definite need for hospitalization for the chronically ill in the community is evident when this hospital has had to provide accommodation for 24 patients when beds are urgently needed for acute cases. A hospital for the chronically ill must not be looked upon as the complete solution for our problems. In addition to hospital accommodation there should be provision for absorbing these patients into the community in homes or in sheltered workshops if they can be rehabilitated to that extent."

The Governors' committee is primarily interested in its own affairs, particularly after weighing the Queen Mary building and sizing it up as, for them, a debt.

Their report continues: "The provincial government will contribute $2,000 a bed, or half the cost, whichever is less, and the federal government will provide $1,500 per bed, or one-third the cost whichever is less, toward the cost of providing new accommodation for chronically ill patients.

The sale value of Queen Mary Hospital plus the cost of renovations and elevator would be at least $36,000, and probably more.

MIGHT PAY COST

This, if put with the money from government grants, might make possible without any greater cost, the provision of a one-storey unit on the present hospital property, connected by tunnel to the power plant and main building.

This would enable the building to be serviced for heat and food from the main building, and would make available all the professional services of the main building, such as laboratory, physiotherapy, occupational therapy, X-ray, operating room, pharmacy.

It would be reasonable to expect that for this amount of money the first part of a chronic division could be built which would provide approximately 40 beds.

Cost of staffing that unit is estimated at $58,864. Assuming an average occupancy of 36, the average daily cost for salaries would be $4.48.

"This is $1.13 a day less than in the smaller unit, and is due to the spread of supervision over a bigger load, and the ability to dietary and maintenance facilities already existent."

The report ends on another paragraph or two. As reflected in the quotation from it, the property committee of the Board of Governors dismissed the Langton St. building for the economies and conveniences of a preferable addition to their own plant.

Fire Razes Barn Hours After Insurance Paid

WARKWORTH (ENS)—A German immigrant, George Sartisohn paid his first insurance premium just in the nick of time Saturday morning. In the afternoon lightning struck his barn near here resulting in a complete loss, at least to the insurance company.

The place, known as '[illegible] bert Ireland Farm', about [illegible] miles west of Warkworth on the 3rd concession was purchased by Sartisohn about a year ago.

He had gone to town Saturday morning and taken out a fire policy on the barn and returned to find the place in flames. The Warkworth fire brigade was summoned immediately but little could be done to save the barn. Another small building used for pigs was protected from sparks.

CAR ABLAZE

The fire brigade had been called out earlier to the White School district where an unidentified car, containing three men, had left the road and was commencing to burn. The brigade arrived in time to extinguish the blaze before serious damage occurred.

Hydro and telephone lines were thrown out of commission in the village and surrounding districts and gasoline and coal-oil lighting was necessary until 10 p.m. Merchants and customers had a difficult time doing their Saturday night shopping under the dim light.

Harold Buttars' cold storage locker plant was put out of commission during the evening and many were disappointed in not having access to their lockers.

A large oak tree near the home of Douglas Langford was struck and bark was scattered on both sides of the tree. Another tree at the home of Ivan Denike, just south of the village, was knocked down and reported to cause the Hydro trouble.

Coldwell Says Big Business Backing Gov't

BALCARRES, Sask. (CP)—CCF leader M. J. Coldwell says the federal election campaigns of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties are backed by "big business" and appealed to the Canadian people to send a government to Ottawa with "no strings attached."

Mr. Coldwell spoke Monday night at this farm town 50 miles northeast of Regina in support of Percy Wright, CCF candidate for Melfort, in the Aug. 10 federal general election.

"When CCF members go to office, there will be no strings on us," he said. "No business can say, 'Well we put up so much for you.'"

DON'T NEED PASS HAT

"The Liberals and the Conservatives don't need to pass a hat around," he said. The Canadian people were up against the control of political parties by business. In the 1949 federal election, the

NEW YORK (AP)—Versatile Bill Goodman of Boston Red Sox is pressing Washington's Mickey Vernon for batting honors in the American League.

Goodman, who performs equally as well at first base, second base or in the outfield, went on a batting spree last week that lifted him into the runner-up position with a .327 mark. Vernon leads the league with 333. Figures include Sunday's games.

The Boston handyman gained 25 points as he went 12-for-27, a .447 pace. Goodman won the batting crown in 1950 with .354.

Vernon regained the top spot from Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees, who fell to third with .326.

BACK IN LEAD

In the National League batting race Red Schoendienst of St Louis Cards has moved back into the lead with .344. Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson is on his heels at .342.

Schoendienst, third last week, displaced Johnny Wyrostek of Philadelphia Phils as the leading hitter. Wyrostek isn't eligible this week because he has not been at bat 150 times.

Duke Snider of the Dodgers and Philadelphia's Richie Ashburn share third position with .319 each.

Pitching honors in the American loop go to lefty Ed Lopat of the Yanks with an 8-0 won-lost record. Relief specialist Lew Burdette of Milwaukee is the National League leader with a 7-0 slate.

Here And There In Sports

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

SEEDED STARS ADVANCE

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Seeded players moved ahead in an unbroken phalanx Monday as the All-England tennis championships started here. The top-ranking favorites made it look easy.

The first surprise occurred when Britain's Tony Mottram, Britain's No. 1 Davis Cup ace, lost to Hugh Stewart, six-foot American playing in his first Wimbledon tournament, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The opening day's matches limited to men's singles—were played in traditional Wimbledon weather under a bright sun.

Eighteen-year-old Ken Rosewall of Australia, seeded No. 1, led the big-timers' victory parade. He brushed aside Michael Davies, a 17-year-old Welsh youth who hitchhiked to the tournament, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Lewis Hoad, seeded No. 6 from Australia, polished off Bill Seymour 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, after snuffing out a rally by the South African in the third set.

Other highly-regarded players to advance were Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, No. 2; Mervyn Rose, left-handed member of Australia's delegation, No. 3; Jaroslav Drobny, the self-exiled Czech now playing for Egypt, No. 4; Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., No. 5, and Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., No. 7.

Seixas, 1952 U.S. Davis Cup captain, turned in a smashing net performance to eliminate 18-year-old Robert Lee of Britain, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1. Rose was forced to go all out to triumph 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 over little-known R. Kirshnan of India.

Picard has been invited to the Bruins' camp at Hershey, Pa., in September. Rigazio will work with the Boston-sponsored junior club at Oshawa, Ont.

RESCUED FROM WATER—Sophie Michasiw, 24, of Fort William, Ont., is lowered from the package freighter Burlington which limped into Fort William after ramming and sinking the grain-carrier Scotiadoc on Lake Superior. The Burlington rescued 29 crew members of the Scotiadoc. One man was drowned when he was pitched into the water when a lifeboat was smashed. Miss Michasiw, a stewardess on the Scotiadoc, suffered from shock when she spent some time in the water before being rescued.

St. Laurent, Drew Outline Plans

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister St. Laurent, raising the spectre of the depression-ridden thirties, Monday night launched the Liberal party's bid for re-election. He said Canadians risk their prosperity if his government is not returned Aug. 10.

The prime minister entered the pre-election fray with a speech in English and French over CBC networks, repeating it with some elaboration on a platform in Windsor, Ont.

Meanwhile, Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in his first national radio address of the campaign repeated is party's 16-plank platform, announced last Friday at a meeting in Guelph, Ont. He said his party will cut taxes by $500,000,000 if elected.

Mr. St. Laurent, seeking a second term since succeeding the late prime minister Mackenzie King in 1948, said the next government may have to decide questions "which will determine whether there is to be peace or war, continued prosperity or another depression."

WON'T TAKE RISKS

Canadians were going to think back to the terrible conditions of the thirties and contrast them with today's conditions. Since the Conservatives' term in power, 1930-35, Canada achieved economic strength, stature in the eyes of the world and sturdy unity at home with the Liberals.

The Liberals did not claim all the credit but "I am sure most of us will want to be careful we do not risk losing what has been gained."

Mr. St. Laurent posed two problems for the next government—the threat of communism to world peace and Canada's dependence on a high level of trade with other countries.

Conciliatory gestures by the Communists must not be allowed to wreck the North Atlantic alliance. The defence build-up must continue. At the same time, every chance of better relations with the Communists should be explored, peace is founded on strength and unity among men and nations of good-will.

MEET TRADE PROBLEMS

The Liberals had been "pretty successful" in the past in meeting the problems of trade as they arose. He hinted that Canada would need all its vigilance, wisdom and skill to safeguard her foreign trade against advocates of high tariffs in the United States.

Influential groups in the U.S. had had "minor successes" in demands for tariff increases. The damage thus far was not serious.

"But the utmost vigilance and the greatest available wisdom and skill will be needed if Canada's interests in greater trade are to be promoted successfully in the United States and elsewhere in the world."

At home, the evidence turned up by the opposition to support charges of waste and extravagance "has certainly not been impressive." Mr. Drew's claim that the opposition was denied information "is just not true."

Mr. St. Laurent, who moves today to Kitchener, Elmira, Elora and Guelph in the second day of his five-day Ontario tour, said the Liberals aren't going to make promises about social security.

Those were matters implemented "to the extent to which the Canadian people decide on the social security they want."

END OVERTAXATION

Mr. Drew, due to make his first Quebec appearance of the campaign at Quebec City Wednesday, said his party would end "overtaxation" and increase government efficiency.

No tax reduction was possible with the Liberals in power. The government "refuses to conduct those ordinary business investigations which we have suggested and which any private business would be forced to carry out if it expected to avoid bankruptcy."

The govrenment had collected $300,000,000 a year more since the war than the amount approved by Parliament. The Progressive Conservatives would save that much annually cutting tax collections to the budgeted figure.

Tax cuts by a Liberal government were impossible for other reasons. There was the $5,000,000 increase in travelling expenses $10,000,000 spent for publicity, $28,000,000 for professional and special services and construction of "palaces such as the head office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation with its spring dance floor. . . ."

OTHER SAVINGS

Other savings could be made for a net reduction of $200,000,000 and still take care of those increases that would result from the Progressive Conservative proposals to improve government services.

The individual paying income tax would not be the only one to benefit. Those on small, fixed incomes or pensions would benefit even more and those "who pay the same hidden taxes on clothes, household requirements and table requirements as are paid by people with the highest income."

A suggestion by Mr. Drew to amend the Criminal Code to make communism illegal in Canada drew fire from External Affairs Minister Pearson in Petrolia, Ont.

At a nominating convention, Mr. Pearson said such a step would destroy liberty carelessly in the name of security. It might drive communism underground.

Pearsons Warns Canadians Keep Liberty

PETROLIA (CP)—To amend the Criminal Code to make communism in Canada illegal as suggested by Opposition Leader George Drew, "is to destroy liberty carelessly in the name of security," External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson said here Monday night.

Mr. Pearson spoke to more than 700 persons gathered for the nomination meeting of the Lambton-Kent Liberal Association. The meeting chose Hugh A. MacKenzie of Watford, present MP for the riding, to seek re-election.

Making it a punishable offence to engage in Communist or other subvresie activities may drive Communists underground, Mr. Pearson said.

DIFFERENT METHOD

"True, communism as a doctrine is god-less, dangerous to democracy. We should try to drive it out of our society," he said.

But, he added, not as Mr. Drew suggests. To do this would be to take action in Canada that has not been necessary in other countries, including the United Kingdom.

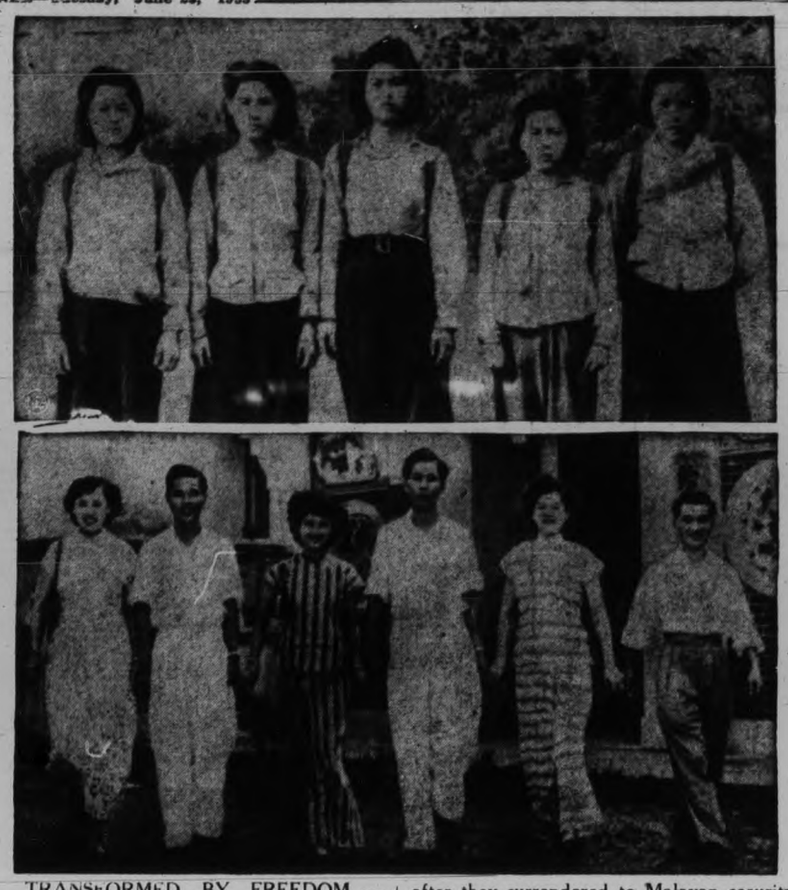
Mr. Drew's proposal to slash taxation by $500,000,000 yearly is "exciting," but "not very specific," the external affairs minister said.

Demands Change In Sentencing

TORONTO (CP)—W. J. Stewart, chairman of the legislature's select committee on reform institutions, said Monday a drastic revision in sentencing policy must be introduced to stop the rapid expansion of Ontario's multi-million dollar jail budget.

"The emphasis must be placed on rehabilitation at the time of commitment on probation," he said in a committee meeting.

W. J. Grummett, (CCF—Cochrane South), agreed. There are a great many now being sentenced under the liquor and highway laws, he said.



"We could cut down our jail population right here if we could find some means to evolve punishment under these laws without jailing. Surely we can find a severe enough sentence without starting offenders such as these on the downward path through jail associations."

Boy 13, Drowned

THOROLD (CP)—Carl Leader, 13, was drowned Monday when he stepped into deep water while wading in a shallow portion of a dam. He formerly lived in Rouyn and Val d'Or in northwestern Quebec and came here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Leader, and their three other children about a year ago.

Killed By Truck

STRATFORD (CP)—Dorothy Elg 2, was fatally injured Monday when struck by the truck her father was backing from a garage at his farm at nearby Milverton. She died in hospital here about two hours after the accident.

TRANSFORMED BY FREEDOM — Three of the sullen, unkempt girls in the top picture are seen below, as happy, smiling, well-dressed brides. The difference in their appearance and spirit is the difference between the life of a Communist guerrilla and that of a free person. The girls were jungle terrorists in Malaya. They're shown after they surrendered to Malayan security forces, on promise of good treatment. Left to right, above, they are Choy Lian, Kwee Hong, Sew Ying, Kwee Lian and Ah Mooi. Below with their bridegrooms, are seen Ah Mooi with Pan Hong Min, Kwee Hong and Wong Loo, Siew Ying and Ah Ngan. The men were also former Red terrorists.

Graydon Chosen To Be Candidate

BRAMPTON (CP) — Gordon Graydon, who has represented Peel riding in Parliament since 1935, was chosen unanimously Monday night as Progressive Conservative candidate for the seat in the Aug. 10 federal election.

"This government no longer represents the best principles of the Liberal party," he said at the nomination meeting. "And if ever a government was in for some unpleasant surprises, it is the St. Laurent government at Ottawa."

Says Farmers Get Poor Deal

HAMILTON (CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night at the Wentworth riding nomination meeting the Liberal government is leading the farmers of Canada downhill.

"If agriculture goes downhill, the people of the whole country will pay the price," he said.

Canada should take the lead in Commonwealth talks to bring about a greater flow of trade, he said. He blamed the government in part for the increasing movement of farmers to the cities to look for jobs.

He said the farmer's position is like that of "a worker who doesn't know what wages he will receive from week to week." The only way to restore the farmer's faith in his destiny would be to establish forward pricing for his goods.

Rail Employees Accept Company Offer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Some 350 employees of Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway Co., Monday voted to accept the company's latest offer, ending a dispute which had threatened to tie up the local bus company which serves Windsor and district.

The employees, members of local 616, Street Railwaymen's Union, (AFL), earlier agreed to postpone the strike until a vote was taken.

Details of the agreement were expected today.

Night employees and members of the office and maintenance staffs voted on the company proposal Monday morning.

Employees set the Monday strike deadline at a meeting early Saturday. A majority report of a three-man conciliation board was turned down by the union last week and the company refused to accept terms of a minority report filed by the third member.

The men sought a 12½-cents-an-hour pay increase which would have brought their hourly rate to $1.58, the company refused to offer more than nine cents an hour.

Drinking Less

OSLO (CP)—Liquor sales in Norway for the first quarter of 1953 were 5.8 per cent lower than the same period of 1952. It was estimated per capita consumption of liquor and wine was 16-per-cent lower than last year.

Hopes Province Still Fights Toll Highways

ST. THOMAS (CP)—J. D. Millar, Ontario deputy minister of highways, said Monday he hopes the provincial policy of opposing toll highways will not be changed.

He said at a meeting sponsored by the Kiwanis Club here that he favors toll highways only where the revenue from gasoline taxes is insufficient to meet the costs of the highways. He said the present tax of 11 cents a gallon on gasoline is sufficient to meet the costs in Ontario.

The province has no toll highways and not even a toll bridge, he said.

Will Reduce Defence Budget When Canada Safe-Harris

BARRIE (CP)—Citizenship Minister Harris said Monday night the Canadian defence budget will be reduced as soon as possible, but only when Canada's safety is no longer in jeopardy.

Mr. Harris, who represents the riding of Grey-Bruce, addressed a meeting of the Simcoe North Liberal Association which chose Ralph T. Snelgrove, owner of radio station CKBB in Barrie, as Liberal candidate in Simcoe North in the Aug. 10 federal election. The seat is held by Julian H. Ferguson, Progressive Conservative.

Mr. Harris said the promise by George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party "bears the imprint of little thought.". Mr. Drew promised last week in a speech in Guelph that, if elected, his party would reduce taxes by more than $500,000,000 a year.

NOT PERMANENT

Mr. Harris said that, in promising to appoint a national agricultural board to establish fair prices for farm commodities, Mr. Drew did not say it would be a permanent board. The minister said the Liberal government has at all times taken action to establish fair prices for farm produce whenever and wherever necessary.

Turning to Liberal policy regarding radio and television, Mr. Harris said TV should be a national project, with private enterprise cooperating with the CBC in a manner somewhat similar to that in which the CBC and private stations work together to provide Canada with radio service.

Approve Sunday Movies

TORONTO (CP)—They're going to have Sunday movies at Hanlan's Point, on Toronto Island, after all. The Toronto transportation commission, which wants to operate the open-air theatre to show educational and documentary films was given permission by city council Monday to show the movies. Board of control voted against the Sunday movies, saying that the Toronto labor unions were against them, but left the final decision up to city council.

Half Striking Painters Now Back At Jobs

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — About half of the 175 painters who went on strike 23 days ago have returned to work although the strike has not been officially called off by union officials.

The men, members of local 1494, International Painters and Paperhangers, (AFL), were seeking $1.85 an hour instead of the present $1.65. They claimed they have not had a contract with local contractors for more than a year.

Bitter Struggle Develops Over U.S. Farm Situation

This is the first of two stories on the U. S. agricultural situation. Wednesday's story deals with the role of farm organizations.

By OVID MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bitter struggle in the United States farm world today is moving toward a supreme test of President Eisenhower's campaign pledge to give farmers a new agriculture program.

The fight is being waged from the farms to the halls of Congress with make-or-break intensity. The final decision will come next year when Congress must extend or revise present laws governing the farm program.

The fight revolves around the federal government's program of high and rigid price supports for the basic crops of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts. This program evolved during 20 years of Democratic administration.

WANT TO REVISE IT

But the Eisenhower forces, led by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson, want to revise it because they are convinced high and rigid price props encourage the production of huge surpluses, promote wasteful farm practices and price products out of markets.

In its simplest terms, the Benson philosophy holds the farmer should rely more on his own good sense and business ability and less on government subsidy to realize a truly-sound farm economy.

On the other side, opponents claim the high support program was built up carefully over the years and reflects what the farmer thinks is best for himself and the consumer. They assail the Eisenhower-Benson philosophy as a threat to economic gains made by the farmers since the black days of the depression.

Present devices to support or strengthen farm income grew by gradual stages out of the farm depression almost 30 years ago.

Legislation to provide for cutting farm production, plowing under cotton and killing pigs found opposition from farmers and the public and resulted in a search for more direct devices for supporting or strengthening prices.

MUST BE SUPPORTED

Congress decided that the crops designated as basic—wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts—must be supported at 90 per cent of parity

This support device included the practice of making loans to farmers on those portions of their crops which they held off the market. For example, the parity price of wheat is $2.20 a bushel. If a farmer can't sell his wheat at that price, he can take a government loan of $2.20 a bushel and store his grain on his farm or in commercial warehouses.

But under this program huge surpluses are piling up. There are around 600,000,000 bushels of wheat already stored in bins, warehouses, elevators and even old liberty ships. The corn surplus runs about 800,000,000 bushels and tons of butter are on storage.

This abundance—for which there is no ready market—is a real problem. Some see it as a threat to the entire farm program if the general public should ever rebel against paying farmers for producing crops which have little chance of being sold in the open market.

WINS SUPPORT

That is where the Eisenhower-Benson argument wins perhaps its strongest support. It isn't likely that any program would survive if it became unpopular with the public.

But even with price supports and last year's record farm production, the U. S. farmer has been realizing less and less for his effort. While farm prices have fallen in the last two years, the cash expenses of the farmer have increased.

In addition, the foreign market for U. S. farm products has slipped from a high of $4,000,000,000 last year to an estimated $3,000,000,000 this year. That means another $1,000,000,000 worth of commodities left on the domestic market.

Rhee Hints New U.S. Offer; Envoy Brings Secret Note

Reds Try Placating East Germans With Concessions

BERLIN (AP)—The Western Allies demanded anew today that the Russians lift martial law in East Berlin. They also rejected as unworthy of consideration Communist charges that American officers incited the rioting in Red-ruled East Germany last week. The new demand came as East German Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl was telling his Communist party workers that many Germans arrested in the rioting are being released but that the "genuinely guilty" will be punished severely.

The British, U. S. and French commandants in Berlin put their demand in a letter to Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, Red army commander of forces rushed into the East sector to quell the rioting. Dibrova had charged previously that a German arrested as a riot leader had been hired by an American who wore a uniform with two stars. The only two-star general in Berlin is Thomas C. Timberman, the U. S. commandant.

PLACATING MOVE

Grotewohl's statement was seen as a placating move to a population simmering with resentment and still under martial law eight days after long-smouldering dissatisfaction with Red rule exploded into revolution.

Grotewohl spoke to a rally of Socialist Unity (Communist) party workers. He emphasized that the machinery is already in motion for releasing the great numbers of East Germans rounded up after the rioting June 17 and in the days following.

Western circles reported as many as 16,000 workers in Soviet zone jails, another 4,000 in East Berlin prisons. The severe punishment Grotewohl talked about was spelled out by 27 summary executions by Russian Army riflemen and evidence that the East German local courts are considering the same judgment in a few cases.

The East German regime disclosed also that it had invited its subjects to air their grievances in Red-sponsored public discussions.

Describing increased social benefits promised by his government, Grotewohl said he would make up the extra expense by cutting back appropriations for heavy industry and for the fledgling armed forces. The Soviet zone army is estimated to number about 125,000 men but plans to expand it to more than 300,000 have been in prospect.

Soldier Returns To Find Family Died In Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A soldier stunned by tragedy returned Tuesday night to the army camp where all four members of his family perished in a short but lethal fire.

The soldier, Spr. Robert Lecuyer, was flown back to his home after news of the tragedy was broken to him while he was away for summer training in Calgary.

Mrs. Eileen Lecuyer, 23, died with her three children Tuesday after making a courageous attempt to save them as they slept in the upstairs of the Lecuyer home at the nearby Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering.

MOSTLY SMOKE

All were suffocated. An RCMP officer said in describing the 15-minute fire, of undetermined origin, that "there wasn't much flame—just smoke."

An army officer said "the fire started downstairs where the mother was working and apparently she was quite badly burned."

He added: "But she dashed right upstairs to where her children were sleeping to try to save them. She was overcome by smoke before she could even drag them out of bed."

Only the lower portion of the home received serious fire damage. Only smoke and water damage was found in the upstairs rooms where the bodies were located.

Escapes Trial For Larceny

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Way, who lost his mother's $13,000 life savings on the Kentucky Derby, escaped a trial for grand larceny Tuesday when the little 71-year-old woman forgave all.

Mrs. Lillian Way refused to press a complaint that her son took the money from a joint safe deposit box to bet on the Derby.

"I haven't long to live," she said. "I hope God will forgive my sins and I want to forgive my son's."

Way, 43, who has three children and one grandchild of his own, bet the money on Derby favorite Native Dancer and lost by a head.

Weeping, he told the judge:

"I'll sign my house over to my mother and give her everything I've got. She can live with me for the rest of her life."

Make Surprise Choice For French Premier

PARIS (CP)—President Vincent Auriol crossed up political observers today and called on Joseph Laniel, a deputy little known outside his own Independent Republican party, to have a try at forming a government to end France's record political crisis.

The nomination was announced after former premier Antoine Pinay, another independent, gave up attempts to put together the country's 19th post-war cabinet. France has been without a government since Premier Rene Mayer was ousted May 21.

Laniel, a textile manufacturer, has served in several French cabinets but always as a junior minister.

Pinay was the seventh political leader Auriol has tapped for the job and the third to say no without going before the assembly for approval. The other four were turned down by the deputies.

Bennett Advocates New Tax Exemptions

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia Tuesday advocated exemptions in personal income tax of $2,000 for single men and $3,000 for married men with an additional $750 for each child.

Interviewed on his way to a Social Credit party conference at Toronto July 25 and 26, Mr. Bennett said the purchasing power of Canadians must be increased if increasing production is to be used up.

The best way to increase purchasing power is by raising income tax exemptions thereby boosting take-home pay without increasing cost of production, he said.

He also suggested an extended highway policy with federal and provincial governments co-operating and said he would like to see Canada's dollar priced under the American to expedite exports.

UN Troops Hurl Back Red Attack

Drive Off 3,000 In Long Battle For Boomerang Ridge

SEUL (AP)—U.S. and South Korean infantry hurled back Chinese attacking in division strength and Sabre jets bagged six Red MiGs today as three years of war in Korea drew to a close.

The war goes into its fourth year Thursday.

The 8th army said Chinese regiments which attacked Allied hill positions in central Korea's Iron Triangle had been beaten off by mid-afternoon except in one small sector.

Infantry of the U. S. 3rd division and South Korean units hurled back 3,000 Reds in a night-long battle for Boomerang ridge.

REINFORCEMENTS HELP

A U. S. Army spokesman said the Red attack on Sniper ridge began shortly after midnight and carried into South Korean trenches at some points. Dense fog helped to screen the attackers. But reinforcements were rushed to the front and before noon the Reds were in retreat. No more than a single Communist platoon remained in the area by 2:30 p. m., the spokesman said.

The only casualty report came from Boomerang ridge where U.S. troops estimated they killed and wounded more than 700 Reds.

Allied fighter-bombers took off to bomb and strafe the attacking Reds as a heavy overcast began clearing late in the morning.

Spanish Bases Agreement Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported nearing final agreement for use of Spanish naval and air bases in return for large-scale military and economic aid.

Senior officials confidently expect three separate agreements spelling out these Spanish-American ties will be signed some time this summer.

Tentative plans call for the Eisenhower administration to provide the Franco government with about $200,000,000 in military and economic assistance during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

As part of the deal being worked out in Madrid, the U. S. government is reported ready to spend additional huge sums running into perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars, to modernize and expand about half-a-dozen Spanish air and naval bases.

Spain would agree to lease these highly strategic air and naval installations to the U. S. to help in the defence of Western Europe against communism.

UK Moves To Solvency In 20-Month Period

ARINGDON, England (Reuters) Prime Minister Churchill said today Britain has moved from "bankruptcy to solvency" in 20 months under his administration and is striving for independence from U. S. financial aid.

A new and buoyant spirit pervades the whole nation," he said. "The atmosphere of frustration and disappointment that hung over us two years ago has now given place to one of faith and confidence."

The prime minister made the statement in a message of support for Airey Neave, Conservative party candidate in a parliamentary by-election here next Tuesday.

The by-election was caused by the elevation to the peerage of Conservative member Sir Ralph Glyn. He won the Abingdon seat in the October, 1951, general elections by 4,883 votes.

TENT CATERPILLAR ENCAMPMENT along Highway 7 toward Lindsay has taken on curious shapes by small roadside chokecherry trees. The elongated nests, agricultural representatives think, may be due to the lush all over growth this season where the young larvae may feed from tender ground shoots to the tips of the small bushes. A section about half a concession wide east of Fowler's Corners is badly infested with these pests. Roadside spraying has not killed them.

Kidnapped Child Arrives In Winnipeg

Mrs. Bernadette Verfaillie first reported Linda missing 25 days after Prevost took her for a holiday. The pair were found registered as George Brown and daughter in a Vancouver hotel Sunday by police who traced a telegram Prevost sent to a friend in Churchill, Man., asking for money.

At the airport, the girl was taken home and Prevost was taken to the city jail in custody. He was to appear on an abduction charge today.

Hotel employees in Vancouver said Prevost treated the child better than many fathers.

Chinese Quintuplets

LONDON (AP)—Birth of quintuplets to a Chinese peasant woman was reported today by Peiping radio. Mother and babies were said to be "doing well". The Chekiang provincial government is taking care of the family, the broadcast said, and has allocated a monthly subsidy for the rearing of the children.

Flees In Stolen Truck Wrecks Police Cruiser

WINDSOR (CP)—A 19-year-old Woodstock resident is in police custody after leading two police cruisers a wild chase through the city early this morning, wrecking one of them, in a tow truck he allegedly stole. Gilbert Reginald Lossing, who first gave his name as William Watson of Brantford, admitted taking the truck from the Noble Duff, Ltd., lot after a round of city taverns.

Lossing was charged this morning with the theft of the truck and other charges may be pending, police said.

Police describing the charge, said one police cruiser had been rammed by the truck and put out of action, and a second cruiser had taken over the chase and fired on the fleeing vehicle.

The second cruiser overtook the truck and was also rammed. The car was not badly damaged, however, and was able to stay on the trail.

When the truck reached the CPR crossing at Tecumseh, the driver suddenly jumped out and let the truck carry on alone.

He dashed into a field at the south of Tecumseh and hid in long weeds there. Police soon discovered him, however, and took him into custody.

Recover Body Of City Flier

HALIFAX (CP)—Bodies of nine air force men killed in a bomber crash last winter about 100 miles southeast of Goose Bay, Labrador, were recovered Tuesday. They were flown to the RCAF base at Greenwood, N. S.

Wreckage of the plane, a Lancaster from Greenwood, was found last week.

Those aboard the aircraft included four Ontario men: Fo. Thomas C. Waggar, Kingston; Fo. Douglas D. Wood, Peterborough; Fo. Bernard D. Forbes, North Bay and Cpl. Rodger D. Lalond, Kirkland Lake.

Canadian Pilot Killed In U.K.

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian pilot was killed when his Sabre jet fighter crashed deep into a Lincolnshire bean field, the RCAF disclosed today.

Officials said the crash occurred Tuesday during a formation flight from No. 1 fighter wing, North Luffenham, Rutland. The crashed plane was missed after the formation had emerged from clouds and the wreckage was recovered near Boston, Lincs., where it had dug deep into a field, damaging two nearby cottages.

Plane Takes Off From Highway

BOWMANVILLE (CP)—A pilot brought his small plane down on a field in an emergency landing Tuesday, then filled his empty fuel tanks and took off on a busy highway while cars were lined up for miles.

The operation, directed by police, took two hours.

Daniel Sicard and Fruend Louis, both of Montreal, were flying to Toronto when they were forced down in a field near No. 2 highway, two miles east of here.

Police were called and decided on the highway take-off. A tractor was used to haul the plane to the 22-foot-wide roadway.

The plane, with a 32-foot wingspread, cleared a heavy hydro wire by inches as it climbed into the air.

Bowmanville is 10 miles east of Oshawa.

Doucett Intervenes In Highway Dispute

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario is going to intervene personally in a dispute which for a time last month halted construction of the dual-lane highway which eventually will run from Windsor to the Quebec border.

The minister is to meet here today with a committee from the Southwestern Ontario Highways Association, a group of more than 75 farmers from Kent and Essex counties who contend the department is not paying enough for land it wants for the highway.

Will Yank Troops Out Of UN Control If Truce Signed

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today impending conferences with a special emissary from Washington may "open new channels" which would make an armistice "more acceptable to us and perhaps more honorable to the U.S." The statement—made in an interview with CBS, contrasted sharply with Rhee's threat earlier today to fight on alone if a truce unacceptable to him is signed by his allies. The Republic of Korea government, meanwhile, announced formation of a committee of top cabinet members—with Rhee as chairman—to take over "defence" of the country immediately in the event of a cease-fire. Its duties were not explained.

As the bloody war ended its third year, these developments heightened the tension in Korea: 1. Walter S. Robertson, U.S. assistant secretary of state, carrying a secret note to Rhee from State Secretary Dulles, landed in Tokyo and was expected in the South Korean capital Thursday.

2. Rhee served official notice he would yank his 16-division army from United Nations control if an armistice is signed on present terms.

3. The leader of an anti-Rhee political party, Dr. Chough Pyong Ok, was severely beaten after speaking out against the Korean president's defiant truce stand.

4. The biggest anti-truce demonstration in South Korea—more than 1,000,000 taking part—was expected to be touched off Thursday—third anniversary of the costly war.

WON'T RETREAT

5. Yoon Chi Yung, vice-speaker of the RoK National Assembly and an outspoken Rhee supporter, insisted that his country's armed forces "will not retreat even one step back" from the present battleline.

In an impassioned letter to Gen. Mark Clark, Rhee said that under terms of the present armistice agreement "I do not see . . . how the RoK forces can remain under your command, however regrettable to us."

The letter, released today by Rhee, was dated Saturday—two days before Clark conferred twice with the defiant South Korean president in an apparently futile effort to win his approval of a truce.

Marlene Stewart Enters Semi-Final

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Canada's Marlene Stewart, the youngest girl in the tournament, today won her way into the semi-final of the British women's open golf championship at the Royal Porthcawl links.

Miss Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., scored a 6 and 4 victory over Elizabeth Price of England.

Albania Eases Curbs On People

LONDON (AP)—Another Soviet satellite announced concessions to its population today. Albania's government, via radio Tirana, said the peasants no longer have to hand part of their harvest to the state.

The broadcast said the Red regime hopes thus to build up "a patriotic working peasantry."

Albanian refugee sources in the west long have reported widespread unrest in the little Adriatic country.

100 Passengers Killed, Train Sabotaged

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Railway officials announced today that about 100 or more persons were killed when a passenger train plunged 50 feet through a sabotaged viaduct Tuesday in east Indo-China.

Two locomotives and 18 cars crashed down into a ravine at the "Col des Nuages (pass of the clouds)," a mountain pass on the route between the ancient Annamite capital of Hue and the port of Tourane. The pass has frequently been the scene of attacks by the Communist-led Vietminh rebels.

Rescue crews still searched the wreckage today and fears were expressed that the death toll would rise. There was no estimate of the number of injured.

First reports said the dead included 10 soldiers on armored cars to protect the train from raiders. All the other dead were believed to be Indo-Chinese civilians.

Officials said a strong explosive charge went off just as the train arrived at the viaduct, tumbling a 25-foot span into the ravine. The train dropped through the gap even as stones from the viaduct were still falling.

It was estimated reconstruction of the viaduct would take about two months. The armored train has been the chief means of surface travel between Hue and Tourane due to heavy Vietminh pressure in the area.

Threatens War Against French

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia has warned that his little Indo-Chinese kingdom will withdraw from the French Union and wage open war against the French unless his demands for full independence are granted.

It said:

"We will not consider ourselves members of the French Union unless France recognizes the independence of Cambodia, at least in the same sense as that of Pakistan with relation to Great Britain."

Cambodia is one of the three French-associated states of Indo-China. The other two are Viet Nam and Laos. The French dominate the foreign affairs, defence and much of the economic policy of these states while Pakistan's chief tie with Britain as a member of the Commonwealth is her allegiance to the British Crown.

Five People Killed In Apartment Fire

BOSTON (CP)—At least five persons died today when fire swept a five-storey apartment block in Boston's south end.

Three of the dead were women. One body was reported to be that of a child.

At least eight persons were rescued by firemen and police. Other occupants fled the building down rear stairways.

Agriculture Costs $100,000,000 In '52

DYSART, Sask. (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner says estimates for his department hit a high of $74,000,000 last year and the cost of fighting the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak among Saskatchewan livestock boosted the final total expenditure to more than $100,000,000.

This amount, Mr. Gardiner told an election campaign rally of 300 persons here Tuesday night, was the most money spent on agriculture in Canada's history.

Duke Nearly Drops Crown

Queen Attends Secondary Coronation

EDINBURGH (AP)—The Queen received the ancient crown of Scotland at a solemn ceremony today, but she didn't wear it.

At St. Giles's Cathedral, where she was the central figure in a national service of thanksgiving and dedication, she held the crown for a moment, and then handed it to the Duke of Hamilton.

The duke, high officer of state, stumbled slightly and the glittering crown almost slipped from its golden cushion. But he recovered his balance and then it was returned safely to a collection of treasures which Scots call the Honors of Scotland—crown, sceptre and sword of state.

It was a Coronation in everything except the actual act of crowning. Some were disappointed that she did not wear a crown in this Scottish capital, but it was explained that the omission had no significance whatever—it was in fact an observance of Scottish tradition. Scotland's later sovereigns did not wear the crown. On ceremonial occasions it always was carried in front of them. Besides, constitutional experts had ruled that a second crowning here would have been out of order.

Edinburgh was gay with decorations and vast throngs applauded the 27-year-old Queen as she rose in a state carriage drawn by four grey horses from Holyrood House to the cathedral.

There was no outward sign of objections by some Scots that she is known as Elizabeth II instead of Elizabeth I, as nationalists contend would be proper. Many hundreds of police were alert to quell any demonstrations. But there was no hostile gesture, and the acclaim of an estimated 200,000 persons along the processional route was a duplicate of the applause the Queen received on her Coronation in London.

The Queen, wearing a chic blue coat-dress, smiled happily and waved continuously as she sat beside her consort, the Duke of Edinburgh.

At the cathedral doors she was received first by the Moderator of the Church of Scotland, Assembly, the Rt. Rev. James Pitt Watson and then by the Very Rev. Charles Watt, Dean of the Thistle, which is Scotland's premier chivalric order.

PASSES PEERS

Then she walked in a slow procession into the cathedral, passing rows of red-robed peers to her royal pew. The objects which constitute the Honors of Scotland were brought out by three ermine-coated noblemen.

Fanfares sounded, and in the stillness that followed the dean said simply:

"Let us worship God."

Simplicity was the keynote. It was nothing like the colorful ceremonial of the Westminster Abbey Coronation.

The service had the overtones of a friendly family affair. Many Scots hold to a traditional belief that they are all related to their monarchs. And Elizabeth, born of a Scots mother, has more Scots blood in her than any other monarch in 3½ centuries.

So the service was an intimate religious act in which all 1,700 in the cathedral could join. When the hymns came around everybody sang.

A highlight of the service was the delivery by the moderator of a paraphrase of the Scottish National Covenant of 1638—Scotland's declaration of religious independence. He pledged all to be "good examples to others of all godliness, soberness and righteousness."

Canada None Too Happy About Surplus Food Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is "none too happy" about United States proposals to give surplus foodstuffs away to needy countries, an external affairs official said today.

However, he added, "there has been no official protest to Washington—as yet."

Several bills are under study in the Congress under which the U.S. would give away between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 worth of surplus agricultural products, but none has been approved.

"We find none of them attractive to us," the official said.

Generally, the American proposals are to give importing countries the chance to get free American foodstuffs as a supplement to their normal purchases.

However, the fear here and in other food exporting countries is that no one will be able to determine with certainty the level of "normal" purchases by importing countries.

This may lead to widespread reluctance by importing countries to buy foodstuffs from any country if there is the chance of getting them free from the U.S. larder.

A drastic reduction in exports from Canada and other agricultural countries may result causing depression among farm groups.

New Zealand, which leans heavily on its food exports for its prosperity, has protested already to Washington.

Liberal Policy Just Yawn Drew Declares

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Tuesday night the Liberal government has become "the victim of its own propaganda" that all is well in the defence department.

"The present government is old and tired in office," Mr. Drew told a meeting in his first speech of the election campaign in his own constituency of Carleton.

It was time for a change in government, "an opportunity to examine the books, and a business-like reorganization of government."

Mr. Drew leaves today for a speech Wednesday in Quebec City before starting a 12-day campaign through Western Canada.

Tuesday night he criticized several aspects of the Liberal keynote speech made by Prime Minister St. Laurent in Windsor, Ont., Monday night.

NO POLICY INDICATED

The Liberal leader's speech gave no indication of Liberal policy for the future, he said.

"It simply tells us emphatically that the government policy for the future can be expressed in the words: 'As you were.'

"This was not a policy. It was a yawn."

Mr. Drew quoted the prime minister as saying that the opposition had found no impressive evidence of extravagance in the defence program, that it had been denied no information, and that Canada's economic strength, world stature and national unity had all been achieved under a Liberal government.

"We have the evidence of waste, extravagance and inefficiency furnished by men appointed by the government," he said. These included reports by George S. Currie on the army works services, by Auditor-General Watson Sellars on government accounting methods and "by others whose reports we have not been permitted to see but about which we do know."

GENERAL CONDITION

"In view of the fact that each of the reports we have been permitted to see has found the same condition, there can be no doubt that this is a general condition."

The prime minister's statement that no information had been denied to the opposition was "surprising."

When Parliament prorogued there were 15 unanswered questions on the order paper and 18 motions for information passed by Parliament which the government had "ignored."

The government had also refused a request for information on the expenditure of $668,000,000 on aircraft although similar information was given in detail in the British House of Commons and the United States Congress.

"There is no sound explanation for that refusal. The explanation 'not in the public interest' has been worn threadbare."

National Library Takes 5 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. W Kaye Lamb of Ottawa, national librarian said Tuesday it will be another four or five years before Canada has a genuine national library.

His staff has been working on it for 2½ years already, he told the Canadian Authors Association.

Dr. Lamb said the national library already is functioning through a periodical survey of new Canadian work in "Canadiana." This monthly catalogue of all work done by Canadians anywhere in the world was circulated through 600 Canadian libraries. Books were also being recorded on microfilm and some 3,000,000 volumes have been catalogued.

Dr. Claude Bissell, vice-president of the University of Toronto, said at an association dinner that Canadian writing needs a "shock treatment."

He said the rebirth of the novel in Canada during the last 15 years has come as a result of authors' deep introspection and reflective exploration of the relations between groups of people. The present type of Canadian novel needed to be crossed with some more vigorous view of life.

Rhee, who tossed a wrench into an impending armistice last week by ordering the release of more than 27,000 anti-Communist war prisoners, steadfastly opposes any truce that leaves Korea divided.

"We say no now with deep humility," Rhee wrote Clark, "not out of defiance."

HEIGHTENS TASK

Rhee's action heightened the task of Robertson, who told reporters in Tokyo:

"I am still hopeful that I will be able to remove all misunderstandings and differences that stand in the way of peace."

He was accompanied from Washington by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, United States Army chief of staff.

When he arrives in Seoul for talks with Rhee, Robertson will be greeted with an anti-truce demonstration hailed by South Koreans as the biggest yet.

In Pusan, the government named Thursday "northward advance-unification day" and ordered about 200,000 Koreans to rally in the city plaza for demonstrations, parades and speeches.

Chough Pyong Ok, leader of the Opposition Democratic Nationalist party and former home minister, was attacked in the home of a friend by four men he called "hoodlums."

RANSACK HOME

Other Koreans ransacked Chough's house after he called Rhee's prisoner release order "unwise" and said they might isolate South Korea from the free world.

Asked if he thought the attack was ordered by the government, Chough said, "we don't know. One thing bad is that we can't say what we believe."

Chough was placed under police protection while officers were ordered to comb Seoul for his attackers. He later disappeared, but police said they expected to find him.

The National Assembly asked four RoK cabinet ministers to appear Saturday to explain the mass breakout of anti-Communist North Korean prisoners held by the Allies.

Observers said the Assembly—which is controlled by Rhee followers—probably hopes to provide greater security for the freed prisoners. They have been fed and hidden by the civilian population on orders from Rhee.

PLAYING INTO HANDS

Rhee, in his letter to Clark, said the U.S., under influence of communistically inclined UN members, was changing its policy of unifying Korea and was "slowly but surely playing into the hands of the aggressors."

"Whether Korea or the UN is the true loyal ally of the U.S. is left to the American people to judge for themselves."

"I am very anxious to make sure that we do nothing to drive the Korean people and consequently the rest of anti-Communist people of Asia to turn anti-American.

"It will be a great tragedy," Rhee said.

THOMAS MARK

Mr. Mark was a member of George St. United Church and was a life trustee of the board. He was also a member of the AF and AM Spry Lodge, Fenelon Falls, for 49 years and belonged to the Production Club of the Manufacturer's Life.

Plan Activities At Y Meeting

A meeting will be held in the Board rooms at the YMCA next Monday evening at 7.30 to select committees for the various phases of programming concerned with the annual Program Planning Conference.

This conference has become an annual event and will take place this year at Camp Kawartha on Clear lake, Saturday, September 19.

The function of the conference is to set a general plan of programming for the following year's activities and the heads of each department and other active members participate.

On July 6, the YMCA will open Camp Pow-Wow, an organization catering to children who haven't the opportunity to get away to a country camp. Plenty of entertainment as well as valuable knowledge is afforded them in the 'Y' building, itself, and also in the surrounding countryside where they will study nature first-hand by means of over-night, fishing and bird-calling hikes. They will also have courses in handcraft work, swimming and life-saving.

TO PREVENT EXPLOSION

The new policy obviously was designed as a safety valve to keep the east zone from exploding again into open warfare, but the Reds' radio Berlin commented that the discussion sessions also would give the government a chance to explain its "new course."

The Russians, however, gave no major sign of lifting their iron grip imposed after the open rebellion began a week ago. Martial law still prevailed and a curfew emptied the streets nightly.

The Russians made only a few minor concessions, allowing East and West Berliners who work across the gun-ringed frontier to cross at three special points, and releasing 800 West Berliners caught in the Soviet sector by the riots.

Those released said another 500 West Berliners still were being held in a former slaughterhouse for further checking.

Russian firing squads executed three of the picked East German "peoples' police" in East Berlin and shot two others in Gera for alleged complicity in the week of strikes and rioting.

The east Regime's dominant German Communist party secretary-general, Walter Ulbricht, announced that disgruntled senior workmen in plants and factories would have a chance to air their complaints without fear of reprisal.

Told To Forget Ivory Tower

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Authors Association was told today that artists—literary persons, scientists and all—from time to time should descend from their "ivory tower and condescend to step down to the level of the common man."

In an address prepared for the association's convention, Dr. Adrien Plouffe of Montreal termed this levelling process "the decentralization of culture," a means of bringing arts, letters and science to the people.

Dr. Plouffe is secretary-general of La Societe des Ecrivains Canadiens and is a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

Dr. Plouffe said the motion picture, radio and television "will always be but passing shadows, artificial substitutes, when compared with the physical, living, authentic presence of the artists themselves, or of the men of science or of the true intelligensia.

"Those who are the trustees of scientific, intellectual and artistic culture must deign to step down from their pedestal and must, humbly and courageously, spread the good seeds of knowledge, those beneficial, beautiful and useful ideas, in the spirit of their most humble contemporaries."

Doucett Approves Gannon's Plan

Today Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, received a letter from Highways Minister George Doucett approving the three-way agreement among the County of Peterborough, Township of Harvey and Province of Ontario for financing the $206,000 overhead bridge and causeway at Gannon's Narrows.

The agreement calls for the province paying 80 per cent of an estimated $104,000 for fill and surfacing of the causeway proper; and the remaining 20 per cent will be assumed 8/11th by the county and 3/11th by the township.

Already the Dominion Department of Transport has sent a cheque for $99,000 to cover the cost of the overhead bridge. The remaining $3,000 for legal fees, interest on bank loans and incidentals, is not subsidizeable from either government.

Construction work on the project should begin mid-July.

Prices Hold Firm In Market Trading

Uraniums showed such specialties as Nesbitt Labine and Chimo with 20-cent gains as well as modest rises in Bonville and National Explorations.

Industrials showed a generous majority of plus signs with papers, utilities, steels, refining oils and miscellaneous industrials firmer. Gatineau preferred added $1 in utilities.

Western oils were up a half-point after spurting ahead more than a point in mid-morning.

Senior golds firmed around noon as Giant again became a favorite while Kerr Addison added ¼. Juniors weakened but holding companies were well forward.

Drew Promising Impossible On Tax Cuts—St. Laurent

GODERICH (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says the Progressive Conservatives can't produce promised $500,000,000-a-year tax cuts and his own government won't keep taxes higher than necessary. That was his answer—as he moved through Western Ontario today on his opening Aug. 10 election campaign tour—to Progressive Conservative George Drew's pledge to slash taxes by one-ninth the current $4,500,000,000 budget. Mr. St. Laurent said Tuesday night the opposition party chief cannot do it and is "promising the impossible," particularly in the light of other planks in the Progressive Conservative manifesto which the prime minister said would run into new hundreds of millions of dollars yearly.

The Drew platform was delivered Friday at Guelph, native city of the opposition leader. Mr. St. Laurent, who launched his Canada-wide vote-getting tour at Windsor, Ont., Monday, gave his direct reply to Mr. Drew in Guelph, centre of Liberal-held Wellington South riding.

Overnight, he moved by train to this town in Huron constituency, and today he scheduled speeches for Goderich, Clinton, Wingham and Harriston.

SEVERAL STOPS

In a combination of rail and automobile whistle-stopping and city speeches, the prime minister touched at the cities of Kitchener, Waterloo and Guelph, the towns of Elmira and Elora and the village of St. Jacobs. He made at least one speech in each, from platform, lunch table, city hall steps and sidewalks.

Most of them had no direct political impact, delivered off the cuff to non-political rallies that included school children, and Mr. St. Laurent saved up his election ammunition for the day's windup evening meeting at Guelph to answer Mr. Drew.

In his keynote opening speech Monday, Mr. St. Laurent had largely ignored the Progressive Conservative manifesto, but Tuesday night he tackled it by points in his chief opponent's home town.

The prime minister's 5,500-word address in the Guelph Arena to a crowd of around 2,500 was devoted chiefly to a direct answer to what Mr. Drew had said four days earlier in the Guelph armories.

He hit specifically at several of the Progressive Conservatives' 16 points on the ground they included economies and more spending, but he struck hardest at the $500,000,000 tax cut suggestion.

CAN'T BE CARRIED OUT

To carry out proposals in the manifesto generally, Mr. St. Laurent said, would be impossible.

On the major point of tax cuts, he said, the Progressive Conservatives would, unless they defined their position more clearly, be forced to take the cut out of the remaining 18 per cent of federal spending that was not frozen by defence or other spending commitments of Progressive Conservative promises.

The Progressive Conservatives, he said, appeared to be willing to promise anything.

For his own party, he made no pledges for the future. This was in line with the Liberals' general policy of appealing to the country on the government's record.

It would keep tax rates no higher than it believed necessary to finance services the Canadian people wanted and were willing to pay for, in addition to defence, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"More than this we will not promise."

NOT VERY CLEAR

The prime minister said that after several readings of the Progressive Conservative plank on freight rates, he cannot "figure what, if anything, it is supposed to mean." He imagined it was meant to give an impression of lower freight rates by subsidy if necessary, which would mean higher expenditures.

He added that, after sitting opposite Mr. Drew in the Commons for years, his experience was that the Progressive Conservative chief seemed to believe that if something were asserted often enough and loudly enough, it became a fact. But government could not be carried on that way.

In the Waterloo north riding that contains Kitchener and Waterloo and where the population is heavily of German descent, Mr. St. Laurent stressed the theme of national unity in Canada despite the diversity of origins of its population.

"The various races have contributed to our national life," he said to about 300 persons on the lawn before the Waterloo city hall. "We are all, first of all, Canadian citizens and proud of the fact, without forsaking our racial traditions and languages."

From the city hall steps of Kitchener, a half block from the birth place of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, he sounded a similar note for about 250 persons.

For them, he added the suggestion that Canada will continue to welcome immigrants and he suggested this country will have a population of between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 by the end of the century.

In Kitchener, too, Mr. St. Laurent spoke to the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club, where he said Canada has admitted 800,000 immigrants since the war and expects to keep on bringing them in.

On the way to Elmira, a town of about 2,000, he paused by the roadside to talk to the 100-odd schoolchildren at St. Jacob, a village of about 800 population. The youngsters were ranged on the lawn in front of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, clutching flags, and Mr. St. Laurent spoke to them from the sidewalk.

He talked to the children of the Coronation and the children he had seen there, and he asked them to pray for peace.

"I hope you will not forget," he said, "to say in your prayers a thought for peace. For the time being, your part in the keeping of peace is to remember it in your prayers. I have confidence that Providence will give us peace on earth to men of good will."

At Elmira, he spoke from the bandstand in the park and at Elora he addressed a ladies' tea.

Lands, Forests Opens Office On George St.

The Regional Office of the Department of Lands and Forests which has now opened at 397 George St. under the supervision of W. B. Greenwood, Regional orester, is actually an internal administration office supervising the three Districts of Lindsay, Tweed and Rideau (Kemptville).

However, the office of Zone Forester John Bell, and that of Conversation Officer Stan Windsor, will be located at the George St. address for convenience. Information and deposits on certain resort lands will be handled by the office, providing that previous deposits have not been made at other offices.

The local office is in no way taking the place of the District Forester's office in Lindsay and most business transactions will still be carried out in Lindsay or Tweed. The local office will act mainly as an Information Centre.

Mr. Greenwood is a graduate in Forestry at Toronto with 30 years experience in both Governmental and private business. He was District Forester at North Bay until 1936 when he resigned to form his own sawmill business.

He was connected with the Timber Control and Selective Service Office during the war. Lately he has been Assistant Chief of the Lands and Recreational Areas Division of the Department in Toronto.

Mrs. M. O. Strickland has been transferred from the office in Lindsay to act as secretary in the new office.

Lindsay Obtains New Service From Red Cross

LINDSAY (ENS) — Miss Nesta Hinton, chief of the Ontario Red Cross homemakers' and nutrition services, outlined Tuesday night the value of the homemakers' service to Lindsay, where it is now being established by the local branch of the Red Cross.

She spoke to a public meeting called by the homemakers' service committee. She explained in detail various aspects of the service, its organization on a national and provincial scale, its local operation, and some of its features.

"The chief concern of the service is the care of young famlies when the mother goes into hospital, or is ill at home, or other emergencies," said Miss Hinton. She pointed out that, of 34 services in Canada operated by the Red Cross, 25 were in Ontario. The number is increased to 25 by inclusion of the Lindsay service.

Miss Hinton outlined the service given by homemakers last year in Ontario—2,500 families assisted and some 19,600 days of service rendered. Explaining the local organization, she said that probably a part-time supervisor would be desirable —a woman to handle appointments, interview families desiring the service, set fees for each case and, in some cases, call after the emergency is over to check on the service received by the family.

"The homemaker is neither a maid nor a nurse", said Miss Hinton, explaining that the only duties lay in the line of ordinary housework and service. In addition, the local service would probably start with only two part-time homemakers at the call of the supervisor, and expand as needed.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. C. S. M. Service, chairman of the committee, and thanked by Mrs. T. H. Eberlee, secretary. The meeting was conducted by W. S. Battersby, chairman of the local Red Cross Society.

A presentation was made by the Rev. P. C. Reeds to Miss Ruth White, a teacher at Central Public School, for maintaining a record of registering Junior Red Cross groups in her class for the last 15 years.

Health Program Would Cost $600,000,000

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell estimates it would cost $600,000,000 a year to implement a national health program in Canada.

Despite this cost, Mr. Coldwell told a political rally of more than 600 persons here Tuesday night that the scheme would mean an annual saving of about $75,000,000 on the $675,00,000 Canadians now pay for health service.

Mr. Coldwell, speaking in the ninth Saskatchewan centre since he opened his party's federal election campaign June 15, said the Liberals had been promising a national health plan since 1919. Yet when Health Minister Martin was asked why nothing had been done, he replied such a plan couldn't be set up "overnight."

RICH MAN'S BUDGET

The CCF leader accused the Liberal government of setting up a social security tax to "care for the rich" and to bring in a "rich man's" budget. His party, if elected Aug. 10, would introduce social security measures on an ability-to-pay basis.

Mr. Coldwell also took a verbal punch at the 16-point program outlined by George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader. It promised among other things a cut of $500,000,000 in the national tax bill.

"Any person who promised all this along with tax cuts has either something wrong with his arithmetic or something wrong with his politics," Mr. Coldwell said.

Liberal Candidate

HAMILTON (CP) — John P. O'Reilly, barrister here for 26 years, Tuesday night was chosen as Liberal candidate for Hamilton West in the Aug. 10 federal election. He will be opposed by Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative who held the seat in the last House, and Alex Muir, CCF.

Rev. G. D. Smith Received At Presbytery

The Rev. Gilbert D. Smith of St. Giles' Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, was officially received as a minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church held Tuesday at Nestleton.

Mr. Smith has been in charge of the St. Giles' congregation since April 1. The details of his transfer from the Presbyterian Church in Ireland were completed by the Canadian General Assembly June 10. The clerk of the Presbytery entered the minute, "The name of the Rev. D. Smith be added to the Constituent Roll by authority of the General Assembly and by virtue of his appointment to St. Giles', Peterborough and his Presbyterial certificate from Ireland."

WINS APPROVAL

Plans of the new St. Giles' Church were presented and received by the Presbytery with enthusiastic approval. The style of the church, which will seat more than 400, reflects the contemporary design of church architecture which has been favored by many new Presbyterian congregations. A member of the Presbytery remarked, "beautiful and distinct addition to church architecture in Peterborough."

A call from the congregations of Colborne, Brighton and Lakeport in favor of the Rev. Norman Caswell, now in Parry Sound, was approved. It is expected that Mr. Caswell will be inducted the latter part of July or the first of August.

Mr. Keith Wilcox, a student in Divinity, will continue on the Buckhorn field for another year. Mr. Wilcox's work received the warm thanks of the Presbytery.

James Dutton, Peterborough, and E. A. Hancock, Cobourg, presented their reports as commissioners at the General Assembly held in Toronto, June 3-10.

The Rev. L. H. Fowler of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, also a commissioner and a joint clerk of Assembly, presented, with them, his report of Assembly proceedings.

The next regular meeting was ordered for Sept. 15 at Cobourg.

Owner Must Find Land For Road

COBOURG—(ENS)— Stipulation by the town that the street allowance in Orval Calhoun's housing sub-division must be 66 feet wide drew from Mr. Calhoun two weeks ago the suggestion that if he had to sacrifice land to make up the 66 foot wide street allowance, the town should compensate him for it.

Council consulted their solicitor and last night a letter from him advised that it was up to the owner of the sub-division to provide the street allowance and the town was not obliged to pay him for it. On motion the reply from the town solicitor was referred to Mr. Calhoun.

Council received a letter from the Public Utilities Commission advising that Burnham street residents wanted water service from King street north to Bolston street, cost to be $11,000 and done under the local improvement bylaw. Subject to a check of the signatures of those who signed the petition, the proposal was approved.

Council appointed Mrs. Lilian Richards and Alex McKinnon as council representatives on the new planning board. Councillor Richards pointed out that her husband was interested in a housing sub-division and she asked that council consider that fact before deciding to appoint her to the planning board. Councillor Jeff Rolph commented that council need have no doubts as Councillor Richards would act in the general interests of the town.

PC Candidate At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD—The Ladies' Conversative Association of Campbellford met in the Legion Hall, June 22, for their annual elections with Mrs. Quinlan in the chair. They were addressed by Olley Taylor, Cobourg, Conservative nominee for Northumberland.

Following the election of Mrs. C. C. Thatham, president, and Mrs. George Vice, secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Quinlan spoke of the unsuccessful attempts made by the opposition to deprecate the Conservative leader.

Olley Taylor traced the advances in the political position of women through two wars, and through their vital activities beyond the home into business and industry. During the First War he had seen on service in England an indifference, where it was not active opposition to the Suffragettes, that seems unbelievable today, not forty years later.

Women in Canada have done much to improve the general tone of any party. A generation ago, he thought, committee rooms were sometimes neither as clean, nor as businesslike, nor as clean of speech as they are today. The women had done that.

The standards of the opposition, said Mr. Taylor, are quite clearly shown in Hansard. He cited the time when the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe remarked, If we have overstepped our powers, I make no apology for having done so". Little children, he said, are taught better manners.

DEAD FISH of several varieties—carp, suckers, rock bass and eels—covered the surface of Factory Creek at Cobourg Tuesday. Source of the poison or pollution that killed them is not known. Dye works' officials in the town have denied releasing any chemicals in the stream. Alan Moir, who lives near the creek mouth, is shown pointing with a stick to some of the dead fish. (Murray Smith Photo.)

Dead Fish Thick In Cobourg Creek

COBOURG—(ENS)—Hundreds of dead fish floated down Factory Creek Tuesday, some of them being caught in weeds along shore while others drifted down midstream. The varieties were suckers, eels, rock bass and carp. Some twitched slightly with life but most of them floated belly-up.

Residents along the creek reported they first noticed the dead fish floating downstream on Monday but on Tuesday morning they increased in number and ranged from the creek mouth upstream past the sewage disposal plant.

Mayor Jack Burget became worried that pollution might reach a stage that would menace public health but late Tuesday afternoon a stiff breeze came up and the fish were rapidly carried to the mouth of the creek and out into the lake where large flocks of gulls went to work on them.

It was suggested that chemicals from the dye works might have killed off the fish but an enquiry there drew a denial from superintendent Ross McArthur that any chemicals had been released into the creek.

OBITUARY

GEORGE EDMUND HUNTER

The death occurred Wednesday of George Edmund Hunter, RR No. 3 (Highway 28), in Civic Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Hunter was born in Cavan township 81 years ago, only son of Anthony Hunter and Sarah Ward Hunter. On the paternal side, the family were pioneers of that township. Mr. Hunter had lived in North Monaghan since 1874. His parents bought the Thompson farm, later the Elmdale Stock Farm, in which he was subsequently interested with his brothers, the late Thomas and Albert Hunter. Its location is about one mile east of Scott's Corners.

The Hunter brothers were long prominent in North Monaghan, but the youngest of them, George, did not take an active interest in municipal affairs. That was chiefly a concern of the eldest, Thomas.

Mr. Hunter was a member of George St. United Church in Peterborough. He leaves his wife, the former Stella McFadden of Peterborough, and one son T. Reginald Hunter, Toronto, with the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs.

The body is resting at the family residence on the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway, near what used to be known as water-trough hill, an old landmark of the township, until Friday at 11 a.m., and will then be removed to the Comstock funeral home where service will be held at 3:30 p.m., conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

First Polio Case

HAMILTON (CP) — The first case of polio in Hamilton for 1953 was reported Tuesday by Dr. J.S. Kitching, deputy medical health officer. A seven-year-old girl has been taken to the General Hospital and is partially paralyzed. Six cases have also come to the hospital from outside the city.

Finds Husband Dying

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Daniel Scott, 42, was found fatally wounded in the kitchen of his home Tuesday by his wife, Laura. A sawed-off .22 calibre rifle with a home-made wooden butt resembling a revolver was found by his side. Dr. A. R. Routledge, Middlesex coroner, said it was a case of suicide.

Sight Wreckage

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's maritime safety board said today the wreckage of a C-119 flying boxcar which vanished Tuesday has been spotted one mile off Tsukishima Island near Hiroshima. The plane carried four crew members and three U. S. paratroopers. There was no mention of survivors. The big transport disappeared en route to Korea.

Kill 42 Terrorists In Police Clash

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Forty-two Mau Mau terrorists were killed in a fierce battle with British colonial troops and other security forces in the Fort Hall area Tuesday, it was announced today.

The terrorists shot and killed six home guards and one tribal policeman in the same action.

In another action 10 persons, including six whites, were killed in a Mau Mau attack on a farm house.

McCubbin For Liberals

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP)—The West Middlesex Liberal Association Tuesday night unanimously named Robert McCubbin, MP for West Middlesex, as the party's standard bearer for the riding in the federal election Aug. 10. This was Mr. McCubbin's fourth nomination to contest a federal election. The Springbank district farmer was successful in the other three.

Pulp Workers Sign Agreement

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP)—A new working agreement affecting some 800 pulp and paper workers was signed here Tuesday by representatives of the Consolidated Paper Company, Belgo division, and Le Syndicat de la Pulpe et du Papier de Shawinigan (Shawinigan Pulp and Paper Syndicate).

The agreement provides for a reduction of the work week to 40 hours from 48 and a basic pay rate of $1.41 an hour. In addition it grants employees a six-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to May, 1952, and an immediate general increase of 12 per cent with a minimum increase of 16 cents an hour.

Bonus pay under the agreement has been raised to three cents an hour from two cents for workers on the four o'clock-to-midnight shift and to five cents from three for workers on the midnight-to-8 a. m., shift.

The Party Platforms In Review

The leaders of the three principal parties in the August 10 election have made their introductory campaign speeches, and while there may be some surprises between now and election day, we may assume that the lines upon which they will conduct their fighting have been established. Let us review briefly what has been said.

* * *

Mr. St. Laurent, speaking for the Liberals, has understandably offered his party's record as its best recommendation. This is what a party which has successfully held power always does. The tone of his speech was mild. He did not claim that the prosperity of Canada was the result of Liberal government, but he did say that the Liberal government had done a good job to make the most of the current prosperity. He said that he would not deal in empty promises or exaggerated hopes, and he kept his word; what he promised was a continuation of Liberal policy, as it has become familiar in the past. Trade, he said, had been encouraged, and had responded to the point at which Canadians are buying and selling more in proportion to their population than any other nation. National security was costing a great deal of money, but not more than he thought this country was able to bear. He pointed to advances in social security, and to certain moves implementing the Massey Report. Canada, under his government, had been "a happy land in a not very happy world."

* * *

Mr. St. Laurent dealt briefly with criticism that the Defence Department was extravagant and was concealing its follies. He said that some of the extravagance was illusory, that some had been detected and checked, and that very full information had been given to the Opposition when it was asked for. What Mr. St. Laurent did not mention was that years of power have made some Liberal legislators arrogant toward the public, and that huge surpluses in the annual budget have never been satisfactorily explained.

* * *

Mr. Drew, speaking for the Progressive Conservatives offers a program of sixteen points, some of which are vague and general, and some sharply realistic. His most striking promise was that, if elected, his government would reduce taxation by half a billion dollars yearly. There is no doubt in the mind of the average taxpayer that he is being taxed at present beyond governmental needs, and he suspects that this is done in accordance with the economic theory that the national economy can be strengthened by taking as much money as possible from the people when times are good, in the hope that it will therefore be possible to take less from them when times are bad. This notion, which can be endured in war, is unpopular in peace. Nevertheless, it is extremely doubtful if any government could cut taxation by half a billion dollars. At present, 48 cents of every tax dollar goes for defence, and 25 cents goes for social welfare. Mr. Drew cannot cut welfare without cutting his own throat; indeed, he has promised to increase welfare by launching a health insurance program and a large housing scheme. He proposes to cut taxes by sheer economy.

* * *

Even if it were not on the huge scale Mr. Drew promises, great economies could certainly be made. But—and this is important—they could only be made by a government which was content to remain in power for one term only. Discharge an army of civil servants. Good. Cut contracts and pare defence expenditure to the bone. Good. But these things can only be done at the cost of making enemies by the thousand—yes, by the hundred thousand. Every disappointed job-holder, contractor and their families even unto the third and fourth generation would vote against a government which did these things, at the next opportunity. Government economy is only possible when times are bad. When times are good it can only be done at the price of widespread unpopularity—and it is popularity which puts governments into power and keeps them there. Everybody likes to hear about economy, until his wife's cousin loses his job as deputy-inspector of Dead Letter Offices; it is then that he talks of ingratitude, cheese-paring, and the necessity for a change. Mr. Drew may talk of big economies, but until there are hard times neither he nor any other governmental leader can make them, and survive politically.

* * *

Mr. Coldwell's statement of campaign policy was pitiful. We do not use the word in scorn. But it is pitiful indeed that Canada's socialist party has not one crumb of true socialism to offer in its program. The tragedy of the CCF is that it came into being during the depression of the 'thirties, as a party of protest, and it has never developed into a party with anything constructive to offer; it has never been able to reconstruct itself on lines which give it a place in times of prosperity. The Canadian future is bright, but the CCF can only threaten depression, and speak of a "veneer of prosperity." Its only offer is the establishment of a national investment board which will see that "the finances and credit of the nation are channelled into the most socially desirable investment fields." In other words, more controls, imposed by a party of invincibly pessimistic and defeated attitude toward finance and the prospects of the nation. This simply will not do, and it will be a political miracle if this election does not see the end of the CCF as a national party of any consequence whatever. It has had a great opportunity, for socialism is not so repugnant to Canadians as many people think. Canadians swallow socialism readily enough when it is given to them in Liberal or Conservative spoons. But the pessimistic, negative, broken-spirited attitude of the CCF is repellent to any Canadian, however radical his opinions, who has faith in his country.

* * *

The leaders have spoken and the battle is joined. We hope it will be lively.

Ottawa Whiff Of The Barnyard

Seasonally the Ottawa Journal resurrects a grandfather who was a farmer. In the fall, we read, his apples were a joy. In the winter his kitchen stove was cozy and there might even have been a cricket on the hearth. At another time (just after Ottawa has had a big fall of snow) the Journal's grandfather and all his little sons—perhaps even a toddling grandson—heaved to and shovelled a path to the woodpile, the privy and the driving shed; then there would be the tinkle of merry sleigh bells.

In spring grandfather's frogs bellowed in bottom C while the pollywogs (or whatever offspring of the croakers pitch their pipes high over bogs) trilled on high C and D. In May, of course, grandfather's cherry trees were coming into pink bloom and oh, the wonderful smell of Nature renewing herself.

Grandfather's summer days were good too, on the ancestral homestead (near Kingsmere, no doubt). Nobody could scythe like grandfather, we read last week. "It was a picture in motion to watch grandfather cut a swath across a low area in a meadow. With effortless ease he moved along with steady, unhurried swings. After each stroke he stepped ahead a few inches; his motions were as regular as the long pendulum that swung in the tall hall clock. There was a whispering, urging swish as the razor-sharp blade cut the grass." Ah, memory! Ah, the redolent fields! Ah, the pungent barnyard! Ah, the Encyclopaedia Britannica!

"It is difficult to realize that more than three centuries have passed since the scythe was invented. Joseph Jenks of the Massachusetts Bay colony was a skilled craftsman, and in 1646 . . ." says the Journal learnedly.

If we ever meet the grandson, we should like to congratulate him on his nostalgia, smelling of printer's ink rather than the manure pile. We have a whiff of a suspicion that maybe grandson's memory is of Millet-painted peasants at work in European fields, and of pastures and orchards and barns he glimpses from his car windows as he speeds south along the Ottawa for a weekend in the flesh-pots of Montreal. Ungenerous, ungracious suspicion; dear nostalgic Journal do tell us that grandfather was real. Wonderful old fellow, wonderful homestead, wonderful era; we want to believe in him. Because, if he existed, so does his grandson, and we could exchange rustic platitudes with the Journalistic grandson; you see, we have our own seasonal bouts with the bliss of the countryside, and we might, with a little encouragement from the Journal, produce our own grandfather who scythed marvellously, whose apples were the delight of the maw, and corn the pride of the silo. Yes, wonderful corn, straight from the cob.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Edmonton Journal recently made reference to "Senator Meighen". A refresher course in political history seems indicated.

Shooting Breaks Out At Family Reunion, reads a headline, and we think that anybody with a crumb of common sense could have foreseen such an outcome.

"Laugh at yourself and prolong your life," writes a doctor. We wonder how long it is since the learned physician closed the door of his consulting room and took a long guffaw at what he had been telling his patients.

PARIS LETTER

Looking For A Premier

By NORA BELOFF

A POPULAR PARIS cartoon this week carries the legend: "Sister Winnie, Sister Winnie, do you see anyone coming? " President Eisenhower is standing on the Island of Bermuda, in what Europeans believe to be traditional American garb, a flowered shirt worn outside his trousers, addressing Sir Winston Churchill. The British Prime Minister, in morning clothes and top hat, has climbed to the top of a pine tree, where he is watching through binoculars for a French Prime Minister to join the Big Three Conference.

It is, in fact, a full month since the last French Government collapsed and curiously few French people seem to worry about how and when the crisis will end. An eminent British professor of political science, well informed by serious newspaper reports on the sad state of French affairs, was astonished on coming to France to find that in the whole week of his visit no single French man or woman initiated a serious conversation with him on the political situation.

IT has to be conceded that the contemptuous indifference of the general public is in sharp contrast to the passionate excitement of deputies and spectators inside the Palais Bourbon itself (home of the National Assembly) which in moments of crisis acquires the atmosphere of a race course.

The last and most exciting lap of the race itself occurs between the moment that the President of the Assembly reads out the motion favouring the election of a would-be prime minister and the moment—which may be anything up to two hours later— when the bell rings three times and the Rresident reads out the results of the vote.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING this period ushers walk between the benches carrying around the voting urns and the "ayes" are supposed to insert a white bulletin, the "nays" a blue one, with absent members polling by proxy. The operation is long and complicated because everybody tries to find out what everybody else is going to do, before making his own decision.

THUS, when the forty-six-year-old radical, Pierre Mendes-France, was running as candidate for the premiership, one of his older party colleagues, a man of far more conservative frame of mind, was left with his own and five proxy votes to cast. He is reported to have candidly told his friends he hoped to give the whole lot to M. Mandes-France as a sign of party solidarity— but he could not do so until he had first made quite sure there was no danger of the brash young man being elected.

Messengers and news-agency "legmen" start rushing down the corridors with provisional results a few minutes after the voting starts. But their first figures, eagerly snatched up, are always several votes wrong and if the contest is close— as it has been twice during the present crisis— the unhappy candidate may have the illusion of victory for a few glorious moments before the final and official count shows he has lost.

JUNE is always a good month for the visual arts in Paris and "le Tout Paris" (high society) is now being invited almost daily to attend official "'vernissages" (private views) of exhibitions of up-and-coming artists, with all the finery, gossip and aperitifs that these very Parisian occasions provide. But once again the "moderns" are dominated and dwarfed by that little wizened old man that young artists call "That devil Picasso." Most of them will admit themselves torn between admiration and hatred for this sprightly and still very inventive seventy-two-year-old genius—painter, sculptor and now pottery maker, too. He seems to have experienced and disposed of the whole gamut of artistic inspirations, leaving too many of his fellow artists with the feeling that there is nothing left to say.

Picasso's vernissage this season marked his official reconciliation with the Communist Party following an uncondition surrender — on the Party's side, of course. On the death of Stalin, he had published a sketch of the Russian leader showing a flabby and unattractive face which was promptly disowned by the French Communist Politburo. On second thoughts and as Stalin's memory receded, the Party withdrew its public remonstrances, officially re-proclaimed Picasso's genius and sent the Party's tame intellectuals along to the opening of the exhibition to be photographed shaking hands with him. As the camera clicked, "that devil Piccaso" seemed to be smiling at a private joke.

BUT for the really exciting revelation of what can be done with colour and light, none of the modern collections compare with a show recently opened at the French Museum of Decorative Arts, and of which the most recent exhibit is dated 1557. "The Six Centuries of Stained Glass" are brought together showing the evolution of this art from its crude and simple beginnings, before the use of the diamond cutter was discovered, through the mysteries and magnificence of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries and on into the elaborate refinements of the early Renaissance.

THE EXHIBITION is open to the public until next autumn on a "'now or never" basis: in future, as in the past, if you want to study development of this vitally important branch of medieval art, you will have to make a pilgrimage to churches and cathedrals all over the country. The composite selection, showing the whole story chronologically within half-a-dozen adjoining rooms, can never be repeated because the exhibits will be permanently restored after this occasion to the churches and cathedrals from which they were taken for safety at the beginning of the war.

In fact, most of the fifty thousand square metres of stained glass window, stowed away in 1939, has already gone back to where it belongs. But in some places the buildings themselves were damaged or destroyed and the restoration of the windows had to be postponed. The Minister of Fine Arts took advantage of the delay to assemble some of the best examples in one place, and although they lose from being divorced from the religious edifices for which they were devised, they gain from being looked at more closely than their original emplacement allowed.

The rooms in the museum are coloured in pale sky-blue and the lighting reaches the public through the stained glass itself, set in niches away from the walls. The result emphasises the brilliance of the tones and the contrasts in the colouring. It also explains the comment of the great British art critic, John Ruskin, reproduced in the French catalogue: "If you care to build a palace of jewels, painted glass is richer than all the treasurers of Aladdin's lamp."

Letters To The Editor

A GAELIC TOAST

Sir: Sufficient time has elapsed for a ripost to my critical observations on the spelling of Gaelic toast recently published in the Examiner, so now it behooves me to accept your invitation to spell it out correctly.

With the knowledge that translations can be controversial and the fact that this writer is outside the orbit of toast makers, I give the following:

To a reader of English the spelling of Gaelic may seem insurmountable, but it is mathematical. How many people can explain why phone is pronounced fone, and since some linguists hold the opinion that the sound system of Scottish Gaelic is the most complicated in Europe, a complex spelling is to be expected.

Yours etc.,
A. MACDONALD

PETERBOROUGH'S SMOKE NUISANCE

Sir: As a resident of Burnham Point I would be only too willing to add my support to the objections recently raised by other Ashburnham residents to the smoke nuisance created by the C. P. R. However, I feel that the chief culprit insofar as smoke contamination is concerned is not the C. P. R. but Canada Packers Ltd. whose giant stack almost consistently belches forth a plume of black oily filth that would shame any self-respecting engineer.

How many housewives in this district and perhaps in others have seen their mornings work over the washtubs go for nothing as a result of a slight shift in the wind; and how many home-owners have despaired to see new paint lose its gloss and freshness within days of application under a sumdgy coating of soot. I don't know whether this city has a smoke abatement by-law or not but I do know that such a by-law and its enforcement is needed and badly.

I have no doubt that the Examiner's recent stand against the proposal to cut garbage collections to one a week did much to rally the opposition with which that proposal has met and I feel that you, Mr. Editor, can render your readers another valuable service by speaking out against air pollution which is no less a menace to public health than the other.

Yours sincerely,
RELUCTANT SMOKE EATER.

CITY WORKERS IN HIGHLY-TAXED TOWNSHIPS

Sir: We received tax bill (Otonabee's) today— it was higher than last year's, twice as high as during the last war; and just supposing that, (which is quite likely) the average village dweller or urban outskirt or further out dwellers's tax is fifty dollars, ours is ten times that figure, yet that house holder is probably making much more if he works in the city, and has not the expense that the farmer has, even our esteemed clerk or treasurer. Everyone misjudges, or overlooks the expense— especially the consumer; but we are all consumers in that, we all buy from the grocery, the granary or barn, we buy from the same source as the city dweller;— but the city consumer does not have to purchase machinery, tractor, etc., in addition, nor pay the penalty of high land tax besides that of buildings. Another thing, even among farmers of Otonabee methods of taxation is outdated in that the professional (with higher returns or rewards) is often lower taxed than the amateur (which is no disgrace to amateurs) even though he pays income tax because of his greater returns (more power to him).

But there seems no hope in country vision, or insight of council townships. Mr. Sparling had some in his remarks re equalization Peterborough's county townships, and he might be opened-minded enough for suggestions?

Since the urban-rural seems to have come out to country to avoid high city tax, would it not be reasonable to, if the workers in city (and many do according to cars that go past even in our ten mile distance from city, early in the morning) tax him at least to half of what he would pay in city, since he has not all facilities but demand that for schools, for which many farmers pay so dearly—(providing roads too, for him to travel on).

And if this is not convincing enough; it is to cities' benefit that farmers spend not all their money on taxes—they should and would have more to spend in city, if they were not so over burdened by tax. It could be the city that, would have that sense to see —(if education was of any value)— or else a new government? Changing the goverments, etc., is still democracy's prerogative if desired or desirable; otherwise of what use is democracy, education or our religion or freedom?

FARMER'S WIFE.

EMBITTERED SCOT

Sir: Regarding the Welsh Eisteddfod, your correspondents have evidently never heard of the great Gaelic Mods which are held annually in Scotland, and throughout the Commonwealth, or of the thousands who attend the numberless Highland Games all over the world.

Methinks our Welsh detractors are also living in the past, but unlike the Scots, they are content to toady up to big-foster brother England.

So! They have their own language! How sweet! So has the duck-billed platypus and the monse!

The writer wonders if it is not highly probable that some Welshman (of Western England) do not, at times, dress up as Highlanders complete with pipe bands eh!

No doubt Alba will be highly gratified in having at least had the Welsh admit that, thanks to bowing the knee to England, they can still practice their age old crafts. How jolly! Do they use cars, or still swing from the trees to get to work?

Finally, the Scottish Covenant, signed by more than two million Scots, asserting their desire for Home Rule, has already been presented to Westminster Parliament.

We can certainly all "live in harmony" as part of the great British Commonwealth but, at least we are entitled to manage our domestic affairs as does Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island.

As for the Stone of Scone, the prophecy runs somewhat as follows—"Where e'er this stone of Fate shall rest, the Scottish race shall reign" and that's good enough for me.

MACBETH

KIND HEARTS ARE MORE THAN CORONETS

Sir: Peterborough has a graciousness all its own. It is in the air. One finds it in the passers-by. In the two years that have passed since I visited this invididual city one feels that it has expanded not only industrially and physically but spiritually.

Having had dealings over many years with thousands of people, the attitude of strangers is what impresses me most. If wanting information one need not hesitate to accost a total stranger here for invariably the quiet voice and good manners of the informant give one the impression it has been his or her pleasure to be of help. For example:

One evening in an unfamiliar part of the city I asked assistance of a lad passing on a bicycle. He was no wiser than I but he offered to ride off and ascertain. Back he came shortly assuring me that I was headed in the right direction. Some days later in another locality an elderly man was not only interested to help but accompanied me for several blocks and then pointed out at some distance the place I was seeking. I have lived across the Border for many years and have had very happy experiences all over the United States, but Canada is a great country and a most pleasant one to which to return for the remaining years of a long life.

KATHLEEN I. JENKINS

REAL SHOWS FOR HAPPY CHILDREN

Sir: One of the most pathetic sights to be seen in Peterborough, can be witnessed any Saturday afternoon by those who care for children. I am referring to the picture shows—the Saturday afternoon shows which should be for the Kids—but are not. Instead of an audience of delighted children lapping up the adventure of "Bugs Bunny" or watching with amazement the exploits of "Mighty Mouse" we have a theatre filled to the most part with bored and restless children forced to watch pictures that are far beyond the range of their immature minds. What the world needs badly, is a chain of children's theatres. We have a splendid Canadian National Film Board which is the envy of many foreign countries. Could we not go a step further and, out of the many millions we spend on engines of destruction, side-track some of the money to do just this?

Much has been done for the children. Miniature films are shown in the libraries, but this only touches the fringe of the situation. What I have in mind is a theatre that will hold a thousand squealing delighted children run by people that have no thought of profit—only a desire to help the kids understand the mechanics of an adult world.

FRED HORN

HOUSING CO-OPERATIVES

Sir: There is a movement in this city towards a co-operative method of providing homes for those who participate in the venture. This, I believe, is a very noteworthy and healthy movement which will result in benefits, not only for the homebuilders, but for the community as a whole.

True co-operativism is the ideal form of private enterprise. Some may question this, since, throughout the world the tendency is for Socialistic political parties to show interest in co-operatives whilst condemning "capitalistic" private enterprise. Nevertheless, in co-operatives, as in all private businesses, people make an investment, proceed with the business and pay out dividends. The only difference is that instead of a few taking risks and making high profits if business is good, co-operatives eliminate the risks as much as possible and all benefit. Socialism, nor any other political party enters the picture. The entry of politics is a canker that eventually destroys a co-operative.

Regarding the co-operative housing project in Peterborough, there may be a feeling that it is a danger to real estate businesses, but this not so, since the majority of members of a house-building co-operative could not otherwise buy a home— this is one reason why housing co-ops form. On the other hand, the members will be leaving their present homes and create business for real estate operators—even if it is only the old fashioned renting business they used to do.

Each co-operator will create by his own efforts and labour an equity beyond the actual cash expended. This will eventually result in lower cost of his housing accommodation, leaving more of his income available for other purchasers, thus increasing retail business in this area. There is also the obvious creation of business in the purchase of materials and skilled labour for the building of these few hundred houses which I believe is the ultimate goal.

Co-ops are competitive, but they only adversely affect those who create intolerable conditions which bring co-ops into being. Any efficiently run private venture which genuinely gives good service and fair value need have no fear of co-operatives in any form. In fact, they are more likely to benefit from the overall effects.

Perhaps other readers would like to add their views. Who knows? I might even be persuaded to join this venture myself, in spite of the hard work involved. I find myself very much in favour of the principles and the good effect on Peterborough that should result.

"CO-OPTIMIST."

FAR-OFF BRAES ARE BONNY

Sir: It is with some amusement and some irritation that I read the letters of Scots which you have been printing. How patriotic and intensely nationalistic people become when they are a safe three thousand miles away, eating well, and seeing the sun sometimes. Forgotten are the choking fogs of December, the endless rains, the dirty transportation, the unimaginative meals, the cramped and old fashioned housing, and all that goes with it. Haggis and bagpipes—Ugh!

But can it be that the cause lies deep? Perhaps this boastfulness really hides a crashing great inferiority complex. Perhaps a subconscious reaction to the grim Calvinism and grimmer porridge of their childhood— I must pick a copy of Freud on Psychoanalysis off the bookstalls and find out. There may even be (happy idea) a sexual significance. I must hurry!

The nationalistic attempts of the Scots to attract attention during the Coronation remind me of a verse written during the reign of George II to be added to the National Anthem—

Long Grant that Marshal Wade
May by Thy mighty aid
Victory bring.
May He sedition hush
And like a torrent rush
Rebellious Scots to crush
God Save the King.

I would like to speak of another matter which deserves to be noted.

This week Peterborough is to enjoy three artistic treats of a high order. Edward Everett Horton in a delightful farce at the Summer Theatre. Verdi's opera "La Forza Del Destino" at the Centre and "Our Gracie" Fields at St. Peter's. I very much want to see them all but cannot afford either the time or the money for them all in one week. I think most people will be in the same position.

Surely these things could be better arranged. Mr. Sadlier's engagement was, of course, completed over a year ago, but the others, by choosing this week are only denying themselves the support they might and should have and the public an opportunity seldom available. What can be done, Mr. Editor? Surely either the Recreation Commission or Chamber of Commerce could advise.

Yours truly,
ROSA DARTLE

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart . . .

But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus: that ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. (Eph. 4: 7, 18, 20-24.)

For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light . . . Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. (Eph. 5: 8, 10.)

TPT's Down UEW 7-4 Take Softball Lead Seabrookes Drop Revoys

George Bennett's TPT Petes continued their winning ways Tuesday night at the Bowl, to take over undisputed possession of first place in the senior men's softball derby by downing UEW 7-4, in the nightcap of the double-bill; the win was Petes' sixth to date, against three defeats. Haddy Eakins scattered eight hits, struck out seven and walked but one for the winners to continue his fine form of the present season; though his mates gave him good offensive help this game. Jack Crowley drew the Union assignment from Manager Walton, and also hurled a very good game to perhaps deserve a better fate inasmuch as his support faltered badly at times, to partially contribute fatally to his cause. A three-run blast in the ninth wrote finis to UEW after the teams had battled evenly for eight frames and four runs aplece. Each team erred four times in the game.

TPT scored singles in the first two, but UE came back for a pair in the third. In the eighth, each scored two; and in each case the hurlers were blameless as a real pitchers' battle featured.

Floyd walked to open the ninth; then Legrow plunked one through the keystone section and both runners were safe; Toody Greenlaw singled to left to score Floyd; Legrow scored after West flied to Bernie Robson in right; Crowe was out, but Hermie Castle singled to scored the fleet Greenlaw—and that was it.

Jack White drove in a pair of runs for his team, and Gus Leonard and Junior West each had a RBI in addition to Greenlaw and Castle.

Both games were witnessed by a fine crowd and despite errors there were several brilliant features afield—including a smart double play, Leether to Conlin.

SEABROOKE'S WIN

Seabrooke Motors swung back into the win column Tuesday night for their fifth triumph of the men's senior softball campaign by defeating Revoy Motors 12-6 in the opener of the regular twin bill. The result enabled Bill Sullivan's colorful crew to remain deadlocked with UEW in second place with five and four.

Jim Driscoll toiled the route for the East City noisemakers, in the absence of Terry Woods and Lefty Doris—who was under a one-game suspension following last Thursday's fracas—and Jimmy held Revoy's to seven bingles, struck out five and walked one in seven frames to win without much trouble. Dick McCracken faced Driscoll till the fourth when Seabroke's bats rang out to belt him from the hill. Dick West took over but met with meagre success as hits by Scriver, Sullivan, Spencer, Jensen; walks to Curry and Jaquith, with an error netted the madcaps five runs.

DROVE IN FOUR

Home-run leader George Sullivan drove a long one to deep centre in the fifth with the bases crammed to drive in four with his sixth round-tripper of the season. Revoys rallied in the seventh for five runs on three hits, one a triple by Cam Wasson and singles by Dean and Neil Wasson aided by a miscue.

In the RBI column besides Sullivan, Speed Curry drove home three; Cam Wasson two; Russ Scriver two; Spencer, Driscoll, Henry and Dean Wasson each one.

Bill Sullivan was banished in the sixth by Umpire Olmstead for loudly disputing a first-base call.

Girls Making Life Miserable For Mathews

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eddie Mathews is considered a worthwhile catch by the gals here and in other spots around the National League.

It's not hard to understand.

Young Mathews, in addition to being the Milwaukee Braves' third baseman and the major league's home run leader, is a curly-haired lad with a rosy complexion. He's a strapping boy, too, and he's only 21.

"You've been successful in catching and holding a baseball husband," a 17-year-old girl wrote recently to the wife of one of the older Braves' players. "If it isn't too much trouble, would you mind writing me and telling me how I would go about getting Eddie Mathews?"

WASN'T KIDDING

The young lady wasn't kidding. Neither are the hundreds of others who hang around outside the clubhouse at county stadium waiting for him to come out following a game. It's the same all over the league.

Eddie isn't at his best in these encounters. He ducks his head in embarrassment, mumbles a few words, signs a few autographs and escapes as fast as he can. He hasn't dated in Milwaukee yet but the word is that in Boston a year ago he went out occasionally with a feminine companion.

"I'm not shy," Mathews protests, "but I'm not forward, either."

His teammates give the kid a bad time. The other night the Eddie Mathews Fan Club," made up of young women, came down to the dugout before the game and presented Eddie with a portable radio. Fellow players lolling inside had him blushing most of the time—he blushes easily—with wisecracks about his sex appeal.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

At a meeting of OHA senior "A" clubs in Stratford, an application for entry from Niagara Falls was granted, but an Oshawa application was refused. Senior clubs in are: Kitchener, Sarnia, Chatham, Brantford, Hamilton, Owen Sound, Stratford and the Falls. Wren Blair, applying for Oshawa, said he would appeal the decision to the OHA and to the CAHA, if necessary. He claimed he had the financial backing, a good arena and could ice a strong "A" club. They were refused entry because of excessive travelling expenses involved for the other clubs. Besides, it was felt that an eight-team group would be more compact. Oshawa played senior "B" in our grouping last year, Kingston winning out.

* * * * * *

This item is from Oshawa on the subject: "What with the announcement of Smith Truckers seeking entry into senior 'A' ranks, and a similar story coming out of Kingston, now comes the tale that Stouffville Clippers have filed entry for a spot in the East York loop with Weston, Brampton, Scarboro, East York and Woodbridge. It rather looks like the end of that senior 'B' Eastern Ontario league. Wonder what Beileville and Peterborough are thinking of doing. It has been said before that Orillia were discontented with last year's setup and might look elsewhere for games. Well, it was nice while it lasted, eh?" We think most of last year's clubs will be back in senior "B" again, but the Petes should start checking around soon.

New Soccer Officials

Secretary Jim Craig of the City Soccer League says all games are postponed until after an open meeting at eight p.m. next Monday in the YMCA. A new commission will be appointed then, following some resignations. Meantime, Peterborough UEW and the local Merchants are tied atop the Eastern League standing with 13 points each, one more than Kingston United and two in front of Kingston Concordia. Batawa, Trenton, Picton and Belleville are further back in the race. Hoyle of UE leads scorers with 18, Picton's Heron has 16, Payne of the Merchants 15 and Kingston's Gillespie 10. Competition is open, without fee, for the Ontario intermediate cup, home and home games each round. Entries should apply by July 1 to L. W. Digby, 371 Bridge St., E., Belleville.

* * * * * *

Affiliations and fees must be sent by July 1 to OASA secretary F. R. Feaver, 526 Maple Ave., Hamilton. Players' certificates on request, and none may sign after July 15 or after playing the first game. These must be sent in by July 20. Umpires' registration fee is two bucks. Senior "B" winners must be declared by Aug. 29 and other series by Aug. 15, the OASA championships being operated as in the past on a home-and-home basis. Other info may be had here from John McPhee of the OASA executive. Men's city loop is rolling right along with some heated contests being served up twice weekly at the Bowl, and July will see warmish action as the race becomes keener.

PMBA-ers Getting Set

There's a meeting of minor baseball interests at 2:30 Sunday aft in the City Hall to draw up schedules for the peewees, bantams and the midget-juves, play beginning about July 1. All equipment has been obtained now and plans are to have playgrounds supervisors under the recreation commission handle peewee games two mornings a week. A sound idea for the little fellows. More coaches are needed as well as umpires, and those willing to act are asked to call Pat Calladine at 4750 before the end of the week. A number of good PMBA workers have swung into action to bring minor ball back locally and have had financial aid from three labor groups and four service clubs. Good stuff, that.

Petes' Trailermen had a stiff workout last eve and now will rest till they take on Brampton Excelsiors here Friday night. That could be a keen senior OLA contest, too. Bob Thorpe's squad have it plenty busy for the next while. They're at home Friday, then trek to Orillia on Saturday to tackle the tough Toronto Yorks on their home floor. Fergus Thistles come here Monday while next Wednesday sees the locals at Hamilton, with St. Catharines at Miller Bowl two nights later. No rest for the weary, eh? Well, it's a lengthy and rugged schedule, and few soft touches the last half of the campaign. Our OLA junior Pats have a four-pointer tonight in St. Kitts and then tackle Dundas here on Saturday night.

Give Ultimatum To Rex Layne

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Rex Layne was told Tuesday either to give up his spot on the Wednesday night Archie Moore-Joey Maxim title fight card or forget a battle next month with the Canadian heavyweight champion.

Layne's manager, Marv Jenson, said the ultimatum came from Jack Berry, Edmonton promoter, who arranged Layne's scheduled fight against Earl Walls of Windsor, Ont., at Edmonton July 3.

The Utahan said he was attempting to get Berry to change his mind.

Jenson said it was Layne's insistence that resulted in his accepting a place for his fighter on the Moore-Maxim card, even though Layne previously had to postpone the Walls fight for a week because of illness.

Royals Hand Syracuse 10-7 Setback

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe the 1953 edition of Montreal Royals hasn't got any Jackie Robinsons, Roy Campanellas or Don Newcombes, but the club is winning games to keep atop the International League ladder—and that's what counts.

Tuesday night the Royals handed Syracuse Chiefs a 10-7 setback, behind some heavy hitting. Ever since the Royals took over the leadership, they have been pretty consistent winners — their lead varying between three and four games.

Montreal now is 3½ games ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles. The Bisons nabbed a 4-3 decision in the opener at Buffalo, but the Orioles won a distance-hitting battle in the nightcap 8-4.

Bill Tuttle's fourmaster provided the edge for the Bisons as John Weiss won his third game in the opener. Archie Wilson's circuit blast accounted for all three runs off Weiss.

In the afterpiece, Jack Mayor whacked a base-cleaning triple and Stan Jok clipped a two-run homer to lead the Orioles to victory Al Lakeman, Jack Wallaesa and Jack Crawford belted homers for Buffalo.

DOWN ATHLETICS

Rochester Red Wings kept on Buffalo's tail by downing Ottawa Athletics 12-6 at the Canadian capital with a six-run splurge in the 14th inning. Taft Wright forced the game into extra innings when he hit a three-run homer in the ninth.

Cot Deal and Charlie Kress sparked the big 14th for the Wings. Deal was batting for manager Harry Walker who was put out of the game for bench jockeying Deal hit a long fly to Alf Pinkston in centre field and the Negro dropped it letting men home from second and third. Kress singled in two runs.

Toronto Maple Leafs beat out Springfield Cubs 11-8 before a happy home-town crowd, but had a tough time doing it. The hustling Cubs outhit the Leafs 16-15 and the lead changed hands three times. Lew Morton and Ed Stevens hit homers for the winners, Morton's a base-cleaning effort.

At Montreal, reliefer Gil Mills scored his second triumph in three starts. Rocky Nelson, who walloped three homers Monday night, hit safely twice in three trips to the plate.

Odds Favoring Moore To Win

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Joey Maxim steps into the ring tonight confident he will pull an upset and win back the world light heavyweight championship he lost to Archie Moore last December.

The odds favor the 36-year-old Moore 8 to 5 for the scheduled 15-round rematch between the two fighters.

The critics generally picked ancient Archie to duplicate the victory he scored seven months ago in St. Louis, his native city, where he fought his first professional fight 16 years ago.

The camps of both fighters showed no concern prior to the weigh-in at noon about making the 175-pound limit.

But it was the weight problem, not a well balanced boxing machine named Moore, that whipped Joey the last time. Or so claimed Jack Kearns, Maxim's prominent pilot.

Williams Turns First Sod For Stadium

By DON MATHESON

VANCOUVER (CP)—Percy Williams, a Canadian Olympic hero who amazed the world with his speed in Amsterdam in 1928, today is to turn the first sod for the 36,000-seat stadium being built for the 1954 British Commonwealth and Empire games here.

And there's a strong movement in sports circles to have the stadium named after him.

Here are some headlines from the front page of a Vancouver paper of August, 1928:

"Double sprint victory not achieved since 1912."

In 1950, a poll of Canadian sports editors and sportscasters conducted by The Canadian Press named him Canada's outstanding track and field performer in the half-century.

MOST DRAMATIC EVENT

His double-sprint victory in the Olympics was judged with the Toronto Maple Leafs' comeback in the 1942 Stanley Cup hockey finals against Detroit as the most dramatic sports event of the period.

But no alley, street, lane, courtyard or boulevard has been named for Percy Williams. Not too many remember his double win in the 100 and 200 metres.

The movement to name the stadium for him was started unofficially by sports writers here.

Stanley V. Smith, general chairman of the 1954 games, says:

"I feel that some civic recognition is due to Percy. I am very favorable to having the stadium named for him."

Yorks Defeat Mounties 17-9

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto-Orillia West Yorks Tuesday night defeated Mimico Mounties 17-9 in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game.

Ten penalties were meted out in the last quarter, including two majors and one misconduct. Top scorers for West Yorks were Croft and Teatro with three apiece.

Mimico's best were Nolan and Hodgson also with three each.

Cards Take Fire, Knock Out Giants In 15-8 Win

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

It finally got hot enough in St. Louis for the Cardinals to catch fire and the word was out to the rest of the National League today to start looking for an extinguisher. The Cards, last NL club to win a world series, have taken seven out of eight games since coming home a week ago. They roared through Brooklyn three straight, added three out of four from Pittsburg and Tuesday night welcomed New York Giants with a seven-run barrage in the first inning that carried them to a 15-8 triumph.

Hampered all spring by a severe slump, Musial finally seems to have found his eye. He's blasted five doubles, a home run and seven singles in 30 times at bat for a .433 pace on the home stand. His overall average has risen from .251 to .274.

STARTS TO ROLL

The heavy hitting Tuesday night allowed Harvey Haddix to go all the way for his ninth victory, even though the Giants got to him for 11 hits and eight runs.

The Cards moved within half a game of the slumping second-place Brooklyn Dodgers who lost 3-2 to Cincinnati on Grady Hatton's pinch-hit home run, and within 3½ games of league-leading Milwaukee.

The Braves got a beautiful two-hit pitching job from Warren Spahn but lost 1-0 to the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates. Robin Roberts won his 12th game as he pitched Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-1 decision over Chicago.

LOSE TO CHICAGO

In the American league the first-place New York Yankees increased their lead over Cleveland to 11 games although they lost 11-3 to Chicago.

Cleveland dropped a day-night pair in Boston 6-4 and 2-1. The night game ran 10 innings before Milt Bolling doubled home the winning run.

St. Louis edged Washington 4-3 and Detroit's Steve Gromek whitewashed Philadelphia Athletics on four hits 5-0.

In the Cardinal-Giant slugfest Haddix homered with two on in the first inning and his catcher, Del Rice, hit a grand slam circuit blow as the Cards came up with seven more runs in the fourth inning. Musial had two for three for the evening.

DODGERS LOSE

The Dodgers, getting good pitching from Billy Loes, were breezing along with a 2-1 lead until the ninth when Hatton delivered with a man on base. Junior Gilliam had given the Dodgers the edge with a homer in the fifth.

Spahn lost his heartbreaker when Carlos Bernier sliced a single, the second Pittsburgh hit, with two men on base in the eighth. Bob Hall pitched the shutout scattering six hits.

The Yankee defence fell apart for four errors, three of them in the fifth inning, against the White Sox. The Chicagoans turned every one of the miscues to their advantage. Allie Reynolds absorbed most of the punishment for his third loss.

How would you like a lion in your living room—a black leopard in your bedroom—a tiger in the hall? Helen Martini loves it—and so do the animals! She adopts the unwanted infants of the jungle-born beasts for the Bronx Zoo and raises them with the love and care she'd give a human baby. And to the astonishment of authorities, she's proud affection is every bit as important to the babies of the fiercest beasts. Tennis Stars In Tournament

TORONTO (CP)—Stars from the United States, Europe and Canada are expected to compete in the Canadian tennis championships here July 18-26, it was announced Tuesday.

Included in the big array are Australia's Mervyn Rose and Rex Hartwig, the Mexican and Japanese Davis Cup teams and Felicissimo Ampon from the Philippines.

Also on hand will be the 1952 Canadian champions. In this list are Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., who swept the singles, doubles and mixed doubles last year and Melita Ramierez, 21-year-old kindergarten teacher from Mexico City who won the women's singles.

Canadian entries include Lorne Main of Toronto; Lawrence Barclay and Paul Willey, both Vancouver; Bob Bedard, Sherbrooke, Que.; Henri Rochon, Montreal, and Don Platt, Jim Bentley, Beau Summers and Don Fontana; all Toronto.

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

The weatherman was kind to the golfers over the past week and supplied us with perfect weather. Even on Saturday when it was blistering hot in the morning he provided an hour's rain to cool things off. At noon the temperature read 90, and by 1:30 it had dropped to 70.

In the club championship two matches were played. Jim Clarkson defeated last year's runner-up Fred Hollowell in a see-saw battle that wasn't decided until the 18th hole. Both Fred and Jim were out in 37s, and each finished in the 70s. In the other match the golf was even better, with Les Reid, the current champion, only four over par when he disposed of Cec Campbell at the 16th green. Cec played a whale of a game and shouldn't feel too bad losing to big Les who is hard to beat at any time.

WESTERN TROPHY

This competition is moving at a fast clip, and the results of last week's matches are:

Joe Watson defeated Jim Clarkson.

Mike O'Leary defeated J. Richardson.

Mac Campbell defeated D. Schellenburg.

MEN'S TWO-BALL

Only one match has been played to date with Tex O'Leary and Slammin' Slim Pearson defeating Jim Clarkson and Don Vyse one up. A highlight of this match took place on the 16th green when Mike, needing a four to halve the hole and with the promise of a "gift" from his partner if he did so, calmly sank his approach shot from 4 feet off the green to the amazement of everyone including himself. Mike has developed a new golf swing that produces a long, low hook, so look out, fellows, this may be Mike's big year.

MIXED TWO-BALL

This is a competition where the men place their shots so that it is nearly impossible for the girls to show them up. Seriously though, this tournament is a lot of fun, and some good golf is played too. In the matches that have been played to date, Stewart and Barb Williamson defeated Jean Castle and Ed. Dixon, Mrs. Hall and Barry Campbell defeated Marie and Ray Tanner, Marg. Behan and Ted Flumerfelt defeated Ed. Baptie and J. Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Stacey defeated M. McCullagh and W. Huycke, Isobel Bulloch and Don Vyse defeated Lorraine and Clayton Selkirk.

SWEEPSTAKE WINNERS

The Midland League resumes on Saturday at Cobourg, and if you haven't been out to one, don't miss this one as Cobourg has one of the best nine-hold golf courses in the country.

Eighteen-hole competition for last week was won by Mrs. V. Selkirk, who also had low net and tied for low gross with Miss Lahring Parsons, who had second net. Third net was tied by Mrs. L. Lawrence and Mrs. C. R. Stacey.

Competition for this week was player vs. par, and was won by Mrs. Clayton Selkirk, who also had second net. Mrs. Dit Clapper won low net and Mrs. S. Pearson third low net. Mrs. H. Baptie won low gross.

In the 9-hole competition the spoon was for low putts and went to Mrs. H. Inman. The low gross and net were won by Mrs. C. L. Upper.

Playing in Oshawa today in the annual city and district competition are Mrs. S. Williamson, Miss Lahring Parsons, Mrs. V. Selkirk, Mrs. H. Baptie, Mrs. J. Hardill, Mrs. Clayton Selkirk, Mrs. Stan McBride, and Mrs. G. Maniece.

Marlene Threatens Take British Open

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Marlene Stewart, the young golfing champion from Fonthill, Ont., emerged today as the lone Canadian survivor and a major threat to take the British women's open amateur golf championship.

The four remaining Canadian women golfers playing in the amateur as part of a golfing tour of Britain were defeated Tuesday in third- and fourth-round play over the Royal Porthcawl links here. Two other Canadians were eliminated earlier.

The 19-year-old Miss Stewart defeated Miss E. H. A. Lever of North Wales 6 and 5 in a third-round match and went on to defeat Miss M. Smyth of Ireland by two holes in the fourth round.

She goes into the quarter-finals today.

Barbara M. Davies, Vancouver, went down before England's Miss Elizabeth Price at the 19th hole in a fourth-round match after defeating Mrs. Brock Park of Bermuda, 4 and 2, in the third round.

ADA MACKENZIE FALLS

Ada Mackenzie, the Canadian captain from Toronto, fell to Mrs. J. Fallon of Ireland, 2 and 1, after defeating Jeanne Bisgood of England 4 and 3.

Daintry Chisholm, Montreal, was beaten by Lena Faulk of the United States, 5 and 3, in the fourth round after surviving a third-round match, 3 and 2, against Amy Mellor of North Wales.

Mary Gay of Waterloo, Ont., was defeated in a third-round match by Jean Donald of Scotland, 5 and 4.

Miss Stewart is obviously a danger to the best of the other survivors but she may find a tough opponent in England's Elizabeth Price, noted for her brilliant golf in the Curtis Cup matches last year.

Miss Price's game against Canada's Miss Davies was one of the best. The Canadian was out in a one-under-par 36 but only one up. Twice afterwards she was two up but Miss Price fought back to level at the 16th. On the 19th the English girl put a mashie niblick shot four feet from the pin and sank the putt for a birdie three to win.

Miss Stewart's tussle with Moira Smyth was another wonder match and had the Irish girl not lost touch with her driver Canada's champion might have been out. But Miss Stewart never put a foot wrong, playing brilliantly to win by two holes.

MAUREEN WINS 6-0, 6-0

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Maureen Connolly and Doris Hart of the United States, seeded No. 1 and 2, didn't allow stagestruck opponents a game Tuesday in winning their Wimbledon singles tennis matches.

Miss Connolly registered a 21-minute, 6-0, 6-0 victory over Dora Kilian, a pretty but none-too-skilled player from South Africa.

While that massacre proceeded on the centre court, Miss Hart was doing the same to Jeanette Morgan of Britain.

The first-seeded Australian doubles team of Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad came through to defeat R. Buser, Switzerland, and J. I. Devroe, Belgium, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3.

Vic Seixas and Gardnar Mulloy of the United States won in a fire-breathing battle against Britain's Geoff Paish and Tony Mottram, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

In the women's singles, Britain's two seeded players plus Mrs. Susan Partridge Chatrier of France formerly of England, all won. Seventh-seeded Mrs. Chatrier defeated the little Hong Kong-born British girl, Gem Hoahing, 6-1, 6-3.

Hi Lo's Forbes Shatters Record

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Hi Lo's Forbes shattered the Maryland half-mile track record Tuesday night in capturing the state's richest harness race, the $15,000 Laurel invitational free-for-all pace.

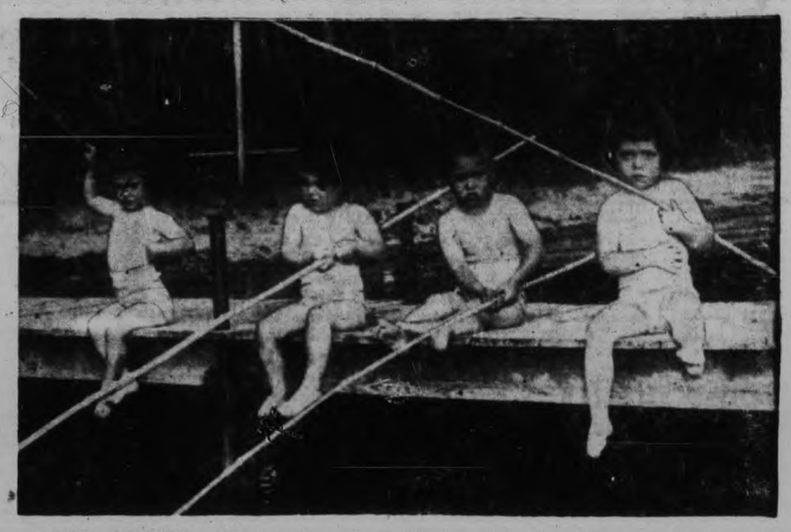
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wagner's brilliant star, a 4-to-5 favorite, led all the way in covering the mile in 2:00 flat and whipping Direct Rhythm, world's mile-track record holder, by three lengths. Wilmington's Star was third, 1¾ lengths back.

Piloted by 66-year-old Henry Clukey, Hi Lo's Forbes was timed in 28 4 for the first quarter-mile, 59.2 for the half, and 1.29 1-5 for three quarters before turning back Direct Rhythm's super effort in the stretch.

The previous Maryland record was 2:01 2-5, held by Hi Lo's Forbes, Irish Hal, and Dudley Hanover.

Court Makes New Ruling

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday that in effect a man can conspire with his wife to commit a crime.



It said in a judgment the common law established in England during the rejgn of Edward III that a man and his wife cannot conspire together because they are one person in the eyes of the law is a legal fiction "that has no place in our present society."

The Appeal Court handed down its ruling in dismissing an appeal by Harry Kowbel, sentenced to five months in jail for conspiring with his wife, Beatrice, to commit forgery.

Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw, who wrote the majority decision, said a married woman in Ontario "is not under any disability to contract with her husband, and they may make an agreement with one another in the same manner and for the same purposes as though they were separate persons."

Telegram Honors Reginald McEvoy

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the staff of the Toronto Telegram gathered at a dinner Tuesday night in honor of Reginald McEvoy, retiring as editor of The Telegram after 50 continuous years of service.

Mr. McEvoy, whose gently humorous comments were widely quoted long before he became editor in 1948, was given a matched pipe set. He suggested it was a tribute to the length of service of his current pipe rather than his own.

The presentation was made by A. W. J. Buckland, president of The Telegram, who said Mr. McEvoy's integrity and consistent fairness had inspired his associates over the years.

At the dinner were Burt Richardson, former editor of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, who succeeds Mr. McEvoy, and C. H. J. Snider, whom he succeeded.

See Showdown On Korea Approaching Very Fast

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official silence on the Korean truce crisis today underscored deep U. S. government concern over what Syngman Rhee may do next to block an end to the Korean war.

President Eisenhower cancelled his weekly press conference, which ordinarily would have been held today. It was understood that he did so because of the delicate truce situation.

The state department said earlier State Secretary Dulles would not meet with reporters this week because of a crowded schedule. This was not linked directly with Korean problems, but these are occupying a lot of Dulles' time now.

Other officials have declined to give out any substantial information on Korean problems or prospects.

SHOWDOWN AT HAND

That a showdown with President Rhee of South Korea is at hand is clear in the dispatch of Walter Robertson, assistant secretary of state, to see him. Robertson carried a secret message from Dulles.

All evidence indicates that U. S. policy-makers are pinning their hopes on persuading Rhee to let a truce become effective regardless of his opposition to it. They have no hope that he will accept the truce but believe he might agree to refrain from any action which would threaten to wreck it.

There is no evidence here of a disposition to meet Rhee's latest price for a settlement. He said Tuesday he wants a defence pact with the U. S., withdrawal of United Nations and Chinese troops from Korea, and a three-month limitation of post-armistice negotiations with a resumption of war if a permanent peace has not then been agreed upon.

The decisive step which the South Korean president has said he will take, if a truce he doesn't like is signed, is withdrawal of his force from the UN command. Such a step probably would be preliminary to ordering his troops to go on with the war, even if the UN and the Communists agree to an end of the fighting.

2 Men Refuse To Be Hidden By Wives' Fame

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two men who will not be hidden in the shadow of their famous wives—are Vittorio Gassman and Michael Wilding.

Gassman is an intense, handsome young Italian with a classic profile. Wilding is also handsome, but in a suave, mature, English way.

Gassman is married to Shelley Winters and Wilding to Liz Taylor. Both men have made their mark in their native lands and now are establishing themselves with the North American film audiences.

Gassman has been called Italy's best young classical actor. A strapping six feet two and 200 pounds, he is a man who knows what he wants. He wanted to be adept in the classics, and he plowed through performances fo 93 plays, including Ibsen's "Ghosts," "Romeo and Juliet," "Othello" and many other Shakespearian offerings. Now that film fame has beckoned him, he is not giving up the theatre.

WON'T ABANDON STAGE

"I think it's a mistake to abandon the stage," he said. "An actor can learn to grow only before an audience. I am particularly interested in the classics; the stage is the only place where I can do them."

He drove a hard bargain with MGM, which likes to own its talent exclusively. He wouldn't sign unless he received the right to spend six months of each year with his theatrical company in Italy.

"After I signed with the studio, I had to make a quick trip to Italy because my actors were leaving me," he said. "They thought I wouldn't be coming back after signing in Hollywood."

INTENSE IN WORK

Wilding is another fellow who is intense in his work, although he claims to be lazy. He has just completed "Torch Song" with Joan Crawford.

"During a year under contract, I have worked three weeks," he explained. "That's very pleasant for a lazy fellow like myself."

But although he is reluctant to go to work, he also has enough ham to make him want to continue. "Once I get started on a picture, I resent it when we have to stop at six," he said. "I'd like to keep on acting until midnight."

Wilding is one of England's best light comedians, and he bemoans the fact that Hollywood has lost its touch for evoking laughter.

"Except for the broad comedy of Martin and Lewis or Abbott and Costello—which I like very much," he remarked, "there aren't any funny pictures being made here. I mean the wonderful things that people like Robert Montgomery and Cary Grant used to make."

Artificial Respiration Kept Up For 4 Hours

TORONTO (CP)—Artificial respiration should be kept up for at least four hours, if necessary, in attempts to revive apparently-drowned persons, Dr. Gordon Bates, director of the Health League of Canada, said in a statement Tuesday.

"It has been more than 10 years since a league committee reached this conclusion," he said. "Yet it is surprising that the lessons learned at that time seem too frequently to have been forgotten and that, time after time, one reads newspaper reports of artificial respiration having been stopped too early."

Dr. Bates said there is hope of reviving persons who have been in the water as long as a half an hour and even though the usual signs of life—pulse, heartbeat, reflexes—are absent.

SWEATER SHIRT—This is a sweater shirt in wool jersey. It is a softweight slip-on, designed to be worn as a shirt for active or spectator sports.

380 GEORGE N.

A NEW DEPARTMENT for teen agers and youngsters will be opened in a new ground floor of Black's Men's Wear. The photo shows the modern terazzo flooring and lighting, and centre show cases. The new department is an expansion of a smaller department at the rear of the first floor.

Black's Open Department For Younger Buyers

Black's Clothing store at 380 George St., will open a brand new ground-floor department for kiddies and teen-agers Thursday morning with a sale. The new department is equipped to outfit children from three to 16.

Black's had previously installed a smaller teen-age section in the rear of tfhe men's wear section, but sales were so brisk that a larger selling space became necessary, so three months ago construction began on a modern ground-floor department. The new floor is large with a selling area of some 1,500 square feet and finished in terazzo. The lighting is the latest thing in neon—the tubular bulbs require no internal switch but flash on instantly with no blinking effect. The walls and ceilings are finished with —modern acoustic tentest and the entire area is air-conditioned.

At one time Black's had three stores in Peterborough catering to men, women and children respectively, but in 1948 they united to form the one store located on George St. With this new addition they will be able to cater to both sexes of all ages.

Opportunity Good For Curing International Trade Problems

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

"The present offers the most favorable opportunity since the war for making a decisive move in the right direction. It may well be the last opportunity."

This statement on world trade, delivered to the May congress in Vienna of the International Chamber of Commerce, is from Eric Wyndham White, executive secretary to the contracting parties to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, commonly known as GATT.

It combines the over-all optimism of international business men with the undercurrent of foreboding which sometimes shows at their meetings.

For if they believe that a prosperous world can be created, they also believe that almost revolutionary steps are required to bring it about. Occasionally, one finds downright pessimism concerning the prospects.

One may draw optimism, however, from the fact that the free world, in the post-war years, has shown extraordinary ability to devise extraordinary measures to pull itself back from the brink of disaster, and to do it with a fair degree of triumph.

There is, however, considerable opinion that measures which have so far saved the post-war world have pretty well run their course.

For instance, tariff decreases under GATT have consisted largely of one country making a concession and other countries meeting it.

Such concessions, particularly in the case of the United States, now are becoming regarded as inadequate.

To quote further from Wyndham White:

"For a new tariff conference to be really fruitful, it must be more directly related to a solution of the balance of payments problem."

"The road to free trade has not yet been paved. It will be paved only if we are prepared both in Europe and the United States to do something about its underlying cause, and make a conscious effort to increase the dependence of the United States on foreign imports and decrease the dependence of European and third-party countries on American supplies."

OUTLINES REQUISITE

Sir Dennis Robertson, professor of political economy at Cambridge University, said a requisite for convertibility of currencies, one of the major needs for freer trade, is:

"A quasi-revolution in United States commercial policy and administration in the direction of greater freedom of trade."

American delegates expressed the support of leading American business men towards liberalization of American trade policies However, they were unable to say what the United States may do, and could only counsel patience with democratic processes.

Christie Says 'No Sense In Slayings'

LONDON (CP)—John Reginald Christie, described by his lawyers as "mad as a March hare when he kills people," said today there was "no reason, no sense" in the slayings that littered his apartment and garden with corpses.

Nervously working his long fingers, Christie haltingly admitted garrotting three more women, a total of seven so far, as his murder trial progressed through its third day at Old Bailey court. Tuesday he admitted killing his wife and three other women.

The 55-year-old wartime special constable said the seven victims are the ones he "remembers something about." He testified Tuesday he "may have" committed even more slayings than those he recounted in the witness box.

Christie technically is on trial only for the murder of his wife, Ethel, whose body was found under the floorboards of the house. His lawyer says he is "guilty but insane."

OTHER VICTIMS

The seven admitted victims also include three playgirls whose bodies were found in a walled-up cubbyhole in the apartment, two other women whose skeletons were dug up from the garden, and the wife of a neighbor, Mrs. Beryl Evans.

Defence counsel Derek Curtis-Bennett asked Christie whether, while showing his flat to prospective renters, he was "conscious of the fact when talking with them that on your premises there were four dead bodies."

"I never gave it a thought," Christie replied gently.

Later, Curtis - Bennett asked, "Did you leave the house conscious that you have left four bodies you were responsible for killing?"

"You killed her consciously and deliberately?"

Christie mumbled: "I didn't say whether it was conscious and deliberate. It must have been."

Sir Lionel pursued: "You knew what you were doing perfectly well?"

The defendant said softly: "No, I won't say that."

WANTED TO HELP HER

Christie said he put his wife's body under the floorboards "because I did not want to be separated from her and lose her—that is why I still had her in the house."

Tuesday, Christie wept as he told the court he strangled his wife with a stocking because he could not stand seeing her suffer from a convulsion.

Sir Lionel asked Christie why he put quantities of disinfectant outside the grating.

Christie replied "There was a substantial reason for that."

"Very substantial," said Sir Lionel.

CAN'T REMEMBER

Under further questioning by Curtis-Bennett, Christie said he put disinfectant around the grate and in the house to keep neighborhood dogs away and because tenants often spat in the hallway.

Curtis-Bennett, referring to the bodies found at the death house, asked: "Your evidence is that at the moment of each case you do not remember what happened?"

Christie answered slowly: "No, I do not remember."

The lawyer continued: "You were not conscious of doing wrong?"

"No," the defendant said.

Christie told how he wandered the streets almost penniless during the country-wide search for him after several bodies were found in his tenement home at 10 Rillington place in the Notting Hill district in west London.

"When I went into a cafe or anything and sat down at a table to have something to eat I heard people talking about me," he said.

BUTTRESS DEFENCE

To buttress the defence contention of insanity at the time of the killings, Curtis-Bennett called Dr. J. A. Hobson, a psychiatrist who examined Christie. He testified Christie had "a very difficult history of a psychological illness to which we give the name hysteria."

The psychiatrist added:

"I think he got some feeling of satisfaction in continuing to live in Rillington place with dead bodies nearby . . . . Christie is very indignant at suggestions that he has been in public houses and was more upset about this piece of evidence than any of the evidence about his killings. He feels that going into public houses is very disgusting and morally wrong.

"He told me that he saw his grandfather laid out after death and experienced some fascination ever since. In the way he describes finding bodies there is some evidence to suggest that he has some abnormal feeling of fascination for dead bodies."

The doctor added: "As much as Christie can love anyone he loves his wife and it would be intolerable to him if he were to realize that this killing of her was similar to the killing of those other women."

3 Canadian Soldiers Held For Manslaughter

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Three Canadian soldiers were charged with manslaughter today in the road cafe slaying June 11 of a Polish national.

Canadian military authorities said charges were placed against Ptes. Vernon Kimer, 21, of Eastview, Ont.; Thomas Dyer, 22, of Boyd's Cove, Nfld., and Lovitt van Tessel, 23, of Digby, N. S.

Court martial for the three will be held in July.

Walkwoods Trounce Bobcaygeon 15-1

Jack Graham and Danny Pearson each had two hits for the winners, while Teal and Schinkle walloped triples in the free hitting exhibition.

Drowns In Ship Canal

HAMILTON (CP) — Alexander MacDonald, 25, of Hamilton, was drowned Tuesday in the Burlington ship canal. Although the area was crowded with swimmers, apparently no one saw him slip under the water.

Police said he was in the water about 25 minutes before firemen were called. They recovered the body.

Exonerate A-Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The air force told Congress Tuesday it has carefully tracked the debris from atomic explosions for thousands of miles without finding any connection between atom blasts and unusual weather. Col. W. Hightower Smith added that close study of conditions around test-blast areas showed that atomic explosions did not even produce local rain storms.

DEVELOPMENT of the aircraft engine has been an endless quest for greater and greater power and to what lengths this quest has reached is shown in this photograph of a giant U.S. B-50 Superfortress kept aloft by one turbojet engine lowered experimentally through the fuselage. The little streamlined bulb contains a Pratt and Whitney Turbo-Wasp, today's most powerful turbojet engine aloft, and for this test of power, the four piston engines that normally power the big warplane were shut down and the propellors feathered.

Urge Orange Color Used For Containers

BRANTFORD (CP)—Use of red-colored containers for inflammable materials might easily cause confusion for an excitable person in an emergency, delegates to the Ontario firefighters convention agreed Tuesday as they passed a resolution urging that all containers of inflammable materials be painted orange, instead of the same color as fire extinguishers and other fire-fighting equipment. The resolution originated with the Sarnia local.

Delegates also approved combined resolutions from Brantford and Timmins, seeking a 48-hour week for firemen—or, if obtainable, a 40-hour week. Each local was urged to make efforts, through negotiations with its own municipal council, to obtain either the 40-hour or 48-hour week.

Trustees Want Smaller Play Given Stories

BIGWIN INN, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Urban School Trustees Association today approved a recommendation from its resolutions committee urging that the association's incoming directors approach Ontario news publishing organizations with a view to discussing the reporting of domestic cases.

The action was taken during consideration of a resolution from the Ottawa Collegiate Institute board which read "that glamorous headline and news treatment by the press on such family concerns as divorce, juvenile delinquency, sex crimes and the use of narcotics can have ll effects upon the organization of family living."

The Ottawa board said it felt that if the press could change its treatment of these items, family ties could be strengthened.

The trustees also recommended that a conference between officials of the department of education and authorities of representative universities be planned to consider the possibility of instituting a recent royal commission's recommendation for teacher-training of secondary school teachers within qualified universities in the province, leading to a degree in education.

A Niagara Falls resolution requesting that refresher courses for vocational teachers and teachers of home economics in elementary schools be held during the summer holidays, rather than in the last week of June, was referred to the Ontario Teachers' Federation for comment.

McCarthy Plans More Hearings In Book Row

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy, wading back into the controversy over "book burning," said today he plans more public hearings designed to show whether some of the authors involved were Communists.

The Wisconsin Republican said his Senate investigations sub-committee will call 15 or 20 more authors whose books have been used in U. S. information libraries overseas for public questioning about possible Communist affiliations. He announced no date..

McCarthy had demanded that the state department take from the shelves of the libraries, maintained overseas to give native readers access to U. S. literature, what he termed 30,000 "Communist books."

OTHERS REMOVED

The New York Times, on the basis of a survey in 20 foreign capitals, reported Monday that several hundred books by more than 40 authors had been removed. It said there had been six confidential directives on the subject from the state department since Feb. 19, and that interpretation of the orders varied from capital to capital.

The Times listed these as among the better known authors whose works were removed in at least some libraries: Lillian Hellman, Clarence K. Streit, Langston Hughes, Walter Duranty, Dashiell Hammett, Howard Fast and Edgar snow.

Big 3 Farm Organizations Waging Battle

By OVID MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "Big 3" farm organizations in the United States are in the front lines of the farm war which today is raging over the federal government's role in aiding agriculture.

They speak with the voices of millions of farmers in a struggle to shape the kind of farm aid Congress will vote next year when the present program expires.

Although a final decision is months, perhaps years, away, organization leaders already are travelling the country rallying farmers to the showdown fight in state, county and town meetings. Each group has a strong lobby in Washington.

On the side of the Eisenhower administration stand the American Farm Bureau Federation, the biggest farm organization in the United States, and the National Grange. Their memberships total 2,292,000.

IN OPPOSING CAMPS

In the opposing camp is the National Farmers Union, which had a potent voice in the Truman administration. Its membership is 189,600 farm families or 575,000 voting members.

The Grange, oldest of the three, started in 1866 to help solve farmers' economic problems. It did much to get railroads and other utilities brought under government regulation. The farmers union was organized in Texas in 1902 to fight economic battles for low-income farmers.

The Farm Bureau Federation developed out of the farm recession that followed the First World War. Its sponsors said the older farm organizations were failing to provide effective leadership. The bureau was closely aligned with the Roosevelt administration during the 30s and early 40s.

Now the federation and the Grange have thrown their influence into the Eisenhower administration's drive to shift the farm program to less dependence on government subsidy.

They support Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson's philosophy that U. S. farmers must depend more on their own initiative and independent planning.

Under present laws, expiring next year, the federal government is compelled to support such basic crops as wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts at 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a price standard estimated to give the farmer a fair income in relation to the cost of things he must buy.

BLAMED FOR ILLS

Federation and Grange leaders —and Benson—blame this high and rigid price support system for many farm ills, such as huge surpluses in wheat, corn and butter. And they believe it will lead directly to complete government dictation of the farm economy through controlled production and marketing.

The National Farmers Union, on the other hand, is fighting not only to retain the high price support level but to extend it to other farm commodities. Its leaders argue that anything less than the present program will weaken the entire farm economy, bring further drops in prices, slash income, and create a program of scarcity in production.

The union contends the United States is lucky to have surpluses as a safety reserve against drought and the possibility of war. It denies surpluses have resulted from high price supports.

Fire Inspector Burns Fingers

OTTAWA (CP)—Was there a fire inspector in the house? There was indeed.

Gordon Metcalf, Ottawa city solicitor, was questioning Fred Cooksey, the city's chief fire inspector, Tuesday in a public inquiry into a land development scheme. Mr. Metcalf was leaning against the court clerk's desk at Carleton county court house.

Suddenly Mr. Metcalf gave a cry. Sparks shot 10 feet. He had apparently short-circuited an electrical outlet with a wire paper clip. He burned two fingers, requiring medical care.

"I can think of no one better than you to bring the defective outlet to the attention of the authorities."

Reds Make Kind Gesture Allow Orphan Boy To Go

By DON DOANE

BERLIN (AP)—Unusual kindness raised the tank-guarded Iron Curtain briefly Tuesday to let an 11-year-old orphan boy slip out of riot-torn East Germany to a haven with relatives in West Berlin.

With all his belongings in a rucksack, on his back, little Peter von Dsikowitzky came all alone from Schwerin, 120 miles to the northeast. When he reached the east-west Berlin border, he met kindness instead of bullets.

A Communist official gave the child a hand-written pass and Communist people's police escorted him across in a radio patrol car.

This was the same border Russian troops and East German police have sealed with tanks and machine-guns ever since the workers' revolt against Soviet rule began last Wednesday. On this same border a 15-year-old boy was shot to death by people's police Monday for jeering and throwing rocks at them.

TOUCH OF KINDNESS

Peter's story was one of the few touches of human kindness to come out of the last week's epic of bloodshed.

His father, a German officer of noble Russian descent, was killed in the war. His mother was "taken away" by the Russians in 1945 and never returned. He lived with his half-deaf, 65-year-old grandmother in Schwerin.

The grandmother became ill recently, and the Communists wanted to put Peter in an orphanage Both she and the boy balked. They ventured a dangerous experiment.

She packed Peter's rucksack, gave him what little money she could spare, and told him what to do.

He went to the rail station by himself and bought a ticket for Berlin.

When Communist police checked the passengers' papers as they approached Berlin, Peter pretended to sleep. They didn't bother him.

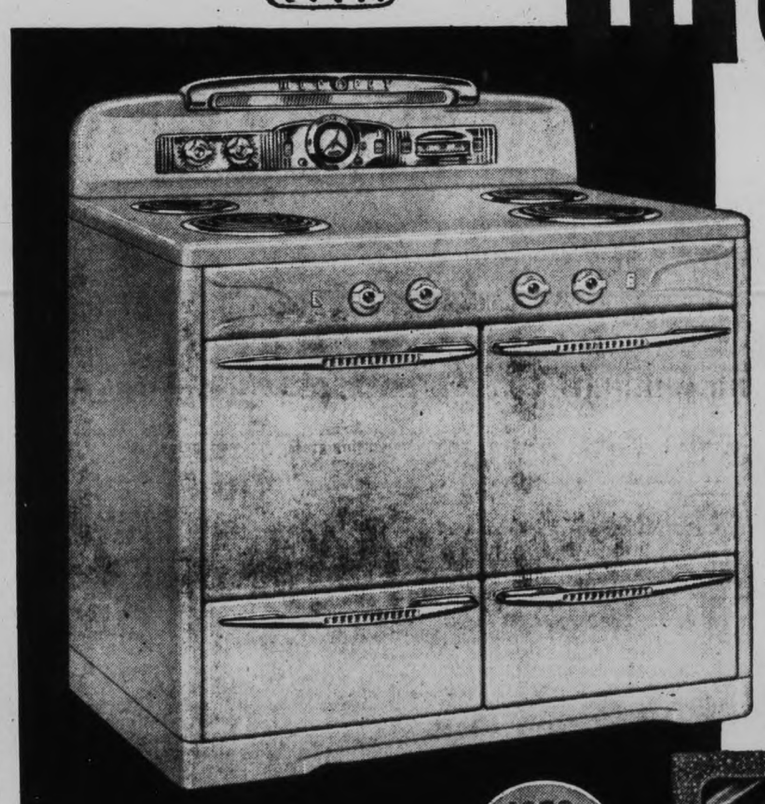
Reaching East Berlin, he met one kind person after another. A man helped him ride the subway to midtown near the western frontier. A woman gave him lodging for the night.

Then he encountered the government's neighborhood watchdog—the "strassenvertrauensmann." He is supposed to see that every one who enters his precinct has the proper papers and registers with the police.

Little Peter must have touched his heart. He wrote a letter describing Peter's plight and asking that he be passed through the border guard.

Finally he reached his aunt, 26-year-old Tatjana von Dsikowitzsky, in West Berlin. She is jobless. So is her fiance. They can't even afford to marry.

"But I'm going to keep him, somehow," she said.



THIS PICTURE IS OFFERED purely as relief from the daily grist of cold war, hot war, tornadoes, death, taxes—and Montreal's searng heat. While folks here scampered to country and water in a perspiring search for a cool breeze, more than half a hundred sightseers spent a shivering weekend in stalled buses and cars when a mountain blizzard clogged the automobile highway on Mount Evans, near Denver, Colo. Looking out of place in this June scene is a big snowplow clearing away the deep, powdery drifts.

Fire Breaks Out In Shed Quickly Doused

Fire of undetermined origin broke out Tuesday at the home of Michael Cacavella, 506 Elm St. Summoned by a neighbor of Caccavella's, firemen soon extinguished the flames, limiting damage to a lean-to at one corner of the house.

Mrs. Nina Tobin, daughter of the owner, was ironing in the kitchen when the flames were first noticed. B. F. Wright, who lives across from the Caccavella home, saw the fire, notified firemen and warned the residents.

Mrs. Tobin, wife of James Tobin, had two children, Dennis, six, and Mary Anne, eight. The three fled the house when they learned of the fire. Caccavella was gardening on the opposite side of the house at the time.

DAMAGED ROOF

Flames burned the lean-to walling, ate their way up the side of the house and damaged some of the roofing shingles.

The owner had been in the shed a few minutes prior to the fire but reported seeing nothing amiss at that time.

Fire Chief Ralph Leonard said the cause of the blaze was "a bit of mystery" so far. No explanations by the residents could help the department pin down its origin.

The house and contents are completely insured, the owner said.

County's Farmers In Van Of Swing To Grass Silage

Grass silage is probably a new and strange phrase in the layman's slim information about farming, but in the profession it has been steadily and rapidly developing as a new technique of farm practice. "Farmers are putting in large quantities of grass silage." That is a quotation from the Bruce county representative in this week's crop review from the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Grey county says: "Corn has been largely planted, but many are building horizontal silos in which they are putting grass."

Halton: "The heavy hay crop and backward weather is resulting in more folks trying out grass silage". Huron: "Grass silage is the order of the day". South Simcoe: "A number of silos are filled with grass." Brant: "Filling silos with grass is the order of the week."

And so it goes, county by county, a new refrain in the current news from agricultural Ontario.

Peterborough comment: "Some have been completing the seeding of corn, while others are making grass silage."

SHOWS DEVELOPMENT

This week's crop review reveals the development of grass silage procedure in farm methods and particularly in trying to reduce cost of production to enable the farmer still to make some profit in the price squeeze of the last two years.

Peterborough county has been in the van of grassland farming under Frank C. Paterson who included grass and soil at the top of his interests. Some farmers may remember the talk by Dr. O. McConkey of O.A.C. one night years ago when the Department's office in Peterborough was down in the block opposite the Odeon Theatre.

Prof. McConkey afterwards went to China on loan from the province of Ontario. His grass talk that night was a revelation, and sharpened attention to his merit among professional agronomists anywhere.

Then, Peterborough was one of the first counties, certainly in eastern Ontario, to put on a Grassland Day at Youngs farm on the fourth line of Smith.

GRASS GOSPEL

Grass farming has been a movement in the Ontario countryside that is overtaking the similar progress reported from the New England States. The pressure of cost of production has forced farmers into assaying the grass gospel as an economic aid. Some have already been reporting from the last year or two the extent of their confirmation of the promises of the grass agents.

Here is a June that is making agriculture history in the scope of converting grass into silage. For the laymen it is an interesting chapter of change and progress, especially in method of fabricating horizontal silos and the practice of filling them with grass from the fields.

This week's report of the Ontario Department is highly significant of the extent to which farmers of the province have adopted the idea, and also of their willingness to conform their ways and means to the recommendations of O.A.C.

The Deputy Minister ought to put this week's crop review away in archives for its repetitious stressing of the advance of grassland farming in his domain.

Child's Clinics Suspended Until Autumn

The children's health clinic operated by the Department of Health are discontinuing their services for the summer and will hold their last clinic at All Saints' Anglican Church on June 30.

Mothers have been advised that they may secure special appointments throughout the summer months by phoning the Department of Health office at the City Hall.

THREAT OF POLIO

The reason for the discontinuation of the clinics is because of possibility of a polio outbreak this summer. One to combat this is stop the congregation of children in large gatherings.

Clinics are expected to resume by the first of October.

This should bring the city well past the polio season and permit a newly organized nursing staff to properly initiate the school medical service program, which will begin in September.

It is anticipated by the Department of Health that there will be an extension of child clinics in the fall and it is hoped to locate clinics in all parts of the city. They expect to run 16 clinics a month, but not necessarily to be held each week in the same place.

There will be a clinic in Ashburnham and eight other areas in the city, to which a Public Health Nurse will be assigned.

Millard Asks Clergy Help Labor Fight

OSHAWA (CP)—C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL), called on Canadian clergymen Tuesday night to join hands with labor in a united fight for a better way of life.

Speaking to an organizing meeting of the Oshawa Labor-Religion Foundation, he said clergy never show up when industrial relations are strained to the breaking point and consequently it is hard for the union members to turn to the Church in times of stress.

Labor and management go their separate ways and it is only through religion that they can find any basis for co-operation, he said.

Plumbers Seek Certification In All Shops

Three of 10 plumbing firms in the city have already been certified as members of Local 813, United Association of Plumbers, Pipefitters and Apprentices (AFL-TLC).

This was reported Tuesday night at a meeting of Local 813 in which a progress report was given on the drive to organize Peterborough plumbers, pipefitters, apprentices and helpers. A membership of 43 in the 10 shops was reported.

The plumbers applied to the Ontario Labor Relations Board on behalf of 10 shops. They hope eventually to link all of them in a single master contract. But the OLRB is judging the application for each shop individually.

STANDING

Archibald and Richmond, Crapp and Murphy, and Harry Lewis—all three certified;

Ed Bickell, George Hutchinson and Goodfellow and Dougherty—an OLRB-supervised vote to be held among the employees;

W. R. Turner and McCaskie Plumbing and Heating—both rejected because less than 45 per cent of the eligible employees were signed;

Ford Plumbing and Lou Girard—no decision yet by the OLRB on their application.

Bargaining committees will be elected shortly to begin negotiations on behalf of shops already certified, it was decided Tuesday night. Arrangements will also be made for balloting in the shops where a vote must be held.

Jumps Off Bike Boy Avoids Crash

Eight-year-old Billy McNutt of 630 Little St. escaped injury when he leaped from his bicycle Tuesday afternoon, but a three-ton stake truck wrecked the front wheel of the bike and bent the forks.

Billy was riding north in the west cement gutter on Monaghan Rd., near McKellar St., at about 3:30 p.m., when he met a truck proceeding south. There were some rocks in the gutter which he tried to ride over to avoid the truck, but he lost his balance and jumped from the bicycle which was run over by the right rear wheel of the truck.

The driver stopped to ask Billy if he was hurt, but did not give his name. The truck belonged to Davidson Cartage and Transport, Baltimore, Ont.

PC Sherman Keliele investigated.

Body Found After 3 Days In Stony Lake

Toronto Man Drowned At Burleigh No Inquest Due

The body of Donald Ware, 23-year-old Toronto steelworker, was recovered 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in Stony lake, three quarters of a mile from the dam at Burleigh Falls where he drowned.

An autopsy was performed Tuesday night by Dr. C. B. Waite, provincial pathologist, assisted by Dr. John Whiteside. Coroner Dr. Herbert Young said today:

"Death was by drowning. There was no evidence of anything else. There will be no inquest."

Ware, a non-swimmer and a stranger to Lovesick lake, took a friend's home-made flat-bottom boat with an outboard motor attached, and went fishing. He was last seen alive, 10 p.m. Friday, crossing the lake.

The current at the dam on Perry creek connecting Lovesick and Stony lakes is swifter than usual and Ware is believed to have been caught by it and eventually swept over the dam.

BEGAN DRAGGING

Friday night his friends began searching for him and provincial police were called early Saturday morning. Then dragging began.

The body was discovered floating in Stony lake Tuesday afternoon by Robert Fuller, 25, a Toronto man who is staying at a cottage on Stony lake. Mr. Fuller noticed something drifting down the lake, a quarter of a mile from shore. When he investigated he found the body being carried along by the strong current.

After being swept over the dam the body was carried a half mile north by the current and then a quarter mile east into Stony lake—three quarters of a mile in all. Since Saturday morning the whole area had been carefully dragged without success but Tuesday morning the dam was lowered and the rush of water is believed to have dislodged the body from where it was snagged.

The search for the drowned man was a community effort with volunteers from the Burleigh Falls district assisting OPP Cpl. Jack Munro and Constable Don Lacombe. Seven boats and 25 men helped in dragging operations.

GREAT CO-OPERATION

"In my 17 years as a policeman I've never seen such co-operation from the citizens," Cpl. Munroe told the Examiner. "The men helped from dawn to dusk.

"Josh Johnson cracked a bone in his left ankle one night but he was right on the job the next day. And the women helped out by bringing refreshments."

The Rev. Willard Day and Pete Fyfe of the Park Hotel helped organize the dragging operations rounding up boats and crews. All the time the dragging party had the assistance of Lockmaster Sherman Blewett who worked overtime letting boats through the locks and adjusting the stop-logs.

Others who helped during the three-day search for Ware's body were the four Johnson brothers—Dallas, Josh, Stan and Jerry—Buster and Mac Brown and Bill McHugh.

The body was taken to the Hendren funeral home in Lakefield and then to Toronto.

Chose Special Ink Of Queen's Bible

T. H. Chandler, brother of George E. Chandler, Bolivar St., chose the special ink for the Bible which was presented to the Queen during the coronation service in Westminster Abbey.

Mr. Chandler is manager of the machine department of the Oxford University Press, Oxford.

The Bible which was begun last year was bound in Morocco leather and decorated with gold leaf and printed on Oxford India paper. After the coronation it was put on exhibition with the Oxford's historical treasurer in London by permission of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, into whose possession it passes after the service.

Plumbers' President

Tom Bradley on Tuesday night was elected new president of Local 813, United Association of Plumbers, Pipefitters and Apprentices (AFL-TLC). He succeeds Gerald Yeomans who has gone into business for himself. The new recording secretary is Roy Crellin, succeeding Joseph McTeague. James Chalmers is the secretary.

Hurt Off Job City To Rule On Compensation

Application of the city's sick benefit plan to a municipal employee injured while working elsewhere during his time off civic duty raised a question of future policy which the council in board of works Monday night referred to the fire, water and light committee for consideration and report.

Fire Chief J. R. Leonard reported to the council that Fireman William Trick suffered an accident about May 29 in which the tips of two fingers of his left hand were removed. He reported sick and was off duty from that date until the night shift of June 16.

Fireman Trick's doctor, writing on June 16, stated that recovery was sufficient to enable him to return to duty and perform fully his usual work.

WORKS AT FACTORY

Chief Leonard's information was, in part "Fireman Trick suffered this injury while employed by Roy Beeler, sash and door manufacturer, Lansdowne St. From my information it is indicated that Fireman Trick for some little time has been employed during his off-duty hours at the Beeler factory. It is also my information that during his convalescence from this injury, and throughout the whole time of his injury's effect he was covered by Workmen's Compensation as an employee of Mr. Beeler.

In view of these facts I would appreciate your decision as to whether I should allow sick leave time off should a similar case happen in the future."

Ald. H. T. Rehill, chairman of the fire and light committee, told the board that payment of sick leave was recommended because the payroll had to be made up, and there was no policy or precedent directing course of action in such case of injury.

Some opinion was expressed in committee that the sick leave benefit should be withheld because the employee was receiving Workmen's Compensation for the injury he suffered while working outside the fire department.

NO RULES

In board of works it was said that the council did not attempt to require city employees to confine their work to their employment with the municipality.

Discussion proposed that sick leave benefit provided by the city should not be applicable for injury of any civic employee while employed by some one else.

That is the point which has been referred to the fire, water and light committee.

Reformatory At Millbrook Vital—Foote

Tells Committee Institution Needed Despite Decisions

The construction of a new reformatory is vital, Reforms Minister Foote of Ontario on Tuesday told a select committee on reform institutions.

His statement came in the midst of a debate in which the committee criticized departmental action in expanding accommodation at Mimico while the committee was trying to find ways and means to cut down prison population.

Mr. Foote said there are enough psychopaths in Ontario's institutions who need treatment at the Millbrook project to warrant its construction regardless of what results the committee's decisions may bring.

But it was the proposed dormitory addition at Mimico that raised the controversy.

REPLACE OLD UNIT

Mr. Foote said the committee was under a misapprehension. The new $90,000 dormitory at Mimico was to replace a unit condemned as a fire hazard in December, 1951, he said. He refused to stop the building program until the committee reports some months from now.

"I'm interested in constructive efforts," he added.

W. M. Nickle, PC—Kingston, said nothing constructive could be done until the Criminal Code was revised to permit a proper probation system.

"That's beyond my province," said Mr. Foote. "When these other problems have been decided on and passed by the legislature that's enough for me and I don't want interference."

"If we're going to be at loggerheads with the minister," said Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, "we're not going to make much progress."

"We have no political ax to grind," continued Mr. Oliver, "and the committee feels the inauguration of a proper probation system will relieve the pressure on the provincial system to such an extent that there would be no need for additional institutions."

STRIKE BREATHER

Company and union officials had a breather today in their contract talks in Toronto while the strike at the Quaker Oats Co. enters its 10th week. With James Hutcheson, department of labor conciliation officer, presiding, the two parties considered a company written proposal Tuesday. They adjourned early in the afternoon by mutual consent and will resume discussions Thursday morning.

Requests Reformatory Refused By Court

A request by Percy Crummey, 39, of Hastings that he be sentenced to Mimico Reformatory rather than the Peterborough county jail was turned down today by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC.

Presumably Crummey wanted to take a course at Mimico for curing alcoholism. But Magistrate Philp said that Crummey was sentenced only on first and second offence drunk charges. A third offence committed within a year would automatically bring a three-month sentence and then he could be committee to a reformatory.

However he was convicted on two first offence and two second offence charges with penalties of $125 in fines or two months and 20 days in jail.

Bishop To Open St. John The Baptist

St. John the Baptist Church will be officially opened today by the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough. There will be a blessing bestowed by the Bishop at 3:00 p.m. and a mass at 7:30 p.m. for the benefit of those men of the parish who would be unable to attend a morning service.

The Piggott Construction Co. began work on the church on Wilson Ave. in May of 1952, with William McCann as foreman. Final touches are being done by Clive Tully with the added help of some of the men of the parish who are mainly responsible for the priest's house. It is connected to the church by a wing in which the administrative offices are located. The administration wing, sanctuary and rectory all connect to the church to form a square with a court-yard in the middle. The Gothic structure was designed by Edward J. Turcotte, FRAIC, one of the foremost architects in Canada.

DR. F. M. GRANT

Dr. F. M. Grant was installed as parish priest on Nov. 6, 1950, by Bishop Berry when it was decided to split up the Sacred Heart parish. The new parish was originated due to the growth of the congregation in the southern end of the city and the danger encountered by the children while crossing Lansdowne St. on the way to school and church. Mass was and will be celebrated in the auditorium of St. John the Baptist school until the opening of the new church.

The church and adjoining buildings are faced with Credit Valley stone and trimmed with limestone. The interior is of colored hitite blocks and the roof reinforced with finished timber arches. The building is 131 feet long and 51 feet wide and will accommodate the congregation of about 500 members, not including the gallery intended for choir use.

LOCAL CRAFTSMEN

Some of the interior work has been done by local craftsmen such as the pottery fixtures of the baptismal font by Joseph Riedel, the altar crucifix and candles by Mr. Liber and Mr. Bryant, and the steps by Mr. Cubica.

All in all Dr. Grant and the members of the congregation are groud of their new church and are looking forward with expectancy to its opening.

Knowles Makes Plea For Support Of CCF Health Insurance Plan

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Political leaders Tuesday night thrust and parried verbally from election platforms. Prime Minister St. Laurent taxed Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, with promising the impossible. In turn, Mr. Drew described Liberal policy for the future as "a yawn."

Meanwhile, from Winnipeg, Stanley Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre in the last Commons, made a plea by national radio network for support of his party's national health insurance program on voting day, Aug. 10.

Mr. St. Laurent took a few cuts at Mr. Drew's election manifesto before a Guelph audience. His theme: promised tax reductions of $500,000,000 and the whole Progressive Conservative platform as "absolutely impossible" to carry out.

He indicated clearly that his opinion of Progressive Conservative promises was that they meant higher federal expenditures. That included promises of lower taxes on homes and farms; lower property taxes for health and education, contributory health insurance, a national board to set fair farm prices, more pay for civil servants and better terms for home building.

"So far as I can see, there is nothing the Conservatives are not willing to promise."

PASSING STAB

With a passing stab at the CCF and Social Credit, other major groups in the campaign, Mr. St. Laurent wrote off their chances. He said the choice is between his government or the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Drew at a meeting of his home riding of Carlton, which includes parts of Ottawa, said Mr. St. Laurent has given no indication of Liberal policy for the future.

The prime minister's keynote speech in Windsor, Ont., onday "simply tells us that the government policy for the future is expressed in the words: 'As you were.' This was not a policy. It was a yawn."

Mr. St. Laurent's statement that the opposition had been denied no information was surprising. Parliament prorogued with 15 unanswered questions on the order paper and 18 motions for information passed by Parliament, but "ignored" by the government.

The government had become the victim of its own propaganda when it could say there is no impressive evidence of waste and inefficiency.

CAN'T DO WITHOUT IT

Mr. Knowles said Canada no longer can afford to be without a national health insurance program. The $500,000,000 Canadians spend yearly plus another $200,000,000 would finance such a program. The $300,000,000 increase in production of wealth since 1949 would pay defence costs, ordinary government costs and health and security measures proposed by the CCF.

It also was only fair that the old age and blind pensioner share in the 50-per-cent increase in production of wealth by having pensions increased to $60 a month from the $40 set in 1919.

Mr. Knowles said the national health insurance plan could be financed from the $500,000,000 a year already spent on health care by individuals, together with another $100,000,000 or $200,000,00.

"No single step would do more for the peace of mind, the happiness, the economic efficiency of the Canadian people than the inauguration of a national health plan such as we of the CCF have been urging."

TAXES CAN BE CUT

In Montreal, Leon Balcer, Progressive Conservative member of the last Commons for the Quebec constituency of Trois-Rivieres, said federal taxes can be reduced by a "sane government."

The statement was contained in a half-hour speech prepared for broadcast over the CBC's French network on time allotted for political speeches.

Mr. Balcer, president of the Young, Progressive Conservatives of Canada, urged support of his party in the Aug. 10 general election and criticized the attitude of Liberal members from Quebec during the last parliament.

Existing federal taxes, said Mr. Balcer, are neither necessary nor justified.

On federal-provincial relations, Mr. Balcer said Prime Minister St. Laurent has refused time and again to call a conference to provide for a redistribution of taxation powers.

MUST BE CAREFUL

Trade Minister Howe said a Liberal government would introduce a sound, workable health insurance scheme as soon as it can be done without putting too big a burden on the Canadian people.

He spoke at an Ottawa West nominating convention which picked George McIlraith, his parliamentary assistant in the last Commons, as Liberal candidate for the election.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said at Strathroy, the signing of an armistice in Korea may be the forerunner of more serious international situations that the United Nations may face.

Addressing a political rally of West Middlesex Liberal Association the president of the United Nations general assembly claimed recognition by the UN of Red China is a problem that most certainly will have to be considered after hostilities are ended in Korea.

"The recognition of Red China by the free nations of the world is a controversial issue," he said. "After an armistice in Korea it is likely that a round table conference will be held among all the countries, and this meeting, I should think, would take the form of a political conference."

MUST PAY DEBT

Agriculture Minister Gardiner says the federal government can budget for $300,000,000 a year less than at present, but then no progress would be made in paying off Canada's debts.

At a public meeting Monday night, Mr. Gardiner commented on claims of Mr. Drew that his party would cut taxes by $500,000,000 if victorious in the election.

Mr. Drew was correct in saying the federal government is collecting $300,000,000 a year more than it had expected, the minister added.

But that extra money came as the result of increased earnings by Canadians. It was a sign of Canada's prosperity.

Mr. Gardiner also referred to Mr. Drew's promise to restore the overseas markets for farm produce.

GOV'T HANDICAPPED

Canada, because of her federal system of 11 governments, was handicapped in making and keeping her commitments to Great Britain. Britain preferred to buy elsewhere because of a guaranteed supply and cheaper products.

But this worked no hardship on the Canadian farmer because Canadians were able to eat all of the butter, cheese and hogs produced in Canada and almost all the beef and the prices of these commodities in Canada were considerably higher than they were on the overseas markets.

Stirling Masons Hold Annual Church Service

STIRLING—(ENS)—About 80 members of Stirling Lodge AF and AM along with visiting brethren atended the annual Masonic Service at St. Paul's United Church on Sunday morning.

The Rev. A. E. Baker had charge of the service and visitors were welcomed by George Carlisle.

Mr. Baker took as his topic "The Superlative Degree". He mentioned that Masonry was the oldest secret organization in the world and that there were groups in England as early as the 13th century. Also he remarked that while Masonry was a Christian organization and should go hand in hand with the church it was not a substitute for Christianity.

In closing he denounced the every day evils that are so rampant everywhere, especially alcoholic beverages and the neglect of home life.

Retaining Wall Slated For Scugog

LINDSAY (ENS) — Lindsay Parks board chairman informed the board at a special meeting Tuesday that officials of the Department of Transport had reportedly given definite assurance that work would be undertaken soonon a retaining wall along the west bank of the Scugog river in McDonald Park in Lindsay.

According to chairman Carl Brown, he had written some time ago to Ottawa asking for a wall to be built. At that time, the park was undeveloped and no favorable reply was received. He later informed the Department that a great deal of beautification had been completed and more contemplated with a decision on the wall awaited before starting any work.

A copy of the letter was sent to Dr. Foster Graham, Fenelon Falls, Liberal candidate in the forthcoming election. Shortly thereafter, he sent a reply to Mr. Brown, stating that he had assurance from the Department officials that the work would be undertaken at the earliest possible date.

Board members expressed pleasant surprise at the news, and asked that a member of the department be invited to Lindsay to study the situation and suggest what type of wall would be most suitable. One member, T. H. Price, commented that the department was responsible for the wall in any case, since the erosion of the west bank of the river has been caused by water, backed up by the government locks, flowing over that side of the dam and around the curve of the bank. The board was considering placing fill on the north end of the park to build up the land, but decided to hold action on this until the wall is built, or a date for commencement of the work announced.

Cable Error Basis For Damage Suit

MONTREAL (CP)—Because of an alleged transmission error in a cablegram, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was made defendant in a $71,750 damages action Tuesday in Superior Court.

The plaintiff firm, Newage (Canada) Ltd., maintained it lost a $169,360 contract and blamed the cable company for loss of profits and for damage to the plaintiff's reputation.

Mr. Justice S. B. Ralston, at the request of the CPR, ordered the plaintiff company to supply details of the various items of loss claimed.

The Newage company said in its declaration that it was interested with various British firms in the manufacture and distribution of industrial engines, electrical motors, generators and other equipment.

A cable was sent from England to the firm March 24, 1952, with figures for a contract on which the company was tendering. The company claimed that because of the error the figures it submitted ultimately were too high and it failed to get the contract. It also claimed that had the cable been sent as handed to the cable company, the Newage firm could have submitted a tender that would have taken the contract.

City Soldier 14 Months In Korea With Princess Pats

Pte. Frank Wood returned Sunday from a 14-month period in Korea where he saw considerable action in the area around "Old Smokey," "Big Norrey" and Hill 355.

Frank joined the "Princess Pats" on November 9, 1951, spent his training period in Calgary and shipped out to Korea in May of the following year. Upon arrival he was stationed at Britannia camp where he met his brother, Sgt. Jack Wood, also with the "Pats." After a short stay there he was moved to Pusan, then by train to the railhead at Taejon and finally by truck to the front lines.

It was here on "Big Norrey" that A. B. and D companies of the "Pats" joined with the RCR to defend the hill from communist forces.

The RCR was in the advance position and were hit by four battalions of Chinese troops. The battle lasted four hours, with Frank's company having to limit their firing for fear of hitting their fellow Canadians. The "Pats" started a flanking movement expecting to trap the Chiniece who by this time were fighting hand to hand in the trenches with the RCR, but by the time they were in position the enemy had slipped away.

The next few months were spent comparatively quiet with only an occasional Communist advance, and this always at night —the enemy was seldom seen in the daytime.

REST THREE MONTHS

A divisional rest was ordered and the Canadians spent the next three months behind the 38th parallel and then moved up to "Old Smokey" which they were ordered to hold until relieved.

Sporadic attacks continued here for some four months during which time Pte. Wood and 13 of his buddies spent a ticklish 24 hours. They had been out on a reconnaissance patrol and were cut off from the rest of their company and trapped on the upper slope of the hill by the Chinese, who luckily weren't certain of their number, and did not attack immediately.

The hill was bare between the Canadians and the enemy and consequently mortar fire from the RCR and Vandoo outfits held the Chinese at bay, allowing time for the ground forces to get within striking distance, which they did early the next morning. A short struggle ensued and the enemy was either killed or driven off.

After a four-month stay on the hill, A Company was oredred back to Japan and after a month there departed on the SS General O'Hara bound for Seattle and home.

Frank remarked: "It took 18 days to get over there as the sea was terribly rough, but only nine days to come back, and by a longer route. But I sure didn't mind."

More RMC Graduates Go Into Air Force

OTTAWA (CP)—The air force is getting more of this year's Royal Military College graduates than the army, possibly for the first time.

Of 110 young men in the graduating class of the officer training school at Kingston, 27 are going straight into the RCAF, 21 into the army and two into the navy. The remainder are going on to civilian colleges or into civilian life but will keep contact with the forces by joining reserve units.

The army is repeating its 1952 plan by sending all its 21 new lieutenants out to Korea for immediate battle training.

Canada Waits Data On Travel

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department is awaiting full information from its Moscow embassy on the easing of Russian travel restrictions imposed on foreigners before any consideration is given to Canada's own bans on travel by Russian embassy personnel in this country.

A spokesman said Tuesday the department so far has only press reports to go on and is awaiting details from the embassy. No immediate action to relax the Canadian ban is anticipated.

The Russians have opened wide areas to unrestricted travel by foreigners.

Canada for the last year has allowed personnel from the Russian embassy to travel outside a 25-mile radius around Ottawa only after obtaining permission from the external affairs or defence departments.

Icebreaker To Deliver Ballot Boxes On Coast

The transport department said Tuesday she is being pressed into service to deliver ballot boxes to 55 communities stretched along 650 miles of coastline in Labrador on her way to Canadian Arctic waters on the annual supply mission.

The icebreaker will anchor 40 miles off each settlement and a special electoral officer will be flown ashore by helicopter with the boxes and necessary material for voting.

Mr. Thomas Shea has been seriously ill at his home here.

Saturday afternoon's electrical storm did some damage to hydro and telephone wires. Several trees were struck in the village and Mr. Gibson Lowery, farmer on Lifford Line, lost a valuable horse when it was struck by lightning.

Will Go Straight To Frost In Education Money Fight

BIGWIN INN (CP)—The Urban and Rural Trustees' Association Tuesday decided to by-pass the Ontario department of education and go straight to Premier Frost and the cabinet in an attempt to get more money for education.

A resolution urging this move was passed by the association at its annual convention here because delegates said real estate will be unable to carry the burden of increasing education costs much longer.

Dr. G.-A. Wheable, president of the urban inspectors' group of the Ontario Education Association and superintendent of education at London, Ont., said: "Many school boards will be sunk unless we can do something right away to start preparing for the tidal wave of pupils which will soon hit our secondary schools."

He said the education department is not to blame because it can only hand out the money allocated to it by the government.

TORONTO GETS PICK

It was stated that Toronto gets the pick of the teachers from Normal School every year, leaving the less capable teachers for the smaller centres.

G. A. Pearson, Ontario's superintendent of elementary education, said it is a serious problem. Fundamentally it was a case of salaries and living conditions in the various communities.

"I don't know how we can avoid the situation," he added.

A. R. Prack of Hamilton, vice-president of the Ontario Association of Architects, told the convention that a standardized set of blueprints for school construction is not the panacea to reduce school building costs.

Mr. Prack said such plans would affect only about three per cent of the total cost of schools. If such a scheme had been in use in 1945, the great economies achieved in school construction since the end of the war would not have been possible.

BUFFER—Walter S. Robertson, Assistant Secretary of State, has been named to go to Korea on a top-level mission to persuade RoK president Syngman Rhee to comply with UN armistice aims. Check With Town Planning Before Painting Your House

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec is probably the only city in Canada where a man likes to check with the town planning commission before putting a new color of paint on his house.

That is the kind of headache that besets owners of ancient buildings in the historic section of the walled city.

It goes to illustrate in a small way the intricacies of running a city where old things are sacred and modern development is pushing at the gates.

Quebec is the hub of vast developments at St. Lawrence river north shore points and the face of the old grey city is changing, taking on a more modern atmosphere.

RELICS OF PAST

Of the 1,238 buildings standing when Britons took over from French about 200 years ago, 1,114 stand, though partly transformed, and about another 100 religious structures are still well preserved.

But the impact of industrial development is having its effect on the city. Recently an old building was demolished and there was an outcry. Newspapers ran pictures of workers tearing down the stone structure.

There are Quebecers who would gladly see its old buildings demolished, its narrow streets widened and straightened to make room for efficient traffic conditions and bright office buildings.

But Quebec's historical societies, watchdogs of historic monuments, and business men who cater to thousands of tourists, view with alarm the trend to modernization and are petitioning the Quebec government to have a special commission set up to guard the relics.

This situation has been met by the city administration with a compromise policy: Development of new housing and industrial areas outside the city's historic section, and strict control over construction inside.

NEW AND OLD

The result is an old Quebec, reminiscent of 18th-century France, and a new Quebec that looks much like any other modern town of its size. Swankiest homes are located in modern suburbs like Sillery.

The current boom resulting from huge mining and industrial developments in the province has resulted in construction of 1,407 homes, 16 manufacturing plants, 202 commercial buildings, 29 public buildings, with a value of $34,320,208, during the last five years.

Nothing indicates the trend is changing. Projects have come up recently for the construction of a large hotel in the city's old sector, of a new theatre, and other commercial establishments.

The Samuel de Champlain Society expressed opposition for less material reasons. In a long statement it said archaeological research is planned in Quebec's old sector and nothing should disturb the land.

". . . This land belongs to Canadian and universal history more than it does to commerce and local industry, because it is the place where were introduced civilization and the Christian religion on the new continent," the statement said.

So far, permits to build the hotel and other commercial establishments in historic Quebec have not been granted.

Board Perfects New Type Of Gas Mask

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's defence research board has perfected a new-type gas-mask which doesn't "fog up" as conventional masks do in cold weather.

A board official who didn't want his name used said Tuesday the mask solves the two major problems encountered by conventional masks in sub-zero temperatures.

The eye-pieces of the conventional mask start fogging when the temperature drops below freezing. The fogging gets worse as the temperature drops and the mask becomes almost unwearable at sub-zero temperatures.

VALVE CLOSES

Also, moisture in the breath of the wearer of the mask condenses in the outlet valve and freezes, closing the valve. The wearer must either remove the mask or suffocate.

The new DRB mask, the official said, solves the first problem by "a special feature in interior design." It is classified as secret information.

Cancel Vote Result After Union Action

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario labor relations board Tuesday cancelled the result of a certification vote because of what it called a union's attempt to speculate publicly on the position taken by board members in their executive and private sessions.

The board set aside a vote in favor of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) which contested bargaining rights with the Grain Millers Union (AFL) at Maple Leaf Milling Company. The CIO union had won the vote by a narrow margin.

The board said that the CIO union distributed leaflets in which references were made to what were alleged to be the views and attitude of one of the members of the board.

Official Inquiry Opens Into Sinking

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—An official inquiry into the sinking of the lake freighter Scotiadoc in Lake Superior last Saturday following a collision with another freighter, the Burlington, is to open here today, it was announced Tuesday.

Gordon Jacquoil of N. M. Paterson and Sons Limited, owners of the Scotiadoc, said he has been requested to have crew members of the ill-fated ship present.

The closed hearing is to be conducted by officials of the department of transport.

RAMMED AMIDSHIPS

Wallace McDermid, 27, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is missing and believed drowned as a result of the collision. He was a crew member on the Scotiadoc.

The Burlington, her bow stove in eight feet after the crash, rescued 29 of the Scotiadoc's complement of 30 and headed for Fort William for repairs.

Hat-Shaped Cards Invite Guests St. George's Tea

"Put on your hat and come to the tea at St. George's Anglican Church" invited the pastel-colored, hat-shaped cards distributed by members of the Afternoon Guild this past month.

One hundred and thirty-five or more ladies accepted the invitation and enjoyed the event held in the spacious new hall Tuesday afternoon. They were welcomed at the door by Guild president Mrs. Fred Dorrell and Mrs. S. N Perks took tickets.

It was actually a Floral Tea and all the seasonal varieties of blooms were noticed in the bouquets around the hall.

The tea table was centred with a large pink hat similar to the tiny invitation cards. This hat was edged with dainty white lace and decorated with red roses. Small bouquets of sweet peas and roses were also on the tea table and the small tables set for guests were each made attractive with a centrepiece of roses and pansies and colorful purple bloom.

Pouring tea the first hour were Mrs. Howard Powell and Mrs. Harvey Sutton. Afterward, Mrs. H. J. Scuse, the minister's wife, and Mrs. T. H. Floyd presided.

The Rev. Mr. Scuse, who was quietly celebrating a birthday on Tuesday, was surprised at the tea when a small, candle-lit and decorated birthday cake was set on his table.

The tea room was in charge of Mrs. W. Warren and her assistants were Miss Geraldine Perks, Mrs. W. Dawson, Mrs. R. Stroud, Mrs. M. Holden and Mrs. J. Drynan. The refreshments were served English style on plates prepared under direction of Mrs. S. Parkes and Mrs. S. Robertson, assisted by Mrs. J. Macdonald, Mrs. F. Hines and Mrs. W. McWilliams. The tea, noticeably fresh and fairly strong, in the English way, was carefully made by Mrs. W. Firth.

The chancel was lighted by candles and decorated with baskets of iris and spirea. As guests were assembling Mrs. Mary Lee rendered organ music and preceding the wedding march Miss Jean Millar sang "The Lord's Prayer." Later she sang "At Dawning."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white slipper satin with neckline yoke and long sleeves of Chantilly lace and her full length veil was attached to a coronet headdress of shirred nylon and satin. She carried a white prayer book with rosebud streamers.

Miss Evelyn Northey was the maid of honor, frocked in yellow nylon net with matching mitts and flowered headpiece. Bridesmaids were the Misses Melba Pavey, Lenora Westlake and Nancy Graham, wearing similar frocks in aqua, shrimp and green, with matching crownless hats and mitts. Little flower girls Iris and Ivy Tranter were wearing floor-length taffeta gowns of periwinkle blue and pink and also had flowered headpieces. Bouquets carried by all of the attendants were of sweet peas and roses.

Mr. Robert Orde was groomsman and the ushers were Richard Tranter, Owen MacDonald and Carl Doughty.

The bride's mother wore navy with white accessories and the groom's stepmother chose aqua and white for this occasion, both wearing corsages of roses and sweet peas. The reception, attended by 125 guests was at the Viamede Hotel, Stoney Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will live in Lakefield after the wedding trip in United States. The bride travelled in a beige suit and wore burnt sugar shade accessories.

Miss L. Parsons Now Heads Welfare League

Miss Lahring Parsons became the new president when a slate of officers was elected during the business sessions. She succeeds Mrs. C. G. Collins who has retired after four years' service.

The League has this year provided milk, cod liver oil, shoes and clothing, even new mattresses in taking care of 10 needy families in the city. The milk bill totalled $389.

Overseas relief work included sending 24 towel kits to Korea and a bale of used clothing to Britain during March.

Ninety Christmas boxes were packed and delivered. Two members have attended Well Baby Clinics each week. A great deal of help was given at the Children's Home, including mending, monthly treats to the children, money to send two children to summer camp and for some furnishings.

It was decided to carry on the provision of milk and help to the needy families during the summer months. Funds raised from a rummage sale and sponsoring the sale of Summer Theatre tickets in May are running low, so some project for raising money will be held in the early fall, anticipating a continuance of hearty public support to the league work.

They will live at 209 Brock St. in Peterborough.

DOROTHY DIX:

Cryptic Writer Urges Friends Act On Own

DEAR MISS DIX: What is there about one that makes other people practically stand on their heads to make a favorable impression? I realize it's considered flattering to have others care so much about one's opinion, but the attempts to find favor are sometimes pitifully simple. Why can't people be themselves instead of trying to ape others? I'm sure life would be more worth-while if people did what they wanted instead of copying what other people do.

F. A.

ANSWER: Your somewhat cryptic letter is a personal objection to assuming leadership. You have been gifted by heaven with qualities that make a general rather than a private, and for some mysterious reason you resent them. Leaders are born, not made, and obviously there are less of them than of followers. If you have the gift of setting standards that others will honor, it is not to be taken lightly.

It was given to you for a purpose and that purpose was not to make fun of the less brilliant folks who look to you for guidance. You shrug off casually a wonderful talent, of which you are making poor use.

In any group, whether of school, business, or social life, there is one person who is better equipped to lead or moderate. Such ability is not to be used in a "pushy" fashion it's not intended to make one ostentatiously "bossy" but it is to be used in setting an example of poise, good fellowship, self-confidence. She who puts the proper value on her gift is gracious-not obnoxious. Fully aware of the responsibility it entails, she exerts her personality to make others feel at ease, to give inspiration to those whose talents lie in other directions.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 15 years old and recently broke up with a boy I had known for a year. We had been going steady, but he had been going out with other girls and didn't tell me about it. When I found out, I broke off with him. I still like him he calls me frequently and I see him once in a while. Do you think I should still have anything to do with him?

L. P.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a woman of 33, married to a man ten years older. I'm not happy, first of all because my husband offers nothing in the way of companionship, and second because I am in love with someone else. My husband is a good provider, but that's all. I am a nervous wreck.

CARRIE V.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your nervousness is due to mounting dissatisfaction, which in turn is due to the fact that you know you aren't doing the right thing by seeing a married man. You're propounding a double transgression: breaking your own marriage vows and permitting someone else to break his. Your husband loves you, supports you, and has no other woman in his life; what more do you want? Try giving him a little affection and attention, instead of saving it all for another woman's husband.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last summer I went with a fine boy, but took a sudden dislike to him, and haven't talked to him since. Now I feel ashamed of myself, and would like to resume our frienship. I see him at school, but don't have much chance to speak to him. Should I apologize?

WORRIED

ANSWER: If you did something specific that warrants an apology you certainly should apologize verbally or in writing. You could scarcely apologize to the boy because you took a dislike to him, however. Probably he never even noticed that you had changed. Just take advantage of any opportunity to be friendly and leave the rest to him.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Pork Barbecue On A Bun On Special-Purpose Menu

Recently the method for roasting a fresh ham appeared here. Since our family is small I was hard put to use this large roast up interestingly, despite the fact that it was first served at a dinner for six.

Of course we used it sliced cold for dinner next day and Pete's sandwiches in his carried lunches, but I think the meal at which I served it along with Barbecue Sauce in buns received the most aplause—helped along with the sensational frosting on Rita's cake (see below)

Pork Barbecue on a Bun
Cole Slaw with extras
Crushed Strawberries on Ice Cream or Blanc Mange
Rita's Chocolate Cake with Fudge Custard Frosting
Coffee

Directions:

PORK BARBECUE ON A BUN

There are as many methods for this as there are modern housewives and roadside restaurants. But this is the basic principle:

Reheat pieces of roasted meat (this may be pork or chicken or veal or beef) in very little thin gravy—just enough to moisten the meat and keep it moist while it heats through. Place very generous serving on a preheated hamburg bun, cut in half. Cover with barbecue sauce, put on top and then lay to, men. Some of the barbecue stands reheat the meat in a combination sauce of barbecue ingredients and gravy. Do it either way but do be generous with the meat.

Barbecue Sauce: No. 1: Melt ½ cup butter or margarine and in it saute ½ cup chopped onion until tender but not all brown. Add 1 teaspoon each salt, sugar, thick bottle steak sauce, 2 tablespoons juice and ½ to ½ cup water. Simmer for 2 or 3 minutes. (This No. 1 sauce is very good as a basting for broiled chickens). No. 2 (hotter): Mix together ½ cup catsup, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce, ⅛ teaspoon chili powder, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Heat through.

COLE SLAW with extras

Cabbage should be shredded hair-thin for cole slaw as you know. What kind of dressing you use is your business, but interesting additions are: finely chopped parsley and chives and watercress or peppercress, chunks of canned pineapple, chopped salad olives, slivers of green pepper or canned imientto, celery seed. Does that give you a few ideas to work with next time you are hungry for slaw?

RITA'S CHOCOLATE CAKE WITH FUDGE CUSTARD FROSTING

Mix together in a small bowl 1 teaspoon baking soda and ½ cup good quality cocoa. Stir in 1 cup boiling water and let stand while you cream thoroughly ½ cup best quality shortening. Cream into the creamed shortening 2 cups brown sugar until very light. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla and the cocoa mixture, then stir in 1 cup sour milk or cream. (If you use cream of course the cake will be richer and tenderer.) Stir but do not sift the flour, then measure 2 cups and sift these with 2 teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt, and fold into mixture. Fold in the stiffly beaten left-over 2 egg whites. This is rather a large cake—it could be used for 3 8-inch layer pans. Butter pans and line with wax paper and butter again. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes for 1 large shallow cake, longer for 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan; layers take about 25 minutes.

FUDGE CUSTARD FROSTING

Two tablespoons cornstarch, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 2 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Mix in order given (except vanilla) in top of double boiler, stirring until thick. Cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Then beat until cool and stiff enough to spread.

Believe it or not—I am reluctant to be immodest—but I know you will be sorry if you do not clip this cake and frosting recipe.

Rush Point Club Welcomes Student Minister

HAVELOCK— (ENS) — The Devotional and Handicraft club of Rush Point community met at the home of Mrs. Archie Menzies.

Mrs. Cora Curtis gave the call to worship, followed by a hymn, with violin accompaniment by the Rev. R. G. Newman. Mrs. Reginald Barton read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Earl Cook offered prayer.

Mrs. Curtis conducted the business session. It was decided to hold a box social at the White Church, Rush Point, July 3, at 8.15 P.M., the proceeds to be used to purchase a piano for the church.

The quilt committee reported an autograph quilt was near completion. Lunch was served and a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Menzies for her hospitality. The National Anthem was sung.

—Ever remembered by son Newt, wife and family.

DOWNER—In loving memory of our dear grandfather, who passed away June 24, 1951.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair

Of the one who once sat here.

DOWNER—In loving memory of our father, George Downer, who passed away June 24, 1951.
Gone, dear father, gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face.
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by his daughter, Violet son Arthur and son-in-law Charles.

DOWNER — In loving memory of George T. Downer, who passed away June 24, 1951.
Oh, what would I give to clasp your hand;
Your dear, kind face to see,
Your loving smile, your welcome voice
That meant so much to me.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who have such can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence,
For the one we loved so well.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife, daughter Julia, son-in-law Tom and family.

DOWNER — In loving memory of George Downer, who passed away June 24, 1951.

STABLER—In loving memory of our dearest mother, Sarah, who passed away June 24, 1949.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering on she knew
Some gentle act of love she'd do,
No thought of self but of the other,
I know he said, well done, dear mother.
—Ever remembered by daughter Ethel and son-in-law Jim Hopcroft.

STABLER—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Sadie Stabler, who passed away four years ago, June 24, 1949.
What would we give her hand to clasp
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In heaven that happy life.
—Ever remembered by husband and daughters Gertie and Emma.

STABLER—In sad but loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away June 24, 1949.
The flowing stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of her who once sat there.
Her life was one long sacrifice,
Her heart was true and tender,
She toiled so hard for those she loved,
Then left us to remember.

2 WOMEN KILLED IN MILLBROOK CRASH

Canadian Girl Wins British Open

Marlene Stewart Scores Easy Victory In Classy Field

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Machine-like Marlene Stewart, Canada's golfing prodigy, today won the British women's amateur open with an easy victory over Ireland's Philomena Garvey.

"Little Miss Maple Leaf," as the gallery christened her, triumphed over a classy international field in her first big tournament outside North America.

Stroking cooly all the way, she won the 36-hole final over the Royal Porthcawl links seven up, with six holes to go. She was never in danger from the 14th hole. As in all her matches, the 19-year-old former Canadian Open champion from Fonthill, Ont., just kept on playing near-flawless golf, drawing ahead every time her Irish rival faltered.

FIRST BREAK

The first break came at the 14th, where Miss Garvey flubbed her tee shot into a bunker. At the halfway mark, Marlene was six strokes ahead and, though her lead was shaved once after lunch, she was never in real danger.

The result came as a surprise to the gallery, most of whom had never heard of Miss Stewart when the tournament started last Monday.

Miss Garvey, six times Irish champion since the war, comes from the fishing village of Baltray in County Louth. This was the second time she had been losing finalist in the British open. In 1946, at the age of 19, she was runner-up to Mrs. G. W. Hetherington, an English golfer.

Miss Stewart, stroking beautifully, finished the morning 18 holes six up on her Irish opponent. She played them in better than par figures for a card of 72.

In the afternoon the Fonthill miss saw her margin reduced when Miss Garvey won the 20th hole. But with a spectacular iron second and a five-yard putt, the Canadian resumed her six-hole lead with a birdie three at the 274-yard 21st hole. Another three at the 22nd made her seven up.

At the 27th hole the Canadian was still seven up after halving the four previous holes with her Irish opponent in par figures.

The five-foot-tall Marlene, who startled the Canadian golfing world in 1950 by becoming the youngest winner of both the Canadian Women's Closed and Open championships, halved the 28th, 29th and 30th with Miss Garvey to end the match with the last six holes unplayed.

The pert Canadian, six inches shorter than her Irish opponent, hit her stride on the last five holes of the first 18 and was never seriously threatened after that. She

Rhee Wants Showdown With Reds

S. Koreans Ready To Fight To Death President Declares

SEOUL —(AP)— President Syngman Rhee today demanded a "showdown" with the Communists now, even as he neared a showdown with his biggest ally, the United States.

Speaking from the capital and echoed by the cheers of 500,000 South Koreans, Rhee again demanded unification of North and South Korea by treaty or by guns and refused any truce without it.

However, as Rhee spoke the U.S. state department's Far East chief, Walter S. Robertson, prepared to leave Tokyo for Korea within hours, bearing a personal, urgent message from President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles.

Robertson is expected to meet Rhee Saturday.

The message presumably is intended to bring the 78-year-old president into line with a truce that was all but signed before Rhee stymied it—at least temporarily—by arbitrarily releasing 27,000 anti-Red Korean prisoners. Since then, armistice hopes have hung suspended between fears of what Rhee will do next and how the Reds will react.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Rhee's speech came on the third anniversary of the Korean war—a day that only a week ago was expected by many to be a Korean armistice day.

Rhee spoke defiantly from the battle-scarred capitol building in his aging, scratchy voice.

"Our hopes are almost gone," he said, referring to his own terms for truce.

"There must be a showdown with the Communists now.

"If we win it, as we surely will," said Rhee, Korea will be unified.

"If not, we will fight on to crush the enemy until every one of us dies."

He said South Korea should be given the freedom to "fight on, if by ourselves . . . to decide our own fate by our own hands."

Although Rhee's speech showed no hint of a change in his policy, both Rhee and Robertson earlier expressed hope their crucial face-to-face meeting could find a way to an armistice in this war-ravaged country.

Robertson told newspaper men: "I am still hopeful that I will be able to remove all misunderstandings and differences that stand in the way of peace."

3 Others Injured AS Car Strikes Large Maple Tree

Two women were killed and three other occupants of an out-of-control car were seriously injured late Wednesday afternoon when the vehicle careered down a steep hill in Millbrook and crashed into a large maple tree. Dead are Mrs. Morley Cane, 45, of Cobourg, driver of the car, and Mrs. Elizabeth Annie Davidson, 81, of Millbridge. In Civic Hospital are Mrs. William P. Platt, 67, of 467 Walton St., Cobourg, a fractured pelvis, cuts on her face and arms and possibly other internal injuries; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donald Platt, 23, same address, a fractured jaw and facial cuts and bruises; and Susan Platt, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Platt Jr., facial cuts and bruises, a scalp cut and a possible fractured skull.

Hospital officials today described the condition of the two women as serious but said neither was dangerously ill. Susan is reported to be improved today.

The 1950-model car, owned by Morley Cane, husband of one of the dead women, drove at a high speed down Parkway Drive in Millbrook and failed to make the sharp turn on to King Street. Instead, it skidded across King Street—the main street in the village—smashed through an iron-pipe guard rail and hit a maple tree 18 inches in diameter.

SHEARS OFF CAR TOP

A stout limb sheared the top of the car off, level with the hood, and tore open the vehicle like a tin can.

None of the occupants was thrown out of the car, which was wedged between the tree and the sidewalk. Had the car continued on it would have dropped over a bank 10 feet high, into a creek.

Both women in the front seat were killed instantly.

Mrs. Cane died from a fractured skull and other head injuries, and multiple fractures of her arms and legs. Mrs. Davidson also received a fractured skull and a crushed chest.

Coroner Dr. J. M. Wright of Millbrook said today that there would be no inquest.

It was the third fatal accident in the Millbrook district in the last three weeks. In that period there have been a fatal shooting and three motor accident fatalities.

What caused the Cane car to career down the hill out of control is still not known. Nearby residents could hear that the driver was in difficulties, apparently trying to get the car into gear.

Skid marks extended back for 50 feet and gouges in the asphalt showed where the rims had dug

McInnes Sure Pupil Going To Win

FONTHILL (CP)—Gordon McInness, the man who taught Marlene Stewart the fine points of golf, had it figured all along that the Fonthill miss would win the British women's open amateur championship at Porthcawl, Wales.

Advised of her 7 and 6 victory over Ireland's Philomena Garvey in the 36 final holes today, McInnes said in a telephone interview with The Canadian Press:

"It doesn't surprise me. I knew she was in there right from the start."

McInnes, pro at the Fonthill course where Marlene started as a caddy seven years ago, said he played a couple of rounds with the 19-year-old sensation before she left Canada for the tournament.

REALLY ON TOES

"I knew then that she was really hitting a ball and that she would be a tough one to beat by anybody. Her game was solid from her tee shots to approaches and putting.

The freckle-faced younster had the tag of Little Ben put on her for her determination and will to win on the course. The nickname, naturally, was picked up after the great Ben Hogan.

McInnes added:

"I don't know how good her game was in Porthcawl but it must have been terrific with that 7 and 6 margin.

"She hits a low ball off the tee—which is unusual for women—and is smack down the middle around 220 or 230 yards. All her shots are good. She never has to scramble and galleries don't mean a thing to her. She can hit as good a ball with one or two persons looking on or a couple of hundred standing by.

Coldwell Expects CCF To Be In Strategic Position

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The election pot, boiling vigorously for the last few days, simmered down slightly Wednesday night. Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was out of action until tonight. But Prime Minister St. Laurent kept up the Liberal assault on the Drew election manifesto.

And in Regina, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell indicated in an address that he expects his party to be in a "strategic" position after voting Aug. 10. The Liberals would lose a lot of seats and the CCF make substantial gains.

Mr. St. Laurent, on tour in agricultural western Ontario, aimed his blows at the Progressive Conservative promise of a national agricultural board to set "fair floor prices related to farm production costs."

He described the plank to a Wingham, Ont., audience as a vague promise. If it meant a board setting floor prices whether there was a market at that price, "how long do you really think that form of socialized agriculture would last. . . ?"

Improvise Dikes To Halt Strikes

THE PAS, Man. (CP)—Farmers and government workers worked side by side today throwing up improvised mud dikes to channel the flood-swollen Carrot and Saskatchewan rivers away from rich farm land in this northwestern Manitoba district.

Officials said the flood threat is serious.

Already the Saskatchewan and its tributary have breached the dikes in one place and have flooded hundreds of acres of land.

Provincial government officials said one boat has been sent into the district to stand by ready to evacuate farmers. A landing barge is also being sent and is expected to arrive in a few days.

Town Just Misses Being Blown To Bits

BIG ROCK, Ill. (AP)—A tractor-trailer loaded with tons of military high explosives and torpedo warheads and a cargo truck of merchandise collided Wednesday. No one was hurt.

But Albert H. Beck, justice of the peace, said: "It's just a miracle this whole town (population 300) wasn't blown to kingdom come. We still don't know how we escaped an explosion that would have wiped us right off the map."

A side of each truck was torn off in the impact. Explosives and gasoline from a pierced tank spilled onto busy U. S. Highway 30, which runs down the main street of this town about 40 miles southwest of Chicago.

Both drivers leaped from their cabs and dashed into a field—a safe distance from the fire and explosion they expected. A state policeman said both drivers cut the ignition of their trucks immediately. The gasoline did not burn.

Plane Crashes In Lake, Trio Rescued

SUTTON, Ont. (CP)—Mike Cox, 23, one of four Toronto youths who spent more than 14 hours in Lake Simcoe last summer after a boat collision, Wednesday was rescued from the same lake with two companions after a plane he was piloting crashed seven miles northeast of here.

Bill Graham and his brother, Jack, two of the three youths who were with Cox in last summer's accident, rescued Cox, Karen Ostrander, 18, and Ted Smith, 23.

Cox suffered a fractured pelvis and face cuts, Smith a fractured right leg and possible broken arm, and Miss Ostrander, cuts. All three were taken to Toronto General Hospital where they were reported in satisfactory condition.

GOES INTO SPIN

The small seaplane, owned by Central Airways, stalled and went into a spin and crashed about 200 yards offshore. The Grahams, who live in Toronto, were watching from a rowboat near their cottage. They rowed out to the plane and found Cox and his passengers clinging to the plane's pontoons.

Last Aug. 18, Cox, the Grahams and a fourth youth, Don Duggan, were plunged into Lake Simcoe near Orillia when two outboard motorboats crashed in the dark.

The four clung to boat cushions for 14 to 18 hours before being picked up separately the next day after a dramatic search which involved scores of boats and aircraft.

9,000 Reds Attack On Front

SEOUL (AP)—The Chinese Communists threw 9,000 men into bloody attacks tonight along the front on the third anniversary of the Korean war.

Two regiments, possibly 6,000 men, struck four South Korean positions west of Yonchon, which is some 40 miles north of Seoul.

Another 3,000 Chinese struck on the east central front where a Red drive last week pushed a bulge two miles deep in the Allied lines.

Two Presidents Easily Named

ROME (AP)—In the first test votes of Italy's new Parliament, Premier Alcide de Gasperi's centre government coalition easily elected its candidates today to the presidencies of both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies.

In the Chamber, from De Gasperi's own Christian Democrat party, Giovanni Gronchi, was chosen. He held the job in the last Parliament.

Says Alcoholics Never See Pink Elephants

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Alcoholics never see pink elephants, the field director of the Yale University centre of alcohol studies commented today.

Ralph M. Henderson, a former lawyer, said he had interviewed thousands of drinkers including a number of chronic cases. Not one, he held, had ever seen a pink elephant.

"Alcoholics in later stages of their disease are victims of severe visual and auditory hallucinations," he said. "Before I became a recovered alcoholic myself, a guy followed me around for a year tootin' a bugle. I used to get up early to throw a shoe at him—but I never could find him."

Abbott Surplus Now $24,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott estimated Wednesday the government had a 1952-53 budgetary surplus of $24,000,000.

This is one-half the $48,000,000 Mr. Abbott forecast in his budget speech Feb. 19, but almost triple the $9,000,000 he predicted at the start of the fiscal year. This is the government's seventh consecutive surplus.

The fiscal year ended March 31. Usually the final revenue and expenditure figures are not available for months later.

However, Mr. Abbott said in a statement that while final audited figures will not be available until about the end of July, it now is possible to give approximate figures.

"These figures show total budgetary revenues of $4,361,000,000, expenditures of $4,337,000,000 and a sur[illegible]

Jury Finds Christie Guilty

LONDON (CP)—John Christie, mild-mannered 55-year-old clerk who admitted strangling seven women and concealing their bodies at his dingy Notting-Hill flat, today was found guilty of murder and was sentenced to die on the gallows.

Christie was tried specifically only for murdering his 54-year-old wife, Ethel, but frankly admitted strangling six other younger women in outbursts of sexual hysteria over a period of 10 years.

A jury of nine men and three women rejected his plea of insanity and found him guilty. They took one hour and 21 minutes to reach their verdict.

Christie smiled at his counsel as he entered the dock to hear sentence. He merely compressed his lips when asked if he had anything to say. He said nothing.

Ontario Girl Weds Man Weighing 725 Lbs.

Charles "Tiny" Kinsey, 32, whose waist line measures 100 inches, married Beverly J. Hankinson, 24, a practical nurse of Bothwell, Ont., at nearby Galion.

Kinsey, a service station operator, wore a size 23 shirt. He stands five feet, 11 inches tall. His bride, who spent two years in the women's division of the RCAF, is four inches shorter.

Thousands Break Lines To Cheer Queen Elizabeth

GLASGOW (AP) — The Queen rode today into the heart of the Scottish nationalist country and got the wildest—and friendliest—welcome of her Coronation tour.

Thousands broke through the police lines cheering "We want to see the Queen" and the royal guard of honor got lost—many after their bearskins were knocked askew.

There were at least 50 casualties. Women and children were caught in the crush and the 77-degree heat. A number fainted. At least one guardsman collapsed, too.

The Queen was smiling and calm even as the crowd surged almost within reach of the royal car entering George Square in the centre of this industrial city.

Mounted police nosed their way through to clear a path. Police trying to hold back the throng were heckled: "Let the kiddies through to see the Queen."

The Queen wore a neat navy and white ensemble. Her swing-back duster coat of navy taffeta was cut with bracelet length, deeply cuffed wide sleeves. It swung to show the full-skirted matching dress underneath.

A small white straw hat, white handbag, gloves and sling-back court shoes provided the contrast. Her jewelry included a triple pearl necklace and a diamond brooch.

Fears that Scottish nationalists would stir up demonstrations during the Queen's visit have failed to materialize as the royal tour went into its third day.

Some Scots, while fond of the pretty young sovereign, object to her title as Elizabeth II—pointing out the first Elizabeth reigned only over England before the English and Scottish crowns were joined.

Teen-Agers Barred

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Immigration officials said today they are refusing scores of teen-age youths from Buffalo permission to enter Canada at this Niagara river town. Police said a recent "gang war" of youths at nearby Crystal Beach was responsible.

An immigration spokesman said immigration authorities can reject any person who might be considered undesirable to Canada. Many boys unaccompanied by parents were being rejected.

Reds Schedule New Berlin Workers Rally

By TOM REED

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's shaky Communist government today scheduled another workers' rally in East Berlin, apparently hopeful that careful organization and Soviet steel would prevent this one from developing into another open rebellion.

Party bosses called on workers of the city's three big eastern boroughs, Mitte, Friedrichshain and Kopenick, to show their support at a mass demonstration Friday for the regime's announced plans to make things better for the working class.

Approval for the gathering was granted by Soviet Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, commander of the Red army divisions which crushed the violent June 17 rebellion following a similar Communist - permitted demonstration.

As the shaken Communists wheedled the workers with one hand, they threatened with the other by continued declarations that ringleaders of the bloody uprisings through the east zone have been or will be severely punished.

29 EXECUTIONS

The known executions in the Communist-ruled area have now reached 29 and one life sentence was added to the toll today. Kurt Unbehauen of Gera was given this term at hard labor by a German court.

Arrests continued—400 in Dresden, 115 in Freital and 78 in Thardandt. The Reds began evacuating families of workers convicted of striking, the first ones at Cottbus near the Polish border.

Friday's planned rally was scheduled after a test run with 10,000 blue-shirted youth of the Communist FDJ Free German Youth). The youth gathering Wednesday gave Premier Otto Grotewohl's regime a badly - needed wealth of propaganda loyalty pledges.

EASE BAN PARTLY

The Red army has lifted its "no public assembly" orders only for such carefully planned rallies. Otherwise, martial law imposed on the Russian zone nine days ago still held. The east - west border through the four-power city remained sealed off to casual inter-zone travel, with only persons working on either side of the border allowed to cross.

Grotewohl and the other top men in his government and party, meanwhile, embarked on a tireless trek through the East zone, promising to reverse Communist policies.

In plant, mill, mine and bureau, government leaders have announced new credits for private industry, restoration of confiscated lands to once reviled "big farmers," reinstatement of former "enemies of the state" and even the opening of prison doors in some cases.

Speaking at Boehlen, near Leipzig, Wednesday night, Grotewohl repeated his confession that his government was to blame for the June 17 revolt because it had lost touch with the laboring people.

Security Slip Horrifies Army Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Somebody's security slip was showing today with publication of recent testimony about United States military secrets by army officials before a congressional committee.

Military secrets which popped into the open included information about:

1. A new weapons-carrying vehicle, nicknamed "the thing" but carrying the official designation "ontos," to be used variously, including as armount for a new "very high-powered" recoilless rifle and for a quadruple .50-calibre anti-aircraft weapon against low-flying planes.

2. A plan to provide "much longer range" for the 280-millimetre cannon, which now has a 20-mile accurate range and fires either atomic or conventional shells and a new shell, slightly smaller than the calibre of this giant cannon, expected to extend its range "by about 50 per cent."

NEW TANKS

3. "Extra light tanks," two of which are under test, of a type expected eventually to replace the 28-ton Walker bulldog tank.

4. A lightweight radar for battle-front use, apparently to help detect enemy attempts at infiltration of the front line, a technique much used by the Communists in the Korean war.

5. A long-range radar IFF (identification, friend or foe), which could mean the identification of aircraft long before they are within range of anti-aircraft guns or guided missiles.

6. A folding, portable bridge, to be carried on top of a tank as a shelter for the crew while being put in place under enemy fire.

7. A steam outboard motor for small boats, to be used for quiet crossing of rivers when the noise of gasoline outboard motors would warn the enemy.

OFFICIALS APPALLED

Army officials expressed amazement and appeared appalled when copies of the 1,667-page printed testimony release by the appropriations sub-committee of the House of Representatives reached the Pentagon (defence headquarters).

Among the pages was information on new weapons still stamped secret by the Pentagon. It was not immediately clear how the material had come to be left in that portion of testimony sent for public printing.

The U. S. Army remembers well the sharp criticism and stringent new regulations on safeguarding security issued a few weeks ago by Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

But the guardians of security appeared to have short memories in dealing with items in the testimony. On page 11 Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, testified that "more than 800 tanks" have been consumed in the Korean war. On page 1,323 another witness, asked if more tanks are not being ordered now because losses had been negligible, made his answer "off the record"—hence, it was not printed.

2-Cent Payment For Cheese Producers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association announced Wednesday an interim payment of two cents a pound on cheddar cheese produced in Ontario during April May and June, 1952.

It was not known immediately what proportion of the 1952 cheddar cheese inventory of 5,600,000 pounds will be affected by the payment.

Officials said the payment is part of a settlement announced at delivery time in 1952 under the association's co-operative marketing plan.

If it meant the government paying a high price to the farmer and selling at a lower—a subsidy—"you all know that we would have almost no hope at all of selling our farm products in the American market if they were subsidized by the government."

If the board was solely administrative, how did it differ from the present agricultural prices support board?, If it was to spend millions without control by Parliament, how did that jibe with the plank of restoring the supremacy of Parliament?

He promised farmers compensation from the federal treasury if the outbreak of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario is comparable to the damage caused producers in Saskatchewan from last year's outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

SUBSTANTIAL GAINS

Mr. Coldwell, whose party held 13 seats in the last House, said he expects substantial gains because "the CCF pioneered every piece of good social and economic legislation. I say it without fear of contradiction."

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives voted down CCF social and economic proposals, then took up the issues when they became popular.

Canada needed a national health insurance plan, national housing program, federal aid to education, lower taxes and better social security. Interest rates on housing should be dropped to two per cent from 5¼ and mortgage terms should extend to 30 years from 20.

He took a swing at Mr. Drew's 16-point manifesto, describing it as "the most calculated piece of deceit" since William Aberhart, first Social Credit premier of Alberta, promised the people $25 a month.

BID IN QUEBEC

Mr. Drew makes his first bid in Quebec for support with an address in French tonight in Quebec City. He shifted to the ancient capital Wednesday night from Ottawa. He moves to the West then, returning for tours of the Maritimes and Quebec province during July.

At Codette, Sask., John Diefenbaker, a senior Progressive Conservative member of Parliament, said the Liberal government set aside the wheat board and only brought it back in 1941 under pressure of war.

The board should have a strong farmer representation. It also should aim at better grain prices.

He said he favors eliminating the 10-per-cent sales tax and increasing income tax exemptions to $1,500 for single persons and $3,000 for married taxpayers.

At Pictou, N.S., Resources Minister Winters said the Progressive Conservatives could not reduce the federal budget $500,000,000 a year as promised in their election manifesto without cutting social benefits.

The word "physics" is of Greek origin, meaning "the knowledge of nature."

St. Paul's Holds Cobourg Picnic

The annual Sunday School picnic of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held Wednesday.

About 125 picnickers travelled by buses to Victoria Park, Cobourg. After the races had been run off, a lively ball game was held and prizes were distributed by the Rev. C. G. Boyd.

The committee in charge of arrangements was made up of William Cumming, Jim Anderson Jr., Lloyd Raper, Douglas Blue, Don Flett, Helen Huggins, Jack Steinkrauss, Max Kaye, and Jim Davidson. Tea was prepared by Mrs. McKeekin.

Winners in the races were: Don Buckley, Paul Barrie, Janet Fairbairn, Catherine Hewitt, Fred Davidson, Ronnie Kaye, Virginia Gledhill, Judy White, Ricky Fairbairn, Billy Lockington, Barbara Ann Clark, Ann Boyce, Leonard Minty, Peter Clark, Charmain Gledhill, Spencer Tucker, Jim Constable, Marion Weir, Terry Spencley, Clifton Shepherd, Ian Barrie, Eric Innes, Suzanne Grant, June Tucker, Reg Smith, Bill Watters, Allan Ross, Rex Jenkins, Joanne Whitton, Carol Grant, Don Barrie, Roger Mallory, Judith Parkes, Betty Gilbert.

A contest to see which lady could kick her shoe furthest was tied between Mrs. Gordon Minty and Mrs. Easton. A men's wheelbarrow race was won by the Rev. C. G. Boyd and Chris Gledhill.

There was a gift for the youngest child on the grounds, Master Brumwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brumwell. Special prizes also were presented to Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. Jim Bell, Mrs. Minty, Mrs. Hewitt, Mrs. Clarence Fairbairn and Mrs. Lloyd Raper. A special speed test was won by a close second.

Name Lynn Patrick NHL All-Star Coach

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins today announced today that Lynn Patrick has been named coach of the National Hockey League all-star team that will play the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, Oct. 3, in the seventh annual all-star game at Montreal.

Patrick, who was all-star coach in 1950, was named the second time because he piloted the Bruins to the Stanley Cup finals this past season.

Three Bruins will be on the all-star squad. Fleming Mackell was voted all-star centre, defenceman Bill Quackenbuch, named to the second team, moves up to the spot vacated by Doug Harvey who will be playing for his own club, the Canadiens, and goaler Jim Henry replaces Gerry McNeil who also will play for Canadiens.

Harry Freelove, 40, of Millbrook, said he heard the car coming south on Parkway Drive.

HEARD IT COMING

"I didn't see it at the time," said Mr. Freelove, "but I could hear a grinding sound as though the driver was trying to get it into gear. This happened a couple of times. Then I saw it going by. It must have been travelling 45 miles an hour."

"There was a terrific crash and I was told that the Maple tree was still shaking for more than a minute after the impact."

"I was driving up King St. hill and was about 200 feet from the intersection when I saw this car flash right on through and hit the tree," said Mr. Todd. "It was going at a fast speed—I don't know how fast, exactly. It shook the tree.

"When I got there the engine was smoking so I went back to the truck and got a wrench to disconnect the wiring. I thought the car was going to catch fire."

VILLAGERS HELP

Villagers helped the dead and injured out of the car. The two Mrs. Platts and Susan were given first aid by Dr. J. W. Wright of Millbrook and taken by Nisbett and MacPherson ambulances to Civic Hospital.

A small spaniel puppy, owned by Mrs. Cane, was hurt and was looked after by nearby residents.

The car ride started from Cobourg Wednesday afternoon as a pleasure trip.

Mrs. Davidson only made up her mind to go at the last minute. For the past week she had been visiting with her niece, Mrs. Ira Hie of Cobourg and was there when the car party arrived Wednesday afternoon.

She leaves a son Ernest in Oshawa; two daughters—Mrs. Joseph Adams of Belleville and Mrs. Joseph Lamb of Millbridge; and a nephew, Morley Cane.

Mrs. Cane leaves her husband; a son Garth, and a daughter, Mrs. Donald Platt who was injured. She was a Cobourg resident for many years.

Mrs. Milton Carr returned home on Sunday from London, England where she attended the Coronation and visited her son and daughter-in-law Lieutenant R. and Mrs. Carr. She came by plane to Montreal.

McInnes Sure

"This will give you an idea of the kind of a game she plays: if she makes a poor shot she never blows up but figures there are enough snots in her bag to come out on top"

Marlene, who now weighs about 108, was a skinny 65 pounds and just about five feet tall when McInnes plucked her out for attention from a group of caddies at the Niagara district course.

ALWAYS BOTHERING

"She was always bothering me, to help her in her game," McInnes said. "Whenever I turned around I practically fell over her.

"There were two other girls in that group but they didn't stick. She was spraying balls all over the fairway and I had a lot of work getting her to step up to the ball properly.

"She is the type of girl that will pick up things easily. But she forgot a lot of things, too. It took a lot of hard work on her part to remember all the important tips.

"However, after she was playing for a couple of years she really started to come along. Practising two or three hours a day after school was nothing. She'd bang out about 300 balls a day to improve her game."

Marlene is one of the few of millions of golfers who have scored a hole in one. She did it with a two iron on the 127-yard second hole at Fonthill four years ago. She developed so rapidly that she now uses an eight iron to hit the green.

SecondCanadian Wins Golf Title

TORONTO (CP)—Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., today became the second Canadian to win a national golf tournament on foreign soil.

When the 19-year-old Marlene won the British women's amateur open championship at Porthcawl old-time followers of the sport recalled the time that London's Charles Ross (Sandy) Somerville won the United States amateur title at Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17, 1932.

Sandy, chosen as Canada's greatest golfer of the half century in a Canadian Press poll of sports editors and sportscasters in 1950, exploded the myth that a Canadian couldn't win the American title. He did it with victory over Johnny Gooden of Omaha in the final. The game ended on the 35th green with Somerville two up and needing only a half to make history. The five-foot-nine Sandy got his half—and the title.

Welsh MP Sparks Uproar In House

LONDON (AP) — Shouts of "shame" greeted a demand in Parliament today that Britain close the United States embassy and consulates and order American troops to go home.

Stephen Davies, former Welsh coal miner, touched off an uproar in the House of Commons in raising the issue and brought denunciations from members of his own Labor party as well as Conservatives.

Davies described the execution of the Rosenbergs as "cold blooded murder."

Reinstate Policeman When Vacancy Occurs

TORONTO (CP)—The council for nearby Long Branch Wednesday night passed a motion re-instating Edmund Whittaker, former village police officer who was recently acquitted on a charge of armed robbery.

The motion said he should be re-instated "when a vacancy occurs or a need arises."

Whittaker was charged with holding up two Toronto township policemen. He was suspended shortly after his arrest last August and subsequently resigned.

Reeve Mrs. Marie Curtis sponsored the motion and said she had heard some of the evidence and was convinced Whittaker was innocent.

Canadian Girl

did those five holes in better than par figures to complete the first round in 72.

Up to the 13th it had been nip and tuck. Miss Stewart, wearing a grey skirt and cardigan with vivid peaked tartan beret, was one up at the ninth.

She won the 10th in a birdie three, halved the 11th, but failed to match Miss Garvey's approach and putting on the long uphill 12th.

The 13th was halved, chiefly due to Miss Garvey's brilliant chipping, but on the 14th the Irish girl bunkered her tee shot and thereafter was in constant trouble.

There were 64 entries in this tournament, including top-ranking golfers from New Zealand, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Belgium and the United States. Six other Canadians, entered along with Miss Stewart, were eliminated, after five had survived the first two rounds.

Though few recognized the teen-aged Canadian as a challenger, tales of her prowess quickly spread. Golfing writers marvelled at her driving power, considering she stands just a mite over five feet.

Marlene took it in stride, playing the same methodical, unflustered game. She was a conspicuous figure with her grey skirt, maple-leaf green sweater and Stewart tartan beret. Her horn-rimmed glasses and air of concentration gave her the look of an intent little schoolmarm.

Rhee Wants

And Rhee himself said Robertson's visit may open "new channels" for a solution to the armistice dispute.

The armistice talks themselves remained suspended until the Allies answer a violent Red protest over Rhee's release of the 27,000 PoWs. There was no indication when the next meeting would be called.

Meanwhile, Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander, said in Tokyo the Allies have achieved their avowed purpose by stopping Red aggression and pushing the Communists back across the 38th parallel—the jumpoff point of three years ago.

In an anniversary message to the UN command and its men of many nations, Clark said the ultimate goal remains:

"An honorable armistice, followed by the peaceful unification of Korea."

Rhee has said the Allies agreed to unify Korea and drive out the Reds, but top Allied statesmen disagree, holding to Clark's statement.

READY TO SAIL, TEDDY—Four years on the Great Lakes aboard the freighter City of Toronto has taught Teddy nothing in the way of navigation, but he has one distinction that crewmen are proud of. Teddy can smell out an ice cream parlor faster than any man on the ship, and he knows every one of them on the waterfront, from Montreal to Hamilton and back. Restaurants, grocery stores . . . anything that means something to eat . . . is Teddy's meat.

Court Quashes 2nd Conviction

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday quashed a conviction against Arthur McKay, 24, of Windsor, sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary for the attempted armed robbery of a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in Windsor last Nov. 12.

McKay is the second of three Windsor men convicted Feb. 13 by a jury under Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel to be freed on appeal. Earlier this month the Appeal Court quashed the conviction of Norman Quinlan, 42, for lack of sufficient evidence.

Mr. Justice LeBel said at the trial that Quinlan had been the "mastermind" of the gang that tied up 22 bank employees and then fled at the approach of two Brinks Express Company employees. A third man, Robert Woods, did not appeal his case and is serving 27 years for a series of armed robberies.

The appeal judges split on the McKay decision. Mr. Justice F.D. Hogg wrote a minority report. Messrs. Justices R. E. Laidlaw and J. K. Mackay ruled that the evidence against McKay was wholly circumstantial.

Drew Tax Plan Said Feasible

VICTORIA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party's financial critic in the last House of Commons said Wednesday night party leader George Drew's federal election pledge to cut taxes by $500,000,000 a year can be fulfilled.

J. M. Macdonnell, member of Parliament for Toronto-Greenwood, told a nominating convention in the new riding of Esquimalt-Saanich a $300,000,000 budgetary surplus collected since the end of the Second World War can be used for tax reduction.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, former member of Parliament for Nanaimo, was nominated to contest the new seat in the Aug. 10 election.

Gen. Pearkes, the Progressive Conservative's military critic in the House, said half of the savings pledged by Mr. Drew can be found in the defence department without threatening the fighting efficiency of the services.

He said that as a member of Parliament's defence expenditures committee, he saw innumerable instances of extravagance, waste and duplication in the defence department, all of which existed in other departments as well.

Irregularities still continue in the defence department, he said.

The children, five girls and two boys, range in age from five to 12 years.

Stewart Family Thrilled At Marlene's Great Golf Win

FONTHILL, (CP)—"How happy can a family be," said Harold Stewart, father of Canada's Marlene who won the British open amateur golf championship today.

He had just been told by The Canadian Press by telephone that the 19-year-old sensation from this Niagara district town had defeated Philomena Garvey of Ireland 7 and 6 in the 36-hole final at Porthcawl, Wales.

The father was working in his electrical appliance store when word was relayed to him. "That's tremendous news," he said. "I have had the jitters all morning. My wife, Mary, has been taking headache tablets all morning. Now she won't need them."

He added:

"We were never confident that Marlene would win the tournament but we figured she would always be right up there fighting. She's a determined girl, you know."

"Since this tournament started I've been as excited as a school kid. I didn't feel too much like work but golf is an expensive game and we need the money."

Marlene is a second-year arts student at Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla. She passed her first year with good marks and intends to complete the four-year course before she makes any definite golf plans.

"Marlene is very good at school and her golf is terrific but she wants to finish her education first," Mr. Stewart said.

Marlene's 14-year-old sister, Dolly, was in the kitchen above the store with her mother when Marlene's winning effort was given to her by her dad.

"Dolly doesn't know what to do, she's just hopping up and down with joy," the father added.

Mr. Stewart added:

"We haven't heard directly from Marlene since she left with the other members of the Ladies Union her later on today, you can be golfing stars. We will hear from sure of that."

Ontario Highways Belong To Gasoline-Tax Payers

When the Ontario Deputy Minister of Highways said in St. Thomas this week that "New roads are not being built to serve the land through which they pass" he was stating a new principle which should be recognized by everybody in Ontario. He was of course referring to express highways, not to subsidiary roads. The reason for building a four-lane highway is to allow people to move from one centre to another as speedily and safely as possible. They are not built to serve the people who live along them, own property by them, or expect to build houses, shops and gasoline pumps, for profit. The people who live along a highway do not pay for it. The highway users pay for it; and they are, in the main, neither suburban dwellers or farmers in the area, but townspeople, travelling between one centre and another.

* * *

Ontario highways are paid for by gasoline-tax payers and it is they who should be served by them. Mr. J. D. Millar, the Deputy Minister of Highways, said: "A modern express highway is a separate world from the land through which it passes, and backed up by Ontario legislation, passed by all parties, we are going to keep it such." We hope the Department of Highways will not be swayed by local pressures and politics from this resolve. We hope it has learned its lesson in and around Toronto. The Queen Elizabeth highway eastward from Toronto is robbed of its purpose and actually made dangerous, by the spread of houses and commerce along it for almost twenty miles. The Department does not allow this, but village property-owners and grasping councillors got around the regulations. This was possible because the Department built the Queen Elizabeth highway just outside Toronto through a couple of incorporated hamlets. Real estate, fronting on the highway, promptly rose in value, the hamlets' boundaries extended, and hundreds of commuters' houses, shops and gas stations sprang up. So the multi-million dollar highway was transformed into a cluttered village street.

* * *

The corollary of this lesson is that trunk highways should not be built through towns and villages. Wherever possible they should be made to by-pass them. In the past local Chambers of Commerce and Councils have fought any attempts by the Department of Highways to build around instead of into the town. They foresaw tourist and traffic business melting away from their main street. But now even local merchants are discovering the error of this. In Kingston, for instance, Princess Street is a bottleneck, and the heavy traffic prevents even local shoppers from getting easy access to the stores. Smaller places are finding that the highway which passes their front door is becoming a nuisance rather than a benefit.

* * *

Whatever local opinion is about the direction and use of a highway, the main principle should be remembered: that modern trunk highways are not and should not be built to serve the lands through which they pass, but to serve the people who pay the gasoline tax. For it is they, with the eleven cents they contribute to the Province's funds every time they buy a gallon of gasoline, who are paying for the new highways without creating a cent of provincial debt.

Massacre Of Prime Ministers

In a short while Sir Winston Churchill, President Eisenhower and a spectre will hold a conference in Bermuda. The spectre is the non-existent Prime Minister of France. It is hoped that France will have a government and Prime Minister by that time; perhaps before this note reaches our readers, a cabinet and man will have emerged. This is only a hope.

In the last month four Prime Ministers designate have been called to form a French government, and have been defeated. Three others have been called, but did not face the Assembly vote. It is an inglorious episode, a massacre of Prime Ministers. The fact is that in the present constitutional framework, France is ungovernable. This is not merely a domestic problem for Frenchmen to deal with; it concerns others outside French frontiers. The Bermuda conference focusses the external importance of the deadlock. Sir Winston, Mr. Eisenhower and a third person are to hold an important meeting to discuss Western policy in the face of a possible armistice in Korea and the new Communist East European policy of conciliation. Yet that third vital man is not even known. The conference is only a few days off. How can France be adequately represented by a person and his staff who are unprepared for the conference, supposing a Prime Minister is named and confirmed by that date? How can France be represented at all if there is no government? Yet France has an important place in the conference.

A result of the prolonged French political crisis may be to hasten reform of the post-war constitution, which has produced the spectacle of eighteen cabinets, some of which have lasted only a few hours, others were able to hold precariously to government for months. This instability—more, this incapacity to be governed—is so ridiculous, and the whole situation reduced to such absurdity, that not even the most determined Frenchman can maintain that the constitution is workable. No government has really been "in power", even though it was in office, since the war.

The chief troubles with the constitution are, first, the power of the Assembly and particularly of its splinter parties representing many clashing vested interests, is too great to allow a Cabinet to function. The Cabinet must be made more responsible for as well as to the Assembly. The second major fault is that the Assembly has a fixed tenure of office; elections take place every fifth year, not sooner and not later. This encourages irresponsibility and moreover hampers any efforts to govern firmly. In Canada, when the Government falls, there is a new election. In France, a hundred governments could fall and the Assembly would continue to live out its alloted span, and to do nothing. It is a bedevilling and belittling condition for a great power.

Much Fish

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics informed us this morning through a printed memorandum that thirty-five millions pounds (more precisely, 35,479,000) of frozen fish were in storage in Canada on June first. We do not know why the D.B.S. thought we should be informed of this, but it did, and, for no better reason than to get rid of the figure, we pass it on to our readers. They may even like to know that 33,000 pounds of this stock were frozen fresh fish and 2,479,000 pounds of it frozen smoked fish.

The figures should at least reassure our readers that if the strawberry crop fails, potato plants wither, the robins get all the cherries and the starlings all the peas, and if for some reason the Argentine gets all our beef, pork and poultry, nobody in Canada need starve for a few days. He can begin to eat his way through the 35½ millions pounds of fish in storage.

Let us not think that this is too much fish; it amounts to less than three pounds a Canadian head. In fact it is less than the quantity of fish in storage a year ago last June, by 142 thousand pounds.

Among the cod, haddock, salmon, sea herring, halibut, shad, smelts and soles in storage, one reads in the same memorandum that there were 316,000 pounds of bass, 149,000 pounds of lake trout, 38,000 pounds of blue pickerel, and 180,000 pounds of "pickerel (Yellow Pike)" in storage. Among all these cold fish is no mention of speckled trout or maskinonge; these, one must assume, are in open live storage in the streams and lakes of this Kawartha district, awaiting the tourist angler.

Industry Astride The Border

Here in this part of Ontario a company calling itself the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company seems like a far-flung international company, with one leg in distant Minnesota and another in close Ontario. This is a false impression, judging from a photograph of the company mills which the company ingeniously uses to cover the back of its business envelopes. The mills seem to be plumb on the international boundary, and to be operated from Fort Frances, Ontario, and International Falls, Minnesota, which are cheek by jowl with each other across the river.

It is not new to political cartography that a town may be partly in one country, partly in another. It happens often in Europe; it even happens in eastern Canada. But that an industry should in physical fact as well as in administration and financing be all of one piece in two countries is sufficiently an oddity to remind us that similarities between Canada and the U.S. are greater than their differences, and that Anglo-American industries are partners in the same bed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A survey is said to show that women are talking more slowly than they did a generation ago. And thus taking longer to get in that last word.

It is a misdemeanour in this province to put water in milk. To put water in whisky, of course, is a very different thing and the Government does it from the highest of motives. Strange how the law can discriminate between two kinds of cheating.

Rosenberg Case

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

ON THURSDAY and Friday of last week while the Russians were mercilessly imposing martial law in Berlin and Korean prisoners were escaping from their camps to jeopardise the impending armistice agreement there, attention here was riveted on nine quiet men in a quiet room.

These were the Justices of the United States Supreme Court called together for an emergency session to determine whether they should uphold the stay of execution granted on Wednesday by one of their members, Justice William Douglas, against the electrocution of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, who were convicted of passing atomic information to Russia during and after the last war.

* * *

THE QUESTION which they were considering is a technical one and does not involve the question of the Rosenbergs' guilt. It had been brought up at the last moment, not by the Rosenbergs' own defence lawyers, but by a new group of attorneys retained by a private citizen. It related to whether the Rosenbergs were rightly tried under an Espionage Act of 1917 whereby a judge can impose the death penalty on his own authority, or whether they should have been tried under the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 whereby the death penalty can be imposed only on the recommendation of the jury.

But the drama of this last-minute reconsideration emphasised the importance of the Rosenberg case, for what has been at stake is not only the Rosenbergs' own lives but the reputation of American justice and the good name of the United States itself as the most powerful champion of freedom and justice.

* * *

EVER SINCE the Rosenberg case first went on trial in New York in March, 1951, it has aroused strong passions. The Rosenbergs, husband and wife, were charged with passing information on the original atomic bomb project to the Russians as part of the same plot which involved Klaus Fuchs and Alan Nunn May in Britain. Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, David Greenglass, who was indicted at the same time, pleaded guilty and turned State's evidence. It was on the strength of his testimony that the Rosenbergs were convicted of espionage and sentenced to death under the Espionage Act of 1917.

* * *

DURING THE two years which have intervened, the Rosenberg case was kept constantly in the forefront of the public attention. In the minds of sensible people there has never been much doubt that the Rosenbergs were guilty of having passed atomic secrets to the Russians, although a number of distinguished scientists, including Dr. Harold Urey, who was closely associated with the original research for the atom bombs, have cast doubt on whether the Rosenbergs had the necessary scientific training to master the complicated processes they were convicted of acquiring and transmitting.

* * *

WHAT HAS troubled public opinion, in part, has been the imposition of the death penalty for an act committed when the Russians were the Allies of America and for which people convicted of similar crimes, committed after the end of the war, merely received prison sentences. There was also considerable disquiet at the long delays in the carrying out of the sentence, which have been required by the constant appeal to higher courts.

* * *

FOR THE Communists and fellow-travellers, both in the United States and in Europe, the Rosenbergs have presented a magnificent opportunity. They have sown the impression that the Rosenbergs were wrongfully convicted, which Greenglass's evidence directly contradicts. They have called it a "Dreyfus affair" and they have portrayed the trial as deliberate anti-Semitism, although both the trial judge and chief prosecutor were Jews. They have played on every nerve of sentimentality—always fairly near the surface in the United States—about the Rosenbergs' small children, their aged mother, and the fact that the date set for execution was their fourteenth wedding anniversary. They have managed to wrap up the Rosenberg case with McCarthysim to try to prove that the United States is going Fascist.

* * *

THE ROSENBERGS' defence, both legal and political, had been organised with great tenacity, and has linked Communist organisations with those non-Communists who feel genuinely troubled by the sentence given to the Rosenbergs. On purely political grounds, President Eisenhower might have been wiser to have granted clemency and commuted the sentence when he was appealed to shortly after he came to office. For the Rosenberg case has now been sufficiently worked up by those all over the world who are interested in diminishing the influence of the United States, to have excited the concern of such different people as the Pope, President Auriol of France and the President of the British Transport and General Workers Union, as well as moderate and immoderate opinions all over Europe.

IN VIEW of this sense of [illegible] alarm, it is worth pointing out two things. First, that the delays of the American legal system—it is two years this month since the Rosenbergs were first sentenced to death—are inherent in the system if the defence is sufficiently tenacious, because it grants such wide rights of appeal and because there are many more layers of courts in a country with a federal system than in a unitary country like Britain. The Rosenberg case was appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States five times including the last appeal. When the defence chooses to fight out to the death, it can delay the execution of justice for years. In the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, a famous case of the nineteen-twenties, when two radical Italian workmen in Boston were accused of murder, six years elapsed between their arrest and their final execution, because those who believed that they had been wrongfully accused—including Mr. Felix Frankfurter, then a Harvard Professor and now one of the Supreme Court Justices who considered the Rosenberg appeal—were prepared to fight the cause back and forth through any number of courts.

The second point is that the Rosenberg case has aroused so much interest, precisely because the death penalty is so rarely imposed in the United States, even for crimes against the security of the country. In the hundred and fifty years of its history, including six wars, only a handful of people have been executed for treason. And it is for this reason that in cases where the death penalty is imposed and carried out there is so much public soul-searching in America.

Letters To The Editor

MODERN ARCHITECTURE

Sir: What is there on earth—or in heaven—that inspires or drives artists, or architects to design buildings that resemble sheds, shacks, barns, or houses at back that lack, arch, curve or comfort?

Not from earth or nature—our earth is round, and in nature's flower, fruit or tree there is no square; nor in man himself or woman—the exception proves its rule—for he (and she) are copies of that of heaven, curves, arches and round, which surely proves such as sound.

If one cannot appreciate the natural—or if he be satisfied with—how can he attain the super and its collateral?

Give me a home, cathedral style, arched ceilings, colored windows, pillars; or gardened roofs and sunken garden of kitchen—herbs and pot marigold; forget the hut and barn, work and yarn, and learn the way back to Eden's charm.

"PANSY"

INEFFICIENCY AND THE DOG NUISANCE

Sir: In your paper of Thursday, June 18th I read "Plan to Check Dog Licenses". It said "The city has approved a plan whereby City Clerk Outram, on March 1st, sent notices to all dog owners that their license fees are due on that date."

Then if this notice is ignored, another notice would be sent. Then if that did not bring results, delinquents would be individually checked by police. After these three warnings there would be a summons.

When one owns a home he gets one tax bill and a deadline is set for payment.

When one buys a car he gets a license then and there.

When one buys or gets a pup or dog, he is a dog-owner then. If he is honest and a good citizen he will buy a tag which also serves as an identification if his dog is lost.

So why so many warnings, inefficiency and expense of time and postage to the taxpayer in rounding up dishonest dog owners?

Apparently there are only about 350 honest dog owners in all of Peterborough as only about that number tags have been bought to date! These people are usually the ones who care enough for their dog to give it proper care. The other 3,000 or so have dogs that are neighborhood nuisances, they feed from garbage cans, chase cars, spoil gardens, the children are allowed to maul and tease them and many hounds are tied in a corner all summer, then run until thin and with sore feet during deer-hunting season.

So far the police have had the revenue from the dog tags. Why not give each young policeman a list from the assessor's book of all dog owners and have a street or two per day fully checked to collect for untagged dogs, as a part of his duty.

In this way the city could be covered each year and the police would collect enough money to pay for their uniforms instead of asking for an allowance from the City Council.

There are forty-some policemen, I believe, and they have cars and motorcycles.

And why wait until next March? Start now! Several thousand dollars could be taken in this year. It can be done.

Yours truly,
"PRACTICAL CITIZEN"

DISAPPOINTED IN SUMMER THEATRE SEASON

Sir: I am devoted to the theatre. And theatre in its broadest sense, ranging from thick drama, soul-searching dimly-lit monologues and Emlyn Williams, to risque frivolities and pantomime. I have been isolated from the stage for several months, and was eagerly awaiting the arrival of The Peterborough Summer theatre, despite the threat of Noel Coward and the Winslow Boy; if the quality and elan of "Nina" is a foretaste of things to come, my moist little hands will certainly not swell the chorus of future applause.

A certain incredulity during the first ten minutes of last night's performance, at the sight of a gassy regurgitation of a 1932 Mayfair farce, was soon replaced by a conviction that things would go from worse to worse. Is it possible, that an actor of the obvious calibre of Mr. Edward Horton should associate himself with a piece of such elephantine humour? A doubtless unjust conclusion could easily be drawn, that it was but to make his own star shine brighter.

That such a delicate and piquant foil as sex, should be wielded with such indiscriminate abandon as in "Nina", is an insult to any serious audience, and almost sufficient provocation to completely abandon the subject. I allude to the interminable references to the gloves and to bed. The arch ponderousness, the unsubtle repetitions of the theme, (just in case someone missed the point) do more justice to a toilet muralist, than to a legitimate theatre outside Pigale. As for the rather vapid, but supposedly wicked telephone conversations, to and by the angelically boyish and quite unlecherous Mr. Mills, one could almost imagine that Parisian men had turned into the clean-cut Hollywood hero, those-who-much-prefer-Mom's-apple-pie-to-bad-women.

Dare one conclude from such an exhibition, that a Peterborough audience can only be drawn by such idle nonsense, or would perhaps its excellent forbear, "The Little Hut", prove too "difficult"? I certainly don't think so. Furthermore, it seems incredible, that Peterborough Theatre, instead of capitalising on its undoubted popularity, and putting on at least one new and even experimental play, should exhume for ten solid weeks the bones of tired and slightly mediocre veterans; it seems to me, that any summer theatre group has the inherent advantage of presenting at least one untried newcomer, not having stratospheric overhead expenses to meet that say Broadway or London does. And lest I be accused of intellectual snobbery, I would add that on the occasion that I saw Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning", at the Toronto Hart House Theater, it was packed to its delightful rafters.

A phrase spoken about soigne, but utterly un-Parisian Miss Linden occurs to me, which quite sums up "Nina";—" . . . Nina's love is as overwhelming as a steam-roller . . ." Pity that Adolphe qualified it.

Yours very sincerely,
RAOUL ENGEL

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat . . . But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil. (Heb. 5: 12, 14.)

* * *

Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection. . . . And this will we do, if God permit . . . .For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister. And we desire that every one of you shew the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end: that ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises. (Heb. 6: 1, 3, 10-12).

* * *

Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God. (Heb. 12: 1, 2.)

The Pharaohs Dug A Canal

A "Suez Canal" existed at the time of Ramesses II of Egypt (1301-1234 B.C.) and probably many centuries earlier, according to officials of the Royal Ontario Museum. Later kings who cleared and deepened it were Necho (609-594 B.C.), Darius I (522-485 B.C.) and Ptolemy II (285-247 B.C.). The northern terminus of this canal of the pharaohs was a point on the easternmost branch of the Nile about sixty miles from the mouth. Its southren terminus was close to modern Suez, at the northwestern tip of the Red Sea.

Although Mediterranean ships could reach it, the chief purpose of the ancient canal was to connect the Nile Valley and its great cities with the Red Sea, so that trading expeditions to the east coast of Africa could be undertaken without trans-shipment. Such an expedition is graphically described on the walls of Queen Hatshepsut's great temple at Thebes (about 1500 B.C.).

As might be expected, it was not until Egypt was firmly ruled by an empire centred outside the Nile Valley that a canal terminating directly on the Mediterranean Sea was proposed. The Persian caliph Harun al-Rashid (A.D. 786-809), of Arabian Night's fame, considered it, and decided against it on account of the danger of opening the Red Sea to his rivals, the Byzantine emperors. Napoleon ordered a survey for such a canal, but the modern canal was not begun until 1859, and owed its existence chiefly to the intervention of Western European countries.

Well! They Tried

(Sudbury Star)

A New York super-market slashed the price of butter by 24 cents a pound one day last week to prove that high government price supports have forced a big drop in butter consumption and that a free butter market would virtually double present sales.

We expect that the point was well and truly proved, but we are also quite pessimistic of the results in making a dent in the government's keep-the-farmers-happy armor.

As in Canada, the U.S. government has succeeded in dividing the people into two classes—those who enjoy the benefits of price support and those who bear the burden of price support.

EAST BERLIN THREATENS TO SHAKE 'PARADISE' —A Russian tank bears down on scattering rioters as East Berlin storms and rages in a bloody revolt against eight years of Red rule. Caught by surprise, the Russians decreed martial law after six hours of uncontrolled rioting which saw more than 100,000 citizens attack the Soviets with bare hands, clubs, brickbats and torches. Red tanks, truck-loads of soldiers and machine gunners, armored cars and East German police were called out.

Reform Guards Average 10 Months On Jobs In Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister for reform institutions, said Wednesday more than 1,600 guards have left provincial institutions during the last seven years, averaging about 10½ months each in service.

Some of the reasons are that men can get better pay elsewhere, not everyone enjoys the type of work and younger men do not take kindly to discipline, he told the Ontario Legislature's select committee studying reform institutions.

Salaries for guards in provincial institutions, he said, range from $1,940 to $2,340 and from $2,160 to $2,760. They work eight hours a day, 48 hours a week. "We are not keeping pace with industry in our salaries," Col. Basher said.

Earlier, Dr. C. S. Tennant, psychiatrist of the department of health and consultant to the attorney-general's department, said hardened criminals and psychopaths may be confined together, but they should be segregated from other prisoners. Segregation, however, was not the cure for mentally ill persons. Many were helped by association with others

Election Safeguards Make System Nearly Unbeatable

Safeguards against beating the election laws have been building up for many years, and the odd new barrier will be set up in the election, Aug. 10.

The existing system is regarded as virtually unbeatable, either by voters or by candidates and their supporters. The form of the ballot, and the way it is handled, are part of a scheme designed to block any form of manipulation.

The ballot, which comes in book form, is made up of three parts: A stub, a counterfoil and the ballot proper with the names of the candidates. Each ballot has to be initialled by the deputy returning officer in a poll.

VOTING PROCEDURE

When the elector comes in to vote, the DRO rips from the book and hands him he ballot with counterfoil attached. After the ballot is marked, the DRO, before dropping it into the box, checks his initial on the back of the sheet and makes sure the number on the counterfoil tallies with that on the stub.

The identifying counterfoil is torn off before the ballot goes into the box.

Since the last election, a new twist in ballot-handling has been put into effect by Parliament, aimed at cutting down the chance of a poll official taking a peek at how a particular person voted.

THE "WYLIE FOLD"

Ballots handed to the elector have had to be folded in a certain way by the DRO and refolded by the voter before being given back to be put in the box. William Wylie, Social Credit member of the Commons for Medicine Hat, convinced the House elections committee in 1951 thw the fold left a chance for a quick look at how an elector voted and proposed a new one.

There are other protections against misuse of the ballot.

In each constituency, the returning officer and deputy returning officer must be able to account after the election for all the ballots—how many were used, how many spoiled and how many left over.

The scrutineers—nominated by each party to protect its interests —watch the whole procedure. They can challenge any potential voter and make him prove his identity or take an oath that he is entitled to vote.

There is another discouragement against mispractice in the Elections Act. Fines up to $2,000, or two years in jail, are laid down for "corrupt election practices."

New Series Of Bonds Offered In October

OTTAWA (CP)—The finance department announced Wednesday that an eighth series of Canada savings bonds will be offered the public in October.

Payroll savings plan arrangements for bonds now are being used by approximately 2,950 firms across the country, representing 88 per cent of all establishments employing more than 100 persons. Sales of the seventh bond series as of June 15 totalled $372,000,000.

Peterborough Pats Win Junior Lacrosse Tilt Over St. Kitts By 18 To 1

Peterborough Pats turned in their best OLA junior "A" game so far this season last night in St. Catharines when they downed the classy St. Kitts' crew by an 18-1 score. The Pats, handled last evening by Lou Vitarelli, tried hard to give their ace goalie—Ray Hill—a shutout, but a penalty shot in the last minute and a quarter of play broke the egg. Dundas plays here Saturday night. The victory kept the strong Peterborough pack well up in the hunt for a playoff berth as the schedule grinds along. It was an important win inasmuch as it meant four points in the standing, and also was a triumph on the road. The team played solid lacrosse from the goal out in fashioning the decisive verdict.

FAST GAME

Play was generally speedy and not unduly rough, though there was some hard checking seen in every quarter. The Pats went in front 3-0 in the first quarter, had an 8-0 lead at the half, and were up 13-0 going into the final stanza. The homesters' lone tally came at 18:50 of the fourth quarter, a frame that saw the Pats keep possession of the ball most of the way with smart passing. Gary Smith received a cut for the only local casualty.

Bob Allen led the way in sniping for the victors with four goals and three assists in a starry effort, Bob Curtis and Willie Logan both clicked for three markers, and aided on two more, Frank Farley and Lionel Bloom had two goals each and an assist, while Jerry O'Reilly tallied once and helped on two more. Carl Brioux also lit the lamp once and aided on two. Ivan Thomas and Gary Smith each scored a goal, and Junior Daniels had an assist. Baldwin scored for the Saints.

Teams:

Pats—Hill, Brioux, O'Reilly, Bloom, Logan, Smith, Thomas, Farley, Allen, Curtis, Daniels, Chapman.

St. Catharines — Howe, Martin, Wilkinson, Cox, Baldwin, Allan, Lambert, Roberts, Winterbottom, Taylor, Hill, Conradi, Labatt, Nelson.

Referees—Morton and Cleverley.

Surrey Likes Oxford Attack

LONDON (Reuters)—Surrey, the champion cricket team whose batting has been sometimes erratic, showed a liking for Oxford University's attack Wednesday and declared at 322 for six.

Midlesex, the county cricket champion leaders, were put in to bat by Nottinghamshire on a pitch saturated by rain. But Middlesex waded into the Notts bowling and were able to declare at 318 for six.

Cambridge University scored 227 against Kent, then took three county wickets for only 21.

Surrey 322 for six declared, Oxford University 30 for three.

Gloucestershire 123, Warwickshire 110 for three.

Cambridge University 227, Kent 21 for three.

Hampshire 263 for nine, vs. Glamorgan.

Worcestershire 199, Leicestershire 22 for two.

Middlesex 318 for six declared, Nottinghamshore 15 for no wicket.

Northamptonshire 358 for nine declared, Yorkshire 8 for one.

3 Canadian Records Broken At Series

TORONTO (CP) — Three Canadian records were broken Wednesday night at the Toronto and district inter-club track championship series sponsored by the Central Lions Club.

Gwen Hobbins took two seconds off the women's open 60-yard hurdles mark to cover the distance in 8.15 seconds.

Up to 150% More Spark Plug Life!

Cars seldom retained their original pep prior to Shell's discovery of TCP! The natural by-products of fuel combustion accumulating on spark plugs and in combustion chambers caused spark plugs to misfire and the fuel mixture to pre-ignite—especially when accelerating, hill-climbing or touring the open highway.

TCP in Shell Premium Gasoline overcomes this power-wasting, fuel-wasting condition. It prevents these deposits from causing misfiring and pre-ignition. This results in an increase of up to 15% more power and 150% more spark plug life and greater gasoline mileage, too!

New and old engines benefit from this fast-acting gasoline additive . . . so get Shell Premium with TCP.

Argyel Grattan Gains Turf Record At Meet

PARKHILL, Ont. (CP)—Argyel Grattan, Dun Campbell's speedster from Ailsa Craig, established a track record Wednesday at the Parkhill Turf Club's harness racing meet, pacing the mile in 2.10 in the first heat of the free-for-all.

Smartly handled by her owner, the fleet son of Steinway Grattan led from the start. Argyel Grattan also won the second heat, in 2.11.

Omar Cunningham's Miss Corporal Grattan finished second in both heats.

Queen the Great, owned and driven by Ellis Dell of Becher, also was a double-heat winner, as was Sylvia Lee, Bill Gardiner's entry from Goderich.

Report Mimico Considers Disbanding

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mimico Mountaineers are reported considering disbanding their Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association club owing to the lack of senior-calibre players and fan interest.

While Chuck Rowan, secretary of the Association, says the league has no knowledge of a cessation of operations, it was rumored at Hamilton Wednesday night the club would disband after the Mountaineers took a 22-8 beating from Hamilton Tigers.

In the only other game of the night, the leading St. Catharines Athletics defeated Brampton Excelsiors 13-12. Skip Teal broke a 12-12 tie at 12:57 of the last period for the victory.

WELL IN LEAD

Hamilton led its game by quarter scores of 4-1, 11-3 and 14-7.

Doug Davidson paced the Tigers with four goals. Butch Guthro and Ron Parker netted three apiece. Bud Hodgson clicked for Mimico with two counters.

Derry Davies led for St. Catharines with three while Teal got two. Jack Sibbald picked up four goals for Brampton and Jack Bionda added two.

Nash Captures London Tourney

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jack Nash, London's "Mr. Golf" for the last few years, came back into his own Wednesday as he shot a 139 for 36 holes over the tough North London course to capture the London Hunt Club invitation golf tournament.

A veteran of tournament play, Nash shot a par 70 in the morning and came home in the dusk with a one-under 69.

Nick Weslock, the smoothie from Windsor Essex, had a 73 in the morning and then with a 72 for 145. Bruce Castator of Toronto Summerlea fired 72-73—145.

The tournament was the final qualifying round ahead of the Ontario amateur in the Willingdon Cup trials.

Don Riordan of Kitchener Rockway posted a final total of 147. He had a 77 going out and came home with a 70 to be the only player, other than Nash and Kesselring, to equal par.

Curve Lake Captures Win Over Norwood

Curve Lake pounded out a 19-0 fastball triumph over Norwood, last night at Quaker Park. Jacobs got a triple and two doubles, J. Taylor a triple and double, and Irons a three-bagger. Knott came through with a pair of doubles. S. Taylor allowed but five hits while he fanned nine in a neat showing. Teams:

Norwood: Labrash, c; Rusaw, lf; Payne, 3b; R. Garden, ss; Cole, 2b; Telford, 1b; Lockhead, 1b; Perry, cf; Cuthbertson, p Althouse, p; Fredericks, rf.

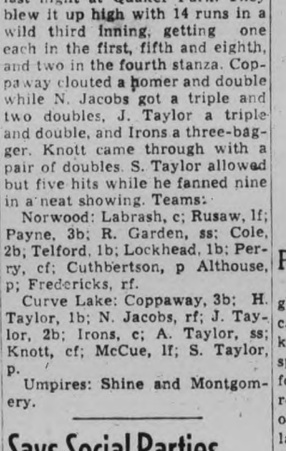
Umpires: Shine and Montgomery.



Says Social Parties Wreck Cricket Team

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The touring Australian cricket team, currently playing in England, is in bad shape because of too much social life and not enough concentration on the business at hand, the Daily Telegraph says today.

The Telegraph correspondent with the team is distressed because "tales of beer drinking bouts and terrific social parties are no longer things that can be hushed up."

Then he complains:

"Cricket to Australians, particularly the older members of the side, has taken second place to unnecessary social activities: . . . It's giving this touring side the worst reputation of any which ever has come to England."

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Unless some new agreement occurs within the next few months, the split between the CAHA and the pro hockey setup (headed by the NHL) may cause a lot of headaches on both sides. The pros claim that they're been paying too much money into amateur hockey and then having CAHA officials— without a dime invested—telling 'em how to run their business. The amateur officials retaliate by saying the NHL-ers have taken advantage of the previous agreement between the bodies to tell the CAHA how to run its business They add that they have some 60,000 players under their jurisdiction while the pros (NHL, AHL, Western and Quebec Leagues) control only about 3,000.

* * * * * *

The pros are threatening to cut down on sponsorship and at the same time take up any good amateur they wish at any time, while the CAHA threatens to refuse to allow the three-game pro tryout and to decline re-instatement of fellows going professional and then wanting to return to simon-pure ranks. However, we think both parties will be together ere autumn and iron out most of their differences. Why kill the goose laying those golden gate receipts? Neither the autocratic pros nor the hypocritical amateur officials are guiltless of odd goings-on in hockey circles for years. Yet they both need each other if hockey is to continue as the big winter sport.

Few Soft OLA Touches

It would be a mistake for the OLA senior Petes to take the Brampton Excelsiors too lightly here Friday, as a lot of upsets are occuring as the so-called weaker clubs strengthen up in late June. Jack Bionda and Co. could make it rough enough for the Thorpe team this game, and the latter have to head right for Orillia next night to tackle the disgruntled West Yorks of Toronto. The Yorks haven't been clicking just as well as expected lately, and they're due to erupt all over the place one of these warm evenings. There'll be blood on the lacrosse moon in the sweltering weeks ahead as they all scramble for playoff spots.

Five harness horse races, including a free-for-all, on tap Saturday twilight in Morrow Park, commencing at 5.30. The handbook system of wagering takes place in a booth part way down the main grandstand, with a board up showing odds. Every heat a race, two heats to each class— or 10 in all. There was a mightly enthusiastic crowd out last week and 'tis hoped these meets continue regularly through the summer. They will if the good horses are available. Hugh Stewart has promised to have some top pacers from Thorneliffe in the free-for-all this week. Race prizes total $1,000. Surplus money from these meets will go into improving the grounds and stables. D. A. McGillis expects to have a brand new PA system installed at his expense within two weeks.

Pats Pound The Saints

Lou Vitarelli led the local junior Pats into St. Kitts last gloaming for an OLA junior "A" four-point game, and the Pats came through with a smashing 18-1 victory over the Saints. That keeps 'em right up there in the thick of the scramble for playoff spots, and they promise to take Dundas here Saturday to make up for a couple of recent losses. The young lacrossers were really rolling and had a shutout for Goalie Hill till the last minute or so of play when a penalty shot ruined it. Bob Allen showed the lamp-lighting way, with Bob Curtis, Willie Logan, Lionel Bloom, Jerry O'Reilly, Carl Brioux and Frank Farley also prominent on the attack. It was a good team effort by a club which promises to make a real bid for Minto Cup play in '53.

Can't ever recall one school before taking all three titles in the boys' Public School Softball League. That's what Confederation did this week, winning senior, intermediate and junior crowns in decisive fashion. Arnold Olmstead's senior squad blanked Central 8-0 in the final, Lloyd Corbett's intermediates took Central 10-4, while Clair Crown's juniors defeated May's 10-7. Good games, mind you— despite the scores— and the runners-up deserve credit, too. But it was a really worthy softball effort by Confederation School, the three coaches and the championship players on the teams. Our congrats to them as the school season winds up.

Confed. Juniors Take Title In School Loop

Confederation took a 10-7 victory over May's School at King Edward diamond to capture the junior championship for the year of the Public School Softball League. They took the trophy from last year's champions in the final playoff.

The winners scored two runs in the first and third inning, wrapping it up with five in the fourth and adding an insurance run in the fifth. The losers tallied two in the first, four next time to bat and one more in the third. Pitcher Clark and thirdsacker G. Park were best for the losers. Bosak hit two homers with one aboard each time for the victors, and Scarlet went good in a relief hurling chore in the second, taking over from Houselander. It was a tight tilt with the issue in doubt to the last out.

Teams:

Confed.: Westwood, Doleman, MacLellan, Brook, Bosak, Scarlet, Houselander, H. Stevenson, P. Stevenson.

May's: G. Park, Neal, Bell, Clark, Johnston, J. Park, Armour, Grant, Hamilton.

Umpires: Wilson and Dawson.

Huge Stadium Gets Under Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's largest sports stadium was "officialy" started Wednesday with a single spadeful of earth dug in a colorful ceremony.

Percy Williams, a Canadian Olympic sport star of 1928, cut rich green sod of a former golf course to begin the 36,000-seat stadium being built for the 1954 British Empire games.

To cost $1,250,000, the stadium is 3¾ miles east of the downtown business district at Exhibition Park.

About 100 local athletes, swimmers, sprinters, cycle racers, fencers and others, dressed in regulation equipment, joined Williams to enthusiastically dig up a strip of sod.

It was the "official" ceremony, but in the background was the deep scar of ripped earth where giant construction machines started a month ago to convert a natural bowl site into the huge stadium.

Bell And Bill's Earn Wins At East City Bowl In Civic Softball Loop

Bell Telephone took a 9-1 Civic Softball League Victory over Seabrooke's Electric, while Bill's Place downed the Police 10-6 last evening at the East City Bowl before a rather slim crowd of fans. Foresters presently lead the league with three wins in as many starts while there is a three-way tie behind them of Seabrooke's, Bell and Bill's Place, each with three wins and one loss. Police are next with two and two, Post Office having won one of three games, as Fairviews and Busmen have each lost five. Two postponements will be picked up Friday: IOF vs. Seabrooke's and Police vs. IOF.

EARLY LEAD

Bell broke fast from the barrier with three runs in the first inning, adding two in the third and wrapping it up with a four-run outbreak in the seventh on some solid hitting. Guerin limited the losers to four hits, their run scoring in the third on a walk, out, miscue and bingle. Teams:

Seabrooke's: Galley, Russelle, Conroy, Harris, Humphries, Harrison, White, Montgomery, Brennan, Black.

Bill's Place got two tallies in the second inning, with four more scoring in the third, one in the fourth and three to win out in the seventh. The Police counted a brace of runs in the first chukker, three more in the third and a single tally in the sixth of a tidy tussle. Phillips pitched for the losers. The winners' lineup was not available for publication.

Top-Ranking Players Sweep Opposition

TORONTO (CP) — Top-ranking players continued to sweep aside the opposition Wednesday to enter the quarter-finals of the Toronto Cricket Club's 11th annual invitation tennis tournament.

Fred Kovaleski of Washington, second-seeded player and the favorite to win the tournament, defeated Toronto's Ken Trestrail 8-6, 6-0 in a fourth-round match.

Others entering the quarter-finals were Doug Markel, Los Angeles, Paul Willey, Vancouver, Ralph Tailby, Kitchener, Bob Bedard, Sherbrooke, Que., and Beau Summers, Toronto.

With a possible Davis Cup berth at stake, Toronto's Jim Bentley and Vancouver's Larry Barclay, ranked fifth Canadian, staged the day's hottest contest. Bentley won 1-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Chicago White Sox Clip Yanks With 8-4 Victory

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

After watching New York Yankees blow two in a row to the hurtling Chicago White Sox about the only conclusion you can come to is that somehow the players put on the wrong uniforms. Certainly the outfit that wore the big "NY" on their suits the last two days bears no resemblance to a world championship club. And the White Sox look every inch pennant contenders instead of third place talent. The Sox not only have gained a 6-4 season's edge over the Yankees. They've succeeded in making the New Yorkers beat themselves. In Tuesday night's 11-3 rout the Yanks committed four errors, three in a single inning.

It was faulty pitching Wednesday. Starter Jim McDonald found the plate only once in 13 pitches and was sent to the showers in the first inning with the bases loaded and nobody out.

CHICAGO CASHES IN

Chicago cashed all three of those runners, plus two more in the inning, and coasted to an 8-4 victory.

So the Sox have proved that even the mighty Yankees are only human.

Cleveland came out on top in a 31-hit slugfest at Boston Wednesday, whipping the Red Sox 13-9. St. Louis scored five runs in the last two innings to edge Washington 7-6 and Detroit won its third straight 6-3 over Philadelphia.

Milwaukee Braves lost their third in a row 10-1 to Pittsburgh, but maintained their three-game league lead over Brooklyn The Dodgers were beaten 7-4 by Cincinnati when Gus Bell homered with two on in the last of the ninth. Harry Perkowski of the Redlegs allowed only two singles and faced only 25 batters in 8 1-3 innings of sparkling relief pitching.

WHIP ST. LOUIS

New York whipped St. Louis 3-0 as Sal Maglie scattered eight hits and Philadelphia won its 10th game of the season from Chicago 8-2.

Jim Hegan, Dale Mitchell and Bob Avila each contributed three safeties to the 17-hit Cleveland attack. Mitchell drove in four runs as did Del Wilbur and Tom Umphlett of the Red Sox. Wilbur homered with two on in the seventh for Boston.

The Tigers jumped on Charlie Bishop for four runs in the first inning including a home run by Steve Souchock. Ned Garver went all the way for his sixth victory.

The slumping Braves managed only seven hits off pint sized rookie curve-baller Roy Face, who posted his third victory without a loss for Pittsburgh. The Pirates delivered a 15-hit attack against four Milwaukee pitchers.

The Phillies pounded Chicago pitching for a dozen hits, seven of them for extra bases while Karl Drews held the Cubs scoreless until the ninth.

Efficient Marlene Stewart Moves Into British Finals

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Marlene Stewart, the 19-year-old Canadian girl who "doesn't make mistakes," shot deadly efficient golf Wednesday to move into the finals of the British women's open amateur golf championship.

The little Fonthill, Ont., girl downed English and Scots opposition to advance to the 36-hole final today against Ireland's Philomena Garvey.

"She has a very good chance of winning," veteran Ada Mackenzie of Toronto said after Marlene reached the finals with a one-up victory over Jean Donald, Scots internationalist, at the Royal Porthcawl links.

"She played wonderful golf Wednesday—all-around golf," added Miss Mackenzie. "She just never lets her opponents get ahead. She doesn't make mistakes. She's got what it takes."

Miss Stewart had two birdies in the first five holes to take an advantage that never was less than one. She was out in 37, compared to 35 in her morning round where she defeated England's Elizabeth Price 6 and 4.

But, while she faltered with overputs on two greens, her recovery shots killed off any capitalizing opportunity by her opponent.

Miss Stewart disposed of Miss Price in the quarter-finals, losing only the fifth hole to the girl who recently had been acclaimed as Britain's woman golfer of the year.

Syracuse Edges Montreal In 5-4 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The leading home-run clouter of the International League whacked his 11th and 12th round-trippers of the season Friday night in an incompleted game between the Bisons and Baltimore Orioles. The game was halted after seven innings to allow the teams to catch trains with Buffalo ahead 11-7. Ken Chapman also homered for the Bisons and the three four-masters drove in seven runs.

Syracuse Chiefs edged the league leading Montreal Royals 5-4, cutting Montreal's lead over second-place Buffalo to three games. Art Dyck, big lefty of the Chiefs, won his second game in six starts, scattering eight hits before leaving the mound in the eighth inning at Montreal. Teammates John Douglas and Frank Verdi were bounced from the game in the fifth for arguing an umpire's decision.

LEAFS TRIUMPH

A walk to Bob Addis with the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 2-1 win over Springfield Cubs in the first game of a doubleheader, scheduled for seven innings. It took three hours to play and as a result, the second contest was played only to six innings so both teams could make train connections. The Leafs were leading 8-3.

Rochester Red Wings and Ottawa Athletics split a double bill at Ottawa, the A's winning the opener 4-1 and the Wings the nightcap 4-2.

Ottawa lost its top hitter, left-fielder Taft Wright, in the sixth inning of the second game. He was struck on the head by a ball and hospital officials said he suffered a fractured skull. He may be out for a month.

Confeds Down Central For Int. Crown

Confederation downed Central 10-4 at Quaker Park to take the intermediate Public School Softball League cup, held last year by Queen Mary. Confederation had ousted King George as Central erased King Edward in semi-finals. This was the third school softball trophy this season for Confederation, as they also annexed junior and senior crowns, the first time any school has accomplished this trick.

At the end of the fifth inning, Central led 3-2, but the winners came on for two in the sixth and six in a big seventh, mainly on walks, while Central got just one more in the seventh. After the unsteady first inning, Outwater pitched excellent ball for the champions, fanning seven.

Teams:

Confederation: Parry, Ruttan, Nichols, Outwater, Pulkinghorn, MacArthur, Montford, Kimball, Carl, Henwood, Weaver, Kinneburgh.

Central: Laing, Mann, Vilneff, Sorrie, Knox, Menzies, Foster, Rowe, Baker.

Umpires, H. Wilson and O. Anderson.

Senior Laurels To Confed. In School Loop

Confederation seniors blanked Central 8-0 to capture the championship in that series of the Public School Softball League, their third title in this loop this season, as they also won out in intermediate and junior finals.

They took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, added two next time to bat, got another in the fourth, three in the fifth and finished off with one in the seventh, Central being held scoreless throughout. However, it was an interesting game, as the losers frequently had men aboard and hit well, but couldn't clout in the right spots. Ferguson pitched steady ball for the champs to fan 10 and walk but two. McNaughton on the other slab fanned three and walked four. Confeds left 11 stranded and Central 10. Woods and Lustic pulled off nifty catches, while Ferguson had four for four at bat, and Rollins two in four tries. Confederation won the title last year. Ferguson did well considering he was recovering from an infected elbow.

Teams:

Confed.: Steele, Trotter, Brown, Anderson, Moffitt, Kimball, Woods, Ferguson, Warner, Quigge.

Central: Gray, Lustic, Tetlock, McNaughton, Armstrong, Robbins, Barclay, Aulbrook, Simpson, Dunford, Grills, Hayman, Dinsdale, Burns, Drury.

Aussie, U.S. Players Keep Iron Grip On Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Australian and American seeded players had an iron grip on Wimbledon Wednesday night with the only strong challenge coming from Jaroslav Drobny, the bespectacled, left-handed Czech exile seeded No. 4.

After three days' play in the all-England tennis championships the seeded players, with the exception of eight-ranked Enrique Morea of Argentina, have won their matches. Morea lost Wednesday to Ian Ayre, another hard-hitter from Australia 6-8, 6-4, 11-0, 6-2 in the second round of the men's singles.

Ken Rosewall, 18-year-old Australian seeded No. 1, dropped a set before eliminating Robert Abdesselam of France 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2.

Southpaw Mervyn Rose, seeded No. 3 and also from Australia, knocked out England's Norman Lewis 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Sixth-seeded Lewis Hoad, another Australian and one of the most promising youngsters to show in years, blasted Narenda Nath of India, 6-0, 6-4, 6-1.

Philadelphia's Vic Seixas and Wladyslaw Skonecki, a self-exiled Pole now of London, engaged in a slugging match. Seixas won 6-2, 6-2, 7-5.

Drobny had a tough assignment in beating Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Texas, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Rex Hartwig of Australia knocked off Geoff Paish, No. 2 British Davis Cupper, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Sixteen women's second-round singles matches brought that department to the round of 32. All four seeded players won. Shirley Fry, Akron, No. 3, Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, Alameda, Calif., No. 4, Britain's Angela Mortimer, No. 5, and Mrs. Nelly Adamson, France No. 8 came through safely.

CANADIANA BEATEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Grecian Queen Wednesday overhauled Canadiana in the stretch to win the 58th running of the Gazelle, a $25,000-added stake at 1 1-16 miles at Aqueduct race track.

The handsome dark bay daughter of Heliopolis Qubania, ridden by Eric Guerin who has never lost a race on Grecian Queen, overtook the front-flying Canadiana, outstanding three-year-old filly from Canada, to win by 1½ lengths in the good time of 1:45 4-5. Another 1¾ lengths back of E. P. Taylor's invader from Toronto came Belair Stud's Sabette, who took the show end of the purse.

Greentree Stable's How's Tricks, the 6-5 favorite, never had a chance. She was being handled by an assistant starter when the gate flew open and in a twinkling she was last in the field of 10. Ted Atkinson moved her up to fifth place at the finish.

Canadiana, ridden by Dave Gorman, sprang into a six-length lead around the clubhouse turn and had opened up eight lengths turning for home before Grecian Queen made her break.

BREAKS TRACK RECORD

TORONTO (CP) — Collisteo, a two-year-old brown colt owned by Peter Burton and Walter Fitzgerald of Hamilton made the run of the season Wednesday when he swooshed through the stretch to win the $5,000 Victoria Stakes in track record time. In racing the five furlongs in 58 3-5, Collisteo clipped one-fifth of a second from the mark established by Windfields June 2, 1945. Sgt. Vince was second, five lengths back, and Sweet Infinity was third, another half length back.

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP)—Bantam, Ben Hogan Wednesday took one look at the tough Carnoustie golf course where the British open will be played July 6, then went out on it and shot a 34-35—69. The little American master of the links was surprised when told that 70 had never been broken in championship play over the 7,000-yard course.

Shoemaker Out Rewrite Records

INGLEWOOD, Calif., (AP)—Willie Shoemaker, riding 13 winners in the last three days of racing at Hollywood Park, is out to rewrite some of the turf's records.

As of today, his victories for 1953 stand at 210, ahead of the average needed to become the first jockey aboard 400 winners in a year. And it's a virtual cinch the silent Shoe will become the first to ride 300 winners a year three times.

Until last year when Tony DeSpirito rode 390, Wee Willie shared the American record at 388 with Joe Culmone. Both did it in 1950. Culmone is seldom heard of, but Willie had 315 winners last year.

Through 28 racing days of the current Hollywood Park meeting, the flyweight Texan, born in El Paso, has been clipping along at a two-a-day average with 57 winners. At this rate he stands a solid chance of bettering Johnny Longden's 105 winners for 50 days of racing at Hollywood Park in 1948. Longden served his track apprenticeship on Western Canada tracks.

Shoemaker brought in four winners Wednesday.

Moore Remains Light Heavyweight Champion

By BOB MYERS

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Archie Moore of California may be a relic of ring warfare, but he is still the light heavyweight champion of the world.

The 36-year-old warrior from San Diego turned back the threat of Joey Maxim of Cleveland Wednesday night, whacking out a unanimous decision in a mauling, bruising 15-round match—Utah's first title show.

Moore, who lifted the crown from Maxim in St. Louis last December after campaigning for 16 years, weighed 173¾ and his 31-year-old threat scaled 175.

Referee Ray Miller of New York gave it to Moore by seven rounds to six for Maxim and two even. Judge Nat Fleischer of New York scored it 8-7 with Moore on top, and Ken Shulsen, Salt Lake City, gave Moore eight, rounds, Maxim five and two even.

PLANS INDEFINITE

Moore's immediate plans are indefinite. But his manager, Charley Johnston, said he had tentative offers for Archie to appear in South America, where he won five fights in 1951, and in San Diego.

Maxim left the ring with a couple of eye cuts but neither was serious nor had any effect on the outcome.

Maxim seemed to have landed the two hardest punches, both right hand blows for which he is not famed. But he was unable to hold off the swarming Moore.

"Joey was much stronger than the last time," Moore said later. "He really was in there trying all the time."

WASN'T HURT

Said Joey: "I wasn't hurt at all. He caught me with a whale of a left. Not the kind that puts you away but makes your head rattle."

Moore admitted he found it hard to hit Maxim twice in succession. "He's an expert boxer," he added.

There were no knockdowns and aside from Joey's slight cuts and an occasional mouth bleed by Moore, no one got hurt.

In the 10-rounder that followed Rex Layne of Salt Lake City stopped veteran Billy McClure of Los Angeles in the fourth round. Layne, who weighed 199, had McClure, 200, down repeatedly during the brief encounter.

Some Europeans See New Age Of Prosperity And Adventure

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

It is not only in Britain that one finds a dream of a new Elizabethan Age.

One finds it in continental countries, too, even if they have not yet found a name for it.

For instance, here is a quote from W. H. van Leeuwen, Netherlands delegate to the May congress in Vienna of the International Chamber of Commerce:

"There will have to be a period of industrial re-orientation in an European atmosphere—a period which will call for no less initiative and energy on the part of industrialists than was required of our seamen and traders in the period of colonizing expansion in which they laid the foundation for greater economic prosperity." That quote might be considered carefully by North Americans, enthroned in their present prosperity while other peoples, perforce, pay them an economic obeisance.

WILL BE CHANGE

For, if one judges aright, the proud old countries of Europe will not indefinitely play a lesser part to our lush civilization.

Beaten down by the destruction of wars, they have had to accept aid from this side of the Atlantic—but don't let us kid ourselves that they like it.

The United States, with its characteristic view that good is good and bad is bad, with nothing in between, may find both the economic and political views of Europe difficult to understand.

Russia and China, to the United States, may be simply outlaws. Europe will go along with that view so long as there is an immediate threat.

After that, however, they see Russia and China as countries occupying the same land mass and with whom, sooner or later, they will have to get along. With their greater sense of timelessness, they figure that sooner or later they will trade with those countries, and, not being a relatively self-contained economic unit like the United States, the sooner the better.

NO SOCIAL CONSCIOUSNESS

In their approach, European countries face one handicap which they won't likely admit. They have not the social consciousness of North America.

True, in this observer's opinion, North American mass production and the extension of luxury living to masses of people are an outgrowth of the industrial revolution in Britain, but there has been an important difference in application:

Britain, in her hey-day, grew rich by trading with all the world. She did not need to create a home market because she had a world market.

The United States—and Canada now is doing the same—grew rich by creating a home market—grew rich, in effect, by Americans making as many things as they could and exchanging them with one another (through the medium of a wider supply of money).

The result: Britain built an economy where every man might own a bicycle; the United States an economy where every man has a chance to own an automobile. Some Europeans appreciate the difference. To quote again from Mr. van Leeuwen:

REDISCOVERED U.S.

"Columbus discovered America in the 1490s. But in and after the 1940s, thousands of Europeans rediscovered the United States. Industrialists, technicians and specialists taking part in productivity teams have been able to observe with their own often-astonished but also admiring eyes, the results in the United States of the high level of productivity."

Indicating that many Europeans appreciate some of the things which have to be done to bring North American material standards to Europe, is a quote from Manfred Mautner-Markhof, president of the industrial section, Austrian Federal Chamber of Commerce:

"Fifty years ago the idea of political integration of Europe would have been considered a dream of enthusiasts and 30 years ago it was still an ideal of the future of only a small number of statesmen and scientists. Now, however, it has reached the stage of realization. Now there is no longer the 'if', but the 'how.'"

We in North America have perhaps become accustomed to think that the vision of a new world has come to this side of the Atlantic.

There are stirrings in Europe, however, which make it possible that, in co-operation with Asia, the world may find a new youth in its greatest land mass, where it found its beginnings.

Bruce Lywood, 21, of 193 Robinson St., fell when a two-by-four used for a foothold came free at one end. The accident happened about 8.30 a.m.

Lywood slid in a sitting position down 25 feet of roof, using his hands in a futile effort to stop his slide. Then he fell 25 feet to a flat roof below, landing on his feet.

LOWERED TO LAWN

Fellow workmen lowered him to the rear lawn of the church in an aluminum deck chair. It was a painful lowering, since it was almost impossible for Lywood to bend his left leg.

Lywood's fellow workmen were critical of the time it took for a nearby ambulance to reach the church. Half an hour passed before the ambulance arrived.

One worker was critical, too, of the lack of a proper stretcher to lower Lywood from the roof. He said that a stretcher equipped with straps could have been used to lower the injured man with less pain than he suffered in the light deck chair.

Gordon Lorenz, 544 Donegal St., said he saw Lywood slide down the roof, then fall to the flat roof at the northwest corner of the church.

"It was just as though I was falling with him," Lorenz said. "I had an accident once that didn't hurt me so badly, and I remembered every bit of it."

WORKING NEARBY

Lorenz, who had been working near Lywood, slid down the roof to the point where a ladder rested against the eave.

"I never went down a ladder so fast in my life," he said. "I was trying to figure out some way to break Bruce's fall, but I was too late." Lorenz said he was starting down the ladder when Lywood reached the eave.

Lorenz said the injured man scraped most of the skin off the palms of both hands in his effort to brake himself.

Lywood, married with one daughter, has been working for the roofing company—Trent Valley Roofing—for the past two years.

Out of Mothballs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy is taking the light aircraft carrier Belleau Wood out of "Mothballs" for possible transfer to France, the defence department said Wednesday. A spokesman said France has requested the loan of a second small carrier. A sister ship, the Langley, already has been loaned to the French and renamed the Lafayette.

Quick Verdict

NEW YORK (AP)—A jury filed out of the courtroom Wednesday to deliberate a case and was back announcing its verdict just 22 seconds later. It freed Fred Tyler, 46, a Negro bowling alley pinboy and junk dealer's helper, of a charge of illegally possessing a knife. And, having noted the defendant's torn shirt and threadbare jacket and trousers, the jury handed him $11. Tyler, in tears, thanked the jurors.

Weary Escaped Prisoners Just Want Farms Back

By ROBERT GIBSON

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Four tattered, weary North Koreans who escaped Thursday from an Allied prison camp said Wednesday they don't want to fight anyone. They just want to go back to their farms.

They have not seen their families since 1950 when war swept them from their quiet rice fields. They don't know whether their wives and children are alive.

But as they sat huddled in a cloakroom behind the chapel of a ramshackle Christian church here their leader spoke for all when he said:

"We do not want to fight the Communists any more than we wanted to fight South Koreans. We do not like to fight.

JUST WANTS FARM

"I want a farm. I want my family. I do not want prison again."

The leader is a man of 30 with deep, tired eyes and a shock of thick hair. His companions are young.

"Now I look for just a place to go," the leader said, "my friends the same thing. The RoK army has a place for us. That is where we will go. There is no other place."

He said his membership in an anti-Communist prison camp club would mean his death in North Korea. He is afraid that a South Korean Communist agent will kill him regardless of where he goes.

Farmers Promised Hog Cholera Aid

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday night he doubts that "many hard-headed farmers are going to prefer vague promises of national agricultural boards" to the present government.

He made the statement in an election campaign speech that criticized the agricultural "fair price" point in the Progressive Conservative platform.

It was the prime minister's first major speech on agricultural matters and came at the end of a day in which he toured the rural ridings of Wellington-Huron and Huron by automobile.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke to an audience of 600 in this town's floodlit ball park. He started the third day of his campaign for the Aug. 10 election in Goderich, speaking in a park to school children who received a half-holiday and to a Liberal luncheon meeting.

Those addresses were the first of nine speeches or impromptu talks to roadside groups during the day. Besides his Goderich and Wingham speeches, he spoke to [illegible] Londesboro, Blyth, Belgrave, Harriston and to another in Hullett township.

COMPENSATION PROBLEM

He is scheduled to appear at Chesley, Allenford, Southampton and Owen Sound.

In a prepared address at Wingham to an audience that included many Wellington-Huron farmers, Mr. St. Laurent dealt with the problem of compensation for farmers who have suffered from the outbreak of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario.

"The prime minister said the [illegible] inet is scheduled to discuss the question July 9. He gave no details, but departing from his prepared text—the only one he used for any of his speeches Wednesday—he said:

"If the damage caused to hog producers in this area is comparable to that of the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in Saskatchewan, you may be sure the farmers will get the same measure of fair dealing as the farmers of Saskatchewan."

Mr. St. Laurent, referring to the Progressive Conservative pledge to set up a farm board to establish fair floor prices in relation to farm production costs, said he wondered what the opposition meant by this.

"Do they mean that a Conservative government would appoint a board to set floor prices and then make the taxpayers pay those prices regardless of whether there was any market, at such prices, for what was produced?

HOW LONG LAST

"If so, how long do you really think that form of socialized agriculture would last, once we began to accumulate large unsaleable stocks of farm products?

"Or is it supposed to mean that the government would pay a high price to the farmer and sell at a lower price with the taxpayers footing the bill?

"That may be necessary in wartime, but we have to recognize that it would be a straight subsidy and I believe you all know that we would have almost no hope at all of selling our farm products in the American market if they were subsidized by the government.

"It would be interesting to get the Conservatives to explain how they would recognize this promise to hand over millions and millions of dollars of the taxpayers money to be spent by a national agricultural board without any control by Parliament, with their promise to restore the supremacy of Parliament and to return control of the nation's business to the elected representatives of the people.

WHAT DIFFERENCE?

"Or is this national agricultural board merely to be an administrative body and if so how does it differ from the agricultural prices support board established as a result of Liberal legislation in 1944."

The Liberals, the prime minister added, had used that legislation effectively, but floor prices were a protection against calamity and disaster, and it was external trade that was basically vital to Canada's farmers.

He said he doubted if farmers would show preference for the Progressive Conservatives' "undisclosed plans" for breaking dollar sterling barriers to stimulate trade.

OPENS CAMPAIGN — Prime Minister St. Laurent opens the federal election campaign with a key-note speech at Windsor, Ont. Mr. St. Laurent appealed to Canada's voters on the record of his Liberal government.

Broke Crockery, Fined

TORONTO (CP)—Nancy Beacroft, 26, admitted in court Wednesday that she broke four cups and four sugar bowls over a man's head in a downtown restaurant. "I was insulted," she said. She was fined $11 or four days for malicious damage.

Voters Reject Bar

ST. WILLIAMS (CP)—Voters in South Walsingham township Wednesday rejected proposals to establish a dining lounge and cocktail bar in the township. Both proposals, which needed 60 per cent of the total vote for passage were defeated decisively.

Harvest Hands

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A group of 21 young Cape Breton men left by train for farm work in Ontario and a total of 200 is expected to go in the movement of farm help. Last year about 300 went from Cape Breton to Ontario, some staying to work in industrial areas there.

Veterinarians urge... variety for your dog

Feeding your dog for good health and normal growth is easy, veterinary authorities agree, when you remember two important facts: (1) Like humans, dogs are individuals too, and have their likes and dislikes where food is concerned. (2) A balanced diet is just as vital as nutritive food. Both are reasons why "vets" advise you to feed a variety of nourishing food to keep your dog happy, healthy and eating well. The complete "family" of famous Master Dog Foods makes variety easy and economical. For instance here's a daily diet one leading expert recommends:

The Main Meal
—should be composed of either a 50-50 mixture of Master Canned Dog Food and K-9 Meal, or a mixture comprising 25% Master Horse Meat and Gravy and 75% K-9 Meal or Master Kibble.

The Secondary Meal
—give your dog Master Kennel Kibble mixed with a lesser amount of Master Canned Dog Food. This meal is fed at bed time.

The "treat"
—for those little tidbits all dogs enjoy so much, keep Master Shapes or Mixed O-B's handy.

Meanwhile, East Berlin and other Soviet-held German cities are going through the throes of general strikes and uprisings.

Prime Minister St. Laurent Enjoys Campaigning

By JOHN LEBLANC

ABOARD ST. LAURENT TRAIN (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says he "gets a bang" out of election campaigning.

"Stimulating" is the way the 71-year-old Liberal leader describes it at the end of the first three days of his trans-Canada vote catching tour.

"I'm enjoying it," he said in an interview Wednesday night at Wingham, Ont., near the end of a crowded day in which he made nine speeches or off-the-cuff talks at spots ranging from the pitcher's mound of a ball diamond to a railway station baggage truck.

Most of these were talks to little gatherings along the route of motor travel through rural Huron and Wellington-Huron ridings. The prime minister would get out of his car, speak to anywhere from a handful to 150 or so people and shake a couple of dozen hands—mostly young ones—before moving on.

Most of the prime minister's hearers in the smaller roadside gatherings have been youngsters of school age and under, among whom he seemed to relax as he talked in two-syllable language about such things as the Queen, the Coronation, the need for national defence and other general oatters.

Almost invariably, he had admonished them that their part in helping out is to pray for peace.

The kids, either standing around or sitting on the grass at various points, waved flags, licked ice cream cones and cheered occasionally—loudest when Mr. St. Laurent proclaimed a half-holiday from school.

Remember When—

Maxie Rosenbloom became undisputed world's light-heavyweight champion 23 years ago tonight by outpointing Jimmy Slattery in a 15-rounder at Buffalo. The title had been thrown open by the resignation of undefeated champion Tom Loughran in 1929, and Slattery claimed the title by a win over Lou Scozza. Rosenbloom's victory over Slattery put him on top.

Swimmers Entertain 300 With Varied Water Routines

Peterborough's internationally known Ornamental Swimming Club presented the first of their annual two-night home city performances Wednesday night at the Lion's Club pool in Riverside Park.

Approximately 300 attended this two-and one-half-hour show, Stars in Waterland, which included solo, duo and group routines of club members under the direction of club coach, Mrs. Pansy Forbes.

The show was officially opened by Wilf Logan, chairman of the Peterborough Recreation Commission.

"On behalf of the Recreation Commission I would like to commend the club, which under the supervision of Mrs. Forbes has become one of the leading groups of its kind on the continent," he said. "They have become famous internationally as well as nationally."

DIVING CHAMPION

The guest star of the evening was Miss Evelyn Buchanan of Toronto, a Canadian diving champion, who is an honorary member of the club. Miss Buchanan received enthusiastic applause for a top form diving exhibition.

A comedy team, Stan McBride and Cliff McInroy, were also guest performers. Their antics on the diving board and in the pool were preceded by a spectacular entrance in a jeep exploding with firecrackers.

Another comedy feature of the evening was a solo performance —a hillbilly synchronized routine —by an unknown swimming star.

Isobel Crary of the club presented a solo performance, Mermaid Waltz. Jean Russelle also soloed in a clever land pantomime.

Duo numbers were presented by Martha Kennedy and Janice Crary (It Takes Two To Tango); Shirley Moldaver and Norma Douglas (Duet Vendetta) and Elaine Humphries and Betty Welch (Skipping Along).

YOUNGER SWIMMERS

The program came to a climatic finale starring all the members of the club in a colorful synchronized routine to, Glowworm, and, Stardust.

The announcer for the evening was Basil Phelan assisted by Gordon Minty.

The second performance will be held tonight. In the event of rain it will be postponed until Friday night.

CCF Pioneered Social Laws Coldwell Says

REGINA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said Wednesday night his party will make substantial gains in the federal election because "the CCF pioneered every piece of good social and economic legislation."

Mr. Coldwell addressed 750 persons here at a nominating convention. Rain earlier cancelled a scheduled stop at Kayville in his campaign tour.

The CCF leader, returning to the city which first sent him to Ottawa, said the day would come when the movement, possibly part of a world movement, would be the government of Canada.

The Liberals would lose "a lot of seats" and the CCF party might find itself in an "interesting position, a strategic position." Mr. Coldwell did not elaborate.

CHANGING HORSES

He charged the Liberal and Progressive Conservatives with voting down social and economic legislation introduced by the CCF and then taking the issues up when they had become popular.

"Every piece of good social and economic legislation was pioneered by the CCF," he said.

Outlining his 10-point humanity first program, he said Canada is only one of four democratic countries without a national health plan, needs a national housing program, federal aid for education, reduced taxes for wage-earners, better social security and social and economic aid for countries less-privileged than Canada.

The CCF leader suggested reducing interest rates on housing to two per cent from 5¼ per cent, amortizing homes for 30 instead of 20 years and reducing down payments. This was a $10,000 home could be paid for at $33 a month.

Mr. Coldwell said the Liberal government had granted tax concessions to "those that have" in bringing in the new budget. Seventy per cent of concessions had gone to corporations and the "well-to-do." The CCF proposed a national investment board to direct wealth which "fell into the hands" of insurance company directors and corporation heads.

Allow Civil Servants Work Past 65 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Wednesday washed out the arbitrary retirement age of 65 years for civil servants; raised the age limit for hiring older personnel and lowered the age at which younger persons may be employed.

Under an order-in-council published in the Canada Gazette, previously-prescribed age limits may be waived when qualified candidates within the limits are not available.

In effect, this means that the previous age restrictions of 18 to 35 years for hiring have changed and now are 17 to approximately 40 years.

Lindsay Union Ratifies Wage Increases

LINDSAY (ENS)—It has been announced that a package wage settlement has been reached between the John McCrae Machine and Foundry Ltd. of Lindsay and their workers, members of the newly formed local 4927 of the United Steel Workers of America.

The agreement provides for increases of 12 to 25 cents an hour. The work week is shortened from 48 to 45 hours and the same take-home pay is guaranteed. The company also agreed to pay for two more legal holidays, and a clause also provides for two weeks' vacation after five years' service, and three weeks after 25 years.

The agreement was concluded Wednesday afternoon, after R. V. Bradley, conciliation officer of the Departmen tof Labor had been appointed at the request of the negotiating parties. The agreement was ratified at a meeting of the union members Wednesday night, and is effective Friday. Union negotiators were Harry Lynch, Edward Hart, Ray Kelbrick, William Powell and M. J. Fenwick, the latter two staff representatives. For the company, W. H. McCraw, M. C. Collins and D. A. Sinclair were present. The union had also asked for conciliation in the negotiations over a contract with the Dominion Brake Shoe Ltd., and is awaiting the start of talks with Chatco Steel Products Ltd.

At the Visking Ltd. organizers of the AF of L Stationery Engineers' Union have signed up members of the power house staff, and further developments are awaited in the organization of the working staff of the plant. Previously, United Packinghouse Workers' representatives of the CIO were at work in the plant.

Organization of textile plants is continuing, with two CIO unions, the United Textile Workers of America and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, both claiming a majority of workers of the national textile plants signed up for their union. It is expected this question will also go to conciliation. Workers of Brinton Carpet Co. have also been contacted by representatives of the Textile Workers Union. Officials of the Steel Workers' Union also report that organization of workers of Canadian arsenals, although banned by order-in-council, is continuing, with a large number of workers signing union cards.

Given One Day To Raise $700

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Little Britain man, Allan Ferguson, 35, was given until Friday to raise some $700 in payment of a lien on a car he had sold, when he appeared in court here Wednesday. Ferguson was charged with false pretences, in representing a car he sold to Len Sholer of Lindsay, as being free and clear, when there was actually a lien of $700 against it. In the involved case, it was brought out that Sholer had given Ferguson a car and $75 for the truck, also a paper that the truck was free and clear.

Later he said, he was informed that there was a lien against the vehicle, and still later, it was taken by a bailiff, who showed Sholer a copy of the lien.

Ferguson examining this copy in court, said that it was not the lien he had signed. Since taking the car, he said, he had financed it to purchase a taxi license from Sholer. He protested that he had intended at the itme of his deal to transfer the lien to the car he received for the truck, and had therefore given the guarantee to Sholer. Magistrate Gee gave Ferguson until Friday to make restitution to Sholer or clear the lien on the truck, so the new owner could have it again. He was also assessed court costs.

"Accidental Death" Inquest Jury Verdict

LINDSAY (ENS)—A coroner's jury Wednesday night returned a verdict of accidental death in the highway fatality two weeks ago in Manilla when Albert Clark, 48, died as a result of injuries received when he was knocked from his bicycle.

Mrs. Jean Schroeder of Sunderland was absolved of blame in the mishap. She was the driver of the light truck which struck Clark's bicycle, knocking him to the pavement. He died two days later in Ross Memorial Hospital of multiple injuries and fractures. Dr. W. E. Crowe was coroner in charge of the inquest.

Lodge Protest

BERLIN (AP) — British Maj.-Gen. C. F. C. Coleman protested Wednesday to the Soviet commandant of East Berlin over the fatal shooting of a 15-year-old German boy by Communist police. The victim, Wolfgang Roehling, was killed Monday while a few yards inside the British sector. He had been shouting taunts and throwing rocks at Red police guarding the Russian sector border.

Lawyer Calls Christie 'Utterly Mad' In Pleas

LONDON (CP)—Justice Sir Donald Finnemore today described the sex-murder orgy admitted by John Rreginald Christie as "horrible and horrifying" and perhaps without precedent in human history.

In solemn tones Finnemore began summing up the evidence and pleas submitted during the 3½ days the Notting Hill strangler has been on trial for killing his wife.

Christie, 55-year-old wartime special constable, confessed to strangling her and six other women. The case was scheduled to go to the jury this afternoon after Finnemore completed his summation.

The judge said: "I do not know whether any jury before in this country or perhaps in the world has seen and heard a man charged with murder go into the witness box and say to the jury 'Yes, I did kill this victim. I killed six others as well over a period of 10 years.'"

CHRISTIE DETACHED

Finnemore addressed the jury of nine men and three women in Old Bailey court after Christie's defence counsel made an impassioned plea for a verdict of "guilty but insane" and the crown prosecutor countered with a flat demand for a guilty finding.

Christie was detached throughout the morning as Derek Curtis-Bennett, one of Britain's most prominent criminal lawyers, demanded: "The man's crazy isn't he?" And painted a picture of Christie as a killer who slew his wife without motive beyond a desire to ease her suffering as she writhed in a convulsion.

Terming Christie "an object of pity rather than of horror," Curtis-Bennett told the jury "He is a man who should be locked up for the rest of his life."

During the trial, now in its fourth day, Christie confessed to gassing or garrotting at least six women in waves of sex lust and what was described as the mercy killing of his 54-year-old wife, Ethel.

Technically, he was on trial only for killing his wife. His formal plea was "not guilty."

ASK MURDER VERDICT

"We have very clearly proved that Christie did deliberately and intentionally kill his wife on Dec. 14. He killed her by strangling her with a stocking and he knew perfectly well what he was doing."

The prosecution contended that Christie deliberately tried to conceal her death by lies and forgery.

Wednesday three psychiatrists clashed over whether Christie, a bespectacled meek-looking man with a lean jaw and owlish features, is insane. One for the defence thought so. Two doctors for the prosecution didn't.

STRANGLED WIFE

Wednesday, Christie testified he strangled his wife with a stocking to put her out of her agony during a convulsion. He claimed he kept the body under the parlor floor because he couldn't bear to be separated from Mrs. Christie.

"This is the best of the cases to show a motiveless purposeless killing of the one person he liked," the defence lawyer continued.

Curtis-Bennett cited the three bodies found in Christie's cupboard and that of his wife under the parlor floor, all "getting staler and more horried every day that passes." He said solemnly:

"Is not that the act of an insane man to have that position?"

He added, "The man's crazy, isn't he?"

He solemnly told the jury:

"If you, under the law, think that this man is suffering from a defect of reason arising from a disease of the brain, and that although he knew what he was doing he did not know that he was doing wrong, you are bound to find a special verdict of guilty but insane."

Jse Helicopters For Division

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP) — Canadian Army trucks are to pull off the roads in the Commonwealth division area today while helicopters take over supplying the division in "Operation Skyhook."

Normally the 56th general transport company of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps hauls division ammunition, while New Zealand soldiers handle gasoline and lubricants and Britons look after rations.

"Operation Skyhook," a three-day exercise, is designed to demonstrate the ability of helicopters to supply beleaguered or isolated forces with materials.

The truck drivers are to work as ground crew to load and unload the aircraft. The airlift distance will be about seven miles.

WEST BERLIN WORKERS, throbbing with sympathy for the East German victims of the spreading rebellion against Russian repression, continue calmly on their way as furniture, propaganda material and pictures of Communist leaders burn merrily on the street outside a Socialist Unity (Communist) Party district office in the American sector of Berlin. The bonfire followed a raid on the office by 2,000 Berliners who sacked it thoroughly while several Red officials fled through the back door. East Germans, undaunted by food shortages, Soviet tanks and firing squads, continue to defy Russian martial law with protest marches through the streets of Lepzig, Dresden, Demnitz and Eisenach.

Must Leave Weapons Home Election Day

OTTAWA (CP)—You'd be wise to leave your sword at home on election day, Aug. 10. And that goes for firearms bludegons, staves or other weapons of potential intimidation.

For years Canada's election law has taken a dim view of people who carry around such "offensive weapons" when people go to the polls.

The law doesn't say you can't carry swords or other weapons that day but it does say you can be fined $200 and sent to prison for two years if you're caught with them within half-a-mile of a polling booth. If you're a stranger in those particular parts, the distance is a full mile.

It's part of the precautions taken to ensure that elections are orderly, fair and secret and that no voter gets coerced into voting a certain way.

LOT TO REMEMBER

The Canada Elections Act has a lot of other precautions, too. It says you can't wear a campaign button or any other party emblem within eight days of the election. You can't sell beer or liquor on election day. You can't use or get others to use "any loudspeaker, bunting, ensign, banner, standard, or any set of colors or any other flag. . . with intent that it shall be carried, worn or used on automobiles, trucks or other vehicles as political propaganda" on election day or the day before.

You aren't allowed to bribe or threaten a voter. You're not supposed to try to get a ballot by false pretences or to try to vote if you're disqualified.

You're not even supposed to heckle at a political meeting with "intent to prevent the transaction of business."

As for the candidates themselves they have their own list of don'ts. They can make all the promises they want to orally but they can't sign an election promise. If elected, they must turn in statements showing where they got their campaign funds and how they were spent.

All these don'ts are backed up by penalties which usually can be as bad as a term in prison. Most of them never get used. But they're in the law.

SEVEN ALARMS—Firemen man their battle stations from behind a barricade of rubble and one of several partially burier cars in Philadelphia as they pour water into a four-storey building that burns fiercely. The structure was the Alba Warehouse which finally collapsed from the flames. No estimate of damage was available.

"Felt Tired from the Time I Got Up In the Morning"

There is scarcely a person who at one time or another has not suffered from functional stomach, kidney, liver or bowel disorders making them feel rundown, tired, nervous, and full of aches and pains. No claim is made that Syntona will help everyone suffering this way, but in thousands of cases where these troubles persist it has given remarkable results. Many of these people say their troubles had been of long duration and that ordinary things they used had failed to help them.

Trouble Began Year Ago

"About one year ago my stomach started giving me trouble and I would have awful gas, sour stomach and belching up of hot, sour liquids after my meals. I would get sick, dizzy spells, became very nervous and couldn't sleep after going to bed at night. I felt tired out from the time I got up in the mornings. More recently aching pains set into my back and joints.

Soon Felt Better

"I had been trying one thing and another without getting any noticeable relief, and finally a relative of mine suggested trying Syntona. After I started taking this medicine I was surprised how much better I felt in only a short time.

"Now I sleep better as Syntona helped the nervous dizzy feelings and cleared up the distress in my stomach. So, I have a much better appetite and constipation which troubled me for a long time is relieved. The soreness and pains in my back and joints does not trouble me now and I feel so much better in every way that I think Syntona is a grand medicine and am glad to recommend it to others."

Easy To Take

Although Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots it is extremely pleasant to take because of its fine flavors. As a medicine of this nature it is unexcelled and the results you get are quickly felt. Almost anyone who has used it praises its genuine merit.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough by Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

"Bishop Of Soo Line" Marks 50th Wedding Anniversary

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The Rev. and Mrs. Herman McConnell of Victoria, B.C., who are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Bruce Ingham, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary today. They were married in Barrie at the home of the bride's parents with her father, the Rev. W. C. Washington, officiating.

Mr. McConnell is a native of Springbrook. He matriculated from Albert College, Belleville, before receiving his B.A. degree from the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg. All of his regular ministry was served in Saskatchewan where he was Weyburn's first Methodist minister. Although he was not an Anglican he was called "the bishop of the Soo Line", since he was the first ordained minister from the Soo railway line to the American border. Among the charges on which he served as well as Weyburn were Shaunavan, centre of the ranching county in southern Saskatchewan, Sutherland, a suburb of Saskatoon, and Delisle home of the Bentley brothers of hockey fame. After his retirement from the regular ministry he served two terms on missions in British Columbia one to Lillooet, and the other a mission to the Indians at Quathiaski Cove on an island between the mainland and Vancouver Island. During the Second World War he worked in a ship-building plant in Victoria. Until recently he conducted discussion groups with the men with whom he had worked one noon hour each week. Another of his hobbies is the writing of verse.

Mrs. McConnell, the former Edith Washington, was a teacher before her marriage. Among the schools in which she taught were Havergal Hall in Toronto and Alma Ladies' College in St. Thomas. Later she went, under auspices of the W.M.S. of the Methodist church, to teach in a girls' recidential school in Kofu, Japan. On her own graduation from Alma college she was chosen as valedictorian.

CELEBRATING their golden wedding anniversary today at Millbrook are the Rev. and Mrs. Herman McConnell. The event will be held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Bruce Ingham. Mr. McConnell, a Methodist minister, held several charges in Saskatchewan. He is now retired.

Their only son, Kenneth Washington McConnell of Vancouver, the eldest member of this family, died 10 year's ago.

They have two daughters Mrs. Bruce Ingham (Doris) of Millbrook and Mrs. James McNeil (Marjorie) of Victoria. There are eight grandchildren, Michael and Joan McConnell of Vancouver; Bruce McConnell, George, Helen and Bernard Ingham of Millbrook; and Kenneth and Francis McNeil of Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell celebrated with a family dinner on Thursday with guests present from Toronto, Peterborough, Kingston, Norwood, Campbellford, Auburn, Smithfield, Barrie Oshawa, Detroit and Rock, Michigan. The Rev. C. C. Washington of Auburn, the groomsman, was among the guests. The bridesmaid Miss Elizabeth Marshall, now of New York city was unable to be present.

On Sunday they will be at home to the friends of the family at the home of their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell who are both 83 have thoroughly enjoyed the trip across the continent celebrating their anniversary, and have made many stops to visit friends among other places at Calgary, Weyburn, Winnipeg, Minneapolis, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Windsor, Toronto and Peterborough. When asked which was the happiest period of their lives they thought the present as happy as any.

Sabre Pilot Killed

Accept Resignation

SASKATOON (CP)—The executive committee of the Saskatchewan Liberal party Wednesday accepted the resignation of Walter Tucker as provincial leader but left the matter of a new leader "in abeyance until after the federal election." Mr. Tucker is Liberal candidate in Rosthern riding in the Aug. 10 federal election.

Send Inquiry Report To Transport Minister

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A report on an inquiry into the sinking of the 4,424-ton Scotiadoc Saturday night will be sent to Transport Minister Chevrier, department of transport officials said Wednesday.

The inquiry opened behind closed doors.

No inquiry will be held into the disappearance of Wallace McDermid, 27, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., porter on the Scotiadoc who is missing and believed drowned in the sinking.

The vessel, carrying a $500,000 cargo of wheat, collided with the Canada Steamship Lines freighter Burlington in Lake Superior about 15 miles from here. The Scotiadoc sank in 600 feet of water. The Burlington rescued 29 of the vessel's complement of 30.

Predicts Peace To Bring More Prosperity

SUDBURY (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Wednesday that the end of the Korean war, instead of being a threat to Canada's economy, would bring "even greater prosperity."

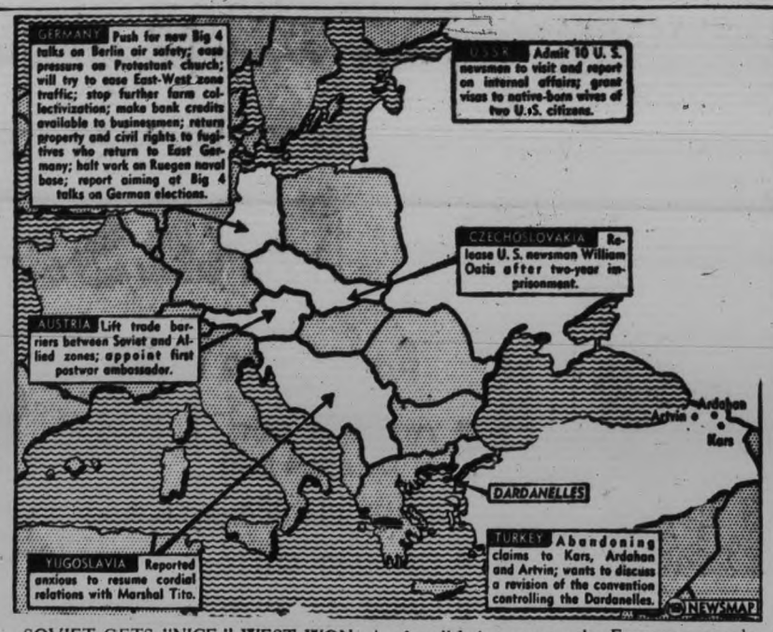
Mr. Howe, speaking at a dual nomination here, scoffed at Progressive Conservative charges that a return to peacetime economy would upset present policies of the Liberal government.

He challenged the Progressive Conservative party to offer a better policy of processing raw materials before export.

"Canada must produce material for which there is a market in the world," he said, "not something for which there is no market."

SELECTED CANDIDATE

The nominating convention selected J. Leo Gauthier as Liberal candidate for the new riding of Nickel Belt in the Aug. 10 election and Rodger Mitchell as the party's standard bearer for the Sudbury riding.



Mr. Gauthier represented the Sudbury constituency in the last House.

Mr. Howe said Progressive Conservative leader George Drew's promise to slash taxes is a bribe for votes and that the opposition party's pledge to process raw materials at home is "amateur meddling" in world trade, now at its peak for Canada.

He claimed that a $500,000,000 tax cut will be impossible unless Mr. Drew resorts to deficit financing.

Dies Under Tractor

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Walter L. Rhodes, 42, of Raleigh township was fatally injured under his tractor Wednesday while cultivating his farm just south of here. Calvin Elson and Carl Jackson were working on a roof of a barn nearby and noticed the tractor going around in a tight circle with no one at the wheel. They investigated and found Rhodes being dragged around by the machine.

SOVIET GETS "NICE," WEST WONDERS—Recent Soviet overtures of "peace and friendship" toward some European nations may cause you to scratch your head, but government diplomats see a definite pattern in it and it is neither "peaceful" nor "friendly" in intent. They see the tactical moves designed to create a feeling of well-being among the European people, with the hope of undermining Western unity against Communist aggression. Above Newsmap shows where the Soviet Union made the unprecedented gestures. It is feared that the new peaceful approach be more effective than the bluster and hostility of the Stalin regime.

Bargaining Right Sought By Civil Servants

QUEBEC (CP)—The Civil Service Federation of Canada passed a resolution Wednesday urging that the federation press the federal government to grant collective bargaining rights to civil service employees.

Delegates at the annual convention of the federation berated the federal government and Prime Minister St. Laurent for denying the federation these rights.

The group asked for collective bargaining rights as understood by the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act. Under the act, the organization would be permitted to strike to back up demands.

ASKS CLAUSE DELETED

An amendment to the original resolution, proposed by D. Cross of Kingston, called for deletion of a clause giving the union power to call a strike.

The amendment was defeated and the resolution adopted by a standing vote amid applause.

They said a letter from Mr. Abbott, outlining his views, did "not constitute a case."

In his letter, Mr. Abbott said the federal government has kept pace with industrial wages. He added that extenuating circumstances made further increases in civil servants' salaries impossible.

Civic Officials Travel Laura Secord Route

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Civic officials from the Niagara district and members of local historical societies Wednesday travelled by car along the 10-mile route from Queenston to St. Catharines to commemorate the Laura Secord walk.

Laura Secord ran the distance 140 years ago to warn Lieut. James FitzGibbon of an impending American attack June 24, 1813. Lieut. FitzGibbon met the invaders at Beaver Dam and defeated them. This led to the final expulsion of Americans from Canadian soil and the ending of the war of 1812-14.

A. E. Coombs, honorary president of the Lincoln Historical Society, corrected history books when in an address he said Laura Secord was accompanied by her niece, not a cow as is popularly believed. He quoted from a letter from the woman's relatives to support this.

Five Companies Favored For Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation enhancing the hopes of five big New York state private utilities to build new sources of hydro-electric power at Niagara Falls won approval Wednesday of the House of Representatives public works committee.

The committee voted, 14 to 7, in favor of a bill to authorize private enterprise to construct the new power plant at the cataract.

The committee turned down two other bills that would have given the state of New York or the U.S. federal government authority to build the power plant.

Sources close to the House Republican leadership said that the private enterprise bill will receive early and favorable consideration.

Train Smashes Trailer

STRATFORD (CP) — Kenneth Fraser, 22, of nearby Embro was only shaken up Wednesday when a passenger train rammed a six-ton sand screener on the trailer of his truck. None of the passengers on the Canadian National Railways Palmerston-Stratford train was injured but had to proceed by bus because the train's locomotive was damaged.

Bullet Wound Fatal

SIMCOE (CP)—Edsil Padden, 56, of RR 4, Simcoe, died Wednesday night in Norfolk General Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck in the head by a bullet. Found by a cousin, Bob Padden, and Joe Rissi, Padden, who lives alone on a farm six miles northeast of here, had apparently discharged a .22 rifle accidentally while cleaning it.

CBC Issues New Regulations Governing Radio Broadcasting

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC board of governors issued new regulations Wednesday governing radio broadcasting in Canada, easing some of its restrictions on advertising content of programs and dropping its proposal to boost Canadian talent by requiring minimum amounts of Canadian broadcasts.

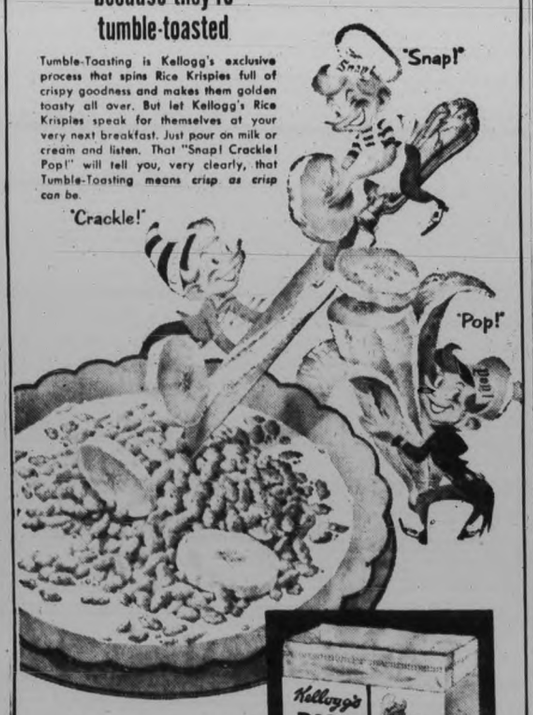
The regulations, replacing those in force since 1949, were published in the Canada Gazette.

They dropped the former ban on spot advertisements between 7:30 and 11 p.m., and put a new ban on reconstructed broadcasts of sports and other events in competition with live broadcasts in the same

All regulations on news broadcasting were left out, except for those prohibiting intentionally "false or misleading news" and advertisements in the body of newscasts.

FOLLOW PROPOSALS

The new regulations follow the lines of proposed regulations issued by the CBC board last October and discussed at a public hearing in January.



Those proposals included one to encourage development of Canadian talent by compelling radio stations to devote between 30 and 48 per cent of their time to Canadian programs, either live or recorded.

That proposal was not carried through in the new regulations. It had been strongly opposed by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, spokesman for most of the privately-owned stations, as hindering rather than helping development of Canadian culture.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST CHURCH was blessed by Most Reverend Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, Wednesday afternoon. In the evening Bishop Berry held the first mass in the church. He is shown at the left with a group of the clergy at the door of the new south-end church with the church's priest, the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant facing the camera. A group of the parishioners is seen in the photo on the left at the entrance of the church.

First Mass Celebrated At St. John The Baptist

Twilight flooded the priest-filled sanctuary and crowded church as the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, celebrated the first mass in St. John the Baptist Church Wednesday. About 50 visiting clergy from all parts of the diocese, and more than 700 parishioners and visitors were in attendance at the opening. Many were unable to obtain seats and remained standing in the aisles at the rear of the church.

The ceremonies began in the afternoon when at 3 p.m. a procession headed by the cross-bearer and acolytes, marched from the sacristy wing, around the front, to the entrance.

CHURCH BLESSED

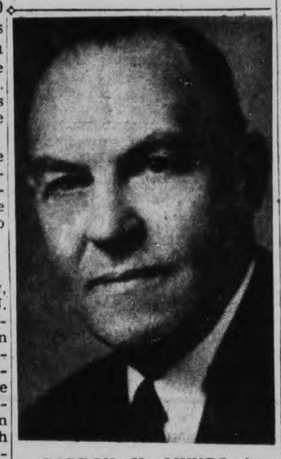
His Excellency, Bishop Berry, accompanied by the Very Rev. J. J. Garvey and the Rev. J. J. McCarthy, sprinkled holy water on the onlookers and then the outside walls of the church. Following this the clergy, led by the bishop, entered the church chanting the Litany of the Saints in Latin. The service continued with the blessing of the altar, sanctuary, tabernacle and interior of the church and then the procession formed again and departed to the sacristy.

The church was more than half filled with the children of St. John's school in full attendance as well as the women and older men of the new parish.

At the Pontifical mass in the evening many dignitaries of the Church were present including the Rt. Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan, (Vicar-General of the diocese), the Rt. Rev. J. V. McCauley of Lindsay, the Rt. Rev. J. E. Ronan of Toronto and the Rt. Rev. P. P. Butler, parish priest of the Sacred Heart Church.

FOR GLORY OF GOD

Dr. F. M. Grant welcomed and thanked all those who were in any way connected with the church and expressed his wish, "that this church be used for the glory of God and the salvation of our souls." He then introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. James Houlihan.



Father Houlihan drew attention to the fact that celebrations were in keeping with the opening of new hospitals and schools which attended to the welfare of our body and mind—then why not even more so a church, whose function it was to aid our souls.

"St. John the Baptist was more than the last prophet, he was a herald of Christ and like this church will, he gave enlightenment to a world filled with false philosophies and pagan morals.

"You people of this congregation are pioneers. You have built new homes, a new school and now this church and with courage and resolve you will not fail, but learn to appreciate and live it more.

"Here is a place where man will come to God at birth and go up to God at death," he concluded.

After mass the Bishop stated how happy he was to dedicate this church and offer the first mass. "Worship of God is man's first duty on earth," he said. "Nothing is too fine to offer."

Injured Four Weeks Ago, Toronto Man Dies; Widow Still In Hospital

Passing Motorist's Speedy Trip To City Credited With Saving Life Of Injured Couple's Two-Year-Old Girl

Injured in an auto accident four weeks ago, on May 29, William Olson, 56, 179 Carlton St., Toronto, died today in hospital. His wife, Mrs. Mina Olson, 34, who was also injured in the crash is still in hospital. Their daughter, Judy, 2, was also brought to hospital but has since been released. The life of their daughter was believed saved by a passing motorist who came upon the crash just north of Bewdley. Thomas Richards, 16 Leers St., Toronto, who was driving behind the Olsons, said:

"When I got there everyone was still in the car. A few people were standing around just watching."

Then Richards spotted Olson well ahead of the car lying on a cement culvert with his head and arms over the side. Olson had suffered a broken right thigh and head injuries.

A fourth person in the car, Russ Watson, 49, 152 Glenmount Park Rd., Toronto, owner of the car, but not the driver, told police what happened.

TRIED TO AVOID TRUCK

He said on the way to visit Mrs. Olson's sister in Coboconk, a red truck came over the hill. "It was taking the whole of the highway, sliding down broadside."

"Bill (Mr. Olson) took the shoulder on the right, applied the brakes but we started to roll. Boy, it felt about four times to me."

"I couldn't help but see the red truck and slipped or dropped down under the dash. I knew what was going to happen. Bill went through the windshield and landed 20 feet in front of the car. Mrs. Olson was bounced around in the back seat and the baby was pinned under the rear left window."

CHILD BLUE

Richards looking over the wreck saw a child's hand. He said the child appeared to be strangling. She was blue in the face. The back seat was lying across her throat.

Richards had started to rush the youngster who appeared at the time to be in the greatest danger to Peterborough in his car when he met an ambulance. The ambulance took the whole family to hospital.

Olson was a member of the Holy Eucharist Church in Toronto. The body is resting at the Anglesey funeral home and Friday will be taken to the Washington and Johnston funeral home at Broadview and Queen Sts., in Toronto.

Street Dusty Pay Taxes Get No Service

"Hap" Harrison of Port Hope, who used to play first base when Al Heckman and Max Swanston were the Petes battery, complained as a citizen to his municipal council, this week, that his taxes had soared but the public service was dormant.

Mr. Harrison lives on Bramwell St., North, presumably in a new section of the town. From that area he led a delegation complaining especially against "the dust nuisance." When he built out in that section the taxes were $3.50 to $4 a year, as compared with the present $60. Residents get light and water, but the street department hasn't been around in twelve years."

Mr. Harrison advised the council that the women of the district would likely follow as a second deputation if something wasn't done to lay the dust. On the condition of his own street, he said, Bramwell was a disgrace to Port Hope.

Headon Crash Kills 5 People

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Five persons were killed in a headon collision on a straight stretch of road Wednesday night at Elkhorn about 60 miles west of here.

RCMP officers, who withheld the names of the victims until next-of-kin were notified, said the automobiles were from Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Two men and a woman were killed in the crash and two young boys—sons of two of the earlier victims—died in hospital at Elkhorn early today.

Marmora C Of C Tours Tourist Resorts

MARMORA (ENS) — Marmora district Chamber of Commerce held a goodwill tour Wednesday afternoon of various resorts in the district. First section of the party which included the ladies left Marmora Arena for Wanganui Lodge at Crowe River and Beaver Creek where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bennett. The next stop was at Deer Lake Lodge, Deer Lake, where Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wikander escorted the party around the resort.

Next the party visited Frank McLaughlin and Frank Openshaw and Son's establishment at Trent Bridge, and inspected the latter's fishing tackle and boat-repairing establishment.

The next halt was at Woodland Estate near Campbellford. Here the party were particularly interested in the formal gardens of approximately 120 by 60 feet, with a 9-foot cedar hedge and rose plots. Here the party was joined by other members. They went to Camp Eagle Eye where Ed and Helen Sargent extended their welcome. Nearby is Stan Keller's hostelry that has catered to the tourist trade for 43 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kellar greeted the visitors.

From here the party went to Ross Hart's fishing camp at Round Lake. Ross has operated this for 16 years, but has lived 62 years on the property.

From here the trip was made to the Belmont Bungalows, of which Archie R. Cumming is proprietor. Here a buffet supper was served under the supervision of Mrs. Cumming.

James Cumming, brother of the proprietor, gave an interesting and humorous discourse on local Indian lore. Here more members and their wives joined the party. A collection was taken towards the expenses of sending some Marmora Girl Guides to camp, resulting in $12.15 being donated for that purpose.

In the evening the last lap of the trip was made to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Young's Sylvan Lodge for dancing to music under Jack Grant's supervision.

The innovation of this goodwill tour was voted a decided success.

Innocent Drivers Pay Fines Just Suckers Says Lawyer

W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, branded drivers who pay parking fines without committing offences "suckers" today when he appeared in magistrate's court to fight a parking ticket. The case was adjourned for one week, however, in spite of the lawyer's insistence the city solicitor appear to prosecute the case.

Mr. Fair received the ticket for parking in an unloading zone off the parking lot on Water St. In defending the case he plans to argue he was unloading his car at the time.

"Everyone else who gets a ticket is scared to do anything," Mr. Fair pointed out. "They just pay their dollars like suckers."

UNLOADING BOOKS

He continued: "I happened to be engaged in unloading books at the time and I refuse to pay the dollar." The alleged offence took place May 22.

"People come here to see a show; while they're here they get a ticket. Then they curse the town, send their money in and don't come back. We're driving away decent citizens."

The lawyer said he wasn't questioning the legality of the parking by-law, nor did he consider it just the matter of a dollar; "it's a question of hun an rights."

Mr. Fair concluded: "It's too bad we have a city council made up of people who don't drive cars . . . or who live on the outskirts."

Man's Body Found Floating In Otonabee R.

The body of 53-year-old John Grant of Peterborough was taken from the Otonabee River by city firemen, Wednesday about 6.00 p.m.

It was discovered about 150 feet from the end of Dublin Street floating against the log boom just above the Quaker Oats Co. dam. Grant was last seen sitting in Nicholls Oval on Sunday.

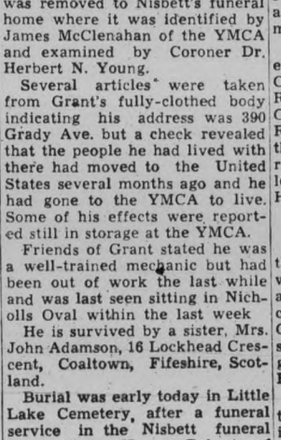
Police said from all appearance there was no suggestion of foul play. A scar on his forehead was attributed to an accident about five weeks ago when he fell down the stairs of the YMCA where he had lived for several months.

He had lived in Peterborough for 25 years and for many years was employed at the CGE. He left there in 1950 and worked for some time at the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co.

The body was first sighted shortly after 5.30 p.m. Wednesday by Fred Tuggey, 599 Waterford St., who phoned police that he had seen an object floating in the river near his home. PC Gerald Emmons and PC Robert Muldoon responded to the call and reported that the object was the body of a man.

Detective Douglas Farthing was called to the scene and the body was removed to Nisbett's funeral home where it was identified by James McClenahan of the YMCA and examined by Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young.

Several articles were taken from Grant's fully-clothed body indicating his address was 390 Grady Ave. but a check revealed that the people he had lived with there had moved to the United States several months ago and he had gone to the YMCA to live. Some of his effects were reported still in storage at the YMCA.



Friends of Grant stated he was a well-trained mechanic but had been out of work the last while and was last seen sitting in Nicholls Oval within the last week.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. John Adamson, 16 Lockhead Crescent, Coaltown, Fifeshire, Scotland.

Burial was early today in Little Lake Cemetery, after a funeral service in the Nisbett funeral home, Major Horace Roberts of the Salvation Army officiating.

Deny Horses Snarled Up June 2 Parade

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill's coachman weighed in today with a hot denial that his horses snarled up the Coronation parade June 2.

The parade, following the crowning of the Queen at Westminster Abbey, unmistakably got into a jam while making a turn in Trafalgar Square. Some of the carriages were shuffled about until they were two abreast instead of properly in line.

Spectators saw the prime minister's carriage pull out of the procession and stand at the side of the route. Some also saw—or thought they saw—the off horse kicking and cutting up in a most unseemly way. They concluded the beast's behavior had forced the carriage out of the parade.

Not so, said Capt. Frank Gilbey in a letter to The Daily Telegraph.

Gilbey, horse-loving scion of a rich British distilling family, drove the prime minister's carriage personally. He also had charge of other horses loaned by private owners for the use of coronation dignitaries. Said Gilbey:

"Any suggestion that the horses or harness were contributory factors is without foundation.

"All the horses loaned from private sources which were in my charge behaved splendidly under most testing conditions."

So why did the prime minister pull out of the procession?

It seems that after the traffic jam he found his carriage at the end of the procession—the spot of honor reserved for the state coach of the Queen herself.

Churchill accordingly had his coachman edge over to the side to wait until the parade had passed. And then they drove off to 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence.

VON Considers Incorporation To Get Benefits

A motion was put forward by the finance committee of the Victorian Order of Nurses Wednesday that the local branch of the VON be incorporated.

If the local chapter were incorporated it would be eligible to receive a grant from the Dominion Government, and would also supply bursaries to encourage girls to enter the VON.

There was another motion put forward by the finance committee that the fees charged for visiting patients be raised from $2 to $2.75, due to rising costs. The suggestion was returned to the finance committee for further study and was to be brought up again at the next meeting in September.

HOME CARE PLAN

The question of the hospital home care plan arose again and it was stated that the difference between caring for patients within a hospital compared with that of patients in their homes was $13.35 in favour of the Home Care Plan. It was suggested that a committee be set up in the fall to approach the hospital board concerning this plan.

The Superintendent of Nurses reported that the month of May had been a very quiet month as far as cases were concerned. Only 50 patients were admitted and 365 visits were made; of the 365 visits 213 were to adults for nursing care, 15 for nursing care to infants and pre-schools and 15 to new born babies for medical attention. The other 122 were educational visits.

It was reported by the treasurer that the VON had spent $1,064 of their budget for the month of May.

Would Limit Teachers On Resignations

BIGWIN INN (CP) — Ontario trustees want the provincial government to change its regulations so that a teacher will have only one opportunity a year of resigning instead of the present two.

Harold Wagner, president of the Urban and Rural Trustees Association, told the organization Wednesday that the Ontario trustees council has asked the department of education and the Ontario Teachers' Federation to cancel the provision.

Steel Rod On Truck Rakes 2 Parked Cars

Turning left out of a driveway Wednesday, a transport grazed two parked cars with a steel rod extending from its body causing estimated damage at $40 to the two vehicles.

The cars, owned by Stanley Elliott of 570 Bethune and Max Rishor of 204 George St., were parked on the north side of Dalhousie facing east and the truck, driven by St. Clair Morris of 706 Cameron was leaving a driveway on the south side of the street.

TOP-LEVEL RIFT — The first conquerors of Mount Everest, Tensing Norkay (left), a Sherpa tribesman, and Edmund Hillary of New Zealand pose for a hero's welcome picture in Katmandu, Nepal. They were decorated by the country's King Tribhuvana. But reports say that a rift has developed between the two men following disputes as to which actually reached the top first.

No Box Cars Ordered

The current rumor that the Quaker Oats Co. have ordered 10 CPR box cars to stand by ready for use is "absolutely untrue", a top Quaker Oats official said today. The rumor had it that the box cars were waiting in the yard to be brought to the Quaker Oats plant and loaded up there with Quaker products. This would mean crossing the picket lines set up by the striking production employees. "I don't know where these rumors come from," said the Quaker official who wished to remain anonymous. "We have ordered no cars from the railway; we haven't requested any, and we haven't even talked about it. There's nothing to it."

Bridge Rebuilt

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP)—The rebuilt $1,000,000 Saskatchewan Landing bridge north of here, damaged by ice jams during spring floods last year, is scheduled to be officially opened July 9.

FIRST FIRE WAS ITS LAST — This brand-new $12,000 fire engine lies wrecked at the foot of a hill, after it ran out of control on its first fire call. It was the pride of volunteer fire department of Ryland Heights, Ky. Two firement on the truck escaped serous injury. The burning home to which they were en route, was completely destroyed.

Doucett Meets Committee, Hears Arguments

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—George Doucett, minister of highways for Ontario, met with a committee from the Southwestern Ontario Highways Association Wednesday to discuss troubles of both the farmers and the department along the route of the east-west superhighway through Essex county.

The minister and aides, engineers and land evaluators in his department heard requests of the association as presented by their spokesman, Lawrence Kerr of Harwich.

Among the requests, the association asked that an agreement of sale be made with the affected property owner before any fencing or construction takes place and where agreement cannot be reached, such cases should go to the municipal board at once.

Mr. Doucett said there are no regulations compelling the farmer to fence his property if he has no stock and does not need the fence.

QUESTIONS WISDOM

Wilson McCoig, president of the highways association, questioned the advisability of following the proposed route of the highway through Raleigh township where it would cross some 14 miles, striking all farms at an angle. The highways' minister promised that his department would check to see if another route would be possible because "there's lots of time."

He said the Ontario municipal board will arbitrate almost immediately any case where a settlement cannot be made.

Destruction: Plane Ratio Root Of Squabble Over USAF

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the Second World War Japan was hit by United States Air Force raids ranging up to 500 planes in strength. But single planes dropping single atomic bombs jarred the enemy into final surrender.

Today the United States has stockpiled atomic bombs far more destructive than the bombs that exploded over Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

President Eisenhower said recently security cannot be pegged to any given number of planes. As an example he noted that three aircraft with "modern weapons," the atomic bomb, "can practically duplicate the destructive power of all the 2,700 planes we unleashed in the great breakout from the Normandy beachhead."

This being true, why shouldn't the United States Air Force trim down the size of its planned force in relations to the increased destructive power of the atom bomb, rather than insist on an immediate decision to build up to 143 wings?

There is strong evidence the Eisenhower administration had this same question in mind in calling for a review of United States Air Force needs.

But the ir force argues the number of planes needed cannot be related to the power of the atomic bomb in this fashion. In open revolt, the air force is urging congress o accept its 143-wing goal rather than wait for the Eisenhower administration to review the entire defence field.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, United States Air Force chief of staff, told senators: "Any relationship between the amount of payload that you can carry on a bomber today does not give you anything at all in relation to the number of planes you need."

Then he went on to argue that, roughly, the air force must use the same number of planes to get atom bombs on a target as it needs to deliver the old-type bombs on a target. He explained this is so because the bomber formations have interlocking fire to protect each other and ensure delivery of the bombs.

However, there are some who are skeptical of the Vandenberg argument. And part of this skepticism can be traced to past air force estimates of needs in manpower and planes.

The air force first advocated a goal of 155 wings in August, 1951, and estimated it would have to have 22,790 planes to equip them. Two months later, it figured the number of planes to equip 143 wings would total 22,700. Thus while dropping 12 wings in the planning, only 90 planes were eliminated.

Also, at one time the air force estimated it would need 1,900,000 men, but before the cutting was through this manpower figure had almost been halved.

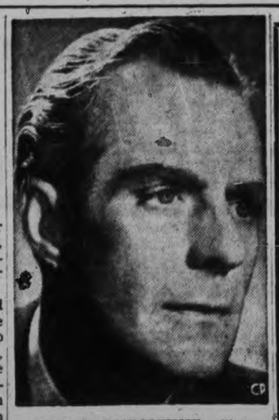
Jamaica Radio Job Reward To Montreal Man

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—A three-year radio executive job in Kingston, Jamaica, is the pay-off for Montreal-born Charles Richardson after seven years in British radio.

Early in July, the 46-year-old Canadian and his English wife leave London by air to set up house in the Caribbean. His job, as program director, is to organize local talent and make the commercial radio company for which he is to work less dependent on imported United States programs.



"I'm looking forward to it very much," said Richardson in an interview. "I want to study Jamaican dancing and music."

The work will be different from broadcasting in Britain. In Kingston he'll direct operations instead of taking part in broadcasts—at least for a time.

Richardson has made more than 500 broadcasts in Britain since demobilization from the Canadian Army here in 1946. Even in Britain's tight nationalized radio set-up he steadily made a name for himself and became known for his "velvet voice." His broadcasts have covered everything from news commentating to the reading of bedtime stories. He has also been in radio and television plays with Vancouver's Bernard Braden.

In his spare time Richardson wrote music and lyrics for radio and cabaret "spots" and has written a play, now under consideration by a West End producer, called "Gentle Cheater."

Richardson has turned down more than one acting part in West End theatre plays. "Not nearly lucrative enough," he says with the business acumen learned in Canada as a stockbroker and advertising agent. Stage parts here, with the exception of leads, seldom pay as much as £15 weekly.

RADIO EXECUTIVE—Charles Richardson, 46, Montreal-born actor with seven years in British radio, has signed a three-year contract as a radio executive for a commercial radio company in Kingston, Jamaica. His job, as program director, is to organize local talent. Richardson has made more than 500 broadcasts in Britain since he was demobilized from the Canadian army in 1946.

This one-time Mcill University graduate started his radio career some 17 years ago in Canada and the United States. Recently he was one of six Canadians taking part in a post-Coronation Commonwealth television show staged in a West End theatre. With Bernard Braden he acted in a "Sunshine Sketch" by the late Stephen Leacock.

On the same program were singer Edmund Hockridge, also of Vancouver, and the "Stan Bernard Trio" of Toronto, just back from a three-month tour of troops in Korea. The trio of instrumentalists—guitar, bass and accordion—now are playing provincial theatres here.

My Family Wouldn't Give A Fig for anything but my own home-made strawberry and raspberry jam. I guess they must be prejudiced. And I am, too. I wouldn't "do down" any way but the CERTO FRUIT PECTIN way. That's the only way I can be sure of results. I don't like risking my time, money and fruit on anything but certainties. The true fruit flavor is retained . . . . not boiled away as so much of it was in the old-fashioned method. And I find I get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. Have you tried Certo Fruit Pectin? You'll save 2/3 the time of the former long-boil way of jam and jelly-making. There are grand recipes in the booklet under the label of each bottle of Certo.

Here's A Wonderful Way to get your family to eat breakfast—every morning. Simply serve hot "CREAM OF WHEAT" with plump, mellow slices of bananas. Top with milk or cream. "Terrific!", they'll say. Yes, and easy, too. Quick "Cream of Wheat" takes only five minutes of boiling to cook to perfect smoothness. And best of all, hot "Cream of Wheat" is truly good for you. It contains iron for good red blood and calcium and phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. So give the family a good start—a quick start for the day. Treat them to hot "Cream of Wheat" for breakfast.

Everyone Enjoys A Buffet Supper—host and hostess included. It means no work for them after their guests have arrived . . . and preparing the supper is part of the fun. Particularly when they have the Heinz chef to help them. Here's a successful Buffet Supper Menu that will show you what I mean:—

Cold cuts (chicken, ham and cold roast beef)
Tossed Salad (make the dressing with HEINZ WHITE VINEGAR)
Potato Chips
Devilled eggs (made with HEINZ MAYONNAISE)
Your guests' favourite variety of HEINZ PICKLES
Coffee and Cake
Try it for a wonderful party!

Time To Feed Baby . . . and you forgot to put his potatoes on to cook! But don't worry, mother! You can whip up a serving of creamy-smooth mashed potatoes in just one minute with FRENCH'S INSTANT POTATO. Baby will eat every delicious spoonful . . . m-mmm! —so good! French's Instant Potato is made from top quality potatoes, pre-cooked by a special process that preserves the important nutriments. Simply follow the instructions on the package to make exactly the amount you want—with no waste. Incidentally, baby's serving is prepared differently from grown-ups' servings. Which reminds me, your whole family will enjoy mashed potatoes made with French's. Serve them soon!

Is Baby Fretful In Warm Weather? Then stock up on Farley's famous Rusks . . . babies love them! And you'll find Farley's in food stores in the yellow package with the cellophane top. They're the perfect answer to easily digested, quickly assimilated nourishment. You see, Farley's are made from specially milled English wheat flour and other important nutrients. They can be eaten in hand or crushed and spoon fed in warm milk or fruit. No sugar necessary—because FARLEY'S RUSKS are sugar-sweetened for appealing flavour and quick food energy. They're fortified, too, with calcium and phosphorus to aid in bone and tooth development. I know you'll agree they're a real discovery for children's, old folks' and invalids' diets.

Have You Had A Swarm Of "Uninvited Guests" at the summer cottage yet? I mean mosquitoes and blackflies—not the human kind! If so, here's a simple, easy, inexpensive way to get rid of these troublesome pests. Include FLY-TOX on your week-end shopping list. Personally, I prefer the handy push-button Fly-Tox Aerosol, which isn't any bigger than a water tumbler yet sprays up to 100 rooms when used as directed. But, if you prefer, Fly-Tox is still available as a standard Liquid Spray in 8 oz., 16 oz., and 32 oz. tins. Either way Fly-Tox has a clean and pleasant fragrance . . . won't stain blankets or clothing . . . and keeps most any cottage "insect free" all summer long for just a few pennies a day!

Reconstructed Sports Broadcasts Banned By CBC Regulations

OTTAWA (CP) — Reconstructed radio broadcasts of sports events, in competition with live broadcasts, were banned Wednesday under new radio regulations issued by the CBC.

The new rule also prohibits announcers from "faking" the radio broadcast of a game by following it on television in a broadcasting studio.

Robert Keddy, secretary of the CBC board of governors, explained that the ban covers what purport to be live broadcasts of a game or other event.

These are usually done by means of telegraphed reports in morse to the studio, with sound effects of cheering crowds dubbed in. They could even be done by watching a television broadcast, Mr. Keddy said, although this has not yet happened in Canada.

MUST BE IDENTIFIED

The regulation bans such broadcasts until after the event is over, if an on-the-spot broadcast of the event is available in the area. The reconstructed broadcasts will have to be identified as such at least every 15 minutes.

A case in point came before the CBC board of governors last January when Foster Hewitt, hockey broadcaster and operator of radio station CKFH in Toronto, charged that Toronto station CKEY was using material from his on-the-spot broadcasts of National Hockey League games outside Toronto in its own reconstructed broadcasts of the games.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of station CKEY, denied the charge and said he and his staff were prepared to swear they had not used material from Mr. Hewitt's broadcasts.

BACKED BY CAMPBELL

Mr. Hewitt said that during three games he deliberately announced penalties that were not given. He played recordings to the CBC board which he identified as those of CKEY which also described the penalties.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, supported Mr. Hewitt and asked that reconstructed broadcasts of NHL games be prohibited. He described it as "piracy."

Mr. Keddy said the new regulation would not apply to broadcasts of running stories on sports events, such as play-by-play news agency reports on the Grey Cup game or world series, so long as they did not purport to be on-the-spot broadcasts.

IT REALL YRUNS — An electric motor powers this compact auto driven by Billy Manley, 8, of Atlanta, Ga. The motor formely raised and lowered landing gear on war planes. Car cost about $30 to make.

See Cornwall As Headquarters

FINCH, Ont. (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday night that construction of the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence seaway on the Canadian side of the river would make the city of Cornwall the headquarters for the whole operation.

It will mean much to Cornwall and Stormont county, said Mr. Chevrier who spoke to a nominating convention which chose him as Liberal candidate for Stormont for the fifth time.

The minister said a canal in Canadian territory will mean that Cornwall will become the headquarters not only for the Ontario-St. Lawrence canals but for all the canals extending from Montreal to Prescott.

He said he believes the project is nearer to completion than ever before but added that some uncertainties remain as to the role of the United States.

Fenella News

The new community hall will be opened Friday evening July 3, at 8:30 p.m., with guests speakers and other program, followed by a dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ferguson and Peter visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Warkworth.

Five Injured In Collision

SEAFORTH (CP)—Five persons were injured, one seriously, in a rear-end collision here Wednesday after a retired United Church minister stopped his car to deal with a bee that stung him.

Injured were Mrs. Edna Offenstein, St. Catharines, broken ankle and rib and possible fractured jaw, whose condition was termed "fair"; her daughter, Honey Offenstein, 17; both in Scott Memorial Hospital here; and three Exeter residents, Mrs. Fred Delbridge, fractured left forearm and shock; Mrs. Maude Heywood, possible chest injuries, in South Huron Hospital, Exeter, and Mrs. Myrtle Cook, fractured right hand.

Eligible Voters Expected To Hit Peak At Aug. Election

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of eligible voters in Canada will hit a peak—perhaps topping the 8,500,000 mark—in the Aug. 10 general election.

The election will be the 22nd since Confederation in 1867 and there has been a steady increase in the number of voters in every contest since 1900.

In the last election—June 27, 1949—a total of 4,951,076 more votes were cast than in 1900. There were 7,893,629 registered electors in 1949 and 5,903,572 of thm voted.

Based on natural population increase and immigration, preliminary surveys indicated that there will be approximately 8,500,000 eligible voters this year.

In 1900, a year in which women had no franchise, the vote total was 952,496. The increase since then reflects the extension of the vote to women, the heavy rise in the country's population and generally-increased interest in government.

In 1904, when the main election issue was the trans-continental railway problem, the vote rose to 1,030,186. It jumped again to 1,173,856 in 1908, when tariff problems joined with the railway issue to sharpen voting interest. The thorny question of reciprocity with the United States pulled the voters out again in 1911 and the vote total climbed to 1,307,528.

Three factors in the war election of 1917—the proposed union government, conscription and the women's franchise — resulted in the sharpest rise in the popular vote up to that time. The ballots totalled 1,883,329, including some 250,000 or more soldier votes.

Women generally voted for the first time in 1921 and their ballots swelled the total to 3,119,306—1,235,977 more votes than were counted in 1917.

RATE SLOWED DOWN

The rate of increase slowed down in the 1925 and 1926 elections, in which the main interest stemmed from constitutional questions, trade and tariff matters. In 1925, the popular vote totalled 3,168,412 and in 1926 it inched up to 3,273,062.

The depression years brought with them the complex problem of unemployment and focussed attention on Canada's domestic economy. The popular vote climbed to 3,992,481 in 1930 and then swung over the 4,000,000 mark for the first time in history in 1935, when 4,406,854 ballots were cast.

In 1940, when the Liberal government successfully appealed for re-election to carry on the war effort, a total of 4,620,260 voted.

In the 1945 general election, fought mainly on war and post-war policies, the number of voters totalled 5,246,130, including 359,078 service votes.

Reds Barricade Shanghai Church

HONG KONG (Reuters) — A spokesman of the Roman Catholic Church said today Chinese Communist police have put up barbed wire barricades around a Shanghai church to stop demonstrations against the recent arrest of 10 priests.

Catholics in Shanghai protested against the arrests by praying and singing hymns around the Church of Christ the King in the city's French quarter, the spokesman said.

The Church of Christ the King was a meeting place of American priests in Shanghai. Of the 10 priests reported arrested there on June 15, seven are Americans. The priests were charged with attempting to overthrow the Red government and with aiding "imperialist" forced abroad.

Letters received by Catholic officials here also have told of the arrest of 10 other Catholic priests in the northern Chinese port of Tintesin. Church spokesmen say the reports herald a new reign of terror against missionaires in Red China.

Induct New Rector Of Millbrook Parish

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The Rev. L. R. Pocock, new rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church here was inducted Monday night at a service led by the Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, coadjutor bishop of the diocese of Toronto.

Early in the service Mr. Pocock was required to read the oaths to which he had earlier subscribed. Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson of Peterborough read the certificate of institution which licensed Mr. Pocock as rector of the parish.

Then the new rector, together with his wardens, was taken in turn to the font, prayer desk, lectern, pulpit and the holy table for exhortations by the archdeacon on the duties to be performed at these places.

Guest preacher for the servcie was the Rev. L. S. Garnsworthy, rector of St. Nicholas' Church, Birchcliff. Mr. Pocock had been assistant at St. Nicholas' for more than two years, before coming to Millbrook.

After the service, the congregation of 250 retired to the parish hall for a social hour at which they met their new rector and Mrs. Pocock, and Bishop and Mrs. Wilkinson.

BNA Act Calls For Election Each Five Years

OTTAWA (CP)—In electing a new House of Commons Aug. 10 Canadians will be exercising one of their fundamental constitutional rights.

The British North America Act, basis of the Canadian constitution, requires a new Parliament to be elected at least once every five years. The act, passed in 1867 when some of the Canadian provinces decided to federate, incorporated established principles of the British constitution.

Thus Parliament consists of the Queen, represented by the governor-general; the Commons and the Senate, each with its responsibilities and privileges.

The 265 members of the Commons—newly increased to that number from 262—are elected. The 102 senators are appointed by the government of the day and hold office for life.

$4,000 SALARY

Members of the Commons and the Senate receive an indemnity of $4,000 for each regular session. In addition they receive an annual expense allowance of $2,000 taxable in the case of senators and non-taxable for members of the Commons.

By custom, the leader of the majority of members elected to the Commons is called by the governor-general in the name of the Queen to form a new administration, and that leader becomes prime minister.

The choice of cabinet ministers is not restricted to the leader's elected followers. Outsiders may be chosen—and, in fact, four members of the present cabinet have been picked this way—but they must obtain seats in the Commons as soon as possible.

Prime Minister St. Laurent was in private law practice in 1941 when the late W. L. Mackenzie King asked him to join the Liberal cabinet as minister of justice. External Affairs Minister Pearson, Justice Minister Garson and Labor Minister Gregg are others elected to the Commons after they had been appointed to the cabinet.

Administration is in the hands of the prime minister and his cabinet, representing various departments of government. They represent the Queen's Privy Council in Canada.

Chief Justice Awards Doctor $7,000 In Libel Suit

SASKATOON (CP)—Chief Justice J. T. Brown of the Court of Queen's Bench Wednesday awarded Dr. David H. Arnott of London, Ont., $7,000 and costs in his libel suit against the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Arnott, Canadian manufacturer of the Koch treatment for cancer, based his suit on an article in the college's quarterly about the treatment, which involves injection of a chemical compound.

The judgment confirmed the findings of a jury which decided at the close of a week-long trial here May 14 that Dr. Arnott had been the victim of libel without malice.

Dr. Arnott had asked for unstated damages.

In his 18-page judgment, Chief Justice Brown held that the statements made in the college quarterly in December, 1951, were "of a most reckless character made against a member of a great profession in good standing in the province of Ontario."

He noted that the quarterly did not mention Dr. Arnott specifically but only the Koch treatment, terming it "quackery."

To Open Bible School During Summer

A Daily Vacation Bible School for boys and girls—carrying the theme "Sailing with Christ," will start June 29 at 9 a.m. in the Pentecostal Church.

The school is being sponsored by the Sunday School Department and the Church Auditorium will be decorated to give the appearance of being on board a ship, and all the lessons, songs, handiwork and games will coincide with the theme.

The lessons in the beginner and primary departments will include well known sea stories from the Bible and the junior department will have an interesting ship study in addition to the regular Bible and missionary stories.

Enrolment is for children from four to fourteen years of age.

Wednesday was the occasion for a triple celebration for H. S. "Steve" Elliott of 7 McClennan St. who was guest of honor at a dinner at the Club Aragon presented by the Bell Telephone Co. for 23 employees from Peterborough, Campbellford and Lindsay who had received special awards from the Ontario Safety Council.

Although awards were to company drivers who had not been involved in accidents for three years or more, Mr. Elliott's achievement was unique in that he had driven for at least 20 years without a single accident.

In addition to this accomplishment, the event coincided with Mr. Elliott's 30th birthday. More-less than two weeks previously on June 12, he completed 45 years of service with the Bell Telephone Co.

SPECIAL INVESTITURE

In March, he attended a special investiture in the Lieutenant-Governor's suite in Queen's Park, Toronto, w ere the Hon. Louis Breithaupt presented him with a medallio for his safety record, one he shares with only 30 other commercial drivers in the province. Wednesday night he was presented with a mantel clock on behalf of the Bell Telephone Co. by C. E. Watson, Toronto, General-Manager.

But the nature of the award does not reveal the full story of Mr. Elliott's record of safe driving. Twenty years constitute the period since the inauguration of the Ontario Safety League and all its awards are dated from that beginning.

A native of Barrie and a veteran of the First World War, Mr. Elliott was transferred to Peterborough by the company in 1912. He drove his own model-T Ford for the company before it acquired its own vehicles about 30 years ago and he hasn't had an accident in all that time, either with his own car or with a company vehicle.

CHANGED RULES

In presenting Mr. Elliott with the company's gift, Mr. Watson pointed out that prior to 1946, it didn't matter who was to blame for an incident, any driver who was involved was disqualified from obtaining a safety award. Since then, the Safety League has determined whether an accident was unavoidable. If it was, the driver involved could qualify for the award.

Mr. Watson said that there are three million automobiles in Canada and that 60 per cent of the country's working force drive to work. Last year, one car in every three was involved in an accident, with one fatality every four hours.

"That's the kind of record you are avoiding," he told Mr. Elliott. "You have avoided human suffering and destruction of property and made it safer for people to walk the streets."

L. E. James, Toronto, western area manager of the company explained the function of the Ontario Safety League of which he is a vice-president.

The League attempted to teach safety principles from childhood on, he said, starting in the schools with the assistance of local Boards of Education and the provincial government and participation by industry, including the Bell Telephone Co. An annual dinner is held at which some 3,000 commercial drivers are honored by the Safety League and the province.

The League was organized in 1933, in the midst of the depression, he pointed out. Since that time, progress had been made, bringing new and continuing developments which involved a challenge not only to man's ingenuity to handle new techniques and equipment but to meet new conditions of safety.

NO SMALL AWARD

R. W. Buyers, General-Manager of the Ontario Safety League admonished the drivers not to take the awards lightly.

"You have saved lives," he said. "Last year there were 1,010 killed and 25,000 injured. My job involves reading volumes of accident reports and, every Monday morning, the weekend death toll. It's a pleasant relief for me to be present on an occasion like this."

Chairman of the evening was J. N. Brockenshire of Toronto, district plant superintendent of the company. He introduced H. G. Walford, plant superintendent of the company's Central Ontario division, who pointed out that of the 31 20-year safety awards presented by the League, four had gone to the Bell Telephone Co. drivers in Peterborough, Stratford, London and St. Thomas.

Other speakers included Mayor Charles Lamb of Lindsay and Ald. T. D. Miller of Peterborough who welcomed the visitors among the 60-odd guests to the city.

R. W. Stewart, divisional construction superintendent, read the names of those in the construction department who had received awards. They were A. H. Miles, nine years; E. D. Lee, six years; F. L. Adlam, T. J. Turpin and R. C. Carter, five years; L. R. Ferrill and J. D. Wannon, four years, and R. R. Martin, three years. All of Peterborough.

L. R. Bissett, district plant superintendent, read the names of drivers in the Peterborough-Lindsay district who had received awards. They were H. S. Elliott, 18 years; G. G. W. Poole and D. S. Tushington, nine years; W. R. Martin, seven years; L. W. McGauchey, J. G. Ackford and J. A. Reynolds, five years; T. K. Harrison and G. B. Rook-Green, four years, and J. L. Pollock, three years, all of Peterborough; E. R. Steele, five years, and J. A. Clarke, four years, both of Campbellford, and V. G. McClure, nine years, and A. K. Pinney, five years, both of Lindsay.

Has 500 Stitches

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP) — James Galvin was in a hospital today with 500 stitches over knife cuts which police said were inflicted by an irate neighbor. Louis Torres, about 45, was freed on $5,000 bond Wednesday on a charge of attempting to murder Galvin with a knife. Police said Torres told them he had objected to Galvin singing Spanish songs in his backyard.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Weekend Entertaining Made Easier, Not Too Costly

It's all very well for food columnists to sound off in a superior manner on the simplicity of the weekend entertaining. You and I kno wit isn't simple, we also know it is costly. We know we can absorb the cost and cope with the detail, but we can't stand the confusion that breaks out just before mealtime.

I know I wish everybody would go out in the garden, but I do want Pete to set the table or carry out the trays, and I do want Marianne on hand to make the salad and the coffee. It sounds cut and dried, but that's my system when I'm surrounded.

But . . . there is plenty of behind-the-scenes preparation on the day before and in the morning (if I can get away from the typewriter), and I know full well that you have your systems too, and probably they are better organized than mine.

Today I am going to give you a few recipes that I prize that I think will make your weekend entertaining easier, and not too budget-busting. I hope you will love me for them.

JELLIED VEAL

The cost of a veal shank is about 35 cents per pound this week, Buy two of them. They will cost about $1.50 or $1.75 in all. Ask the butcher to break them for you. Wash them and cover in large kettle with cold water. Add 1 bay leaf, 2 tablespoons each chopped celery leaves, onion, carrot, parsley, and either ¼ teaspoon pepper or 3 or 4 whole pepper berries. Bring to boiling, reduce heat, cover and simmer until meat falls from the bones—about 3½ to 4 hours. Strain liquid. Remove meat and bones and rind to large platter, and carefully pick out all of the bones. Put through fine knife of grinder what little rind and soft cartilage you have. Some of you will want to leave the meat in pieces. Others may want to grind it coarsely and add to fine-ground rind and cartilage. Whichever way you choose, put them together afterwards.

Measure the strained liquid. Do not use more than 4 cups. While veal liquor will jell the finished loaf, it is wise to add gelatin to make it slice neatly. Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve it by stirring it over hot water. Stir the dissolved gelatin into the 4 cups veal liquor, add the ground or cut meat. Now add salt—about 2 or 3 teaspoons—but taste before you add it all. The salt flavor is subdued when this is cold. Add pepper too to taste—and grind it fresh if you have one of the grinding gadgets. You may pour it into moulds now, for it is ready for chilling and setting. If you want to garnish your moulds put sliced hard-cooked eggs on the bottom and carefully pour in ¼-inch layer of the meat liquor and chill until this is set. Then fill moulds up with the meat and liqquor. Chill until set firmly.

This is delicious sliced cold and served on lettuce. Pass your favorite relish. I favor chutney. Keep these loaves carefully refrigerated.

LEMON SYRUP

This is good for iced tea, lemonade or mixed fruit drinks.

Wash 6 lemons, roll them to soften them, grate off the yellow part of the rind. Cut them in halves and sqqueeze out the juice. To the rind add 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water and boil, covered for 10 minutes. Cool. Add strained lemon juice. Store in covered jar. Use 1 part of this syrup to 4 parts of water for lemonade. Use 3 tablespoons to sweeten and flavor each very tall glass iced tea.

SUMMER POUND CAKE

One and a half cups sifted all-purpose flour, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1½ cups sugar, 1 cup butter (no substitutes), 1½ tablespoons orange juice, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, grated rind 1 orange, grated rind ½ lemon, 5 large eggs, yolks and whites separated, ⅛ teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon cream of tartar. Butter and flour tube or loaf pan—these should be medium-large. Sift together the sifted flour, half the sugar, and the soda. Add the butter which should be room temperature and cream it into them thoroughly. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time, and the salt. Add cream of tartar to the whites and beat until they will hold a peak softly, then begin sprinkling remaining sugar over while beating until all is used and whites are stiff. Pour whites over first mixture and fold in until barely mixed. Pour into prepared pan. Bake at 325 degrees Fahr. Time depends on size of cake—about 1 to 1¼ hours. Cake shrinks from sides. Test with broom straw if in doubt.

BASKING IN A BASKET—Two claims are made for this device. It can be used as a chair, as the young lady is doing, or it can be used as a basket, handy for carrying garden produce. The chair was exhibited at the International Garden Show in Hamburg, Germany.

She said that the graduating class has been given a special 12-hour course on the nursing aspects of ABC warfare.

A delightful arrangement of syringa and bachelors' buttons, held in crystal holders, centred the tea table, which was covered with a dainty hand-crocheted white cloth. Blue tapers in crystal candelabra completed the setting arranged by Mrs. L. Ross.

AT THE RECEPTION FOR GRADUATES and friends which followed graduation exercises of the Civic Hospital School of Nursing on Wednesday, bursary and proficiency prize winner Miss Marion Seymour of Campbellford (left) is seen being presented to the guest speaker for this occasion, Dr. Marcus Long, Ph.D., of the University of Toronto. Formula For Personalities Given Graduation Nurses By Professor of Philosophy Coronation year graduates of the Peterborough Civic Hospital School of Nursing began their careers with the words of a most able speaker ringing in their ears. Professor W. Marcus D. Long Ph. D. of the University of Toronto, with statements of reasoned science, gave the girls stimulus to professional lives of action and progress, at the graduation exercises Wednesday. He also gave a formula from which to fashion their personalities.

Dr. Long said their world "is not going to the dogs"—and pointed out that "sin is not a new invention but probaly one of the most conservative things in the world, for not a new sin has been invented in thousands of years."

"The thought I wish to leave with you" said the professor "is that you cannot measure morality of society by its law breakers, but by the moral insight. I suggest there is more moral insight now than ever in the past; that the dignity of the individual is more recognized."

He had first pointed out that it is only 100 years since nursing was first accepted as a respectable vocation. Now, the nurse is welcomed by the doctor as a partner and by society as a benefactor, he said.

"But don't let present triumphs overcome you" the speaker cautioned. "You not only need to get higher recognition, but you need to have greater educational facilities so that the skill of your profession may increase, and honor to nurses may increase."

Fear that the nurses might get depressed as they look at some of their patients was why the professor gave them his calm and philosophic views on the "muddled and mixed up world, particularly in the realm of moral values", in which they are going to serve. "It may seem to you that moral law is not known or is largely disregarded," he remarked. This, he thought, could be traced to the increased population and increased number of laws, or to a more thorough application of the law.

MORAL WORTH

"Your own personality is the important thing," emphasized Dr. Long. "To be a moral person you must have self-respect." Secondly, he said, "You must become aware of the need to serve others and of their rights and needs in civilization."

The professor pointed out also that 100 years ago there was no real insight into the worth of the human person. Now it is possible for everyone to have this insight. The government gives evidence of it by payment of family allowances and old age pensions and in the promise of a health scheme, he said.

"Responsibility is on all of us to relieve human misery and bring some form of hope to human beings. Society is richer morally because we have a new insight into the worth and dignity of every individual." This principal has been challenged, as by Fascism, but our resolve to resist any attempt of tyranny or to set the state higher than the individual has been effective, the professor remarked.

"Become the most significant person you can in the light of self-respect," Professor Long urged the 30 nurses before him. "If you can respect yourself, don't worry too much about the opinion of others." He went on: "Treat the misery of those miserable so that these persons may also blossom out into personalities."

HUNGRY WORLD

Then again the speaker turned thoughts to present conditions in the world. "The world is terribly hungry," he said. "Two thirds of the population is perpetually hungry and the situation is getting steadily worse." He said that of the entire population 800 million people are under Commnunist rule, 800 million are under Democratic systems and 800 million are undecided. The Communists are not providing food for the hungry, but they are making promises, he said.

"It is the tragedy of our time that we have food but can't do anything about this situation," pointed out Dr. Long. "Our government is giving $25 million a year which amounts to about $2 per person, but it also has food in storehouses which is destroyed because it cannot be used. "Don't tell me you are alarmed at the inroads of Communism, if you only give $2 to stop it."

HOPEFUL THROUGH SCIENCE

The professor had a third phase in his address in which he spoke of "a hopeful world because of modern science." He expressed amazement at the equipment now available to medical science and named the chemist as the key to the future. "Today the chemist is providing us with synthetic foods. He expects shortly to provide all th food that man needs from the ocean." But Dr. Long said he is unsure that "man can do what he can do,"—that he can harness atomic energy to industrial use, etc.

TO THE NURSES

His final sentences were directed to the nurses alone: "You are entering a most honorable and notable profession. Do not by any action sully that profession. You will find that the greatest happiness comes from serving other people."

The speaker, who was introduced by Mrs. Charles Ray, a member of the hospital board, as one of the most popular professors on the campus, spoke with an Irish brogue. He has been a radio commentator and has written a number of articles since his return from service in Italy during World War II.

Mrs. Ray also had a message for the graduates on this day "of greatest significance to them" and they were tendered heartiest congratulations by chairman Mr. Max J. Swanston, who is chairman of the hospital board.

Mayor of Peterborough, Mr. Hugh F. Waddell, who has just returned from attending the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, said to the graduates in his message of congratulation: "Another young lady a few weeks ago took on a tremendous task. Will you let her shining example be important to you, and may you each make the most of your opportunities."

Saltern-White

The marriage took place in Havelock United Church on Saturday of Ruby Illa, youngest daughter of Mr. Mark White and the late Mrs. White of Peterborough, to Raymond Raymore Saltern, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Saltern of Havelock.

The bride wore blue nylon net over taffeta, the full skirt trimmed with white daisies and rhinestones. Her fingertip viel of tulle illusion was caught to a tiara of seed pearls and forget-me-nots and she wore a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. She was attended by the groom's sister, Mrs. William Franklin who was wearing yellow nylon over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of mauve 'mums. The groom was attended by Mr. Franklin.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents with the bride's sister, Mrs. Tegfryn Thomas of Peterborough receiving in a powder blue crepe dress with white accessories and corsage of sweet peas. The groom's mother received in navy sheer and wore white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

DOROTHY DIX:

Woman Likes More Time To Herself

DEAR MISS DIX: Could you give me some information about housekeepers' working limits? I have been keeping house for an old couple for two years and live in. They are very nice to work for, but I am tired of so much confinement. The work itself isn't too hard. They worry if I stay out late, which I rarely do. When I'm not in, getting meals is up to the granddaughter who is 19 and thinks of nothing but going out with her boy friend. She's a nice, agreeable girl, but doesn't care too much for housework. What I'd like to do is visit friends out of town for a few days. The granddaughter said she'd look after the old folks if I went, but I'm worried whether she would not do a good job.

ANSWER: There seems to be a cross current of worry involved in your problem, you being more than ordinarily concerned over their welfare. This would indicate that a strong, personal attachment has grown between you, which certainly would make a mutual adjustment of your problem fairly easy.

Such arrangements as time off should be thoroughly established at the time of employment, and I am inclined to believe that the matter was agreeably settled when you took the job, but that you have not taken full advantage of the privileges.

There seems to be no barrier to your taking a few days vacation, except your own disinclination to leave the elderly folks to the care of their granddaughter. She's perfectly capable of caring for them, even though she may not strike you as a particularly competent housekeeper. Remember, she's quite young, has never had the responsibility of a home, and is naturally more concerned with the preliminaries of establishing her own household—namely, her boy friend—than with the care of one already settled. Give the young lady credit for more ability than you believe she has, take your vacation, and come back better equipped to handle the complications of the old folks. Your employers are fortunate to have such a conscientious worker, and you are lucky in their personal concern for you.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm in the eighth grade at school, and go out on many dates, since I am quite popular with boys. We used to go to early movies, but lately have been going to the home of one of the boys whose parents are usually away. There, the boys smoke and drink, and try to get us girls to do the same. I know my parents would be shocked if they knew what I was doing, but if I object I am called "sissy" and "chicken." What should I do?

B. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There are much worse names that could be applied to you, and you will learn them all by bitter experience if you don't exercise some good judgment right now! Tell your mother what's going on at the boy's house, and let her institute steps to end these jamborees before they end in tragedy. The parents of your companions are certainly lax, and something should be done to awaken them to their responsibilities.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For two years I have gone with a girl and, though we discuss marriage, we have made no definite plans because of lack of money. I'm 26 and she's 23. Recently she received a card from a former schoolmate, now sationed in Germany. A correspondence followed, as he told her of his lonelliness and longing for mail. That part is all right, but she hasn't told him that she's keeping company and he's beginning to get serious.

PETER O.

ENSWER: The girl is being unfair to both her beaux by withholding so important a fact from her correspondent abroad. He, most assuredly, should be told that she has serious intentions of marrying someone else; if she doesn't tell him, it may be assumed that her affections are not as firmly set on you as you believe. Perhaps you're putting her off on the marriage question—a situation that is always frustrating at 23.

THE MOVIE COLUMN:

Peter Lawford Makes Comeback

By BOB THOMAS

His father had just died, and Peter had left MGM after 10 years. No pictures were in the offing for him, and he wondered if his career was all washed up. Then something happened.

His friend, Tony Martin, was appearing at the Orange festival in San Bernardino. The singer induced Peter to accompany him to the engagement. Before one of the shows, Tony asked if he could introduce him to the audience.

The response was tremendous. "I suddenly discovered that the last 10 years weren't lost after all," says Peter.

HAS LEADING ROLE

The English-born actor at present is enjoying a leading role opposite Judy Holliday in "A Name for Herself." He is whipping up a night club act and is going east for a TV whirl. Among his other plans is a picture deal in Europe next fall.

Peter was frank to admit that his career missed the boat in not cashing in on the bobbysox following he had during the early post-war years. He was caught in the same juvenile fancy that swept Frank Sinatra and Van Johnson to national fame.

"But I didn't exploit that following," he remarked. "Part of the fault was the studio's in not putting me in enough good pictures. But I must admit that part of the fault was mine. I was lazy. I was more interested in having a good time than worrying about my career.

"Now it's too late. A whole new bobbysoxers group has grown up. I'll have to establish my career on my own efforts."

Youth Hostels Fill Need For Cheap Tours

LONDON (CP) — The holiday habits of thousands of average Britons have been remoulded to fit economy into the annual wanderlust, reaching its peak each summer.

Intent on going as far as possible on a budget restricted by the times and currency regulations, Britons have turned to shanks' mare and the trusty bicycle to get them around their island and Europe.

The trend has speeded steady growth of a system of hostels offering inexpensive beds and meals.

Since the first hostel appeared in 1929, they have sprung up throughout the United Kingdom within easy travelling distance of each other. The Youth Hostels Association, whose name belies the diversity of individual membership ages, now has more than 420 hostels and a membership exceeding 245,000.

Three-fifths of the association members are under 21 and another fifth are under 30. The remainder run from five to 80. Diversity in the type of traveller is even wider, ranging from holidaying students and professors to typists, laborers and other elements.

Hostel amenities are rough and ready, but adequate.

For from six to seven shillings, hikers, bicyclists or canoeists get a bed for the night, two solid, plain meals and a packed lunch. Prices are cheaper for younger persons.

No one is allowed entrance before 5 p.m. Light go out at 10:30 p.m.; residents must clean, dust and cook and smoking isn't allowed in the sleeping quarters.

The hostels themselves are as varied as their occupants and the U. K. total includes converted mills and former manor houses.

Busiest in this country is the hostel at Stratford-on-Avon.

Destroyer Crusader Now On Way Home

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Canadian destroyer Crusader is on her way home after 12 months' service in Far Eastern waters, Allied navy headquarters announced today.

Vice-Admiral Robert P. Briscoe, commander of all United Nations naval vessels in Korean waters, sent a message to the Crusader, saying:

"Your determination, irrepressible spirit and skill have earned for you the admiration of all. You are a credit to the Royal Canadian Navy and to the United Nations."

The destroyer became amember of the navy "train busters club" after she destroyed one train and damaged two others April 15.

Allow Polish Master To Remain In U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The master of the Polish liner Batory, Capt. Jan Cwiklinski, has been granted permission to remain in Britain, a home office spokesman said today.

Cwiklinski walked off the liner, on which Communist Gerhard Eisler once fled the United States, while she was in a dockyard at Newcastle-on-Tyne, northern England.

Friends smuggled him to London with the ship's doctor, Wieslaw Jacklaetter, who was previously granted political asylum.

QUEEN ELIZABETH wears a light blue coat and a tiny, close-fitting hat as she examines a Japanese double-flowering cherry tree which she planted in the Meadows, a large open park in Edinburgh, Scotland. At centre, wearing ermine robes, is Lord Provost Sir James Miller, and at right is an unidentified man holding the spade used by the Queen. Earlier the Lord Provost presented the keys of the city to the Queen who is in Scotland for state ceremonies to mark her recent coronation.

Quebec Success Due to Water

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC (CP)—Water in bountiful supply accounts in good measure for Quebec's current phenomenal industrial development.

Quebec, publicized for years as the province of peasants and lumberjacks, is becoming known as the province of iron, copper and uranium.

The reason is Quebec's huge north—often referred to as the St. Lawrence river north shore—which geologists call the Laurential plateau. This barren plateau—covered with stunted growth but containing great mineral wealth—is the site of a fabulous water network, made up of rivers, falls and canyons.

Without the water Ungava's iron ore, Gaspe's copper, Chibougamau's minerals, would probably have stayed in the ground unused till the end of time.

HARNESSED FOR POWER

But Quebec has so much water, and it is so cheap to harness it for electric power that Gaspe's copper mines will be powered from a development hundreds of miles away.

So far only a third of Quebec's hydro-electric potential—20,000,000 horsepower—is being used. Canada's total power potential is estimated at between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 horsepower.

Yet production is far ahead of any other Canadian province. Alone Quebec produces nearly half the Canadian total and one-twelfth of world production.

Hydro-electric developments are being started as fast as possible. Planned this year are projects that will cost more than $500,000,000.

Premier Duplessis, aware of the changes the industrial development is bringing to the province, takes special interest in hydro-electric developments, travelling to dam and power plant inaugurations.

Next month he will travel to the Manicougan river, north of the paper town of Baie Comeau, to press a button that will add another 100,000 horsepower to Quebec's production.

BERSIMIS PROJECT

The biggest power developments under construction are those undertaken by the Quebec hydro-electric commission, a government corporation.

Work has begun on a colossal project on the Bersimis river—maps list it as the Betsiamites river—which compares with the Kitimat power development in British Columbia for sheer magnitude.

The world's largest generators will be installed and the second-longest power tunnel dug. A town is being erected in the wilderness to house construction crews and, later on, maintenance staff.

Initially the development will produce 300,000 horsepower but will be stepped up gradually to its potential estimated at between 1,500,000 and 2,00,000 horsepower.

This is the development which, by means of four 31-mile-long underwater cables and another 150 miles of overland power lines, will provide power for Gaspe's copper mines.

Another line will shoot out into the Chibougamau area where prospectors are active.

Recently, Premier Duplessis said hydro-electric developments must continue at the rate of 300,000 horsepower annually if they are to keep up with the pace of industrial expansion.

Attempted Murder Charge Is Laid

CALGARY (CP)—Lottie Lund, 37-year-old mother of two, was charged with attempted murder Wednesday after she allegedly pushed her three-year-old son from the third-storey window of her Calgary apartment.

The child is believed to have suffered a fractured skull, cuts to the legs and shock.

The father of the boy, Ed Klatt, the man with whom Miss Lund was living, was at work when the alleged murder attempt occurred.

Not Identified Driver Freed

Henry Jackson, proprietor of the Speedway Garage was acquitted on a charge of speeding today in magistrate's court when, through questioning of PC William A. Scott, he showed the court there was no proof he was driving the garage jeep when the officer clocked it at 36 miles per hour.

Evidence by the officer also disclosed the fact he had a measured two-tenths of a mile on Water St. N. where Jackson's vehicle was timed.

PC Scott said he timed the jeep from the instant he saw it as it rounded a curve on Water, until it passed him, a distance of one-fifth of a mile. He could not identify the driver, however, and on that ground, the case was dropped.

Sees Bilingualism Guard For Unity

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Adrien Plouffe of Montreal told the Canadian Authors Association Wednesday night that bilingualism is the road to a real Canadian unity—a unity that will guard against Americanization.

"All Canadians should be Canadiens and all Canadiens should be Canadians," he said in his prepared address before the association's convention. Dr. Plouffe is secretary-general of la Societe des Ecrivains Canadiens.

"All the dynamic strength of 'Canada first' would be a great help to our mutual understanding and the most solid stronghold against the overwhelming forces of Americanization," he said.

3 More Tournaments For New Champion

TORONTO (CP)—Marlene Stewart, who became the first Canadian ever to win the British women's open amateur golf championship at Portheawl, Wales, today, will play in three more tournaments before she comes home to Fonthill, Ont., July 18.

She and other members of the Canadian women's golf team will play in these tournaments before returning by plane next month:

The Ladies Golf Union Commonwealth tournament at the Formby golf course, Lancashire, England, June 29; a team match between Canada and Ireland at the Royal Portrush course in Ireland July 3; and a team match between Canada and Scotland at the Gullane course July 8.

EVERY DAY IS LADIES' DAY—"Just a boy and a girl," was all the family Angela and James Wilson of Cleveland, Ohio, wanted when they were married in 1934. But Mother Nature had other ideas and now they have six girls, two of them twins, and no boys. At top are the Wilsons with Judy, 13. Next below are Marcia and Marlene, twins, 9, left and right, with Nancy, 10, in between. Bottom are Susan Jane, 4, and Cindy, 2½.

Through Traffic On Main Street Worst Possible

J. D. Millar, Ontario's deputy Minister of Highways, told a St. Thomas Kiwanis Club luncheon Monday that the only reason parking meters were placed on Talbot St. was because civic authorities were trying to assist local traffic to compete with through traffic.

One of the worst things that could happen to a town or city, he said, was to have through traffic directed down its main street. About 12 years ago when he spoke on this subject, Mr. Miller recalled, he was almost mobbed for suggesting diversion of through traffic from Talbot St. Yet it was no more illogical than to try to have switch tracks and shunting on the main line of the New York Central or some other railway.

"The new express highways are not being built to serve the lands through which they pass," Mr. Miller said. "That old idea is out. These highways are being built to serve the motorists who are paying for them. A modern express highway is a separate world from the land through which it passes and, backed up by Ontario legislation, passed by all parties, we are going to keep it as such."

Forward Brief On Bargaining

BRANTFORD (CP) — A discussion of the provincial government's attitude toward the statutory provisions requiring collective bargaining as defined in the Fire Department Act was held Wednesday at sessions of the 31st annual convention of the Provincial Federation of Ontario Fire Fighters.

The convention learned a brief outlining the federation's stand on the matter had been forwarded to Attorney-General Porter.

Mr. Porter, in reply, had remarked he hoped some amendments could be made to the act to strengthen it as requested by the fire fighters. However, he said his government had been under constant pressure from the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves who were trying to influence passing of legislation which would amend the act to their liking and in the eyes of the firemen, weaken it.

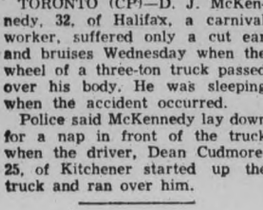
2 Members Of RCMP Killed In Crash

OTTAWA (CP)—Two members of the RCMP were killed Wednesday night in the crash of an Ottawa Flying Club Cessna aircraft in a field near Ottawa Uplands airport.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin. The men are believed to have been on an off-duty pleasure flight.

The aircraft, a single-engined monoplane, was wrecked. The wings were shorn off and the engine torn away.

Truck Runs Over Him But Man Only Bruised



TORONTO (CP)—D. J. McKennedy, 32, of Halifax, a carnival worker, suffered only a cut ear and bruises Wednesday when the wheel of a three-ton truck passed over his body. He was sleeping when the accident occurred.

Police said McKennedy lay down for a nap in front of the truck when the driver, Dean Cudmore, 25, of Kitchener started up the truck and ran over him.

Recover Sunken Gold

AUCKLAND (Reuters)—A British salvage ship docked here Wednesday with 15 more gold bars from the Niagara, British liner which sank off the New Zealand coast early in the Second World War. A total of 24 gold bars—worth an estimated $350,000—have been recovered. Divers plan to go after 11 more believed to be still on the Niagara.

TURN E. GERMANY TOWARD CAPITALISM

ONE DIED AND FIVE WERE SERIOUSLY INJURED in a two-car crash 12 miles east of Peterborough on Highway 7 about 11 a.m. today. In the top left airshot looking east, the swerving eastbound car, out of control (beyond ditch on the left) had passed a third car (marked by the black oblong), skidded as it tried to straighten up, shot across the highway and collided with the oncoming car. General scene of the smash-up from ground level is shown in the lower left photo. Mrs. Frank Wiley of Marmora township (top right photo) received cuts and abrasions and was the last of the six people involved rushed to Peterborough hospitals. Some idea of the crash impact to the car in which Mrs. Wiley was a passenger can be seen in the lower right photo of the front seat against which the right front wheel was driven through the floor to the bottom edge of the seat. —(Harry Oakman and Examiner Staff Photos)

Woman Dies, Five Hurt East Of City

Ottawa Man Hurt Critically As Two Cars Collide

A Toronto woman is dead and five others are in hospital here with serious injuries sustained in a two-car crash at 10:45 a.m. today, 12 miles east of Peterborough.

She is Mrs. Harry Steinberg, 35, of 28 Cherrywood Drive, who received fatal head and internal injuries when she was thrown out of the car she was riding in.

Mrs. Steinberg and her daughter, Judy, were passengers in the 1952-model car, driven by her cousin, Leon Lipson of Ottawa. They were struck by a westbound car driven by Frank Wylie, a Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. employee.

In Civic Hospital are:

Leon Lipson, 30, of 15 Arlington St., Ottawa, a civil servant with the Department of Trade and Commerce. His condition is described as critical. He has a possible fractured skull, facial cuts and bruises.

THREE FROM DISTRICT

Frank Wiley, 46, of Malone and his 47-year-old wife. Both have cuts and bruises and are suffering from shock. Mrs. Wiley has a cut on her forehead, scrapes on both knees and an injured wrist.

Mrs. Steinberg died in the emergency ward after being admitted.

Plans Made Public Spell Collapse Communist Drive

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Russian puppet regime today set up what appeared to be a substitute government to speed sweeping reforms obviously designed to forestall further workers' rebellion against communism. With apparent Soviet approval, perhaps given him as a last chance to survive, the East zone's satellite premier, Otto Grotewohl, announced formation of a special "operative commission" with full power to initiate and drive through measures designed to cool the fires of revolt by improving the lot of the common man.

The commission's job, the Reds said its makeup and size were still being worked out, was in effect to spin East Germany's wretched economy back towards capitalism.

Preliminary plans made public by the Grotewohl cabinet Thursday night spelled the final collapse of the all-out communism drive that started last summer and rolled ahead relentlessly until it bumped squarely into the June 17 rebellion.

WIDE CHANGES

The cabinet ordered the commission to:

1. Strip the government's reserve shelves bare of food and clothing, throwing everything available onto the retail consumer market. This wipes out the traditional Communist "state planning" system.

2. Slash appropriations for war-potential heavy industry by almost half and use the recouped government money for workers' housing, health and welfare improvements.

3. Junk the crop, livestock and food quotas which have forced many farmers out of business, compelled some of the best of them to flee to the West and burned deep fires of resentment through the agricultural belt. Reductions on delivery of cattle, milk, eggs, potatoes and other farm products ranged up to 25 per cent, depending on the size of the farm.

4. Increase old-age pensions and sick benefits.

RAISE WAGES

5. Raise wages for workers who voluntarily increase their production, abolishing the speed-up under the old compulsory work quotas.

Party boss Walter Ulbricht stuck to his Red doctrine of expediency even while bending all his energy to bring about a swing to the right. He said Lenin did the same thing in the early days of the Soviet union when private enterprise was needed to keep Russia from collapse.

French Approve Joseph Laniel As New Premier

PARIS (AP)—Joseph Laniel today was approved as premier of France's 19th post-war government ending the 37-day governmental crisis that has twice delayed the Big Three Bermuda conference.

The official announcement said Laniel had received 389 votes in the balloting which came suddenly this afternoon with hardly any debate on the brief program which Laniel presented this morning.

Only 314 votes were necessary to assure the premiership for Laniel, a textile manufacturer and a member of the Independent party, a small rightist group. He is 63.

Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and Laniel plan to meet July 8 in Bermuda for a conference on the momentous problems confronting the three powers. It had been planned originally for mid-June but was postponed because of French inability to agree on a premier.

WEARIED BY WORDS

Apparently wearied by the torrent of words that have flowed since the political crisis began May 21 with the defeat of Rene Mayer's cabinet, the deputies did not even go through the motions of asking Laniel the usual questions about specific points on his program.

The assembly recessed after his brief speech this morning and held the usual party meetings. When the session was resumed this afternoon, the leaders launched immediately into an explanation of their votes and then got down to the business of balloting.

Laniel went before the assembly with a restrained speech which won him applause from the centre and right-wing groups on which he counted for upport.

Laniel's next job will be to form a cabinet. This is expected to present no difficulties. He will probably call on a number of former premiers to fill key posts and spread the ministries as widely as possible among the political parties.

Laniel's old political and personal friend, Paul Reynaud, is expected to wield great influence in the new government and may be named deputy premier. Georges Bidault has been mentioned as likely to succeed himself at the foreign office.

NEW PREMIER of France is Joseph Laniel, member of a small rightist group in the chamber of deputies. His will be the 19th government since the last war, and his approval by the deputies ends the 37-day political crisis that has kept the country without a premier.

Bee Caused Crash

OAKVILLE (CP)— A bee caused Robert Nelson's car to crash into a truck on a highway near here June 5. Nelson, charged with careless driving, told Magistrate Kenneth Langdon Thursday that he hit the truck when the bee flew through the window and hit him on the cheek as he was pulling over to the side of the road to stop. Magistrate Langdon dismissed the case and told Nelson: "It wasn't your fault."

Dollar Problem For U.S: PM, Drew Calls For Autonomy

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday night that solving the dollar-sterling problem is more a job for the United States than for Canada.

In an Aug. 10 federal election campaign speech on the eve of closing his Ontario tour, he said solution of the problem can come through the U. S. buying more goods from other countries and enabling those countries to import more.

"The U. S. is such a huge market compared with Canada that we Canadians cannot solve this dollar shortage problem of the sterling area and the European nations by ourselves. And don't let anyone fool us with empty promises that we can."

George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, had contended a change in government would "regain" the British market for Canada. Yet during the last four years of Parliament, the Conservatives had produced no "magic formula" to increase trade with Britain, he said.

BLAME PC's INSTEAD

"If they have some method of putting our overseas customers in funds which they have been keeping secret since 1949, then it is the Conservatives and not the government you should blame for failing to solve this problem.

"I am afraid this is just another of their empty promises. And I am sure that the people of Ontario are shrewd enough and practical enough to insist on knowing how the Conservatives propose, in their own words, to recapture these markets. They will want to know what are the bold and constructive steps they intend to take to break the dollar-pound barrier before they are given a chance to try any more blasting."

Coldwell's Wife Dies Suddenly

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. M. J. Coldwell, wife of the leader of the CCF party, died early today at her home here. She was 64.

Mrs. Coldwell's death was unexpected although she had been ill for some years. Mr. Coldwell, on an election campaign tour in Saskatchewan, is returning to Ottawa by plane.

Mrs. Coldwell's illness prevented her from taking an active part in her husband's political life although she retained a keen interest in politics.

She had been a resident of Ottawa since 1935, coming here with her husband when he first was elected a member of Parliament.

She was born in Exeter, Somerset, England, and was married to Mr. Coldwell in England in 1912. She came with him to Smedley, Sask., later moved with him to Regina and Ottawa.

Survivors, besides her husband, are a son, John Major Coldwell, an employee of Trans-Canada Air Lines at Dorval, Que., and a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Cameron of Ottawa.

Duke Steals Show At Inspection

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — The Duke of Edinburgh stole the show today when, dressed in the kilted uniform of a Scottish officer, he accompanied the Queen to a presentation of new colors to Scots troops home from Korea.

The Duke is colonel-in-chief of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders. He wore the red and green yellow-striped kilt of the Cameron clan, green tunic with gold buttons, white belt and red sash, and a blue balmoral hat with a red pompom.

The Queen, wearing a white and yellow summer frock with white accessories, presented the new colors to the 1st battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

QUEBEC (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Thursday night his party stood for "the restoration of the real principles of . . . Confederation" and the defence of provincial rights.

Speaking at an election rally in St. Sauveur district, Mr. Drew said his party also stood for lower taxes, health insurance, improved unemployment insurance benefits and revised labor legislation. The speech was broadcast over a network of Quebec radio stations.

Speaking in French, he said:

"I have been, I am and I shall always be an arch defender of provincial autonomy."

RESISTS ATTEMPTS

He charged the Liberal administration with wanting "to centralize power" in Ottawa, and spoke of his party's determination to resist every attempt further to centralize power in Ottawa.

Provincial rights and financial independence of municipalities were threatened by centralization, he said.

Mr. Drew left afterwards for Montreal and flies to Winnipeg where he will speak tonight, on the first stop of a western swing that will take him [illegible] coast.

Charging the Liberal government with "waste, extravagance and incompetence," particularly in the defence department, the former premier of Ontario who entered political life some 14 years ago, said it was possible to reduce taxation by $500,000,000 without reducing social security benefits and defence expenditures.

ONLY WEAKNESS

Mr. Drew said he did not infer there had been "dishonesty" in the government; there had been "weakness in the administration and that was understandable after so many years in power."

He repeated the party platform he laid down at Guelph, Ont., last Friday to show it was the same in Quebec as in other Canadian provinces.

Speaking of provincial rights, he said:

"Our constitution is threatened more than it has ever been since Confederation.

Eisenhower's Envoy Hints Understanding Near On Korean Armistice Crisis

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—President Eisenhower's special envoy and South Korea's president, Syngman Rhee, conferred at length today and it was hinted later they might reach an understanding on the armistice crisis. The envoy, Walter P. Robertson, U.S. assistant secretary of state, told newspapermen after the 2¾-hour meeting:

"We hope we are making progress in removing misunderstandings." He said there would be further discussions with Rhee, but did not say when.

The Korean public information office quoted Rhee as saying the discussions had been "very good" and that an understanding might be reached.

Beyond that, there were no indications of how much they had eased the crisis created by Rhee's insistence on drastic revision of the armistice terms.

LAST OBSTACLE GONE

The truce teams on June 9 had removed their last major obstacle to an armistice when they agreed on a formula for disposing of Chinese and North Korean war prisoners, refusing to return to Red rule.

However, the expected full agreement was interrupted by the release and escape of more than 27,000 anti-Communist Korean prisoners last week on Rhee's orders.

Rhee insisted his government would never accept an armistice on present terms. He demanded withdrawal of all foreign troops and mutual security pact with the United States as his "minimum conditions."

CLARK VISIT FUTILE

Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander visited Rhee earlier this week, but the 78-year-old president didn't budge. South Korean demonstrations against a truce became larger and early today, U. S. guards killed two anti-Communist North Korean prisoners and wounded another when PoWs in a camp near Pusan made a mass breakout attempt.

On the battle front, 13,000 Communists attacked on the western and eastern fronts, but the major Red blow on the western end of the line was thrown back. In the eastern sector fighting raged on.

After the first conference, Rhee said "Mr Robertson has brought good ideas and our mutual under-

Says Grits Won't Fulfill Promises

WHITEWOOD, Sask. (CP)—CCF leader M. J. Coldwell Thursday night accused the Liberal government of making wholesale promises just before elections and then leaving the electorate with countless unfulfilled promises.

In a campaign address prepared for a public meeting in this town 100 miles east of Regina, the CCF leader charged the government with making excuses in an attempt to justify its failure to carry out promises.

"We have also seen how the government, when alleged obstacles have been removed, wastes no time in inventing others," said Mr. Coldwell. Referring to the CCF platform for a national health insurance scheme, Mr. Coldwell said the Liberal party had been promising such a plan since 1919. A CCF government would undertake without delay a comprehensive country-wide health plan, irrespective of ability to pay. The plan would provide full hospital, medical, dental, optical and other health care with full freedom in choice of physician.

Oshawa Man Killed In Motorcycle Crash

OSHAWA (CP)—Allan Peters, 23, of Oshawa was killed Thursday night when thrown from the pillion of a motorcycle which went out of control and crashed off the highway between here and Bowmanville.

The driver, Bernard Storey, 24, also of Oshawa, suffered head injuries and was brought to Oshawa General Hospital.

Police said they believe Storey swerved the machine to avoid a car.

Five Found Safe After Plane Down

TOBERMORY (CP)—Five persons were safe today after their plane was forced down in Georgian Bay, 100 miles northwest of Toronto.

The five, including a Miami, Fla., millionaire and his two sons, spent the night on rocky, desolate Lonely Island after the plane made an emergency landing Thursday.

The plane, owned by Central Airways in Toronto, was piloted by Gerald Pare. It had been chartered by Gilbert Owen, 40, of Miami. With him were his two sons, Billy, 9, and Richard, 7, and an unidentified woman believed to be the children's governess.

Word that the five were safe reached here today after being relayed by a radio network operating from island to island in Georgian Bay. Further details were lacking.

Truckers' Strike Idles 7000 Toronto Workers

TORONTO (CP) — Construction workers estimated by a union official at 7,000, are idle in Toronto today as a result of a shortage of building materials caused by a strike of 500 ready-mix concrete truck driver which broke out Tuesday.

"If the strike last another week, the number of unemployed will be closer to 15,000," William Mills, president of the striking General Truck Drivers' Union (AFL-TLC) local, said today.

Government Icebreaker Sails From Quebec On Annual Trip To Open Hudson Bay

MONTREAL (CP) — Summer, with its accompanying heat, may be plaguing residents of "southern Canada," but if the heat is getting you down, read this:

The department of transport's icebreaker, N. B. McLean, sailed from Quebec at noon on her annual trip to Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay to open and maintain navigation facilities for shipping. Saturday, another government arctic vessel, the C. D. Howe, leaves Montreal on her annual supply mission to northern outposts.

Primary responsibility of the McLean is to advise shipping of the estimated position of icebergs and icepacks and assist marine traffic in far northern waters.

Her crew will put into operation all lights and aids to navigation required for the safety of incoming ships. This involves the servicing and re-lighting of lights and the re-staffing and re-supplying of all radio and light stations.

Aboard the McLean as she left Quebec were nearly 500 tons of cargo destined for delivery to northern outposts. An additional 184 tons will be taken on at Churchill, Man., where the vessel will refuel for the second half of her patrol.

The vessel, scheduled to return to her home port of Quebec Oct. 7, will visit some 15 outposts along the north shore of the St. Lawrence river, the Strait of Belle Isle and Hudson Strait.

Northern outposts will be visited on both the outgoing and homeward journey of the McLean.

This season, the McLean has a new skipper, Capt. Joseph Wilfrid Dufour, 45-year-old native of La Malbaie, Que., a veteran of government service in the arctic. He was promoted recently from chief officer to master, succeeding Capt. C. A. Caron, who has taken over the department's newest icebreaker, the d'Iberville.

The C. D. Howe, meanwhile, prepared for her 12,000-mile mission that will take her as far north as the Clyde, on the east coast of Baffin Island. There she will rendezvous with the d'Iberville which will push as far north as Cape Herschel, approximately 800 miles from the north pole, where a new RCMP outpost will be established.

Bomb Family Indicates Power Of U.S.

'Rain' of Atom Bombs Of All Sizes Warning To Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gordon Dean has bowed out as head of the United States atomic program with advice to Russia that starting a war would expose her to a rain of U.S. A-bombs "of almost any size."

Dean addressed his final press conference Thursday before his retirement next Tuesday as chairman of the atomic energy commission, a post he has held for four years.

"It would be a great pity," he said, "if Russia started a war because she assumed the United States did not have the power to retaliate to the point of destruction."

PUNCTURES THEORY

Then, in contrast to the theory once held that bombs no weaker than the "nominal" ones dropped on Japan could ever be made—equivalent to the energy released in the explosion of 20,000 tons of TNT—Dean said the U. S. now has a whole family of A-bombs.

He told of "the development of a family of atomic weapons—a family which includes new designs of almost any usable energy release, small or large, and of almost any size."

He suggested it might be helpful if an official indication of the "magnitude" of the U. S. atomic weapons stockpile was given. But he didn't subscribe completely to proposals that the number of bombs be published.

MIGHT HELP CD

Dean also looked at the other side of the picture. He said it might help the civil defence effort, which has been lagging, if Americans were presented with an official U. S. estimate of Russia's atomic capabilities.

Yes, he said in response to a question, he had the information but it was not up to the AEC to issue it. He said that was something for the White House, the national security council and other policy-making agencies to decide.

President Eisenhower has nominated Lewis L. Strauss, a member of the AEC when it was formed in 1946, to succeed Dean.

WHOSE FAULT?—The driver of Winston Churchill's coach at the coronation, Capt. Frank Gilbey, has raised his voice to start off a controversy about the Prime Minister's action in ordering the coach back to No. 10 Downing Street after it had lost its place in the procession on June 2. Capt. Gilbey hotly denies that his handling of the horses had anything to do with the mixup but spectators agree that the coach had lost its place. The incident, which happened outside Canada house was pictured exclusively by Federal Staff photographer James Lynch, who heard Churchill instruct Gilbey to withdraw from the procession.

Two PoWs Killed In Breakout Bid

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—U.S. guards killed two anti-Communist North Korean prisoners and wounded another early today when prisoners in Camp 2 near here attempted a mass breakout, the UN prisoner-of-war command announced.

The command said prisoners in one enclosure made two attempts to break out shortly after midnight. Both were broken up and none escaped.

There were no casualties among U. S. guards.

The camp holds 400 to 600 prisoners, but the command did not say how many were involved in the escape attempt.

The command also announced that five PoWs escaped from Camp 7 near Masan shortly before midnight. No details were released.

U. S. guards first learned of the escape attempt at Camp 2 after they noted prisoners moving "suspiciously in the compound."

standing is being greatly improved."

Pyun said later: "helpful vistas were opened."

Robertson made no comment on that meeting.

Asked to list his "minimum conditions" for accepting a truce at this time, Rhee answered:

"Simultaneous withdrawal of both the Chinese and UN forces from Korea and a mutual security pact to be signed between the U. S. and the Republic of Korea . . . Another proposal is that the political conference (after an armistice) be limited to a period of three months so that if no satisfactory result is agreed upon at the end of that period the armistice will be considered ended."

Asked whether he planned to release the 8,000 anti-Communist North Korean prisoners remaining in UN camps, Rhee said:

"I have undertaken with the UNC (UN command) to have our guards co-operate with the Americans — to prevent further outbreaks."

The UN prisoner-of-war command has already announced that U. S. guards have replaced the Republic of Korea guards at all PoW camps on the mainland.

Asked whether he thought South Korea could fight on alone if U. S. aid were stopped, Rhee said:

"If there is no other way to cease-fire than to sign the truce as it is, then I believe it is best for the U. S. to let the Koreans try to save themselves. . . The Koreans believe they can win the war if they are given the weapons and ammunition and if not, the Koreans want to try anyway."

Asked whether he thought the Allies would sign a separate truce with the Communists without South Korea, Rhee replied:

"I do not think the U. S. will, nor do we ask the U. S. to hold the signing of the truce either on the present terms or with some alteration because of Korea's refusal to accept the truce."

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Eisenhower was reported to have told U. S. Senate leaders he is willing to send any man in the U. S. government to confer with Rhee. He was reported to have said such a meeting should be held away from the electric atmosphere of South Korea, possibly in Japan or Okinawa.

Woman Dies

Her nine-year-old daughter Judy is in St. Jos[illegible]'s Hospital with a fractured l[illegible]r. She is semi-conscious.

Mrs. Cecil Holland, 33, Deloro, is in St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured right thigh bone, a fractured right leg and multiple bruises.

ONE EYEWITNESS

"I was going east on the highway about 10:55 a.m. behind the dark green car," he said. "The driver pulled out to pass a car in front and just then a westbound car came over the hill. The driver ahead of me passed the car in front and cut back sharply into the line of traffic.

"The highway was slippery and I guess he skidded. The back end came around and the car slid across the highway into the northern lane of traffic. The westbound car hit the right side of the skidding car at the right rear wheel."

After it was struck, the Wiley car rolled onto its right side and skidded about 35 feet, plowing a deep gouge in the roadside grass as it continued on in a northeast direction. The vehicle then hit a large tree and bounced back onto its four wheels, right side up, 15 feet from the tree.

The trunk and whole rear end of the 1952-model car were crushed in, the seats were uprooted and the rear door was torn off. Bits and pieces of the car were strewn along the side of the highway and in the ditch.

A fine shower of glass covered the highway for 100 feet east of the point of impact.

STOPPED AT IMPACT

The 1953-model car driven by Wiley stopped almost at the point of impact. The force of the collision drove the whole front end in, almost flush with the shattered windshield. The right front wheel was pushed back against the front passenger's seat.

Read stopped his car and went back to see if he could help. A man, a woman and a child had been tossed out of the two wrecked cars onto the side of the highway. All were covered with blood and moaning.

"I took a woman and the little girl to hospital in Peterborough," said Read. "I don't know who the woman was. The little girl was brave and didn't cry at all."

Three ambulances and a private car took the injured into the two Peterborough hospitals.

The fatal accident ended a proposed holiday trip to Ottawa for Mrs. Steinberg and her daughter. Their cousin, Mr. Lipson, had been holidaying in Toronto for a few days and he had sold some stamps. He is an expert philatelist.

Both windshields were shattered as passengers in the front passengers' seats were thrown forward.

A pair of gold spectacle frames were lodged in the Wiley car windshield where the head of the victim had gone through.

Provincial Police from the Peterborough detachment directed traffic around the accident as other members of the OPP took measurements and completed their investigation. The smash attracted a large crowd of passing motorists who wanted to see what happened.

Coroner Dr. Herbert Young was on hand to determine the cause of the fatality accident.

Seaway Essential Expert Declares

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Brig.-Gen. W. E. Potter, the corps of engineers' man who may be picked to do the job, declared Thursday the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway project "is essential to the welfare of our country."

There has not been a waterway built that has not helped other industry, he said in support of the $818,000,000 project.

Gen. Potter backed the seaway in a talk before the 66th meeting of the Missouri basin inter-agency committee. He is retiring chairman of the BIAC and has been mentioned as the one likely to be designated to build the seaway, joint U.S.-Canada undertaking.

He said the seaway would be paid for by tolls and "since 90 per cent of the traffic would be U.S. traffic, it seems to me we should own one-half of it."

U.K. Golf Writers Pay Tribute To Canadian Girl

LONDON (CP)—With a touch of awe bordering on disbelief, British golf writers pay unstinting tribute today to a new champion, Canada's Marlene Stewart.

"Little Miss Robot" from Fonthill, Ont., the 19-year-old schoolgirl with the grown-up golf game, produced perhaps the most consistent play of her life to win the British women's open amateur championship Thursday at Porthcawl, Wales. And today the writers sing her praises.

"Apart from the immortal Babe (Didrikson) Zaharias, I have never seen anything so coldly calculated and correct as this child," writes columnist Desmond Hackett in The Daily Express.

"GREATEST EVER"

"We have seen a girl who will surely become the greatest-ever woman golfer."

Pat Ward-Thomas, writing in the Manchester Guardian, calls the Canadian star "clearly one of the world's finest players today." The Times correspondent, in an article headed "Worthy Young Champion," says Miss Stewart played "quite exceptional" golf.

The Daily Mail says Marlene might have beaten any golfer in the world "To look at this wonder girl," it adds, "one could not imagine that in her tiny hands a golf club becomes a weapon lethal to opponents."

POSTSCRIPTS

The comments came as a postscript to Marlene's sizzling 7 and 6 victory over Philomena Garvey, Irish champion, in the 36-hole final played over the Royal Porthcawl links. Miss Stewart's victory was the most decisive in more than 20 years.

The record for the 60-year-old British women's open was established in 1922 when Joyce Wethered won 9 and 7 against Celia Leitch.

Golfers from the United Kingdom, New Zealand, Belgium and the United States competed in the four-day tournament. Six other Canadians entered with Miss Stewart did not survive the early rounds.

Dust Clouds Blur Cattle Tracks, Herds On Move

The first "mobs" of a $4,480,000 cattle herd have started their months-long drives to fattening pastures and slaughtering centres.

Caught up by the southeast trade winds, the dust billows from Newcastle waters in the northern territory towards the west Australian seaport of Wyndham. It trails behind tens of thousands of cattle trekking overland across the water-starved Barkly tableland's desert, stone and pasture, towards the lush pastures of Queensland.

Some 150,000 head of cattle will move in the next few months, or double the normal turnoff from grazing lands, because of the drought which brought all stock movements to a standstill last year.

DARING HORSEMEN

Through the dust, mosquitoes and flies, walk and gallop the horses and riders of the droving "plant"—the toughest, most ready to fight and most comradely of Australia's he-men.

The drovers mingle with the laughing aboriginal stockmen classed among the world's most daring and superb horsemen.

With each "mob," averaging 1,250 head, go the 10 to 15 pack horses and 40 to 50 saddle horses. Under the boss drover, there are usually upwards of half-a-dozen men.

Drew Calls

"If the present trend continues, our federal regime will be destroyed.

"That is one of the great questions, one of the essential questions, of this campaign."

Canadian unity demanded respect for principles laid down in Quebec City by the fathers of Confederation in the spring of 1867.

Confederation was "a pact between two great races."

TAKES 78 CENTS

He said the federal government now collected 78 cents of each tax dollar, leaving 22 cents to the provinces and municipalities. To reduce taxation, the federal government would have to stop levying taxes above the figure approved in Parliament.

"Since the war, the present government has levied an annual average of $300,000,000 over the amout approved in the budget by the majority in Parliament," he said.

He promised that his party, if returned to power, would call a special session of Parliament in the autumn to reduce taxes.

Speaking of communism, Mr. Drew said the Liberal administration had refused to adopt laws to render illegal all activities of "Communist traitors," but that, if elected, his government would "introduce immediately laws to protect our democracy."

"We shall not permit these traitors to use the freedom they are enjoying to destroy this same freedom."

FILL STORE SHELVES

As an opening gambit in the drive to reach workers' hearts through their long-denied stomachs, the Reds threw 25,000 tons of meat, 54,000 tons of flour and 15,000 tons of sugar onto the store shelves.

New appropriations for civilians —at the expense of the army, police and rearmament in general—were a clear sign that rearming East Germans instead of feeding them finally had been recognized as a fuse of the revolt.

The Russian Army continued to impose its martial law in the East zone and in East Berlin with nightly curfews and Soviet military might in open profusion for an incipient rebel to see and ponder.

Mr. St. Laurent ran into his first bad weather since he started his tour this week. He spoke to 600 persons during a thunderstorm.

Today, he winds up his Ontario tour by inspecting the Avro Canada plant at Malton, near Toronto, and having lunch with the employees, speaking at a picnic at Oakville midway between Toronto and Hamilton, and then addressing a night meeting in Hamilton, After that he heads for a week-end at his summer home in St. Patrick, Que., which he leaves Monday for a four-day tour of the Atlantic provinces.

He spoke in Owen Sound at the close of a day in which he campaigned swiftly through the constituencies of Grey-Bruce, Bruce and Grey North, speaking from platforms, from beside his train and along the highway as he motored between some points. He visited Chesley, Tara, Allenford, Southampton and finally this city on Georgian Bay.

[illegible] Owen Sound speech, he expressed the hope that full citizenship soon will be extended to all Indians.

"I hope the day is not far off when they will feel the conscious pride of proclaiming themselves Canadian citizens with the rights that go with this," he said.

States Opposing India's Bid To Call Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Over strong United States opposition, India tried today to line up support from a majority of the 60 United Nations for an immediate UN general assembly session on the Korean truce crisis.

Prime Minister Nehru of India told newspaper men in Cairo it was time for the UN to "make it perfectly clear that the UN command is master of the situation and nobody else—not President Syngman Rhee."

Many diplomats here agreed, however, that the U. S. opposition would prevent any assembly meeting until the Americans are ready for it.

PRESSURE ON RHEE

Some observers speculated that Nehru's call for the session, made in a cable Thursday to the assembly president, L. B. Pearson of Canada, was the premier's way of pressuring Rhee to agree to a Korean armistice.

UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold was flying to Ottawa today to discuss Nehru's message with Pearson.

An assembly resolution in April directed Pearson to call the group back into session after an armistice or whenever a majority of the nations agreed Korean developments required a meeting.

Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., said, however, he could imagine nothing more likely to prejudice current U.S. efforts toward an armistice than the assemblu meeting Nehru seeks.

Officials in Washington also said they did not feel an assembly session would be useful at a time when the Korean situation was so fluid. The U. S., they added, does not concede the truce efforts have broken down.

Britain's UN delegation said it felt nothing like a special session should occur until after President Eisenhower has had every opportunity to bring Rhee around or otherwise work out the stalemated truce.

The text of Nehru's cable was not made public, but India's chief UN delegate, Rajeshwar Dayal, told newspaper men Nehru cabled that he thinks "the time is ripe" for the assembly to step in.

In Cairo, where Nehru is visiting Egyptian President Mohammed Naguib on his way home from the Coronation, the Indian prime minister told a press conference that the questions raised by Rhee's actions constituted "too great a burden to be cast on the UN command—They are soldiers after all."

"These are high political questions," Nehru continued, "and the soldier's opinion is valuable, but he should not be asked to decide difficult political questions."

Man Committed On Charge Of Abduction

Despite a simplified explanation of the incident by his defence counsel, Frederick Blaby, 24, 554 Romaine St., was committed for trial on charges of indecent assault and enticing a child from her parents. Bail was set at $7,000.

The charges concern a nine-year-old girl and according to W. J. A. Fair, QC, boiled down to this: "This guy got stewed, picked up a kid, took her for a drive, got stuck, pats her on the leg and gets charged with enticing and indecent assault."

That was the essence of cross-examination but examination of the girl by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, put the matter in a different light.

According to the girl, Blaby who Mr. Fair held up as "a boy, a representative of the male sex," asked her for directions to Park St. as she returned home June 13 from a music lesson. She got in the car and showed him to Park St.

When they arrived, however, they continued up Park and from there to Highway 7. The girl could not explain further how they arrived on a township road in North Monaghan township.

She pushed and slapped him while crying to go home. Blaby tried to get the car started but it was stuck in the mud.

Time passed and they both went to sleep. When they awoke in the morning, Blaby took the girl and they started off along a nearby set of railway tracks toward Peterborough, arriving at Monaghan Rd. about 9.45 Sunday morning.

Blaby's defence argued the enticing charge was not proven enough to warrant committal. Magistrate E. A. Gee decided however, "We'll let the next court have something to do."

Boxing Bouts Held In Lindsay Park

LINDSAY (ENS).—Rain curtailed the card for Lindsay's first outdoor boxing show held at the baseball park last night but the lively action assured the promoters, the Lindsay Kiwanis Boxing Club, of a good crowd at the return engagement for the young fighters two weeks hence. Eight bouts of three rounds were carded by Matchmaker Lloyd Burrows, who with Harry Peirce, had trained all the boys scheduled to appear, except for the visiting 140-pounder from Oshawa.

Two bouts were added from the reserve lists and the fans saw eight bouts in all, before the rains came and made the canvas too slippery for fighting. In the bouts that did go, and receive enthusiastic applause from the crowd, estimated upwards of 300, the results were:

PCs Would Cut Tax By Spending More Money, Garson Declares

WINNIPEG (CP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson said Thursday night Progressive Conservative election policies "appear to consist of a solemn promise to reduce taxes by spending more money."

He spoke at a nominating convention which selected C. R. Simonite Liberal Candidate for Winnipeg South in the Aug. 10 federal election.

"Anyone who believes federal taxes can be reduced by increasing federal expenditures cannot hope to rate as an Albert Einstein," said Mr. Garson.

Earlier in the day, the minister said Canadians have no reason to get panicky in the face of the Malenkov peace offensive or the prospect of a Korean peace.

In an address to the Empre Club of Manitoba, Mr. Garson said highly responsible people believe the Russia leader's tactics marked a shift from military to economic objectives in the Communist cold war.

Compared with the problems which the free world had surmounted immediately after the Second World War, any difficulties arising from the Malenkov peace offensive "look trivial indeed," said Mr. Garson.

Telegram, Guild Sign Contract

The contract, effective July 1, provides weekly increases ranging from $3 to $45, with an average of just less than $9.50. At the top of the 11 age classifications are assistant city editors with a minimum of $120.

The contract, first between the Telegram and the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) affiliate, runs for one year.

Other provisions in the contract provide for disability pensions, checkoff for union dues and three weeks vacation after 10 years service.

A foreword to the contract said it is the first agreement in which a publisher undertakes to consult with the guild on ways and means of effecting economies other than lay-offs in the event the financial stability of the Telegram should be impaired.

SEATTLE (AP)—Rev. V. J. Eylands of Winnipeg, president of the Icelandic Evangelical Synod of America, Thursday expressed confidence the day will come when the Lutheran Church "will speak as one voice."

He said progress is being made, but he doubts that a union will be effected in his lifetime.

Dr. Eylands was here for the synod's first convention on the west coast. The synod is an affiliate of the United Lutheran Church of America. It has churches in Minnesota, North Dakota, Washington, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia.

As a mark of progress toward union, he cited the existence of 20 different Lutheran groups a few years ago, compared with three now. He said varying national backgrounds and interpretations of doctrine have kept the Lutherans apart.

Ambulance Not Slow At Scene Says Owner

An ambulance reported Thursday as having been half an hour late reaching an accident at Trinity United Church was on the scene within little more than five minutes after receiving the call, the owner said today.

He said the "delay" was probably all in the minds of excited fellow-workers of the man hurt. The ambulance was called about 8:50, had taken the injured man to the hospital and was back in the centre of the city by 9:25.

Special Events For Youth To Feature Plowing Match

COBOURG (ENS)—Youth has not been forgotten in drawing up the program and prize list of the international plowing match here October 6, 7, 8 and 9.

The preliminary program and prize list, issued by F. A. Lashley, secretary-manager of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, makes it clear that the Association intends to ensure a continuance of the high standard of plowmanship that has characterized Ontario farming in the past.

Several classes are included at which young farmers of both sexes may exhibit their skill and win generous prizes in the bargain. With schools closed it is certain that there will be some practicing in both horse and tractor plowing in preparation for the big event in the fall.

CASH PRIZES

Competition will be particularly keen, it is expected, in the juvenile competition (classes 23 and 24). Class 23 is for tractor plowing open to boys and girls age 11 to 14. Class 24, tractor plowing for boys and girls 14 years of age and under 16, has cash prizes for the first six. Class 23 will provide five cash prizes.

Reports reaching the Ontario Plowmen's Association indicate that there will be more than usual interest in the inter-secondary school competition, open to one team of two pupils from each secondary school or school area in Ontario. The class calls for two-furrow tractor plowing and there are ten cash prizes.

Other events of interest to the youth of the province are as follows:

Class 4 (horses)—open to boys and girls who have never won a prize in this class or competed in open jointer, ten prizes; Class 5 (horses)—open to boys and girls who have not reached their 21st birthday by November 1, ten prizes; class 8 (tractors, 2-furrows)—open to boys and girls who have not reached their 21st birthday by Nov. 1; class 12 (tractors, two-furrows)—open to boys and girls under 17 and class 13 (tractor, one-furrow) open to boys and girls under 20.

Substantial prizes are being offered in Class 16 for horse plowing by boys who have not reached the age of 18 by November 1, ten prizes. Class 20 is open to boys who have not reached their 18th birthday by November 1 and will be tractor plowing with 12 prizes.

For boys under 21 there will be a special tractor class for a prize of a watch and cash from the Bank of Commerce and ten other prizes. Boys under 18 will be able to demonstrate their skill with horses with the first prize winner taking the Ontario Plowmen's Association trophy. There are graduated prizes for nine other entrants.

The T. Eaton Co. is offering a special prize for each boy and girl over 12 and under 15 who completes a land to the satisfaction of the judge, but does not receive a prize.

Has Socialism Served Its Term?

Commenting on Wednesday on Mr. Coldwell's manifesto speech, we pointed out that it contained nothing which looked like socialism. It was pessimistic and defeatist: socialism is optimistic and challenging. We are surprised to find much of the same tone in the British Labour Party's new manifesto, which it calls Challenge to Britain; there is nothing challenging about it. It proposes some further nationalization of industry, and a somewhat greater degree of austerity, but it goes no farther than that. Plainly it is the result of a compromise between Aneurin Bevan's followers and the bulk of the Labour Party. But there is no new thinking along socialist lines in the manifesto, and we are tempted to ask, Has socialism come to the end of its tether?

* * *

This is not the same thing as suggesting that there is no room for further social and economic reform. It suggests merely that the type of thinking we call socialist, and which has been an influence in political life for about 125 years, has run its course, and that the world has learned its lessons.

* * *

The question with any political party in Britain, Canada or the U.S. today is not, Shall we have socialism? It is, How much socialism shall we have? A surprising amount of socialist legislation on the statute books in Britain was put there by Conservative and Liberal governments. In our own forthcoming election the two old parties are bidding for popular support, and the coin they are using is the coin of socialist reform. The plain fact is that we are all socialists now, whether we like it or not. Generally, when we get it, we like it well enough.

* * *

But if the socialist vein of thought is exhausted we cannot look to it for further reforms. We must be grateful to it for the jolt it gave the old parties, and the way in which it put an edge on their thinking. In Britain, socialism seems to have killed the Liberal party, for the borderland which divides Liberalism from socialism is broad and vague. In Canada, socialism, partly from abroad and partly home grown, has made both our traditional parties strongly conscious that socialism is the only current coin in political circles today.

* * *

If anyone should protest that socialism has been torn from the hands of the workers, and adapted to the uses of professional politicians of the middle class, let them look more closely at the history of this mode of thought. Its earliest leaders and thinkers were not workers, but middle-class thinkers. Robert Owen, an industrialist, John Ruskin, an aesthetic philosopher, Shelley, a poet, William Morris, a poet—these are the names of a few of the men who made the socialist bullets and fired them. It was the creed of intellectual revolutionists long before they taught it to the workers. The workers' best effort in that direction was Chartism—an effective but very limited movement.

* * *

We must look for our next political advance from the same sort of people—thinkers and dreamers. And no one with a keen political sense can deny that we need a new political point of view. Socialism we have mastered and by the end of the present century socialism will have gone farther than any of us now dream. But in the meantime we need new advances in our political philosophy, and it seems clear that the Labour Party and the CCF have nothing new to offer.

The Ivory Tower

The deliberations of the Canadian Authors' Association are always of interest, and our fancy was caught by some advice which Dr. Adrien Plouffe of Montreal gave to that assembly in Toronto on Wednesday. Literary persons, he said, should come down from their ivory towers "and condescend to step down to the level of the common man." Arts, letters and science, in his opinion, should be brought to the people.

This staggers us, for we know quite a few Canadian writers, and not one of them lives in anything which we should dream of calling an ivory tower. Most of them have jobs apart from writing which bring them into daily contact with all sorts of people who are not primarily interested in writing, or who may not be interested in it at all. The writer who separates himself from the world is a Victorian figure, not a modern one. Modern literary economics make such an attitude impossible. And in the Victorian world the best writers were very often those who moved in the main stream of life.

A Canadian writer who supports himself by literature alone is a rare bird. Where he exists he is an extremely busy man, and usually a good man of business. The others, who work as teachers, professional men or men of business see plenty of what Dr. Plouffe calls "the common man", and it never occurs to them that they descend, or condescend, when they talk to their fellow creatures.

There is a paradox in this, however, which is not sufficiently understood. A writer usually mingles very freely with other people who are not writers. (We hate the condescending phrase "the common man," and suspect the good faith of people who use it.) It is part of a writer's job to know all sorts of people. But it is not his job to write for all sorts of people, or to write like "the common man". The very fact of his being a writer by calling implies that he writes better than most people. If Dr. Plouffe wants Canadian writers to write on a lower level than they do at present, we cannot agree with him. We think that the level is too low already.

A writer is primarily a thinker. He cannot think intelligently about people unless he knows people. But it is certainly not necessary for him to write precisely what other people think: his job is to write what he thinks himself, and if he is a good writer it will be something that "the common man" has not thought for himself.

The writer is the servant of the public. But he does not serve by flattering the public, or parroting what the public thinks. It is his job to give the public something fresh—a new look at old problems and sometimes a new look at something quite new to the world. If we were asked for our advice, we would suggest that Canadian writers take pains to ensure that they stay in their ivory towers long enough to think over what they have heard in the market-place.

Good-Bye, Creek; Good-Bye, Dreams?

There is much public interest in the reclamation and preservation of the inherent natural beauties of the Otonabee, Little Lake and Jackson Park Creek. Therefore, readers who have not seen the goings-on at the creek as it comes to King Street, will be interested in the following report.

First: the new Federal Building's property runs to the creek bed. The foundations of the building itself do not encroach on the creek, but the walls of the heating plant being built behind it do come right to the brink of the creek.

Secondly: south of this government property, also on the west bank of the creek, much filling has been done, willows and shrubs cut down, and the creek bed narrowed.

Thirdly, and this is most shocking to the eye and damaging to future prospects of the creek: the creek is being made to disappear as it comes to the bridge. The willows which rather prettily used to screen the disorder behind it have been cut down. Their large trunks have been set horizontally along and up the creek bed, and fastened by big boulders and wire. Above them them branches, gravel and other fill have been dumped. The purpose of this is to create a new building site where formerly the creek banks and even the creek bed were. As a result, the creek verges have been laid bare, the banks made high and vertical, and the creek bed has been reduced to half its former width. In fact, the bridge on King Street, north side, is now wider than the entire creek and bed. In another year or two this process could be extended, so that the creek disappeared from view entirely, its water being carried by a conduit under buildings.

Thus these three new developments together are likely to prevent forever any public enjoyment of the creek in that down-town area. There are some persons in this city taking a long view to the future. They hope that pleasant public views or paths can be developed along the creek, between one city block and the next, with here and there a bench and a narrow bed of flowers. This is easily possible in many central sections of the city. However, the work now in progress is very likely to dash such hopes. By criss-crossing and judicious use of shrubbery and fill, a most delightful waterside public path seemed possible between Charlotte Street and the mouth of the creek at Townsend. The prospect becomes more remote with every load of fill which is dumped on the creek bed at King Street.

It is important to realize that the Jackson Park creek is not public property most of its way through the city. Private persons own not only the banks but the bed of the creek. Thus, one private owner has possession of both banks at the north side of the King Street bridge. There seems to be no law to prevent his doing what he likes with the creek banks and bed, so long as his action does not create a public nuisance. However, building permits are still within the control of the city. Further, there are occasions and circumstances when the law will recognize public good as more important than private good.

We have no recommendations to make. We wish merely to call this matter to the attention of the Peterborough public and their elected Council.

LONDON LETTER

Churchill In Form

By ROBERT MILLER

THOSE who still talk about the early retirement of Sir Winston Churchill will have to do some more thinking. The British Premier has never been in such form as he is at the moment. Far from wilting under the added burden of dealing with international affairs during the absence of Mr. Anthony Eden, the Foreign Secretary, he seems to have taken on a new lease of life.

One reason, I think, is that the Foreign Office is one of his few departments Sir Winston has never controlled in his long career, and I suspect that it is one he has always wished to have. He thus looks on the problems before him with a fresh and eager eye. It is work, too, that particularly apepals to him. In foreign affairs there are none of those damned dots that a Chancellor of the Exchequer has to worry about. Sir Winston's mind can range at will over the entire universe.

His preoccupation with international affairs has also had a beneficent effect on the Cabinet. Before Mr. Eden's illness, Sir Winston was inclined to interfere in every department of Government, and not always for the good. That has almost stopped during the past few weeks. For the first time Ministers can get on with their work instead of having to break off to answer long memoranda from their chief.

* * *

ALL THE SAME I find it difficult to understand the complacency one finds nowadays in Government circles. It is, of course, true that the Government's standing in the country is much higher than it was a year ago when the Conservatives seemed to be fumbling into ignominious collapse. It is also true that the plotting which went on among the Conservative Party rank-and-file has come to a end: Sir Winston rules over a contented flock. Wherever one looks, whether it be at home or abroad, the prospect is brighter than it was when the Conservatives were returned to power.

All the same the outlook is full of uncertainty. The international situation may not continue to improve and even if it does, there is always the danger that peace may produce an economic problem of the gravest kind. For the last twelve months the malicious have been laughing at the Labour Party for saying that we should soon have a million unemployed, but, in doing so, they seem to forget that the analysis was not based only on wishful thinking. The gold and dollar reserves of the sterling area are certainly larger than they were, but even now it is doubtful whether they would see us through even a minor recession in the United States.

There is also another factor that people sometimes leave out of account. Up to now the trades unions have loyally co-operated with the Government: indeed, one of the striking successes of Sir Winston's Cabinet has been Sir Walter Monckton, the Minister of Labour. My impression is that opinion in the unions has hardened during the past few months —that Sir Walter will need all his tact and commonsense when the autumn comes. The great test will be over the engineers' claim for a rise in pay, and my information is that the crisis will come towards the end of August or the beginning of September.

"HAVE YOU," Dean Swift is once supposed to have asked a farmer, "have you ever known any good weather in your life?" Some of us have had those words in mind during the last week or so. Coronation Day was an affair of umbrellas, mackintoshes and since then almost every event has been spoilt by the weather. It has not only been wet but so cold that I have sometimes had to have the electric fire on during the middle of the day. Rain has drenched the crowds up to see the London decorations. It spoilt the last two days of the first Test Match against Australia. And the glossy lawns of Ascot were turned into a quagmire.

Because of this pitiless downpour the decorations in the London streets no longer look so cheerful as they did a fortnight ago. Yet the sightseers continue to pour into London. The latest figures show that on Whit Sunday 5,376 passengers went on a tour of the Coronation route from the Victoria coach station. A week later this total jumped to 9,724; on June 7, a Sunday, the number was 8,064 and since then has varied between three thousand and six thousand according to the time and the weather.

Most of these people come from far afield, but there have also been a steady stream from the London suburbs. Returns covering fifty suburban points show that from May 24 to June 11, 166,362 had come in to see the decorations.

* * *

SOME INTERESTING facts have just been published on how much the social services cost this country. After all the legislation we have had since the war, it comes as a surprise to find that in 1938 Britain was spending 9.2 per cent of the national income and that, taking the figures for the last financial year, this has risen to only 11.5 per cent. Unfortunately, statistics are seldom very satisfactory and one soon discovers that the percentages I have given do not really tell the full story. One per cent of the national incomes today amount to no less than £135 millions, so that the two points increase over 1938 represents a very considerable sum. In fact, the cost of the social services has gone up from £527 million in 1938 to £1,680 millions at the present time. Even that is not a complete figure since it leaves the housing subsidies out of account. Before the war the local authorities spent only £57 millions on housing. Britain is now spending more than five times that amount on housing— or just under £300 millions a year.

No Aid To Trade

(Christian Science Monitor)

The nine Prime Ministers of British Commonwealth countries who have just held a week-long conference in London agreed, according to their communique, "that no opportunity should be lost of composing or at least easing the differences which at present divide the world." This is construed as an implied support for Sir Winston Churchill's proposal of a four-power meeting with Soviet Russia.

The reasoning could be extended somewhat further. It is quite widely agreed that the democracies in the world must maintain economic and military strength if they are to deal capably with international communism. It would be a contribution to that strength if Britain and the sterling bloc could so improve the worth of the British pound that it could be made freely exchangeable into dollars. But that cannot be done so long as Britain and the Commonwealth countries are unable to sell to the United States enough goods to earn the dollars that would be demanded.

HEAD FOR THE HILLS, HERE THEY COME!

Elections For Canada

(NEW YORK TIMES)

THE date of the Canadian general elections has just been set for August 10 by the Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. All signs point to August being a good choice for his party, which has now ruled the Ottawa Parliament uninterruptedly since 1935. As in Britain, Canadian Governments have five-year terms, but an election can be called sooner if the Government is defeated or if the Prime Minister wishes to seize an opportunity.

The chief opponents, the Progressive Conservatives, are hoping wistfully that in Canada, as in the United States last year, it is "time for a change," but it will have to be a rather extreme change, considering how strongly the Liberals are entrenched. The Conservatives have no Dwight Eisenhower to run. George Drew, the leader of the Opposition, is an honoured and honourable man with a good record, but he is not a widely popular national figure.

In fact, as one goes west two splinter parties come into the picture, the socialist Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (C.C.F.), which controls the provincial government of Saskatchewan, and the Social Credit party, a curious blend of religious fundamentalism and political conservatism, which runs Albert Province and controls the Government in British Columbia.

Last year the tide seemed to be turning, for in five provincial elections only one—in Quebec—favoured the Liberals. However, there were three provincial elections this month—in Nova Scotia, Manitoba and British Columbia—which gave a different picture. The Liberals showed continued strength, although some ground was lost, the C.C.F. showed weakness in all three elections, and the "Socreds" were strong only in British Columbia.

Canadians like to confuse outsiders, and perhaps themselves, by voting one way in provincial elections and another in federal elections. So Americans had better keep an open mind until August 10, knowing that whatever happens it will be the same old friendly and co-operative Canada it has been for many a long year. This time, at least, there will be more interest in the United States than ever before, for Canada means more than ever and is a greater country than she was even so short a time ago as the last general election in 1949.

At Ten Miles A Minute

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

AIR SPEED RECORDS are fragile things, made to be broken.

Take, for illustration, the case of those 45 American stratojet bombers which flew recently 3,120 miles, non-stop, from a base in Maine to a base in Gloucestershire, in England.

Fifteen in each of three days flew the Atlantic, each day at quarter-hour intervals, and they landed, we are told, with the precision of taxicabs meeting a train. But they toppled the speed records, three times in a few hours, and when the last of the 45 had checked in the record stood at five hours 22 minutes for the U.S.-Britain crossing. It worked out at 575 miles per hour, and the machines carried battle loads of dummy atom bombs.

At the same time a British jet bomber set a new official record of four hours 26 minutes, or 510 miles per hour, for the east-west crossing of 2,260 miles from Lancashire to Gander airport in Newfoundland. Because of prevailing winds the British-Atlantic flying ordinarily is slower).

Speeds that would have seemed fantastic only a decade ago now are so commonplace as to excite little comment —and of course we have not seen the ultimate.

Clearly, too, progress is being made in the safety factor. It will not have escaped observation that all these 45 American bombers arrived safely; and that all the aircraft of many types, which participated in the Coronation fly-past in London and Ottawa on June 2 landed without accident after those two thrilling performances.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. (Mark 16: 9, 10).

* * *

And, behold two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about three-score furlongs ....And it came to pass, that, while they communed togethe. and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. But their eyes were holden that they should not know him ....And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them. And their eyes were opened, and they know him; and he vanished out of their sight ....

And they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jeruslam, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, saying. The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon. And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you .... And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them. And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. (Luke 24: 13, 15, 16, 30, 31, 33-36, 50, 51.)

Fingerling Salmon

(Vancouver Province)

Both commercial fishermen and sportsmen should be interested in the opinions expressed by Clarence Pautzke, chief fisheries biologist for Washington state, at the seventh annual B.C. convention in Chilliwack recently.

Mr. Pautzke laid particular emphasis on the need for taking care of the "downstream migrant," the fingerling salmon and steelhead that have been hatched upstream and are making their way down to the sea, where they will grow to maturity.

A great many public authorities seem to be sold on the idea that it is all right to approve big dams for power and water storage as long as there is some way for the spawning salmon to bypass the dam.

There are several answers to the sprawning problem but there is no point in hatching out millions of salmon fry upstream if they are destroyed in the blades of power turbines on their way down or killed by being dropped over high spillways.

Here is a problem that the fishermen and the dam builders will have to get together on.

C Of C Meetings Improve World Commerce

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Once every two years the International Chamber of commerce holds a general meeting, as it did in Vienna in May.

Perhaps you wonder what the international chamber does.

If one simply replies that the delegates, more than 1,000 of them from some 30 countries, meet for a week, listen to addresses, hold discussions and pass resolutions, you may feel a bit let down.

For like all conventions it is difficult to put a proper valuation tag on such meetings.

If one tells you, however, that the deliberations will be one of the factors deciding the size of your pay cheque in the coming years, you are likely to be more impressed.

It seems fair to say that if a world situation is created wherein countries may buy and sell with one another in a prospering trade, a large measure of the credit will be due to such organizations as the International Chamber of Commerce.

DESERVE CREDIT

It seems fair to say further that if the United States administration successfully resists local pressures that would establish strengthened trade barriers in that country, a large measure of the credit will be due American business men who support such organizations as the international chamber.

For, tradewise, one of the really hopeful factors in the American scene is that top-level usiness men as represented in the international chamber and in other leading American organizations on the national level, see freer and wider world trade as a necessity if any country, including the United States, is to prosper.

GAIN KNOWLEDGE

The delegates, as they return home, bring back no power to legislate. But they do bring back what they have learned and the understanding they have gained, through personal meeting with men from many countries. They spread what they have learned through the organizations and firms which sent them, and they make their views known to governments.

A practical example of the value of such meetings comes from Herbert H. Lank of Montreal, one of the Canadian delegates at Vienna:

"I feel I can pick up the telephone and talk to some one I known in any part of the free world."

That sort of personal contact is valuable not only to the business executive and to business at large, but also to any one who draws his pay cheque from business. For, while governments may help create atmospheres favorable to the carrying on of trade, the trade itself is created by the initiative of individuals.

W. German Mark Among Steadiest World Currencies

By HANNS NIERBOURG

FRANKFURT (AP)—Five years ago this week the Allies introduced a drastic monetary reform in defeated West Germany and created the Deutsche mark.

The mark has since grown into one of the world's healthiest and most stable currencies. The flourishing economy it supports has topped almost all pre-war production records.

West Germany's industrial production rate now hovers at about 160 per cent of the 1936 level when the country entered a rearmament boom for Hitler's war. There even are prospects that the Bonn republic will capture industrial supremacy in Europe this year.

ERP HELPED

Credited with having brought about this spectacular new development are $1,605,024,000 in United States Marshall aid grants and other American assistance, the industry of the German worker, the Korean war, and a liberal economic policy labelled "social market economy."

The man who introduced this liberal economic policy is Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, now one of the most active campaigners for free convertibility of all European currencies.

International currency controls still exist but at the Swiss exchanges, most sensitive European currency barometer, the German mark remains virtually solid at 4.41 to the dollar, slightly above the official rate of 4.20.

The monetary reform ended a primitive post - war economy in Germany which relied heavily on barter and used the American cigaret largely as its basic "currency."

NEW CURRENCY

June 20, 1948, the new currency was introduced in the Western zones. Old currency and bank deposits were revalued one Deutsche mark to about 16 old Reich marks. Germans were allowed a maximum cash quota of 40 marks ($9.52).

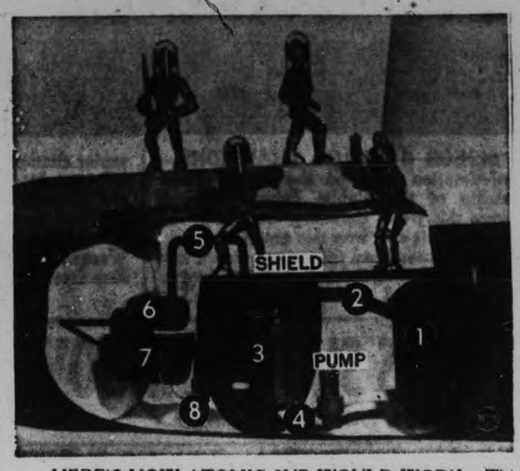
Shortly after, the Soviet zone introduced its own Deutsche mark, now worth about one-fifth of the western version.

There are today more than 1,000,000 jobless in West Germany but authorities say that many of these are over-aged or physically unfit.

The housing shortage will remain for years in a country where 2,000,000 dwellings were smashed by Allied bombs or in battle and millions others damaged.

But despite these facts Germany's bristling economy is highlighted by these features:

Germany tops all European countries in reconstruction and now has a "home a minute" program with a target of 500,000 new dwelling units to be built in 1953.



NATIONAL INCOMEE UP

The national income from 1949 to 1952 rose by 25 per cent and now is at 1,085 marks ($258.23) per capita. At the same time, the government's social contributions for war veterans, unemployed and pensioners rose from 10,900,000,000 marks ($2,570,400,000) to more than 18,000,000,000 marks $4,384,000,000).

From practically no foreign trade in 1948, the Germans bounced up to sales abroad of more than $4,000,000,000 last year. Foreign trade surplus reached an all-time high in April, 1953, with exports exceeding imports by 274,000,000 marks ($65,212,000).

Germany ranks among the world's biggest shipbuilding countries and has increased automobile production more than 300 per cent since 1948.

German steel manufacturers predict that the Ruhr steel output soon will be second only to the United States and Russia. Production records are also expected in the coal, chemical and machine tool industries.

Whale Steaks Back On Menu As Beluga Season Opens

OTTAWA (CP)—The white whale season starts in Manitoba this month, and later in the season Manitobans likely will enjoy thick whale steaks as they have done in the last two years.

The white whale, or beluga, breeds from March to May and disports itself at the mouth of the Churchill river in northern Manitoba. Last year a fish and whale products company operating from Churchill put 4,000 pounds of beluga steak on the Manitoba market.

The official said there was "a possible future market" for the whale steaks, but that Manitobans had not exactly stormed meat counters when it was last offered.

"Like so many foods, people must develop a taste," he said.

MORE EACH YEAR

Since beluga fishery started at Churchill in 1949 the catch expanded from 203 fish that year to 699 in 1952. Last year's catch brought $7,000 into pockets of the white, Indian and Eskimo hunters involved.

The fisheries department said one Eskimo alone brought in 283 beluga last season. Pay by the processing company is $1 a foot length of fish captured. Beluga 10 feet and weigh up to 900 pounds.

Last year there were 28 licensed beluga fishermen.

Hunting is by harpoon and net. Beluga oil drawn off at the processing plant is used mostly in soap manufacture, while the carcass is used for producing quick-frozen animal food. the hunting season ends in September when the northern freeze-up starts.

Atomic Power For Industry Planned By Swiss Scientists

BERN (Reuters) —Switzerland, watching the success already achieved in the United States and Britain in experimental work for the application of atomic energy for power and heating purposes, is considering the construction of an atomic pile of its own.

A decision is expected to be reached this year by the Swiss atomic commission.

Although Switzerland possesses no uranium ore, the material used to produce a nuclear chain reaction, Swiss nuclear scientists have been studying, both theoretically and experimentally, the fundamental problems raised by the industrial use of atomic energy.

Extensive research work has been undertaken by Swiss university institutes as well as by certain branches of Swiss industry.

The Swiss atomic commission, which was set up in 1946, has organized several teams of research workers who have made valuable progress.

The decision by the European council for nuclear research to construct a nuclear laboratory in Geneva will also prove of great use to the Swiss scientists in their research work.

There is, however, some political opposition to building this laboratory and a referendum in which all the inhabitants of the canton of Geneva will be asked whether or not they are in favor of such an undertaking has already received more than the statutory number of signatures needed for the calling of a vote.

The sinking, in which one seaman lost his life, occurred Saturday in thick fog off Thunder Cape when the freighter Burlington rammed the Scotiadoc.

Tireless Drobny Beats Patty Aussies Win Four Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Tireless Jaroslav Drobny fought off six match points and defeated Budge Patty in a Wimbledon tennis match Thursday which required 93 games and close to five hours for completion.

The onetime Czechoslovakian Davis Cup ace who fled his country for political reasons won over the veteran internationalist from Los Angeles 8-6, 16-18, 3-6, 8-6, 12-10.

Drobny, seeded fourth, repeatedly faced defeat at the hands of the unseeded American but each time he managed to pull off some astonishing shot to remain alive. The final turning point came in the 92nd game when Drobny, with a score at 10-10 in the final set, cracked Patty's service.

Top-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia loafed through his third-round set, defeating Ivor Warwick of Britain 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Three other Australians won in straight sets—Lewis Hoad beat J. E. Barrett, Britain, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1; Rex Hartwig defeated Ignace Tloczynski, former Pole who now represents Britain, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3, and veteran Mervyn Rose won 6-4, 6-0, 6-4 over Jean-Claud Molinari f France.

Second-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia eliminated Philippe Washer of Belgium 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, while Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., fought from two sets behind to beat 20-year-old Steffan Stockenberg of Sweden 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, 9-7.

SENIOR SCHOOL CHAMPIONS—Confederation captured the senior championship of the Public School Softball League this week, defeating Central in the final. Confeds also won this group last year. There are colorful tags on horses up this way, too, and many will show on the odds board at Morrow Park in the twilight meet this Saturday eve.

Petes' Trailermen have a busy weekend in the senior OLA schedule coming up. Brampton comes here tonight, weather being okay, in what might be a tight tussle. Thorpe team treks to Orillia on the morrow to tackle the transplanted Toronto West Yorks, and it won't be any cakewalk for either side. Then the thorny Fergus Thistles meander onto the local scene Monday after supper. Also a July 1 game away. So the Petes may look like they're wearing red neckties next week, but it'll just be their tongues hanging out. They are giving 300 free ducats for the Monday game to Quaker fans who are presently enduring a lengthy strike.

It's The Indians' Sport

Acquisition of two young Indian lacrossers from Oswego has made the local Pats a real contender for OLA junior honors now. They showed that with their terrific 18-1 victory in a four-pointer at St. Catharines two night ago. Willie Logan and Ivan Thomas round out a potent pack, strong from the goal out. Not only has the team some real good imports, but there are plenty of classy Peterborough lads in the lineup, Bob Allen having seven points in that St. Kitts' game. Pats play Dundas here Saturday evening and should grab another mph, if they play up to form. These senior gutted-stick aces on tomorrow deserve plenty of support.

Some sports' entertainment is planned at the Bowl d'Ashburnham for the July 1 holiday, next Wednesday. Civic Softball League is staging an open softball tournament, with prizes going to the winners and the runners-up. Also 30 draw prizes for farns. Entry fee per team is five simoleons, and those wanting in should phone Howie Dalton or Fred Maybee by Saturday evening. First come, first served. There might be quite a few teams interested in this tourney, and some fine ball dished up on the big summer holiday. Meantime, the Civic Loop has a twin bill tonight, Foresters meeting Seabrooke's in a replay, and then Police and IOF tangling in a postponed joust.

Steaks And Grid Movies

An enjoyable dinner put on by the grid Orfuns and executive last night at the Aragon. After polishing off big steaks, the bunch sat back and viewed movies of themselves taken last fall by Dr. Chenoweth. He had both their games with Cobourg, the two playoffs with Hamilton, the Canadian semi-final with Montreal, and the final out west with Winnipeg. Quite good, too. Several members of the Oshawa Red Raiders—who have Jack Wedley as coach this year—were on hand, as well as some of the Orillia chaps who helped Orfuns reach the final in '52. Gord Beatty and Wally Farr looked after arrangements for president Dr. Don Atiken's executive and the team.

* * * * * *

Orfuns haven't a coach as yet, but are still on the prowl for one, as Tony Kotowski intimates he'll return to States by fall. Meantime, the local club has accepted an offer for an exhibition game in Ottawa on Aug. 22 against the Ottawa Seconds, farm team of the Rough Riders. This was the team, with Chuck Paul kicking, that beat the Montrealers regularly last autumn but lost out to them in Quebec intermediate "A" finals. There is also a possibility of a football exhibition here Aug. 29, put on for charity by the Toronto Shriners, between the senior Balmy Beaches and an all-Ontario intermediate club comprised of 12 Peterborough starters, 12 from Hamilton, and three each from the other provincial intermediate "A" grid teams. More on it again if arrangements are completed.

Ryerson Team Quits Intermediate Loop

TORONTO (CP)—Ryerson Institute Rams have dropped out of the Intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union, it was announced Thursday.

The exclusion of the Rams will leave the eastern section of the league with only four teams, including Toronto Marauders, a new addition this year. The others will be Cobourg Galloping Ghosts, Oshawa Red Raiders and Peterborough Orfuns.

The western section consists of East York Blue Devils, Oakville Black Knights, Hamilton Panthers and two new entries—Stratford Indians and Welland. The Welland club has not yet been named.

The bathing beach will have life-guards for the day so children may swim in safety. All former members of the Wallace Point Canoe Club are asked to attend for re-organization.

The Peterborough Water Ski Association puts on water skiing and jumping, while the Peterborough Ornamental Swim Club has a retrieving dogs act. Also on the program are exhibitions of bait casting, trick diving, and the canoe act by Herb Cardwell and sons. Pony rides are available for children, and there will be four airplanes on hand for rides. The Sea Cadet Band supplies the music, and St. John's Ambulance Corps will be represented.

Toronto Returns To Top Half, Wins Two Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs took both halves of an International League doubleheader from Rochester Red Wings Thursday night to move back into fourth spot, while the league-leading Montreal Royals fell 9-4 to Baltimore Orioles. Springfield and Ottawa were rained out.

The Leafs downed the third-place Red Wings 9-7 and 2-0, with one of the best pitching duels of the season highlighting the second game.

Lefty Stubby Overmire pitched a brilliant two-hitter—as did losing pitcher Cot Deal—to blank the Red Wings for his first complete game victory of the season. Toronto's two hits off Deal were extra base knocks, both after the Red Wings' hurler had issued bases on balls.

RELIEFER WINS

At Montreal, the contest was halted several times by rain. Ken Heintzelman started on the mound for the Orioles, but needed assistance from Red Herrin in the seventh. Ken Lehman, who started the season like a ball of fire, suffered his fourth loss in 11 starts.

League president Frank Shaughnessy announced Thursday a three-day suspension and a $25 fine for each of three players.

The three are Harry Walker, Rochester playing-manager, for profane language in games of June 22 and 23 at Ottawa; Frank Verdi, Syracuse second-baseman, for abusing and "bumping" an umpire in Wednesday night's game in Montreal, and Tommy LaSorda, Montreal pitcher, for returning to the players' bench in street clothes after leaving the game of June 23.

Billy Reay Quits NHL To Coach B.C. Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Billy Reay, veteran centre with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, said Thursday night he has decided to retire from NHL competition and will coach Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League.

He said he has not yet signed a contract with the Cougars, but will probably do so upon his arrival in Victoria. It is expected the 34-year-old Winnipeg-born Reay will become playing coach.

Sacred Heart Wins

Sacred Heart took a 16-8 Catholic Softball League victory over St. Peter's CYO yesterday. They opened with five runs and got two each in the next three innings and in the seventh, with three tallying in the fifth. The Saints got a run each in the first and fourth, and two apiece in the third, sixth and seventh. Teams:

Sacred Heart: O'Brien, G. Killen, Hickson, Giardino, Lonergan, Caravaggio, J. Killen, Longo, Fitzgerald.

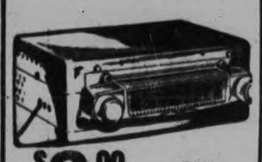
St. Peter's CYO: Armstrong, O'Neill, Ferren, Garvey, Jones, Tobin, Ceresino, L'Hereux, Haynes, Corkery.

Marlene's Win Great Thrill For 19-Year Old Canadian

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Canada's Marlene Stewart can hardly believe she has captured the British women's open amateur golf title.

After Thursday's 36-hole final, the freckled-faced 19-year-old player from Fonthill, Ont., said it was "one of the greatest thrills of my life" to defeat more-experienced, 26-year-old Irish champion Philomena Garvey over the Royal Porthcawl links, 7 and 6.

"I don't think I have yet fully realized I have won," said the little five-foot golfing sensation who startled the Canadian scene in 1950 by becoming the youngest golfer ever to take the women's closed and open amateur tournaments in a single year.



The telephone at her hotel rang constantly.

"I'm thrilled about it all," she said. "It was a great match to win. In fact I'm thrilled about everything."

She added that she hadn't really expected to take the title, but felt confident, when she came over with a team of six other Canadian women golfers for a tour of Britain, that she would make the semi-finals.

"When I did get there, well, I was mighty happy."

Indians Get Fresh Chance To Move Closer To Yankees

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland Indians get another chance this weekend to make the American League pennant race look as though it is a pennant race. In the National League, where it's been close all the way, the lead may well change hands. The Indians, trailing by nine games, renew their one-sided rivalry with the league-leading, but suddenly slumping, New York Yankees in a three-game series tonight in New York.

In Milwaukee, the deflated Braves, who like the Yankees have dropped four straight, collide with the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brooks trail by two games.

The world champions have won seven in a row from the Tribe this season and they look upon the visit of the Indians as a pleasant change from the company of Chicago White Sox. The Sox left town Thursday night after sweeping a three-game set with the Yankees.

BRINGS FEW SMILES

But the prospects of meeting the Dodgers in three games won't bring many smiles in the Braves' camp. Brooklyn won two out of two on its last Milwaukee visit and two Dodger victories this time would cut the Braves' lead to zero.

The White Sox waited until the ninth inning Thursday to pull out a 4-2 triumph. Cleveland blasted Boston 15-4. St. Louis Browns won their fourth straight 3-1 over Washington and Philadelphia finally caught up with Detroit after two setbacks 5-2.

Milwaukee went 12 innings before bowing 6-4 to Pittsburgh. Brooklyn swamped Cincinati 12-3. Philadelphia squeezed into third place by beating Chicago 13-2 while St. Louis Cardinals slipped to fourth in losing to New York 9-4.

Yogi Berra and Nellie Fox traded two-run homers in the White Sox-Yankee game and then Fox opened the ninth with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored as Minie Minoso singled.

HOME ON RUNDOWN

Minoso scampered to third on a hit-and-run single by Jim Rivera. Rivera kept on and was trapped between first and second. During the rundown Minoso broke for the plate, the Yankees switched the play to him but he made it home when a throw by Gil McDougald hit him in the head. Billy Pierce and Harry Dorish held the Yanks to five hits between them.

Larry Doby and Al Rosen drove in five runs apiece in the rout of the Red Sox. Doby hit two homers, a double and a single. Rosen homered, singled and doubled.

Milwaukee took a 4-1 lead over Pittsburgh into the ninth but John Lindell slammed a pinch-hit home run with two men on base to force the game into extra innings.

Johnny O'Brien opened the 12th with a walk, moved to third on a single by Danny O'Connell and romped home when Frank Thomas singled. Thomas scored on Dick Cole's double.

Brooklyn bombarded the Redlegs with five home runs which made it easy for Preacher Roe to register his fourth victory.

Pinch-hitter Bobby Hofman homered with the bases filled to highlight a seven-run New York seventh inning against the Cards.

Woman Trainer Hard Luck Girl

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Judy Johnson, one of the few women race horse trainers in this country, might well qualify as the hard luck gal of the turf.

Judy's troubles started last fall when the Sandy Spring, Md., girl lost all of the horses she had at Belmont Park in a stable fire. Undaunted, she began building up another string of racers.

Early in the Delaware Park meeting, she sent out a horse named Radiola to finish second but her charge was disqualified.

The jinx struck again Thursday. Judy saddled Thomas T. Mott's Beaker, a first-time starter, in a dash for maiden two-year-old claiming horses of the $5,000 variety.

Word spread that Judy was running a "good thing" and Beaker went off the 2-to-1 favorite. The youngster promptly outran a big field, winning by 1½ lengths.

The stewards, however, detected a foul and Beaker was disqualified for bearing out turning into the home stretch.

Judy lost the horse via the claiming route.

Bowler Alters Aussie Score To Modest 263

LONDON (Reuters)—A spell of three wickets for six runs in 10 balls by John Wardle, Yorkshire's left-arm spin bowler, changed Australia's total from 190 for two to a modest first day score of 263 for five in the second test cricket match which opened at Lords Thursday.

While this disaster was overtaking the Australians, their diminutive captain, Lindsay Hassett, was receiving massage in the dressing room for leg cramp which just previously had caused his retirement after scoring 101.

Hassett had played a painstaking if chancey innings and he was helped by lefthander Neil Harvey in a second-wicket stand of 125 in 179 minutes.

Harvey was unusually restrained but he delighted the crowd of 30,000 with some grand square cuts and cover drives, and when he had scored 12 he completed his 1,000 runs for the tour.

Alec Bedser, who moved the ball about in the heavy atmosphere, Wardle whose successes capped some sustained accurate bowling, and Freddie Brown, a former England captain, were the pick of England's bowlers. They plugged away on an unhelpful pitch and were supported by keen fielding.

Panthers Boost Way To Top With 3-1 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers Thursday night boosted themselves to the top rung of the senior intercounty Baseball League ladder—a feat they were bound to do.

The Panthers jumped in front of London Majors, who have been leading the league for much of the season, by defeating the sixth-place Guelph Maple Leafs 3-1. Mel Duncan allowed only three hits and coasted to his seventh triumph.

Meanwhile Galt Terriers snapped a four-game losing streak when they handed Brantford Red Sox a 3-1 defeat. At Waterloo a St. Thomas game was postponed due to wet grounds.

DELAYED BY RAIN

The Kitchener-Guelph game was delayed briefly in the fourth inning by rain. In this inning the Leafs switched pitchers from starter Lew Fauth to Tom Clarke. Clarke lasted until the sixth when southpaw Marty Philp came in.

A single by catcher Harry Psutka drove in one Kitchener run in the first inning and the Panthers added another in the third. The third Panther run was scored in the sixth on a sacrifice and two wild pitches. The Leafs scored their only run in the seventh on three hits.

Pete Koval, newly-acquired southpaw, made his first start with Galt worthwhile by scattering six hits. Heavy showers also stopped this contest for about 10 minutes.

SCORING TOUGH

While the Terriers had trouble making the most of their 13 hits, they managed to score once in the second inning on a walk, a single and an outfield fly. They scored the other two runs in the fourth on Gerry Cline's home run and four consecutive singles.

Out of league headquarters in London came the report that Oshawa Merchants continue to pace the league's batting averages. The Merchants have a team hitting mark of .299, 40 points ahead of the second-place Waterloo Tigers.

In individual hitting, Oshawa's Ted O'Connor remains on top with a .435 mark, nearly 60 points better than teammate Butch Lawing, who has .367.

CHAMPS KNUCKLE DOWN—These two youngsters came out on top after battling rivals from all over the United States in the National Marbles Championship at Asbury Park, N.J. The champs are Jerry Roy, 13, of Huntington, W. Va., and Arlene Riddett, 14, of Yonkers, N.Y.

Montreal Meet To Offer Preview Or Empire Games

MONTREAL (CP)—A good slice of the 1954 British Empire games at Vancouver will come into long-range preview Saturday when some of Canada's top performers and half a dozen British stars show their stuff in the eastern Canada track and field championships.

The meet will be held in St. Lambert, across the St. Lawrence from Montreal, under auspices of St. Lambert's Canadian Legion.

A six-man Oxford-Cambridge team is on hand following appearances in the United States. The team is captained by Chris Chataway, president of Oxford University Athletic Association. He will run in either the Coronation mile or the three-mile run. It was Chataway who pushed England's great Roger Bannister to a 4:03.6 mile this spring.

If Chataway goes in the mile, he will have contention from such recognized performers as David Law, a teammate; John Ross of Oakville, Ont., and Montreal's Jack Alexander.

Gord Crosby of Toronto and Keith Holmes and Ivan Livingston of Montreal will meet Britain's ace hurler, Harry Whittle, in the timber gallop.

Toronto's representation will include Tom Skimming, Runnymede Collegiate star, Murray Cockburn, Don Aitken, Norm Williams and Doug Richardson.

Montreal's Jack Carroll, Holmes and Livingston will be joined by such recognized track men as Ross MacNab and Sandy Spence, along with a flock of buding newcomers.

Performers from Cornwall, Hamilton, Detroit and Schenectady, N.Y., also will compete.

In the women's events, Eleanor McKenzie and Shirley Eckel of the 1952 Canadian Olympic team, both of Toronto, and Rosella Thorne Montreal's Olympic sprinter are entered.

TKO In Tenth End For Collins

BOSTON (AP)—Listless and uncertain Tommy Collins of Boston, obviously suffering from the mental after-effects of his 10-knockdown beating two months ago by lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, lost to Teddy (Redtop) Davis of Hartford, Conn., by a technical knockout decision in 1:29 of the 10th and last round Thursday night at the Boston Garden. Both weighed 128¼.

Davis, an extremely fast swinging but light punching veteran, put Collins down for a nine-count during the first minute of the fifth round and then, again with a barrage of lefts and rights to the head, flattened him just before referee Eddie Curley halted the bout.

Collins, slow and uncertain most of the way, managed to show flashes of his pre-Carter bout form in only three of the rounds. Most of his left jabs went clear over Davis' bobbing head.

PARKING BY CARD TRICK—All that's needed to park in this unattended, self-service, Chicago parking lot is a card, but the trick lies in having the right card. The card, a specially imprinted card key, is inserted in a electronic device (arrow, top photo), that "reads" the card and then lifts the gate allowing the motorist to park. A close-up of the "reading matchine" is shown below. To prevent counterfeiting, the card keys are changed each month.

Eisenhower Sees Free Voting For Satellites

BONN (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the recent anti-Communist revolts in East Germany "will be felt throughout the Soviet satellite empire."

He expressed the hope that this might persuade the Russians to permit free elections in their zone to reunify divided Germany.

The president expressed these opinions in a note to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer assuring him of U. S. support for Adenauer's proposals to reunify Germany "in peace and freedom" through free nationwide elections.

Adenauer had appealed for such support in similar telegrams sent last Sunday to President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and France's acting premier, Rene Mayer.

Churchill sent Adenauer a reassuring reply Thursday. Today Mayer also sent from Paris assurances that he would "spare no effort" to help re-establish a unified and democratic Germany.

Both Eisenhower and Churchill said they felt the safety and freedom of the Communist-oppressed people of East Germany depended on their being reunified with the people of West Germany on the basis of a free ballot.

Both referred to the last tripower note to Moscow on the German question, Sept. 23, 1952. This note stated that Britain, the United States and France favored "an early four-power meeting—which could take place in October—to discuss the composition, functions and authority of an impartial commission of investigation with a view to creating conditions necessary for free elections."

The Russians, who have consistently refused to permit a United Nations elections commission to investigate their zone, never answered this note and the suggested October meeting never developed.

Fear Extension Of U.S. Curb On Agricultural Imports

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Through a combination of embargoes, quota restrictions and higher tariffs, the United States tightens her import barriers July 1 against cheese, milk and other agricultural products.

Trade officials estimate the new curbs may reduce Canada's trade with the United States by more than $2,000,000 a year.

Canada in 1952 sold the United States about $2,750,00 worth of the dairy items hit by the curbs. After July 1, officials estimate, the shipments may be reduced to about $600,000 a year.

The drop may not be large when compared with Canada's over-all $2,300,000,000 exports to the U.S. last year, but officials see other implications in the move.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

The dairy restrictions, they fear, may be the beginning of curbs in other categories of American imports.

Prime Minister St. Laurent in his opening election speech June 22 said high-tariff exponents in the U.S. are gaining strength. He added:

"The utmost vigilance and the greatest available wisdom and skill will be needed if Canada's interests in greater trade are to be promoted successfully in the U.S. and elsewhere in the world."

Under the new curbs Canada's small American cheddar cheese market will be cut by half. The American market for dried buttermilk will be cut to one-twentieth of the 1952 size and its dried whole milk market virtually eliminated.

Canada shipped about 1,500,000 pounds of chedar south of the border last year. Officials consider Canada will be fortunate if she gets in about 700,000 pounds a year under the new curbs.

FAR-REACHING CUT

Import quotas for the whole world will be cut to 2,780,000 pounds a year from 9,500,000.

Canada's dried buttermilk market likely will be chopped to a few hundred thousand pounds from 11,386,000 last year. The new curbs set the quota for the world at 496,000 pounds.

Canada shipped about 1,500,000 pounds of dried whole milk into the U.S. last year. The new world quota is 7,000 pounds—a virtual embargo and the end of Canada's U.S. market in that product.

Other world quotas under the new curbs:

Butter — 707,000 pounds; dried cream—500 pounds; dried skimmed milk — 1,807,000 pounds; malted milk products—6,000 pounds, flaxseed and linseed oil—an added ad valorem tariff payment of 50 per cent of the product's value, on top of normal American tariffs—another virtual embargo.

DRIED SKIMMED MILK

Canada may get a good share of the dried skimmed milk quota, but practically no part of the butter quota since she never has been a big American supplier. She is not interested in the dried cream or malted milk product markets and the "eye-drop" quotas will discourage anyone from getting into that field.

She has flaxseed to ship, but the new tariff makes trade prohibitive.

The new curbs go into effect under a proclamation issued by President Eisenhower under section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustments Act, replacing section 104 of the Defence Production Act. Section 104, the cause of protests by Canada and other exporting countries, expires June 30. Congress said it will not renew it.

Canada has made unofficial plans official protests on the new curbs, but the U.S. has an answer. The major problem in the U.S. is heavy production and rising surpluses in government warehouses. To let the U.S. import guard down would undoubtedly invite more stockpiling, more price-support on American surpluses.

These American surpluses are "considerable," says the trade department and it concludes that it may be "some time" before Canadian exports to the U.S. "improve."

Lacked Licence, Truckers Fined

CHATHAM (CP) — Disregarding a defence argument that Ontario has no control over inter-provincial transports, Magistrate Ivan B. Craig convicted three Ontario transport operators Thursday for hauling freight without a public commercial vehicle licence.

The three, Fred Norton, Stoney Creek; Bruce E. Gould, Beverly Hills, and W. A. Snider, Toronto, were each fined $20 and costs.

Pleading guilty to a similar charge, Biggar Brothers' Transport, Winnipeg, was fined $200 and costs. On a charge of failing to register their vehicle they were fined $50 and costs. Both fines were the maximum provided.

Evidence was that the three operators, associated with the North Star Transport Co., Ltd., Toronto, were engaged in hauling freight between Eastern and Western Canada.

PCV Inspector John Scullion, Toronto, said that when he stopped them near Chatham, only Norton had a PCV licence and his cargo was beyond the restriction of his licence. The other two had no licences. Inspector Scullion said the department issues a Class D licence for inter-provincial transports.

He also testified that the number of trucks engaged in inter-provincial hauling without licences has increased considerably in recent months.

In registering the conviction, Magistrate Craig found that the operators were hauling freight on Ontario roads, where the province has jurisdiction, without the required licences.

'Worse Than Savage' Man Jailed For Year

SUDBURY (CP) — A Levack, Ont., man, Ernest Langille, convicted in magistrate's court here of assault occasioning serious bodily harm, was described Thursday by Magistrate W. J. Golden as being "worse than a savage." He was sentenced to a year in jail.

Langille, after a drinking party on June 17 in the Levack house of M[illegible] Wilson, attacked another man, Emil Lapansee, knocking him unconscious with the butt of a rifle. Mrs. Wilson said he then hit her with the rifle twice, once while she was carrying her baby, trying to escape.

As she fled the house, she said, Langille fired a shotgun at her, the pellets slamming into the wall.

Name Dates For Advance Polls

OTTAWA (CP)—Advance polls will be held for servicemen and some types of civilians in connection with the election Aug. 10.

Besides the service voting in the week before the election date, restricted groups of civilians and the RCMP will be able to vote on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday immediately before polling day.

Results of the service voting will be available Aug. 17 to be correlated with the Aug. 10 civilian vote. The count from the other advance polls will be added to the general results election night.

Besides the RCMP, those entitled to cast votes in the civilian advance polls are commercial travellers, fishermen, persons employed on railways, ships and air services and members of the reserve forces going to training camps.

Under the Election Act, these groups are entitled to advance polling privileges only if they are likely to be absent from their polling division on election day in the course of their duties.

The advance ballotting—which takes place at 235 special polls—normally is relatively light. Only 11,000 votes were registered this way in the 1949 election.

Russ Shot 20, Tanks Carried Bodies In City

BONN (AP)—Russian soldiers shot down German anti-Communist demonstrators in industrial Magdeburg, then bound their bodies on tanks and drove through the city in an attempt to cow the population during last week's uprisings in East Germany. Twenty persons were killed there in one day's rioting.

This was reported in letters received by the West German government from the Russian zone and published today in the official information bulletin. The government said it vouched for the authenticity of the letters.

The letters stated that widespread strikes and riots against the Communist government occurred for three days, beginning June 17, through the great industrial triangle of Saxony-Anhalt which includes such cities as Magdeburg, Halberstadt and Quedlinburg.

The disorders flared after the population heard of the explosive riots of June 17 in Soviet East Berlin which touched off the zone-wide rebellion.

On the same day, letters related, "tens of thousands demonstrated in Magdeburg."

"Russian troops and German Communist People's Police fired on the crowd. Approximately 20 persons were killed, including some policemen. Thereupon the bodies of the slain Germans were bound on tanks which drove through the city.

"An armed policewoman shot two children and the crowd turned on her and literally trampled her to death."

Lineman Misses Death After 4,000-Volt Shock

HAMILTON (CP)—A hydro commission lineman narrowly escaped death this morning when a dead wire on which he was working came into contact with a live wire and 4,000 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Other workmen applied artificial respiration to the injured man, 24-year-old Malcolm McKay of Kitchener, for more than a half-hour before he regained consciousness. He was taken to the Hamilton General hospital.

McKay who started work with the hydro commission on June 22, was working on the ground at the time of the accident.

Thunderstorm Lashes Buffalo, Power Off

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A violent thunderstorm with winds up to 70 miles an hour lashed Buffalo Thursday night, causing power failures in three hospitals and hundreds of homes.

The storm followed a day of record heat with the 1879 record for the date of 89 degrees bowing to a 91-degree reading.

Scores of electric wires were ripped from poles by wind or falling trees and branches.

Doctors and nurses at Mercy hospital cared for emergency patients by flashlight, used hot water bottles to warm babies in incubators and released oxygen by hand to patients in oxygen tents.

The storm lasted only a few minutes.

Minor Tornado Slashes At Kent County

CHATHAM (CP)—A minor tornado hit Kent county during the night, flattening a barn and smashing several trees near Guilds, 20 miles southeast of here.

The twister ran for about a mile through the county after high winds and electrical storms damaged hundreds of trees and flattened wheat fields.

Cowering behind the wall of a barn, a horrified Ukrainian immigrant, Walt Bojko, described the spiral which narrowly missed him seconds after knocking a nearby barn from its foundations.

"I see it . . . like a big funnel . . . all white, across the road. I hid behind the wall. I was scared. I could see out the door of the barn. I hear it coming. A big whoosh. Lots of light and thunder," Bojko said. "It knocked down a tree . . . it went right on to Rondeau Bay."

Henry Hunter, 15, and Jim Solway, 12, two school boys who were bicycling along a road about a mile from the Santavy property said "it was white and looked like a funnel spinning around."

The barn was lifted off its cement foundation and dumped into the foundation without injuring several cattle in it.

Hydro, county and township crews worked throughout the night clearing roads. Damage in wheat fields may amount to thousands of dollars.

"THE WHOLE FAMILY SHOPS AT"

Black's of PETERBORO

121 YEARS OLD—The city of Stratford, in southwestern Ontario, founded 121 years ago, is celebrating Old Home Week from June 28 to July 5. The Shakespearean atmosphere is strong in the city of 39 industrial plants, dominated by railway shops, furniture and fabrics manufacture. It was named after the Warwickshire market town where The Bard lived. A bust of Shakespeare is in the beautiful Shakespeare Gardens along the Avon river. Noted also for its hockey, it was here that the late Howie Morenz, one of Canada's all-time hockey greats, stepped out of junior ranks where he was known as the "Stratford Streak." (CP Photo.)

ON BANKS OF AVON—Swans patrol the slow-moving Avon river which flows through the city of Stratford in southwestern Ontario, celebrating Old Home Week June 28-July 5. The Shakespeare Gardens, among the finest in Canada, straddle the river which 121 years ago was responsible for the choosing of the townsite when a grist mill was built beside it. The Shakespearan Festival, with some of Britain's brightest theatrical names and with top Canadian actors in support, will be staged in a theatre near the Avon starting July 13. (CP Photo.)

Old Home Week At Stratford

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The Shakespearian atmosphere which has surrounded Stratford since its founding is being cast aside briefly this month when the city celebrates its 121st birthday with an un-Shakespearian Old Home Week.

Stratford got the Shakespeare tag when it was founded by the Canada Company, responsible for most of the colonization of southwestern Ontario. Thomas Mercer Jones, a commissioner of the company, is credited with naming it after the Warwickshire market town where the Bard lived.

But between June 28 and July 5 Stratford, just as any other Canadian community of homes and service clubs, schools and factories, is calling back its old friends and citizens to see how it grew from a hamlet of 39 to a manufacturing city of 19,218.

FESTIVAL FOLLOWS

That will set the stage for the Shakespearian festival of Canada which will bring thousands here between July 13 and Aug. 15 to see some of the theatre world's top stars. The festival has already brought Stratford world-wide publicity.

Old Home Week visitors will find it a city of 39 industrial plants, dominated by furniture and fabrics manufacture. Stratford's industry, turning out everything from piston rings to steel culverts, began with a grist mill, its first plant.

Stratford's citizens like to think of their park system as one of Canada's finest. Development began 49 years ago and in subsequent years municipal authorities called in top planners. One was F. G. Todd of Montreal who completed the Dominion government's Rideau improvement plan in Ottawa and designed Winnipeg's Assiniboine Park.

The Todd plan centred on the Avon river with a riverside drive. Through the years gifts of property have been added to the system until now the park area totals 125 acres.

BEAUTIFUL GARDEN

A feature of the system is the Shakespearian garden, where flowers mentioned in Shakespeare's plays grow alongside North American varieties the Bard never heard of.

Four years ago the Sons of England across Canada gave Stratford a bronze bust of Shakespeare by the Canadian sculptor, Cleeve Horn and it was unveiled in the garden.

Strangers to Stratford will find the Shakespeare atmosphere predominant. Even the city's wards are named Falstaff, Romeo, Hamlet, Avon, Shakespeare, Juliet and Anne Hathaway.

But to many Canadians, Stratford is associated with another kind of figure. It was here that the late Howie Morenz, one of Canada's all-time hockey greats, stepped out of junior hockey ranks where he was known as "the Stratford streak."

Morenz went into the big time and scored 270 goals between his National Hockey League debut with Montreal Canadiens in the 1923-24 season and his death in 1937.

Officials Abroad Denied Vote, Some Don't Like It

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada denies the vote to between 2,000 and 3,000 of her official representatives abroad and some of them don't like it.

In fact some move may be made during the life of the Parliament elected Aug. 10 to end this situation, one which has already led to informal discussions in government quarters. No action is possible before this election because the Canada Elections Act must be amended and only Parliament has this power.

So there will be no vote Aug. 10 for the diplomatic, consular, trade, immigration and other official staffs which carry on Canada's business in roughly 50 different foreign countries.

The main reason for this is the fact that it would be quite an administrative job to work out a system which could cover so many small and scattered groups, get each man or woman voting in the proper riding, supervise the voting and get the ballots back in time.

TRAIL NOW BLAZED

But this sort of trail has already been blazed for the armed forces and the growth of civilian representatives abroad is strengthening the arguments of those who feel they, too, should have a vote.

The situation reaches the point of anomaly, say, in London where military members of the Canadian staff will have a vote in August while Canadian civilians who work beside them won't. In Hannover, Germany, members of the 27th brigade will vote but members of the Canadian immigration staff can't.

The armed forces, working with the chief electoral officer, are establishing two main overseas election headquarters, one in Kure, Japan, the other in London. These will funnel back to Ottawa the votes of some 20,000 members of the services now serving abroad.

Woman Sent To Asylum For Assaulting Son, 3

CALGARY (CP)—A 38-year-old mother of two children, Mrs. Lottie Klatt, Thursday was committed to mental hospital for observation after she allegedly threw her 3½-year-old son Bobby out of a window of her third floor apartment Wednesday.

Police said the boy struck a ledge, which partly broke the force of his 30-foot drop. Hospital officials said his condition was serious.

A charge of attempted murder was reduced to causing grievous harm.

Wed In Greece City Man Brings His Bride Home

Married in his home village near Tripolis, Greece, May 10, John Mousmoules of the Churchill restaurant arrived in Peterborough with his bride on Tuesday. They flew from Athens by way of Rome, London, Scotland, Goose Bay, Montreal and Malton, in flying time of 26 hours.

Mr. Mousmoules stretched into nearly five months his first trip home last February in 24 years to visit his mother, three brothers and two sisters. Shortly after his arrival there, his mother introduced to him the charming girl who has left her own home in Greece to reside in Peterborough.

"Conditions appear to have improved greatly since the war," Mr. Mousmoules said. "The world knows of the defensive agreement between Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia. It is still an unpleasant memory that the Greek children who were caught up and carried off by Yugoslav raiders have not been returned to their homes, that is with the exception of a small number.

NEED ARMY

"The government in Greece feels that they have to maintain an army of 150,000 men. That takes a lot of the money that could be spent on improvement of the country. At any rate, Greece is still free."

Some of the young men of towns and villages would like to come out to the United States and Canada. "Jobs are very few in the smaller places. These young people find work on farms, but after the harvest there is not much for them to do."

Low Flier Grounded

KINGSTON (CP)—Ralph Gaulin, a student pilot at the Kingston Flying Club, has been grounded for five years by the club for low flying over the nearby village of Millhaven and Wolfe Island, officials said Thursday.

SHIPPING COBALT BOMBS— Bound for Europe and England to aid in the battle against cancer and other malignant diseases two Cobalt Bombs—the first ever sent from this continent—are loaded aboard the Swedish freighter Borgholm in Montreal. One will be assigned to a hospital near London, another to a hospital in Italy.

University Graduates In Agriculture Decline

SASKATOON (CP)—The number of university graduates in agriculture has fallen while the number of graduates in other professions has risen, C. V. Parker of the federal agriculture department, Ottawa, said Wednesday.

He told the annual convention of the Agricultural Institute of Canada that only 250 to 300 agricultural students will graduate annually in the next few years and the federal agriculture department could absorb them all.

Agricultural enrolment now stands at the pre-war level whereas the general university enrolment is 84 per cent higher than pre-war, he said.

The convention endorsed a report on conservation which criticized the federal government for giving water conservation authority to the resources department instead of to the agriculture department, and for authorizing assistance in conservation for major water projects only.

Any real conservation program should be "directed to land use," the report said. Soil and water problems are inseparable.

Cyanamid Official Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—John W. Mackay, 42, assistant general superintendent at the North American Cyanamid Welland plant, died in hospital Thursday. He joined the Cyanamid staff 13 years ago and for the previous 10 years was at Lake Shore Mines, Kirkland Lake. Surviving are his widow and three children; two brothers, Samuel of Virginiatown, Ont., and Neil of St. Simon's Island, Ga.; and two sisters.

Predicts Violent Changes In Law

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice J. W. Estey of the Supreme Court of Canada said Thursday conception of the law will change as violently during the next decade as it has since the beginning of the century.

Speaking at Osgoode Hall to the graduating class of 147 law students, Mr. Justice Estey said the law must evolve with the needs and customs of society and the new barristers must be alert to these changes.

At the convocation ceremony, C. F. H. Caron, treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, presented the gold medal and the Chancellor van Koughet scholarship to Harry Wolfe of Toronto, top student in the class.

Second student was Richard E. Shibley of Port Colborne, who received the bronze medal and the scholarship.

Foes Of Hanging Raise Cry Man's Innocence

LONDON (Reuters)—Did an innocent man hang?

This question thrust itself into the four-day murder trial of London clerk John Christie. It will move now into the political arena.

Foes of capital punishment in Parliament intend to raise the cry once again that no person should ever pay with his life for a crime no matter how vicious.

Christie confessed to strangling seven women including pretty, 19-year-old Beryl Evans, found murdered with her 14-month-old daughter Geraldine in 1949. Her truck driver husband was hanged the following March for strangling the child.

Today, many Britons were asking whether Christie killed the infant too. The small but vocal band of persons opposed to capital punishment are expected to pick up the war cry.

GATHER NEAR PRISON

For Christie's execution, they will gather outside the prison walls, wave banners and demonstrate as they have done in all past hangings this century.

The new ammunition will be: "If Evans were alive today, would he be granted a new trial leading to freedom?"

Christie was chief Crown witness at the Evans trial. After a series of conflicting confessions, Evans accused Christie from the witness stand of murdering his child. The charge was laughed off then as "fantastic."

At the time of the Evans trial, two of Christie's victims had already been buried in the back yard of his shabby West London home.

Asked twice during the trial this week whether he had killed anyone besides the seven women, Christie sobbed out: "I don't remember. If someone says I did, I must have."

HISTORIC TOUCH—Queen Elizabeth II (centre) hands back the gold and jewelled crown of Scotland to the Duke of Hamilton in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, Scotland. The Queen had just taken part in the "Little Coronation," accepting the crown of the Scots. She is probably the first British monarch to touch the crown. Standing behind her is her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Doctor, Police Rescue Three From Drowning

WINDSOR (CP)—A doctor and two police officers rescued three teen-age Windsor boys who got into difficulties while swimming Thursday in the Detroit river.

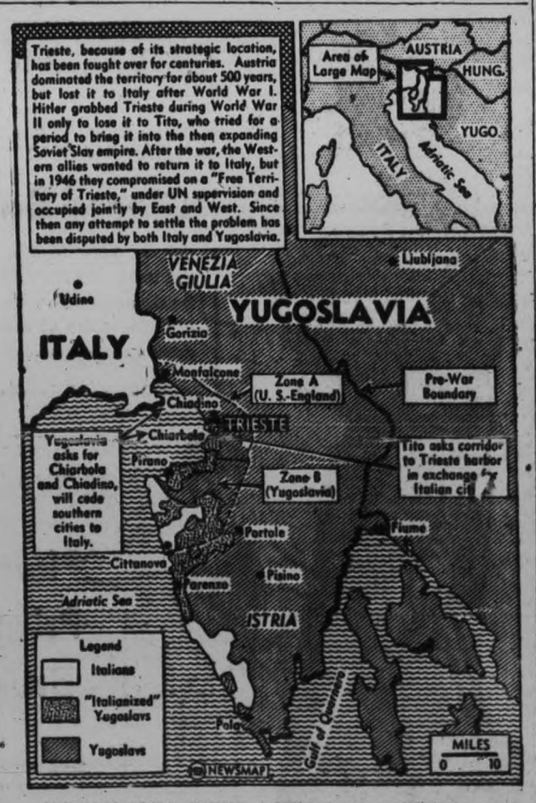
The boys, Dennis Breault and Carl Folas, both 16, and Ted Cheeseman, 15, started to drift down the river while clinging to a log they had found in the water.

Later they lost their grip and attempted to swim to shore.

Dr. Robert Austin and constables William Stevenson and Syd Stuart put out in a rowboat to rescue them.

One Reported Dead On Casualty Lists

OTTAWA (CP) — The army Thursday issued Korean casualty list No. 196, reporting one man killed in action.



He is L. Cpl. Rene Michaud, of South Makwa, Sask., a member of the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

The one-man list brought Canadian casualties so far suffered in Korea to 1,448, including 284 dead, 1,031 wounded, 23 missing, 92 injured and 18 captured.

The navy has reported three dead and three injured in action, and the air force has reported one missing.

Committed To Hospital

STRATFORD (CP) — Deaf-mute Elwood Bailey, 35, of St. Mary's, who is accused of firing two shots at his brother and a police officer, was committed Thursday to a mental hospital for observation. Bailey was charged with theft and obstructing police following a four-hour siege at his home earlier in the week. After 60 days' observation, Bailey will face trial on the two counts.

YUGOSLAVIA SEEKS ACTION ON TRIESTE—Marshal Tito, taking advantage of Premier Alcide De Gasperi's shaky and narrow victory in the recent Italian election, has started pressing for a solution to the Trieste problem. Above Newsmap shows what steps the Yugoslavs want taken to help solve the seven-year-old stalemate. Experts feel that because of the weakness of the Italian government the plan to give Zone A (including the port of Trieste) to Italy is no longer feasible. However, an Italian foreign ministry spokeman said that his country still insists on Trieste's return, which was suggested by the Big 3 in 1948. There appears to be growing support for an independent Free Territory of Zones A and B, under a governor appointed by the UN. This is a feeling harbored by many Triestines who are as apposed to Italian bureaucracy as they are to Tito's communism.

TRIP TO SPECULATION—Members of the Swedish delegation to Korea leave Washington Airport en route to Korea where they will supervise PoW exchange along with other neutral nations' delegates in the event of a truce. Extending the farewell is Swedish Ambassador to the U.S., Erik Boheman (left). Members of the team are Gen. Sven Grafstrom and Brig. Gen Nils Ingvarson.

Simple X On Ballot Can Be Bingled In Many Ways

OTTAWA (CP)—There are any number of ways an elector can bungle the job of marking his ballot, and Canadians may be expected to discover most of them during the Aug. 10 federal voting.

In every general election, tens of thousands of voters manage to fumble the task of marking an X, and there's no indication this time will be an exception.

The simple—and only—way to do it is to place an X in black lead pencil beside the name of a candidate. But up to almost 60,000 people at a time have found this too complicated.

WRONG WAYS

Some of the ways they can go wrong: Using any symbol but a cross; marking for more than one candidate in a single-member riding; using ink or colored pencil; marking the ballot in a way that can identify the voter.

An all-time high of 59,063 lost their votes in 1945 for not marking ballots correctly. However they dropped off to 54,601 in 1949 despite the fact the number voting went up to 5,903,572 from 5,305,193.

Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, points out there is a distinction between "rejected" and "spoiled" ballots. If a voter makes a mistake in his ballot and spots it, he can hand the ballot back and get a new one with the original discarded as spoiled. But if a wrongly-marked one goes into the box a voter cannot obtain a new ballot and it is rejected during the count.

Citizen Gives Trees As Gifts

HAMILTON (CP) — Whenever George Sinclair wants to give someone a gift, he goes into his backyard and digs up a tree. He grows trees from seed as a hobby.

He has given away more than 300 saplings, most of which now are on lawns from Hamilton to Toronto.

A radar inspector at an electrical [illegible], Mr. Sinclair became interested in tree cultivation while overseas with the RCAF during the war. He spent his spare time studying famous forests of England and Europe and talking with those in charge of them.

He began his hobby six years ago despite the gloomy advice of experts who said it was next to impossible to grow trees from seed in home garden plots. But Mr. Sinclair proved them wrong by discovering the secret of tree culture. He plants seeds twice the depth of their thickness for best results.

His backyard contains several varieties of evergreen, spruce and pine, as well as tulip trees, sycamores, elms and maples.

UWO Professor Retires; Elder Physicist

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — One of Canada's oldest working physicists, Dr. Elizabeth Laird, professor emeritus of physics at the University of Western Ontario, has retired—for the second time.

Dr. Laird refuses to say how old she is and university officials say they don't know. One estimate is that she is between 84 and 85.

In 1940 Dr. Laird, then professor of physics and chairman of the department at Mount Holyoke college, retired for the first time. She had been in charge of the department since 1904.

She returned to London, scene of her childhood, and offered her service to the physics department at UWO to help the war effort. At the time the university had formed a team to study radar—a new field, involving new techniques.

Dr. Laird mastered the new, difficult procedures, which were foreign to her previous fields of work, and began research with an energy that inspired, and sometimes embarrassed, her younger colleagues. She made many secret reports to the national research council on her findings.

After the war, Dr. Laird undertook to investigate the effect microwave radiation has on biological materials. This work was supported by the Ontario cancer treatment and research foundation.

Electric, Wind Storms Damage Western Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Electrical storms and winds of more than 70 miles an hour swept across southwestern Ontario Thursday night, snarling hydro and telephone services.

Power failures in some parts of the London, Windsor and St. Thomas districts lasted from a few minutes to two hours.

The forecast for today in southwestern Ontario was mostly sunny and less humid.

A barn in the Blenheim area was flattened by high winds and trees and branches were thrown across highways in Kent county. Three cows were killed near Thorndale when lightning struck a tree under which they had been sheltering. Owner John Colbert estimated his loss at about $800.

CATTLE STAMPEDE

Several herds of cattle stampeded from pasturelands where fences were blown down. London was lashed by torrential rain and gale-force winds. Residents of Ridgetown in Kent county and Grand Bend in Huron county were without power for two hours.

Windsor district was hit by the storm. Earlier in the day, residents of the Windsor-Detroit area sweltered in 90-degree temperatures.

At Amherstburg, three boys were dumped into the Detroit river when their small boat overturned. They managed to reach shore safely.

The storm lasted about 15 minutes at St. Thomas which had heavy rain and high winds. Two large, quarter-inch thick plate glass windows were blown in at a furniture store.

Oil Well Blows In

WATFORD, Ont. (CP)—An oil well came in with a roar Thursday on the farm of Ward Hollingsworth, two miles northwest of here. A sudden explosion of natural gas released from a pocket more than 1,800 feet underground almost demolished drilling equipment operated by Imperial Oil Company. Some oil was flowing Thursday night.

Trucks Kills Child

HAMILTON (CP)—June Danberger, 3, was fatally injured in the Knapman trailer camp on Barton street Thursday when she ran under a milk truck. Sidney Collins, 25, the truck driver, said he did not know of the accident until he stopped at another trailer.

12 Candidates Contesting Three By-Elections

QUEBEC (CP)—Twelve candidates were nominated Thursday to contest three July 9 provincial by-elections, first to be held since Quebec's Union Nationale government was re-elected a year ago.

Five candidates were nominated in Montreal-Outremont, four in Portneuf and three in Matapedia. All three seats were made vacant by deaths.

Union Nationale 66; Liberals 22, Independent 1, vacant 3.

Mr. Lapalme is opposed by Union Nationale, independent Liberal, independent and Labor-Progressive candidates.

In Portneuf, Union Nationale, independent Union Nationale, Liberal and independent candidates are running. In Matapedia, the candidates are Union Nationale, Liberal and independent Social Credit.

NOR SAM HOLLOWAY?

Dr. Ralph Honey's friends who have heard him in his Ramsbottom monologues will be disappointed in the news of his Coronation trip that although he looked about in Lancashire not a sign did he see of Little Alb'ut.

IRISH PRIZE WINNER

A bi-colored hybrid tea rose with copper overtones grown by Mrs. Al Heideman of Lake Chemong was judged the best bloom in the Coronation Rose Show in Peterborough on Monday. The variety originated in Ireland and is known as "Mrs. Sam McGredy".

DAMPENING THE HAY

The field curing of hay in the old fashioned cocks advanced sunnily through the middle of the week, but was dampened by rain that looked familiar on Thursday. More of the same moisture was back on the rural scene today. That means an extra job of forking.

MIGHT BE CANDIDATE

Major John F. Peterson, formerly of Peterborough, is mentioned among six probable nominees for the Liberal candidature in the Elgin county constituency at the nominations in St. Thomas tonight. Mr. Peterson resigned the mayoralty of St. Thomas to go to Korea with the Canadian force, and is now out of the army.

Judge's Grandson Graduates At Osgoode

E. J. M. Huycke of Toronto, member of the graduating class of Osgoode Hall, is a grandson of the late Judge E. S. C. Huycke of Peterborough. He is a son of G. Meredith Huycke, Toronto barrister, and nephew of W. F. Huycke, QC, Peterborough's City Solicitor.

Ed Huycke represents the third generation of the family to enter the legal profession. He starred in football on the half-back line of the University of Toronto, and since then has been with Toronto Argonauts. He has intimated that he will probably give up football for his law practice.

Osgoode Hall convocation was Thursday. Mr. Huycke's father used to play baseball in Peterborough, and is remembered as a clever pitcher.

Resume Negotiations

The meeting in Toronto of representatives of the United Packinghouse Workers of America and the Quaker Oats Co. to negotiate a settlement of the strike of 435 production workers against the Quaker Oats Co. was recessed Thursday. The meeting will resume on Monday. Chairman is James Hutcheon, department of labor conciliation officer.

Canadian People Dullest Says UK Weekly

LONDON (CP) — A British weekly called Truth today blasted Canadians as the dullest people in the Commonwealth.

"How is it," the paper asked, "that Canadians have got a reputation for creating a brave new world when all the evidence is against them?"

The full-page article, signed "Curious Citizen," lists Commonwealth personalities such as South Africa's Bobby Locke in golf, Australia's Sir Donald Bradman in cricket and New Zealand's Edmund Hillary in mountain climbing, and says Canada's record looks dismal in comparison.

Former premier Mackenzie King is dismissed as lacking dynamism. Stephen Leacock was funny, Truth says, but his whimsy is old-fashioned now. Toronto-born Mary Pickford, Deanna Durbin of Winnipeg and Yvonne de Carlo of Vancouver made their mark entertainment-wise, but they did it outside Canada. And Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin, is the only Canadian to rate scientifically.

"My experience of Canadians is that they are Saturday nighters," the article adds. "They spend the week pursuing the dollar. They spend Saturday night tempestuously disposing of it."

Truth, nominally independent but Conservative in outlook, is edited by Vincent Evans, former Fleet street newspaper man. The article bears no signs of a tongue-in-cheek style but the examples given seem to indicate a lighthearted approach.

Union Head Foresees Break In Erie Strike

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Possibility of a break in a strike which broke out June 10 at the Horton Steel Company here was seen today when Ray Barr, president of Local 3598, United Steelworkers of America, (CIO-CCL), called a membership meeting to consider the latest company offer.

Mr. Barr said he could not disclose the nature of the offer. The 253 Horton employees walked out 16 days ago over failure of the company to agree on a new contract. Their chief difference was over scaled increased in the basic rate of pay for "tougher" jobs in the foundry.

WET WEATHER IS NOT HAYING WEATHER but between showers district farmers are working hard to cut, cure and store one of the heaviest crops in many years. Though Peterborough County farmers have pioneered in green grass silage methods, many of them still "put up" hay in the old way. As tractors replace horses and hayloaders relieve the hired man's brawn a mixture of hand and mechanical methods may be seen in the above photo. Nightmare Trip Leaves Baby Close To Death

MONTREAL (CP)—A 10-month-old girl lies between life and death in a city hospital ward today after a nightmare journey through a 300-yard underwater tunnel near Montreal's Lachine canal.

The journey started when a 32-year-old mother fell into the canal Thursday with the baby in her arms. They were sucked into a 45-inch surplus water pipe connecting the canal with the St. Lawrence river 300 yards away.

Three minutes later, after being battered against the tunnel walls, they came out at the opposite end alongside the SS Dingwall. A deckhand, despite a broken arm, slid down a rope and standing on a fender secured hold of the woman.

Meanwhile, the baby, swept down the dock by the current, was rescued by a dock worker who hooked a gaff into its clothing.

The baby was taken to Ste. Justine hospital where its condition is still critical. The mother is recovering in St. Luke hospital.

Name of the woman was withheld.

Spring Wheat Reaches 16 Inches In West

Spring wheat in Manitoba is 16 inches high, averages 12 inches in Saskatchewan and from six to 13 inches in Alberta, as reported today in the CPR crop report.

In Manitoba 98% of the oats and barley seeding has been completed, and the two other prairie provinces report the same general proportion. Rain has been "well above normal", and the west needs more sunshine.

School Board, MOH Sign Medical Services Agreement

The final agreement between the Board of Education and the Department of Health concerning the School Medical service has been signed and school clinics will start in the fall. As yet the Department of Health hasn't received the signature of the Separate School Board concerning the medical service, but it is expected to be signed in the near future. A similar agreement is being proposed for St. Alphonsus School. Although the school is outside the city limits, 90 percent of its pupils are city residents.

A special clause will be included in the agreement to cover remuneration to the Board for service to pupils who are not city residents.

CLINIC SCHEDULE

There will be a special schedule of clinic hours set up. For the first year the nurses and the school medical officer will spend 50 per cent of their time at the schools. There will be eight public health nurses assigned to cover the 16 schools under the plan.

It is hoped to start in the next year a pre-school medical service, for youngsters between the ages of two and five to ease the load on the school medical service, before they reach the school age.

Three Cars, Truck Involved In 2 Accidents

Two minor accidents were reported in Peterborough Thursday, one involving two cars and the second, a car and a truck.

Vincent Gatt, 20, of 284 Roger St., was driving west on Lansdowne when he stopped suddenly for the light at Monaghan. Fred Feest, 36, of 748 Water, driving behind Gatt, could not stop his car in time to avoid striking the first vehicle in the rear.

Damage was estimated at $20 to the Gatt car and $55 to Feest's. PC Sherman Keliele investigated.

Damage totalled $35. PC Robert Muldoon investigated.

Farm Dogs Injured In Harvesting Season

Casualties among farm dogs during the harvest season inspires from the experience of veterinary surgeons a suggestion that during the active sessions of taking off the crop the dogs should be tied up.

After such accidents most farmers rush their injured dogs to a veterinary's office for treatment, but often nothing can be done. From one of the offices today came the mention of dog that lost one foot in a harvest machine may have to be destroyed.

The farm dog is usually at the heels of his owner, and somewhere around the field when work is going on. For these present day hours it would be better as suggested, to put the dog behind the safety of a lock during the operating hours of machinery that has some aspects of danger.

150 Plants Stolen From Cottage

A hundred and fifty flower plants during the weekend were stolen from the summer cottage lot of Dr. M. G. Brick of Windsor. During the last year or so property valued at $50 has been stolen from his Ennismore Township cottage, Dr. Brick told Provincial Police.

The cottage is on the south shore of Buckhorn Lake, two and a half miles north-east of the Ennismore cross.

A year ago, the cottage was broken into and the thief took a tarpaulin. During the winter an old sink outside the building was stolen.

On Sunday, a relative went to the cottage and noticed that the flower plants that were in the garden on Saturday had been removed.

OPP Constables Harold Armstrong and Nelson Rhode investigated.

From The Kids

Pupils of Queen Alexandra School who live west of Chemong Road have lately been receiving the help of Orville McCall who sees that they get safely across the busy highway each day. This week the youngsters who make the daily crossing at Aberdeen Ave., took up a collection and today, their last day of school, Judy Perks was nominated to present Mr. McCall with a shirt and a tie. When he did the same job at Central School, Mr. McCall won the affection of pupils there who presented him with a leather windbreaker when he left.

Swimmers Barred From Little L.

Polluted By Creek MOH Says Around Wharf

The area around the George St. wharf has been condemned for swimming by the Department of Health due to the pollution of the water by the Jackson Park stream which empties into Little Lake.

INDUSTRIAL WASTE

Pollution of the Jackson Park stream is attributed to the emptying of storm drains into the creek and to some small amounts of industrial waste.

The danger area is just in the vicinity of the George St. wharf and a small part of east shore of Little Lake. The Otonabee river and the Jackson Park stream have all been tested twice in the last month. The tests will be repeated twice every month. North from the George St. wharf is safe for swimming, but tests have shown some pollution all along the Otonabee river.

$40 Damage In Hit-And-Run

A hit and run accident Thursday at the intersection of Water and Hunter Sts. resulted in damages totalling $40 to one of the vehicles involved, driven by C. S. Rowe of 201 Barnardo Ave.

The second car was identified by police as belonging to Walter Morgan of 114 Lansdowne Ave.

Rowe, driving south on Water St., stopped for a red light. A second car, westbound on Hunter, swung right around the corner to go north on Water, hitting Rowe's vehicle on its left front corner.

Sergeant C. J. McGillen investigated.

County Farm Notes

Central Ontario Shorthorn Breeders Attend Field Day At Shaw Brothers' Farm, Otonabee . . . Hon. F. S. Thomas, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Three Months Ill . . . 8,000 At First Dairy Day in Province . . . . Quinte District Cattle Breeders Spend $46,755 On Laboratory Building.

The annual field day of the Scotch Shorthorn breeders of east-central Ontario at the farm of Shaw Brothers, Otonabee, Saturday June 13, was attended by farmers and their wives and families to the number of nearly 400. Many of the visitors were interested in other breeds, beef and dairy, accepting the hospitality of the Shaw family at their trim and well managed farm just north of the C. N.R. where it crosses the road extending south from the Mark Burnham estate. At least, seven counties were represented in the crowd.

In its various features, including attendance and program, this field day was in line with its corresponding annual events of the last three years at Louda Manor Farm of Louis Cadesky, in Harvey township, in 1951, and at the Beath Farms, near Oshawa, last year.

Dr. Harold Worton of Toronto, now with the Ontario Departmetn of Agriculture, was at home among a Peterborough district crowd as master of ceremonies. The special speaker was Ross Hay, Toronto, of the Quaker Oats Co., who gave a practical and helpful talk chiefly on two topics of farm and herd management and salesmanship.

Reford Gardhouse of Weston, Canadian and international judge of Shorthorns, was in charge of the judging competitions. Three classes were selected from the Shaw herd, currently of 56 head. Cards were distributed among the women, men and juniors.

The winners were: Women — 1, Mrs. John Miller, Keene; 2, Mrs. F. Stokes, Little Britain; 3, Mrs. F. Donaldson, Millbrook; 4, Miss Barbara Beath, Oshawa.

Men— 1, John Howden, Columbus; 2, Lance Beath, Oshawa; 3, M. Cupples, Columbus; 4, John Slattery, Otonabee.

Juniors: Lawrence Junkin, Lakefield, and L. McLaughlin, Nestleton, tied for first place; 3, John Armstrong, RR 7, Peterborough; 4, Beverley Driscoll, Otonabee.

The three clases were, cows, heifers and bull calves, four animals in each class. All the young stock, except one, were sons and daughters of the herd sire, Louada Crusader, imported in dam from Scotland, by Louis Cadesky, and a later purchase by Mr. Shaw. "Crusader" won his class three years ago at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The three groups were evenly matched, and were not easy to place. Uniformity, size and type were notable, and the heifers were in fine bloom. They were brought out in show fitness. Mr. Gardhouse was in charge of the competition, and gave an interesting talk in explaining his reasons for the official placing.

Seventeen members of the herd were selected for a parade that reflected the quality of the Shaw Shorthorns. Mr. Lou Shaw remarked afterward that he was quite happy about the get of his herd sire, and considered that purchase a good investment. Charlie Dainton, herdsman, at the halter of Crusader, was complimented on the fine appearance of the parading animals.

It was reported that the only other sectional Shorthorn field day in the province this year was at Georgetown.

Mr. Shaw thanked the farmers for their attendance, coming out in an afternoon that threatened rain. He said that they made most of the success of the occasion. He also expressed his appreciation of the help he had received in planning and carrying out the arrangmeents. Mr. Shaw is president of the Peterborough Shorthorn Breeders' Association, and has been active in promoting this beef breed in the district.

This is a preliminary to the Quinte District field day at Belleville, July 22. So far it has been confined to Junior Farmers, but it is now suggested that the 4-H Clubs be brought in for this event.

Immigrant Winner

John Burton, Mossley, who recently immigrated from Holland, proved that he learned something about Black and White cattle in his home land when he won the judging competition held in connection with the Twilight Meeting of the Middlesex Holstein Breeders' Association. Some 425 members took part.

Crop Percentages

Harold Inman's final figures were 95 per cent of the crop went in and that percentage or better of the corn. Some oats are in the shot blade. Wheat looks like a good crop.

Four Generations

The 175 members of the Bruce County Holstein Breeders' Club who were present at the twilight meet held recently at the farm of L. B. Reid, Ripley, were treated to an unusual display. Mr. Reid paraded a four-generation group from his herd which consisted of Loretta Buttergirl Rocharm, with a lifetime production of 187,979 lbs. milk, her daughter Maple Lea Evelyn Buttergirl with 150,000 lbs. milk, her daughter Maple Lea Buttergirl Fern with 116,000 lbs. milk, and her daughter in turn, Maple Lea Starlight Susie with approximately 60,000 lbs. milk.

Dr. R. S. Robertson of Cobourg, and breeder of Guernsey cattle has bought the City Dairy in that town from W. C. Brown of Port Hope. Roy Dodge has been appointed manager, beginning July 1. The Renwood Farms herd has become one of the best in the provice, successful at Exhibitions, and with considerable of the quality of MacDonald Farms, N.Y., in its constitution.

Black And White Way

A reminder of the advance of the season was the first of the 42 county Black and White Days at Maxville, Glengarry. Twenty-two exhibitors parade of 114 head before judge J. A. Minister Recovering

Hon. F. S. Thomas, provincial Minister of Agriculture, looked in at his office a week ago after a severe illness and an absence of three months. He contracted the virus type of influenza that confined him to St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, for many weeks. Only recently has he been able to return to his home.

The Minister was stricken early in March, and one of the first engagements he had to cancel was the opening of the Quinte District Spring Show here in Peterborough. Reports from St. Thomas indicate that the Minister's illness, shortly after succeeding Col. T. L. Kennedy, was induced by accepting too many speaking engagements. For the present, Hon. George Doucett is continuing to act as Minister of Agriculture.

8,000 AT Dairy Day

Dairy Day at the farm of Mervin Shantz, Alma, with 8,000 Ontario farmers present, focussed attention on a pole loafing barn, milking parlor and barn drying of hay. New developments in forage cropping were also demonstrated. Said C. D. Graham, Deputy Minister of Agriculture,: "We in Ontario have ever been in the lead in quality production, and we must not slacken our effort. In that regard the Department knows that it has the support and co-operation of the farmers of Ontario."

Holstein Herd Averages $484

The select Avonbrae Holstein herd of M. O. Johnson, Mossley, Ont. was dispersed June 19 at Glanworth, Ont., the 34 head bringing a total of $16,485 for the excellent general average of $484. Eighteen milking females averaged $583; 5 bred heifers $415; 2 open yearlings $270 and 6 heifer calves $253. Four young bulls averaged $216 each.

The top price of the day was $1250 paid by Fred Stock, Tavistock for Twilight Dorliska Brenda Mercedes, a six year old cow. She was on test and milking up to 96 pounds daily on twice-a-day milking. Mr. Stock also bought a three year old daughter of this cow at $775 while her three months old heifer calf went to Jas. T. Brown, Newcastle, at $300. Mr. Stock also bought another three-year-old at $775.

Robert C. Laning, Waterford, paid the second highest price of $1,035 for the six year old "Very Good" cow Twilight Vale Posch, she with a three year old, three times a day milking record of 951 pounds fat from 22,691 lbs. milk. In addition, Mr. Laning paid $700 for her four year old daughter and also bought a seven year old cow at $920. Mrs. V. Jean Laning, Waterford, paid $560 for a six year old.

Highest price for a bred heifer was $650, paid by S. B. Roman, King, for a daughter of the noted Elmcroft Voyageur M. Jas. W. Carney, Georgetown, bought a heifer at $515 and Jas. T. Brown, Newcastle, a bred heifer at $500. Mr. Brown also paid $355 for a baby heifer calf.

Leo A. Baker, Lambeth, Ont. paid $450 for an eleven months old daughter of the $1,035 Laning cow, this being the highest price for a heifer calf. S. G. Pack, London, secured six head for a total of $2220, these including a three year old at $575 and a two year old at $420. Three head went to J. W. Evely, Yarmouth Centre, Ont., headed by a six year old at $535.

Loose Housing For Livestock

Loose livestock housing for replacement of barns destroyed by tornados in Western Ontario last month are recommended by T. J. Rutherford, director, Veterans' Land Act, Ottawa.

He recently visited ex-service men who are farming in that section of the province. As general advice to farmers whose properties were heavily damaged by winds and lightning, Mr. Rutherford suggested loose livestock housing to men building barns for dairy cattle, and those who were seeking ways to cut production costs.

Facilities he advocated were: Grass trench silos to be used in conjunction with three main barn areas for cattle—one each for feeding, resting and milking.

Main saving, he said, was in labor costs. Seven veterans, established in the area under VLA, who lost barns wrecked by tornado storms and a subsequent lightning storm, were praised by Mr. Rutherford for their progress in cleaning up properties and reconstruction. They are being aided in rebuilding by VLA settlement officers and construction chiefs. Assistance of neighbors to farmers who suffered loss in the storms was "wonderful," Mr. Rutherford said.

Pit Silo Cover Prevents Loss

Superintendent Ernest McFeter filled two pit silos in 1952 at Lennoxville Experimental Station, as reported by the federal Department of Agriculture.

One was left completely uncovered, and the other was covered with dry, uncut hay. In the silo which was filled with cut Japanese millet in the early part of September and left uncovered, losses due to rotting amount to about 15 per cent—a layer varying in thickness from three to four inches.

In the silo covered with hay, no losses occurred in that section of the silo where the silage was covered with moisture proof paper and a layer of dry hay six feet thick, after tramping down the silage.

The report says: "It is advisable then to seal the pit silo in order to reduce to a minimum, losses due to moulds and rotting. Dry uncut hay makes an excellent covering material provided a moisture proof paper is placed on the silage before covering it with the dry hay . . .

The popular horizontal silo is essentially a pit, the bottom of which, at least at one end, lies above the ground level.

It offers advantages, especially for the farmers who do not ensile green hay and wish to learn how, at little expense. The main disadvantage is the necessity in practice of covering the surface with tar paper and a fairly heavy layer of substance such as earth, sawdust, hay, straw, limestone in bulk or bags, in order to reduce to a minimum losses due to moulds.

A layer of earth from six to eight inches, placed over tar paper, is considered the most satisfactory covering for a horizontal silo. Its weight helps to pack down the green ensiled hay, and thus exclude the air from it, but it cannot be easily removed, especially when it is frozen.

Pays $500 Surplus To June Set-Aside

Membership of the Mitchell Local of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producer's Association believes in advertising their products. A few weeks ago they found they had $500 in ther local organization which they felt might be put to use. The promotion of the annual June Advertising Set-Aside by Dairy Farmers of Canthey had $500 in the local organization, gave the Mitchell Concentrated producers an idea for the disposal of their surplus. They sent it along to help swell the Dairy Farmers advertising and puglic relations fund. This contribution was in addition to their regular contribution which will be made through the 1953 June Set-Aside. The Mitchell local has a membership of around 460 shippers of concentrated milk.

Dairy Farmers of Canada officials say that the Mitchell grant was evidence of a growing disposition on the part of dairy producers to support their products with advertising. In addition there is a marked increase across Canada in the participation of local producer organizations in dairy displays at fall fairs, trade fairs and allied events.

Says Litters Thrive In Pasture Of Ladino

"You can trust a sow and her litter on pure ladino," says Peter S. Thompson of Easton, Maryland, in the Farm Quarterly. "Hogs have simple, human-like stomachs and seldom bloat. I don't include any grass in my hog pasture (ladino one pound, red clover eight pounds per acre of pasture)." His litters run on a field only one year; then it goes back into corn, and that reduces the sanitation problem.

This year he raised, as in past years, over 300 pigs and 38 sows on pasture. "It saves a lot of grain," he points out, "up to a third. Saves labor, too. Ladino can supply nearly half the supplement normally fed in dry lot. Young meadow crops are rich in calcium and phosphorous and vitamins in grains are usually low.

"Hogs need quality, not quantity, in range. Our rotation is corn, followed by fall sown wheat or barley, with only one year of ladino, and then back to corn. We get a lot of rain here all winter, so we spread the fertilizer effects by putting it on in two doses. The small grain gets only 200 pounds of 4-12-8 in the fall.

"The next year we cut what we call stubble hay, the new red clover, along with combined straw. The following spring we top-dress with 500 pounds of 5-10-10, and the ladino comes in thick and fast. It holds up well until heavy frosts. We get ten months' grazing that way.

"I haven't found that the usual recommendation for around here of seeding two pounds of ladino per acre is any better than one pound, so that is what I use. You can't beat ladino for hogs. An acre of it is worth a hundred bushels of corn in producing pork, and will carry 17 to 20 grain-fed shoats. Ladino stands a lot of one-spot grazing hogs and bounces right back."

Highways Take 200,000 Acres

When all the four-lane highways are completed they will have taken 200,000 acres out of production, and Ontario has "to get their equivalent," R. H. Graham of the livestock branch of the provincial Department of Agriculture, said at the Ray Weldon farm northwest of Lindsay last week.

That area of new land is not available, so we have to cultivate our own."

That is one factor mentioned by Mr. Graham as impelling farmers to take a closer look at the problem of production.

For every 3,000,000 increase in population, we need 210,000,000 pounds more of beef. That is the equivalent of 420,000 cattle.

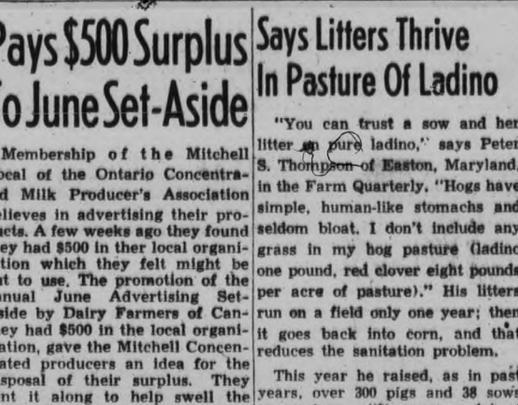
That tremedous herd is about equal to our annual export to the United States.

"What we've got to do is make the land we have produce more," Mr. Graham said.

Still another affecting condition which farmers could see for themselves was the steady encroachment of cities on farm land.

We are living in the midst of change, Mr. Graham said. And, it was a fact that most things that have become common in our way of life have happened in the last 50 years.

"We had hardly any steel before 1900, and I saw my first airplane in Peterborough in 1912. There have been many changes in farming practice, but on the whole agriculture is one sphere that has not had much done to it."



This was the approach Mr. Graham made to the afternoon's discussion of soil improvement and pasture development at the field day on the demonstration farm, one of five in the province selected to find ways of economy in feeding beef cattle.

He said the Weldon farm, which is south of the village of Hartley, was probably in forest 100 years ago. Subsequently the settlers did a wonderful job in clearing the land, and their successors did another big job of "mining" it. In Europe farms have been managed productively for centuries. Farmers have to make every acre count.

Here in Ontario when farms became run down, they were let go to grass. The farm now owned by Ray Weldon has been in sod 40 years. "There are thousands of acres like this in Ontario, and as we see the broadening problem before us, we have to find out what can be done about it."

Land has to be put back into practical use. In the raising of livestock farmers have to produce feed themselves, because that is the cheapest. They have to build up the land again to make it grow more.

Some farmers would be inclined to say that reseeding would be too expensive if it cost up to $50 an acre, but even that was not so much when it was regarded as being spread over five or six years. Mr. Graham said they could produce beef on grass at about seven cents a pound. "Animals on grass live on what you give them."

POLITICAL PULL—A governors' milking contest ended in a draw when Maine's Gov. Burton M. Cross, left, and New Hampshire Gov. Hugh Gregg met on the field of valor. Just why Gov. Gregg abandoned the traditional milking stool is not revealed. The contest was sponsored by the American Guernsey Association at Peterborough, N.H.

Elastic Laws Best Guarantee Of Freedom And Justice

"Mental, moral and physical health, liberty, and correct conceptions of morality and decency can not be transmitted by means of a will."

Thus T. J. Carley, QC, guest speaker at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon, Thursday, opened his speech, "Freedom, Our Heritage."

"Man must curb his absolute freedom if he is to enjoy true freedom and this is accomplished by a system of logical and elastic rules and laws which have evolved through the centuries to become our real heritage. Different systems of government have been devised, ideal states have been thought of since Plato's time, but in practice none have afforded more poltical, economic or social freedom than we have here."

DEMOCRACY ABUSED

He went on to say that, "Problems do exist in this country — the term democracy has been abused; it is the practice not the terminology that counts and we are relying on the state rather than the individual for action, more each day. Although the British government has been agreeable in amending the BNA Act it is time that Canada devised a system enabling her to make her own amendments."

"The Senate, (a legislative assembly) is over-crowded and perhaps not performing all that it should. However, on occasion, a member, independent of the will of others due to his position, will arise and give wholesome enlightenment to the House and the people."

"In the House of Commons so many services are required that it is impossible to debate all arising before the House. There is a tendency in the confusion of trivia that arises, that important matters, which should be examined, are disregarded—only so much can be done. Inexperienced men appointed to office may lean too heavily upon their deputies and this sometimes results in the misuse of power. This is especially noted in the lack of courtesy shown by some civil servants, who after all are paid by the public for service.

SHOULD NOT BE DENIED

"Our two-party system of government is good, but if another party arises with reasonable ideas, it should not be denied. At present the essential thing in campaigning seems to be the defamation of the other party, although in most cases, personal degradation has ceased. I believe that as the country matures," went on Mr. Carley, "both parties' platforms will be respected in so far as they are worthwhile."

Concerning the recent report that four times as many Canadian per capita, as British, receive jail sentences, Mr. Carley suggests that our system of punishment is the cause. The only alternative for a man who cannot pay his fine, at present, is a jail sentence. "I hope that before the Criminal Code is solidified, some means other than a jail sentence will be possible — it is unfair that one man should go free, another to jail, for the same crime because one is in a better financial state than the other."

The problem of the number and congestion of trials was mentioned. "Often cases aren't tried until two or three years after they happened and by that time actual witness reports are not too credible," said Mr. Carley. "Justice delayed is justice denied."

COMMON SENSE

He does not agree with a form of Bill of Rights proposed for Canadians and British. "Frenchmen and Americans receive no more justice from the courts than do Englishmen." He hopes that we will not depend on the written word so much as on commoh sense.

"Trade-unions are doing good, but they are in the factal stage and must acquire a sense of responsibility. A premium must always be paid for merit. Once commonness creeps in and seniority becomes the yardstick by which salaries are slated, the country will be in a perilous state."

"The contemporary opinion that man must be entirely free to do as he pleases, especially while in the development age, (a present theory of psychiatrists) is a grave error. The world is not so protective as a mother. The church and the home must have authority. We need training. We are not a law unto ourselves."

Oliver Says Canada Needs Liberals' Lead

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, said Thursday night Canadians should elect an "internationally - minded" government such as the Liberals.

Speaking at an election campaign rally attended by Prime Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Oliver said the party in power also should be one that would trade well with other countries. It should help in social security and in providing work for Canadians.

"None of us wants the welfare state," he said, "but we want the most social security that our national income can provide with safety."

Remind Senior Officers Kilt Not The Proper Dress

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has quietly reminded a few senior officers, including the colonel, Brig. John M. Rockingham, that they're improperly dressed in what they often do—wear the kilt or its satorial cousin, tartan trousers or trews.

Headquarters is understood to have called their attention to long-standing rules laying down certain dress standards for men promoted above the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

They become general list officers and are supposed to wear standard uniforms that don't identify them with any particular unit or corps of the army.

No order has been put out and it is doubtful that the rule is going to be rigidly enforced in its elimination of kilts. The British Army—possibly fearful of a Scottish revolt—has a similar rule but quietly ignores it. The Canadian violators have simply had their tip that technically they're in the wrong.

The rule applies to both regular and reserve officers.

Brig. Rockingham wore his beloved Canadian Scottish kilt and trews in Korea and after returning from Korea. He was improperly dressed in wearing the kilt as commander of the 25th brigade in Korea because it was not a Highland brigade.

Brig. M. S. (Mike) Dunn of Cornwall likes to wear his Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlander trews as eastern Ontario area commander at Kingston. Col. Harold Cathcart similarly likes to wear his Toronto Scottish kilt as chief at the Valcartier, Que., army camp.

Central Control Suggested For Ont. Prisons

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, Thursday urged "single authority control" for Ontario prisons, but added that great difficulties will have to be overcome before such a plan can be carried out.

Testifying before the Ontario Legislature's select committee studying reform institutions, Col. Basher said the present situation is confusing.

At Toronto's Don jail, applications for jobs as guards are made to the sheriff and his recommendation goes to the department. If an unsatisfactory man is sent to the jail, the governor is not compelled to accept him. He "can report to the sheriff that the guard is unsuitable, can put him off duty, but can't actually fire him."

Col. Basher said a guard was fired for "gross neglect of duty" in the escape of two prisoners from Guelph reformatory June 7.

He said the guard had seen the two men climbing a ladder outside the building but took no action. The escapees, C. Aubin and Robert Majeur, were captured the following day near Toronto.

The committee adjourned and fixed July 6 as a tentative re-assembly date when members will visit Burwash prison farm near Sudbury.

Pupils Present Gift To Teacher Leaving

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Under the supervision of their principal, Mrs. A. O'Donnell, the pupils of Young's Point School held a surprise party Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Spencer, who is leaving the school this year.

Jean Freeburn read an address, while Lois Lloyd, Edward Dunford, and little Peter McFadden presented Miss Spencer with a cup and saucer, a hand-painted vase, and a birthstone ring.

Miss Spencer thanked the pupils and expressed her regret at leaving them. Following this a short program was held, consisting of songs and readings. The afternoon was completed with two ball games.

Recording Instruments Only Mourners As Innards Of Reactor Laid To Rest

CHALK RIVER (CP)—The story of Calandria's funeral was officially told Thursday, a weird, other-worldly tale of how atomic scientists removed and buried probably the biggest radioactive object man has handled.

In one long piece of delicate and grotesque surgery, the deadly 24-ton aluminum tank — officially known as the calandria—which long held the guts of the world's best atomic reactor was lifted from the broken-down reactor and conducted to its grave.

The details were issued weeks after the event by Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, Canada's atomic chief.

HEARSE A GRADER

Can-shaped Calandria's coffin was a giant canvas bag to keep any loose, radioactive parts from dropping off. Its hearse was a towing grader. Its grave consisted of a huge hole in the ground covered by heaps of sand. Its final salutes came from recording instruments which agitated wildly as it went by. Its attendants were supervisors who drove ahead in cars and health surveyors who drove along behind to see if Calandria was shedding dangerous radioactive contamination.

Everybody else kept out of sight.

Even the main gate of this secretive atomic project stood unguarded for the first time in years as the funeral procession went through: this was probably the "hottest" corpse ever buried in Canada. The radiation field around it was equal in strength to that from half the radium ever produced.

NOBODY HURT

But nobody was hurt, mainly because the whole thing was handled with care and every action was rehearsed beforehand.

This unique event in the world's atomic experience was one of the last stages in the dismantling of the insides of the NRX reactor which broke down in December but now will be rebuilt better than ever—an important precedent in atomic engineering. It was a precedent because the five-year-old NRX was the first important reactor to reach the point of collapse.

The weeks since have shown, among other things, that work can be carried out safely in radiation fields once thought too strong for human safety.

Bushmen Find Plane Deserted; Lost Year

QUEBEC (CP) — Bush country men on the St. Lawrence river north shore have found an "almost intact" passenger plane abandoned by its passengers and crew, it was reported here Thursday night.

A reliable informant, who declined to be identified, said hunters have appeared in Natashquan, small north settlement about 600 miles from Quebec, with "numerous pieces" of wreckage.

It is believed here the aircraft may have been one lost over the Atlantic or Labrador as much as a year ago.

It was believed that the passengers and crew remained there for some time and then set out on foot through the wild bush country.

Alta. Gas To Aid Eastern Canada

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Alberta natural gas will be of tremendous advantage to Eastern Canada, if brought east in large quantities and on a sound economic basis, David P. Rogers, president of Union Gas Company of Canada, Ltd., said Thursday at the company's annual meeting.

He added, however, that Alberta gas will not be "cheap gas" in the areas of Southern Ontario served by Union Gas.

He said surveys indicate that the average cost of Alberta gas laid down in Eastern Canada will be between 57.7 and 71.2 cents per thousand cubic feet. He added:

"Our cost of purchased gas at the present time is between 30 and 35 cents per thousand cubic feet.

"But I am speaking only of the Union Gas system, and not of other areas in Eastern Canada where no cheap supply of natural gas now is available."

Prices quoted by Mr. Rogers are wholesale prices to distributing companies and do not include the cost of distribution.

Self-Government Not Yet For Territories

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—The Northwest Territories Council received proposals Thursday for new steps towards local self-rule in Canada's north but was told the day for full self-government is not in sight.

The speech from the throne, read at the opening of the fourth meeting of the "little Parliament of the north," asked the council to clear the way for Yellowknife itself to have a fully-elected council and mayor instead of the partly-appointed, partly-elected board of trustees that rules now.

This would make this lusty mining town of 3,000 the first self-run community in the Territories. However, both Whitehorse and Dawson City in neighboring Yukon have had self-rule for some time.

The speech, read by Maj.-Gen. Hugh Young as commissioner of the territories, called these proposals "important and well-merited" and said they are based on the fact that this mining town "has in general, assumed the financial responsibilities normally borne by municipalities in the provinces" and has "a record of active interest in its own government."

No changes were contemplated in rule of the Territories themselves—now run by he council which consists of five officials appointed by the federal government and of three elected representatives.

The speech dealt also with nickel, lead and zinc mining and with exploration for oil and gas in the Northwest Territories.

"Most significant" was the decision of Rankin Inlet Nickel Mines to sink a development shaft at Rankin Inlet in Keewatin district with the intention of adding a concentrator of 250 tons daily capacity.

Bees Cover Second, Rout Ball Players

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—School children scurried for cover Wednesday as the umpire said: "Game called on account of bees."

It was discovered during a baseball game at St. David's Public school that the queen bee and her hive had started building somewhere near second base.

Second baseman, moving forward to pick up a ground ball, came up instead with a partly-constructed beehive.

The Queen bee was lured into a bee box and the rest followed quietly.

Navy Contingent Back From U.K.

HALIFAX (CP)—Canada's 3,000 Coronation sailors returned Thursday from their date with the Queen bragging about having won a place in her royal affections at the Spithead naval review.

The five Canadian warships and the visiting Australian aircraft carrier Sydney glided into their berths while four military bands played on shore.

First in the line-ahead procession was the cruiser Quebec, flagship of Rear-Admiral Roger Bidwell of Ottawa and Halifax, flag officer commanding the squadron.

Next came the Sydney and then the Canadian carrier Magnificent. The destroyer Sioux and the frigates La Hulloise and Swansea brought up the rear.

The cruiser Ontario, which sailed with the squadron to Britain, is being refitted in Portsmouth and will not return for another six weeks.

The fleet, largest concentration of naval might in Canadian history, was a smash hit at the June 15 naval review when Queen Elizabeth inspected 260 ships from many lands as they rode at anchor off Portsmouth.

Midland League will be playing down Cobourg way this Saturday and it is expected that a fair number of local players will get down there.

Just before we sign off would like to say that, in regard to the mixed two-ball competition, that so many have done so little so far, in other words the people in the first round should show signs of coming to life soon or else there will be one big 'chop' we suspect. It is customary, we might add, for the match committee to wreck their vengeance on the people in the lower bracket unless these folks can prove that they have tried to contact their opponents. 'Nuff said for now.

The next club dance will be on Saturday, July 4 at 9:00 p.m. and one parting reminder, that "Out at the Kawartha" radio program will be heard again this weekend at 6:15 p.m. over our local station.

LADIES' SECTION

You drive for show and putt your dough. It paid off for three ladies on Thursday afternoon. The competition being the lowest number of putts for 18 holes: Mrs. H. Woodcox, Mrs. I. MacGillivray and Mrs. J. Gatfield, tied for first place. A point was awarded the first two ladies and the sterling silver spoon went to Mrs. J. Gatfield. The final playoff for the Spring Trophy was the main event of the day, when Mrs. H. Woodcox, Mrs. J. Gatfield, Mrs. D. Chamberlain and Mrs. T. McCaig played through sunshine and rain and declared the winner Mrs. J. Gatfield. Low net for the day was tied between Mrs. J. Gatfield who got a point and Mrs. F. Dunfield winning the golf ball.

In the 9-hole event the playoff for the Spring Trophy was delayed as one of the players was not able to be on hand. The competition was low score on 3, 4, 5 and 6 holes won by Mrs. J. Haldimand getting the sterling silver spoon and Mrs. N. Williamson the golf ball.

During the week, eight of the 18-hole players attended the city and district event at Oshawa, and four brought home prizes. Mrs. H. Woodcox, Mrs. J. Condon, Mrs. F. Dunfield and Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. F. Reid, Mrs. I. McGillivray, Mrs. D. Chamberlain and Mrs. E. Riley were the visitors.

The prizes for the best scores in two-ball foursomes were won by Isabel Bullock and Ann Morrison of Peterborough and Barbara Siddall and Ruth McKee of Kawartha. Captain Shirley Sackville extended thanks from the Peterborough girls and invited the Kawartha girls to play at their club on July 7.

It is not too early to mention about the 2nd annual Ladies' Golf Tournament which will be held this year on August 22, and it is anticipated that some of Canada's top women golfers will play in this event.

Drew Seeks Quebec Support; Empty Promises, Says PM

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hon. George Drew, bidding for support in provincial-rights conscious Quebec, Thursday night pledged a Progressive Conservative government to "restore" provincial and municipal autonomy if elected Aug. 10.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister St. Laurent, nearing an end of his five-day Ontario tour, accused Mr. Drew before an Owen Sound audience of making "empty promises" to increase Canada's foreign trade. After meetings today, Mr St. Laurent leaves Ontario to return again in August.

Mr. Drew described the provincial-rights issue as "one of the essential questions" of the campaign in a speech in French, aimed at gathering the 75 Quebec seats in the 265-seat Commons into the Progressive Conservative fold.

PICKS QUEBEC

And he picked Quebec City, proud of once being Canada's capital before the British conquest, for his bid for this second-largest block of seats. Quebec's 75 seats are second only to Ontario's 85. The PCs held only three compared with 67 Liberal at dissolution.

Mr. Drew's introduction of provincial rights into the campaign was accompanied by a repetition of his party's 16-point manifesto, including the $500,000,000 tax-cut pledge which Mr. St. Laurent attacked as impossible to implement.

He accused the Liberals of centralizing power in the federal government with "no intention of letting go of this centralization."

"It wants to retain control of (tax) money—it now collects 78 cents on each dollar, leaving 22 cents to the provincial governments and the municipalities."

LOSE FEDERAL REGIME

If the centralization trend continues, "our federal regime will be destroyed." Canadian unity depends on respect for the principles of the British North America Act, "a pact between two great races."

He pledged his party "to restore to the provinces and municipalities full autonomy in their own affairs, and to respect the spirit and letter of the British North America Act."

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Canada cannot solve the dollar-sterling problem "and don't let anyone fool us with empty promises that we can." It was a job for the United States—by purchasing more from other countries so these could import more.

This was aimed at Mr. Drew's manifesto which said a Progressive Conservative government would take "bold and constructive steps to break the dollar-pound barrier and regain our vital British and Commonwealth markets."

CAN'T SOLVE PROBLEM

"The U.S. is such a huge market compared with Canada that we Canadians cannot possibly solve this dollar shortage problem of the sterling area and the European nations by ourselves," Mr. St. Laurent said.

If the Progressive Conservatives had any "magic formula" for narrowing the gap "they have been keeping it secret since 1949." If that was the case, the Conservatives were to blame for not putting it forward.

He challenged Mr. Drew to say what were the "bold and constructive" steps a Progressive Conservative government would take.

Of course, Canada would like a bigger market with the United Kingdom and Europe. But that depended on those countries having the dollars to pay for the goods. Loans or gifts of dollars could not be made a permanent policy.

Britain recognized that she had to earn more dollars. She also recognized that Canada was trying to help.

WON'T COME THROUGH

In the West where Mr. Drew heads today, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell in a campaign speech at Whitewood, Sask., said the Liberal government never has had any intention of fulfilling its "much-promised" program of health insurance.

He repeated his party's pledge of a health plan "irrespective of ability to pay" which would embrace full hospital, medical, dental, optical and other health care.

In Regina, Trade Minister Howe replied to opposition suggestions that western wheat farmers have lost millions as a result of the government marketing program.

"I ask them to show me any other period in history of the West when wheat farmers have been able to sell as much wheat at such good prices."

The wheat board system of marketing was in the farmers' interests. It proved so good the government extended the system, at the producers' request, to oats and barley.

Collection for the months amounted to $150.50. Hostesses for tea were Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. R. Viscoff and their groups. A vote of thanks to all taking part was expressed by Mrs. H. Mouck.

CWL Showers Two At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Members of the Catholic Women's League of St. Paul's Church were hostesses at a joint shower in honor of Mrs. Wilfred Morin, the former Adele McCarthy and Miss Loretta Hill, whose marriage to Mr. James Archer takes place in the near future. The event was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening.

The presentation of a wool blanket, a pair of sheets and a pair of pillow cases, was made to both young ladies by the League president, Mrs. Joseph Kennedy.

During the evening Mrs. Wilbert Dever entertained with selections on the piano, and the serving of dainty refreshments concluded the evening.

The Rev. J. R. Wheeler officiated.

Following a honeymoon spent in eastern points, the young couple will live in Toronto.

What's Going To Be "In The Swim"

NEW YORK—As for what's going to be "in the swim" this season, one-piece suits have the edge. These can be sleek and trim tank types, ruffled, flounced, or pleated dressmaker types, or even smart littleboy shorts varieties, though the latter come in two-piece models, too.

Enjoying a banner first season in the swimwear field, Eastman's Chromspun acetate fibre has been used in the lines of many top surf designers. Color-locked to insure high fade resistance to sunlight, salt water and chlorinated pools, Chromspun offers speedy drying, also.

Because fading and running of color have often been a problem in bathing suit fabrics, Chromspun's fibres, dyed before they are even spun, promise not to run nor discolor beach robes or any brilliant white trim on suits.

The church was decorated with pink and white peonies. Organist Mrs. Ray Frost played wedding music and during the signing of the register, Miss Jane Fox sang "I'll walk beside you."

Rainy Weather Reflected In Fashions At Ascot Meet

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—It was a damp and dismal Coronation Ascot, demanding stamina in horse and spectator alike—but the fashion-conscious refused to be beaten.

The four-day race meeting, held when the Queen is resident at Windsor Castle and attended by most of the Royal Family, is the official close of London's social season.

It needed good "mudders" to win the Gold and the Hunt cups. The same principle applied in fashions at the show-place of the season.

Result was a notable number of discreet band-box carriers, hiding "sensible" closed-in pumps and close-fitting hats to replace the traditional cartwheel straws and lacy shoes during storms.

QUICK-CHANGE ARTIST

One of the smartest quick-change artists was Fiona Campbell-Walter, a pretty brunette debutante with a different outfit daily. For the second day's meeting—so wet the royal drive in open landaus down the moss-green course was cancelled — Miss Campbell-Walter chose a 70 guinea couture outfit in black and white with a slim, black rain-proof dress.

Firstly, her dress was topped by a long-sleeves stole in white, with black lines forming a diagonal check, belted to the waist like a coat. Her hat was a cartwheel straw in transparent white.

Down came the rain. Off came the stole, the cartwheel was replaced by a smart black beret and a slim black figure was ready for the deluge.

This was the type of outfit that made the grade. Flimsy garden-party styles and fur wraps took second place to heavy linens, light wools and duster coats.

FEW COMPLIMENTS

"Too many women fail to dress to suit the occasion," was the lament of more than one newspaper fashion writer. Compliments on fashions were few—it's an accepted fact that British women cannot dress well for their country's inclement weather.

But women of all ages commented on the elegant simplicity of the outfits picked by the Queen. Her first choice was a gunmetal grey faille coat in princess lines with close-fitting feather hat in the glinting green and black of a bluebottle. When Choir Boy won the Royal Hunt Cup for her, she wore a blue grosgrain fitted coat and tiny matching straw hat that seemed to match her eyes.

On Gold Cup day she chose the wide-skirted white coat with black edging and matching hat she had previously worn at the Spithead naval review. Her final choice was a flecked biscuit shantung suit with black velvet collar, black straw helmet hat and black accessories

Beautiful Woman Knows How To Walk, Sit, Stand

A pretty face is not everything. An attractive woman needs a slim and supple figure, and both the figure and the face must have good bearing.

A beautiful woman is a woman who knows how to walk, to sit and to stand with grace. Control the unattractive hip sway. Practice your walking. Use any straight line and walk with each foot parallel to that line. When walking, look toward a spot straight ahead, hold your head level and your chin parallel to the ground.

When standing, be sure the arms hang loosely straight down. You can align them with the side seams of your dress and practice.

Hollywood star Ginger Rogers feels that carriage is a matter of mental attitude. Very often a woman who enjoys self-confidence has good carriage, and unfortunately women who are ill at ease or suffering from nervous tension have poor carriage.

Carriage is a matter of habit and can be practised. No woman, no matter how beautiful her face or how elegant her clothes, can make an impression as she walks into a room unless her figure and her bearing are impeccable.

Central Pupils Give Recital

The Home and School Association of Central School sponsored a recital by piano class pupils, taught by Mrs. C. Renaud, on Tuesday evening in the kindergarten room.

The children were heard in duets, trios and solos, as well as demonstrating methods used in group teaching.

Those participating were: Cauleen Viscoff, Peggy Trick, Beverley Bowen, Velma Forsythe, Cooper Holt, Malcolm Parlee, Maureen Carter, Carolyn Duckworth, Adele Cochrane, Louise Lang, Cleone Taylor, Gail Fuller, Gail Chambers, Susan McBride, Paul Frizzelle, Eleanor Downer, Hilda Forsythe, Nancy Mathews, Peter Philp, Charlene Collins, Mary Bet Langan, Robert Shimer, Yvonne Longhurst, Karen Neal, Carol Ann Weekes, Brenda Weekes, Michael Philp, Marion Lang, Diane Cochrane.

The pupils presented Mrs. Renaud with a corsage and gift.

The evening was pleasantly concluded with refreshments served by members of the Home and School Association.

Mrs. Majaury, who lives in a modest log home near this town 44 miles southwest of Ottawa, says she would be the happiest woman in the world if she could get into the air.

"Just to get above the trees would be enough and I hope I may have this wish granted some day."

BLOOMER-STYLE FLATTERS

NEW YORK—The bloomer-style swimsuit hurries us over to Brigance who led the way several seasons ago in this type of suit, and who now calls it the "confirmed silhouette." His theory is that, contrary to what some people think about these blousy-legged numbers, bloomer styles are more flattering to the heavy woman.

103 Students Graduate From Prince of Wales Schl.

Stormy showers forced aside plans for an impressive ceremony, which was to have taken place on the grounds of Prince of Wales School, Thursday, when 103 graduating students from Grade 8 were to have been honoured by their parents and the school upon being individually introduced by their respective teachers, Mr. R. Rutherford, Mr. O. Anderson, and Mr. H. Curry. The program was continued inside the school.

After congratulating the candidates on their successful year, and those teachers instrumental in their public school education, Principal R. J. Bolton called on Mr. S. R. Home and School Association awards, presented by president Mrs. A. M. Parker, went to students standing second, Mary Dainard, Marion Routley, Donald Spearin.

Keith Latchford, president of the Students' Council, had the privilege of presenting Miss May Jory, retiring school nurse, with a gift from all the children of the school. This token reflected the affection and respect which Miss Jory has always received from both pupils and parents, and appreciation for her untiring interest in each and every child.

A final gesture to the graduates and their teachers was made by the Home and School executive members and parents, who served pie with ice cream and soft drinks. Mrs. P. Butler with Mrs. V. DOROTHY DIX:

Pondering Marriage But Obstacle Arises

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm an unmarried lady of 36, goodlooking, earning a good salary and with, of course, a problem. In the past I have had my share of dates, and marriage proposals, none of which interested me enough. Now I find my circle of potential daters dwindling, leaving me with many lonesome evenings. I have one friend my own age, and though I enjoy his company, I'm not sure I love him. I honestly believe his companionship is the important factor to me. He is very good company and we enjoy the same things. We have discussed marriage, but he refuses to consider living with my parents, which we would have to do, and I don't think he's the responsible domestic type. He likes to go where he wishes, when he wishes. Though I don't think I'd like to marry him, I do hate the thought of giving up his friendship. He, however, won't continue seeing me unless I agree to marriage on his terms. Please don't say I'm silly because to me this situation is serious.

D. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Contrary to considering you silly, I think you are very wise and sensible. Too many unhappy marriages result from a need for companionship that isn't satisfied after the wedding. Men who insist that marriage be on their terms are certainly exhibiting selfishness that isn't likely to disappear when they become husbands. Life must continue on their terms—or else! When a women has been independent all her life, is capable of earning a good salary, and accustomed to spending it as she pleases, marriage in the form of fettered slavery is not alluring. There are many things worse than loneliness, and a miserable married life is one of them. Though your present existence is not ideal, don't exchange it for one that will be intolerable. If the man doesn't care enough about you to continue seeing you, or to court you on conventional grounds, you are really better off without him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The boys in my class (high-school freshman) are all very nice and at one time or another I have tried to get almost all of them to be my boy friend, but no luck! I know I'm as pretty as the other girls, my figure is good, and I'm not overweight. Please help me. I'm desperate.

HOLLY C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Trouble is, Holly, you're too desperate! The fact probably radiates from you and is more likely to scare boys away than all the things about which ads warn you. Do try to be a bit more subtle in your approach. The lesson isn't easy to learn at 13, but upon it depends your social future.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Influential Coffee Stirs Kings, Canadian Builders

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coffee, it would seem, is a most influential beverage. It stirred up Charles II and more recently, the Canadian Construction Association.

In 1675 Charles wanted to suppress coffee houses as "the place of resort of the olitically iscontented."

In 1953, the Canadian Construction Association decided the "coffee break" was a menace to the industry of Canada.

In fact, a contractor working on a provincial government job in Ontario estimated coffee breaks were costing him $44,000 a year through the 200 men employed taking a 15-minute break in the morning and another in the afternoon.

THREE GIVE VIEWS

Delving into the coffee situation, we talked to S. Kinnell, tea and coffee buyer for a large Canadian department store chain, and had a word with Hilde Doleschell, former Austrian tennis champion who sells coffee in her Toronto bakery shop.

Mr. Kinnell spoke blissfully of the hard-to-get Java and Mocha blend which he said was "the champagne of coffees."

"The Mocha coffee comes mainly from Ethiopia and Arabia," he said, "Java from the islands of Java and Sumatra."

He said Canadians don't do much in the way of experimenting with the coffees they drink but stay pretty well with the well-known brands based on Brazilian and Colombian coffee.

Talking to Hilde Doleschell wasn't so easy. She's either out driving her bakery truck, or she's on the tennis courts.

We learned that she brought a coffee-making machine over from Austria, which makes coffee under steam pressure that tastes "quite different." The coffee she makes is a finely-ground, dark coffee that has a slightly harsh taste when taken without sugar.

NATIONAL PREFERENCES

Many Italians drink cold black coffee with rum or brandy. When serving it, they provide additional cold water to tone it down to individual taste.

Turks are also great coffee drinkers and like a strong, dark coffee. the Turkish information office suggests the following way to make coffee:

One half cup of water, two tablespoons sugar, two teaspoons pulverized coffee. (Proportions of sugar and coffee may be varied to suit taste).

Put cold water in the "jezve," a cylindrical pot with a long handle sold in shops specializing in eastern Mediterranean foods. Add sugar and coffee. Stir well. Place over low flame and cook to rising boil. Remove from flame and pour off froth into two demi-tasse cups.

Bring to boil again and remove from fire. Pour coffee over the froth to fill the cups and serve.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: About Oct. or Nov. 1952 I cut out your recipes for Hermits and Brownies...but lost them and now want to make them again...I liked them very much ...IDA A. D.

ANSWER:

HERMITS

Three-quarters cup shortening (½ butter, ½ shortening is best), 1½ cups firmly packed brown sugar, 3 beaten eggs, 2½ cups sifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 cup chopped walnuts. Cream shortening until fluffy then gradually add sugar while creaming; beat in beaten eggs. Sift 2 cups of the flour with the soda, spices, and salt and stir into mixture. Dredge raisins and nuts with remaining ½ cup flour, then stir them in. Drop from greased teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. Four dozen.

BROWNIES

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 2 oz. (2 squares) unsweetened chocolate (or 6 tablespoons best quality cocoa), melted, ¾ cup sifted cake flour, ¼ teaspoon each baking powder and salt, ¾ cup chopped walnuts or pecans (or seedless raisins). Cream the shortening until it is fluffy and gradually cream in the sugar. Beat in eggs and melted chocolate (or cocoa). with the baking powder and salt, Sift flour, measure and sift it then add it with the nuts. Spread in greased pan 8x8x2 inches and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 35 minutes. Cut into squares while hot with sharp knife. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar if desired. Remove from pan when cold.

QUESTION: Received your answer and want to thank you. I tried the marshmallows and they were a complete flop. They were stringy and sticky. When turning the mixture from the bowl of the mixmaster it stretched and stretched and my husband had a good laugh. (I used the dairy thermometer but it registers only 240 deg. Fahr. would that be the trouble?)

The recipe I use for Fig Bars is your Fig Filled Cookies: 1½ cups shortening, 1 cup white sugar, 2 eggs, 3½ cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and vanilla, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups sour milk. Cream together shortening and eggs. Measure sifted flour and sift it with salt and soda, add dry ingredients alternately with the sour milk, beating it smooth.

Since these bars are moist they mould after 7 or 10 days. If making half the quantity divide dough into 3 equal parts. Make each into long roll in hands and roll to ⅛ inch thickness, 2½ inches wide and 8 or 9 inches long. Roll out on heavy wax paper. Put filling along the centre of the roll, wet lower edge all round and holding it with the wax paper fold the other half of the roll over, making a long slender roll. Seal edges using a fork. Transfer to fill covered cookie sheet, bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

Filling: (this quantity for half quantity above) ½ lb. figs, 1 cup water, ¼ cup sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour. Cut up figs, boil figs and water till mushy. Mix flour and sugar and add. Boil till thick.

Is a dairy thermometer same as candy thermometer? Could I have a recipe for cooking a tongue? Thanks for pineapple recipes—it turned out lovely. How many calories in green string beans?

Dieting is hard, but your encouragement makes life easier for fatties. Vicky.

ANSWER: Thank you immensely for this detail for making fig bars. I know others besides myself will clip and make them.

No a dairy thermometer registers much lower than a candy thermometer. You should have a candy thermometer that registers 400 deg. Fahr. I am sending you the recipe for Boiled Tongue. One-half cup green or string beans contains 40 calories. The "stretchiness" of the beaten marshmallow mixture, I think, indicates it was boiled too long. You should remove it from the heat the instant the temperature reaches 240 deg. Fahr. If you would like another much more involved recipe let me know.

LOBA Gives $4,592 For Flood Relief

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A cheque for $4,592 was given to the European flood relief fund Tuesday by the grand lodge of the Ladies Orange Benevolent Association.

The money, raised by lodges across Canada, was presented to fund officials by Mrs. Ethel Erskine of Verdun, Que., most worshipful mistress.

Speaker Reviews Book On Africa

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Mrs. J. Arthur Steed was guest speaker on Tuesday evening when the Missionary and Service Club of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Coons. Mrs. Steed reviewed the concluding chapters of the study book, "Along African Trails," by David H. Gallagher. Her talk proved to be most interesting as she added many stories of personal interest from the land where she and her husband were missionaries for a number of years. Her son, the Rev. Harold Steed and his wife are now in Africa where Mr. Steed is head of the Melville Memorial Rural Life School at Chissamba.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. M. Calberry. The Kellar and Mrs. Sidney Whiting led in prayer.

The vice-president, Mrs. Coons, presided for the business period, in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. H. Fife. The secretary, Mrs. Charles H. Hunter, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Miss Merle Crawford, treasurer, reported a bank balance of $257.62. Total proceeds from the bake sale held recently were $20.10.

The members decided to cooperate with the Women's Missionary Society in packing a bale of Christmas gifts for the leper mission at Hong Kong.

Date for the salad supper was set as September 23 and Mrs. Carmen Payne read the report of the ways and means committee responsible for this event. Other members are Mrs. Edison Foster and Mrs. George Carey.

Mrs. Kellar reported for the committee in charge of the handicraft booth for the Christmas bazaar, and asked that members would have at least one work meeting during the summer months, and suggested such articles as knitting bags, stuffed animals, dolls' clothes, socks and mitts should be made. This committee was granted $10 for expenses in connection with their work.

Assisting the hostess with tea were Mrs. Calberry and Miss Irene Darling.

6—In Memoriam

HOWDEN—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Herbert D. Howden, who passed away suddenly at the noon hour June 26th, 1952.
Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death, its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will,
His vacant place there is none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Sadly missed by his wife Pearl, Mansell, Laurine and family.

WHETUNG—In loving memory of a dear father, Arthur Whetung, who passed away June 27, 1951.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near,
It is only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
—Sadly missed by daughter Louise.

Chiang's Troops May Be Welcome If Truce Signed

SEOUL (AP)—A South Korean government leader hinted today that Nationalist Chinese troops might be welcomed here if an armistice is signed and South Korea fights on alone.

Yoon Chi Yung, vice-speaker of this republic's National Assembly, was asked at a press conference about an alliance between South Korea and Nationalist China if the Communists and UN command should sign a truce.

"General Chiang Kai-shek through private channels has expressed a desire to help us. We are very good friends," Yoon replied.

He added "there might be a possibility" of such an alliance.

Reports circulated in Seoul that secret negotiations might be under way between the two governments to bring in five Nationalist divisions to replace U. S. forces if the UN signs the present truce.

No authoritative source would speculate on how the Chinese would be transported here from Formosa or how they would be supplied if the U. S. refused to do so. The U. S. also supplies and equips South Korea's 16-division army.

Rhee often in the past has declared that bringing in Nationalist forces would only spread the Chinese civil war to Korea.

Nationalist Chinese ambassador to Korea, Wang Tung-won, has called on Rhee several times recently. The ambassador was the only foreign dignitary who spoke at the big war anniversary rally Thursday.

Crosses Atlantic In Tiny Plane

GLASGOW (AP)—Peter Gluckman, 27-year-old San Francisco watchmaker, landed at Renfrew airport early today, completing a flight over the Atlantic in a tiny Luscombe plane.

The last leg of the trip was from Reykjavik, Iceland. He flew through the night for about 12 hours in the little cream-and-blue 90-horsepower plane.

"I encountered early morning fog over Scotland and could not make Prestwick airport, where I had intended to land," Gluckman said. "So I turned in here. I'll be off for London later in the day if weather reports are favorable."

Gluckman has flown 85 hours since he left San Francisco June 5. He made stops for fuel in Oklahoma, Michigan, Ontario, Quebec, Labrador, Goose Bay and Iceland.

Gluckman is on his way to visit his parents, who live in London. Born in Germany, he lived in London before going to the United States six years ago.

"It's a surprise visit, and I hope my parents haven't heard that I am on the way," he said.

Ray's School Holds Picnic At Lakefield

The annual picnic of Ray's School (SS 6, Smith Township) was held Wednesday at Lakefield Park.

Principal G. Knox was in charge of the activities, which included races, bicycle parade and swimming, assisted by Mrs. R. Hill and Miss F. Chesney.

Races began at 10.30 and continued until 3 o'clock, with a short adjournment for lunch. They were directed by the principal and staff.

Mrs. J. Crawford presented the ribbons to the winners. Mrs. A. Gariepy recorded winners' names.

At the end of the races the winners lined up to receive their prizes. Prizes and ribbons were presented by the Ray's Home and School Association.

The association was also in charge of supper arrangements and supplied chocolate milk and ice-cream.

Principal Knox, who is leaving at the end of this term to teach in Lindsay, was presented with a large mirror as a gift from all of his pupils. The collection was made by the older pupils, under the supervision of Mrs. Hill, Miss Chesney and Mrs. J. Preston. Miss Vera Northey read the address which accompanied the gift.

Accident Claims Second Life

Driver Leon Lipson Dies In Hospital 7 Hours After Crash

The death toll in the two-car crash Friday morning, 12 miles east of Peterborough, now stands at two. Four other people are in city hospitals here.

Leon Lipson, 30 of 15 Arlington St., Ottawa, died at 6:30 p.m. Friday, more than six and a half hours after the crash.

Mrs. Harry Steinberg, 35, of 28 Cherrywood Drive, Toronto, died in hospital Friday noon, shortly after being admitted.

Mrs. Steinberg and her nine-year-old daughter Judy were passengers in Lipson's car. The trio were on a holiday trip to Ottawa and were driving along Highway 7 when Lipson turned out to pass another eastbound car. He saw a westbound car come over the brow of a hill ahead so he cut back sharply into the right lane of traffic and then tried to straighten out.

The highway was slippery from rain and the Lipson car skidded around and shot northeast across the highway where it was struck on the right side, close to the rear end, by a 1953-model car driven by Frank Wiley, 46, of Malone. After rolling over, throwing Mrs. Steinberg out, the Lipson car struck a tree and landed on its four wheels.

Here is the condition today of the three occupants in the other car: Mr. Wiley and his 47-year-old wife are both fair. Both have cuts and bruises and Mrs. Wiley has scrapes on both knees and an injured wrist.

Mrs. Cecil Holland, 33, of Delroro, is in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital. She has a fractured right thigh, fractured right leg and multiple bruises. She is being operated on today.

Mr. Lipson, a cousin of Mrs. Steinberg, was employed in Ottawa with the International Trade Relations Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce. He leaves his wife Toby, and two children.

CCF CANDIDATE for the riding of Peterborough will be Maurice E. Ketcheson, who was chosen Friday night at a meeting of the CCF association. He will oppose Gordon K. Fraser, MP, Progressive Conservative candidate and Max J. Swanston, Liberal candidate in the Aug. 10 federal election. Mr. Ketcheson is shown here with guest speaker Andrew Brewin, QC, candidate for Toronto St. Paul's.

Doctors Say British PM Overworked

Bermuda Conference Postponed; Butler Takes Reins

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill was ordered by his doctors today to take "a complete rest" for at least a month causing the third postponement of a projected Bermuda Big Three meeting.

President Eisenhower and the new French premier, Joseph Laniel, agreed to the postponement, a statement from Churchill's residence at 10 Downing street said. The meeting had been scheduled to start July 8.

Aides gave insistent assurance Churchill was well but his doctors had told him in emphatic terms he must rest. With his No. 2 man, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, convalescing from a gall bladder operation in Boston, Churchill turned over the job of running the cabinet to R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer.

President Eisenhower said he was "deeply distressed" to hear of the prime minister's need for rest but said he regarded this postponement of the Bermuda meeting "only as a temporary deferment."

NEEDS REST BADLY

The report from Lord Moran, Churchill's personal physician, and Sir Russell Brian said: "The prime minister has had no respite for a long time from his very arduous duties and is in need of complete rest.

"We have therefore advised him to abandon his journey to Bermuda and to lighten his duties for at least a month."

An official statement from Churchill's residence at 10 Downing street said the meeting was postponed after consultation with President Eisenhower and French Premier Laniel.

Churchill who is 78 will remain at his Chartwell country home near London.

Butler will preside at cabinet meetings, the first of which has been called for Monday—presumably to discuss the sudden turn of events.

AIDS FOREIGN POLICY

Lord Salisbury, lord president of the council, will aid in matters of foreign policy.

Churchill's temporary retirement after many years of service means that the top two men in British life are out of action.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Churchill's right-hand man, is in Boston recuperating from a series of gall bladder operations.

Churchill had been scheduled to leave for Bermuda aboard the British battleship Vanguard next Tuesday night. He was to have welcomed President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda on July 7.

The conference was destined to have momentous importance in world affairs. It was originally called by President Eisenhower to map common Western strategy in the cold war and, on prodding by Churchill, possibly set a date for a later Big Four meeting with Russia.

ORDERED TO REST—Doctors have ordered Britain's Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill to have complete rest for one month.

Flies Atlantic In Tiny 90-HP Plane

LONDON (AP)—Peter Gluckman, 27-year-old San Francisco watch maker who flew the Atlantic in a tiny, 90-horse-power plane, landed at Northolt airport today and gave his grey-haired mother a big hug.

He had been in the air 90 hours since he left San Francisco June 5, and the captains of the mighty airliners which touch down at Northolt were amazed. They couldn't quite believe he had come such a distance in a plane which, said one, "is as big as my hat."

Gluckman's plane, which he calls "Old Faithful," is less than six feet high and its wing spread is 35 feet.

But the flier's mother, Erna, wasn't impressed by her son's aviation feat. She regarded him with pride—not having seen him since he emigrated to the United States six years ago—and then remarked:

"He's too fat. I'm going to feed him lots of salad."

Gluckman weighs "about 265 pounds," and when they heard that the air liner captains had even more respect for the tiny plane. Not only did it carry Gluckman, but a rubber boat, a radio distress signalling apparatus and a suit case.

Gluckman had hoped to sneak in here secretly and surprise his parents by driving in a taxicab to their home in London. But when he and his little plane began to make spectacular hops across the United States, over to Greenland, on to Iceland and finally to Scotland, the newspapers began to take notice. So his mother and father, Heinrich, a retired engineer, hurried out to the airport when they heard that Peter had taken off on his final flip to London.

Asked how he was going home he replied:

"The way I came—I couldn't afford it any other way. Old Faithful here cost me $1,800, and this whole trip, fuel and incidentals, will cost about $300." A return trip by scheduled airlines would cost him $693.

What he wanted to do most in England, he said, was to take the family, "one at a time and especially mother," for a couple of hops in Old Faithful.

Koreans Reel Back Along Wide Front Under Red Attack

SEOUL (AP)—Thousands of Chinese Communists sent South Korean troops reeling back along a wide front today in a grinding renewal of the Reds' two-week-long Pukhan river offensive. At least two Chinese divisions—more than 20,000 soldiers—unleashed the assault on a 13-mile front on both sides of the Pukhan river, on the east-central front Friday night. At one spot in the wild hills east of the river, the South Koreans were forced back 1¼ miles and were fighting desperately to hold. This Red gain was second only to the two-mile bulge the Communists punched in Allied lines in the same sector earlier this month.

AP correspondent Milo Farneti reported Republic of Korea soldiers on the west side of the river recaptured El Paso hill—or Lookout Mountain—at the junction of the Kumsong and Pukhan rivers, and another nearby height in a fierce mid-morning counter-attack.

BOMBERS ON JOB

The U.S. 5th Air Force said Allied Sabre jets far to the north shot down two Communist MiG jets and probably destroyed a third.

While the eastern front shook with a roar of new battles, the Chinese hurled another division against the Imjin river defence, north of Seoul, in the west.

In a seesaw battle the Reds this morning forced the crack 1st RoK Division back from two hills it had captured in bitter counter-attacks.

With this new setback, the balance sheet for the narrow but savage fight showed the Reds holding three of five hills they originally attacked two days ago.

The Red gains, however, were on a shallow frontage and were nothing like the deep advance in the east.

COSTLY ATTACKS

Massed air and artillery strikes supported the 1st RoKs in their counter-attacks, which were costly for both sides. Chinese bodies littered the slopes. The RoKs estimated 2,400 Reds killed in the western battle—almost the strength of a Chinese regiment.

The Chinese objective in the Pukhan battle, aside from mauling and humiliating the RoK Army, was obscure, because hill territory in this area is not vital to the Allied defence line.

However, any serious new Red gains around the Pukhan would endanger the big Hwachon reservoir about 12 miles south which supplies most of Seoul's electric power.

The Reds might eventually imperil the supply route to Heartbreak ridge on the right and the road linking Chunchon on the central front on the left.

The big battle of the river began at 9:10 p.m. Friday with a solid Chinese regimental attack against five hill positions. It was almost immediately successful and ruth-

M. Ketcheson Chosen CCF Candidate

Maurice E. Ketcheson, 71-year-old jewelry salesman, on Friday night was chosen CCF candidate to contest the August 10 federal election in the riding of Peterborough.

The choice of Mr. Ketcheson by the Peterborough CCF Association assures a three-way election fight. He is opposed by Gordon K. Fraser, MP, present federal member and Progressive Conservative candidate, and Max J. Swanston, Liberal candidate.

Thirty-two people attended the nominating convention Friday night in the Labor Centre. They put forward 10 names of prominent local CCF-ers but only Mr. Ketcheson would stand.

Among those proposed was Howard Miles who polled 2,804 votes in the 1949 federal election; however Mr. Miles was not present and it was stated that he had not given permission for anybody to nominate him.

MOST FAITHFUL

Mr. Ketcheson was nominated by William Triggs, president of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), who was nominated himself. Mr. Triggs referred to his slim, white-haired leader as "the most faithful, hardworking CCF-er that we have in the Association".

"Yes, I'll stand," said Mr. Ketcheson as the small but enthusiastic crowd applauded. "Thank you for nominating me."

"I had hoped somebody else would stand—perhaps a younger man—but at the same time I've never let the CCF down and as long as I've life in my body I'm willing to stick to the CCF.

"There's a job for each and every one of us here tonight—for more than are here tonight. We can win this riding if we get the help.

"It's time we had a change and got a government that could give the people something they believe in and want—democratic socialism."

Socreds Plan Tax Cuts; Fair Farm Prices: Drew

TORONTO (CP) — The Social Credit program for the federal election campaign, featured by proposals for tax reduction and financial reform, was put before the electorate Friday night.

A conference of the Social Credit Association of Canada approved the program after a one-day meeting which lasted till late at night, and Solon Low, national leader, expanded on its meaning in a broadcast address over the trans-Canada network of the CBC.

The program said Social Credit would make a thorough revision of the whole Canadian taxation system and "those taxes that are found to be restrictive in their effects upon productive enterprise will either be abolished or reduced in rate as a stimulus to greater production effort."

Mr. Low said the tax proposals would effect "an immediate reduction in the cost-of-living of no less than 15 per cent."

ABOLISH SALES TAX

They would abolish all present sales tax, except the two per cent tax which supports old age pensions, and there would be further reduction in personal income taxes, with an increase in the present exemptions.

SOCREDS PLAN

WINNIPEG (CP)—George Drew Friday night pledged Progressive Conservatives, if elected Aug 10, to provide "fair and sound" farm prices and a better system of federal-provincial tax agreements.

He said Liberal government members can't agree on what their agricultural policy actually is, and the government has "no intention" of signing a permanent agreement with the provinces covering taxation, financial responsibility and methods of amending the constitution.

The Progressive Conservative leader elaborated on the farm prices plank in his party's 16-point platform as he spoke to some 500 persons in a suburban high school auditorium at the start of his western Canada campaign tour.

Today he motors to Brandon for an afternoon meeting and flies from there to Regina for an evening speech.

INDEPENDENT DIRECTION

His party's promised national agricultural board, Mr. Drew said, would be under independent direction by leading farmers.

Floor prices related to farm production costs would be set on a "fair and sound basis" by the board, using necessary day-to-day statistical information.

Mr. Drew criticized the suggestion by Prime Minister St. Laurent in a recent speech that the proposed board would result in socialized farming. He asked if that meant the prime minister intends to repeal the Farm Prices Support Act.

Government members themselves could not agree on what their agricultural policy is.

"The prime minister says in effect that a real farm prices support policy is a pipe dream. The minister of agriculture says that he and his officials have been operating a real farm price support policy. They can't both be right."

Report 1,000 Dead In Flood

TOKYO (AP)—Modern Japan's most disastrous flood left almost 1,000 persons dead or missing today as angry waters covered whole villages and forced thousands to hills and rooftops on the southern island of Kyushu.

National police described as unprecedented the toll of 252 known dead, 703 missing and 725 hurt as rivers swollen by a three-day cloud-burst swept over parts of the northern half of the island—an area roughly the size of Massachusetts.

Japanese press reports said all 488 inhabitants were believed lost in a village where the Chikugo river burst its banks and swept away 193 houses.

U. S. military units pitched in with manpower, medicine, planes and boats to help feed and evacuate some 610,000 inhabitants of the stricken area.

Third Teen-Ager Dies After Crash

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A third teen-ager died in Victoria hospital today as the result of an accident that killed two Friday.

Brian Collins, 17, of London, identified by police as the driver of a car that crashed head-on with a truck, succumbed to head, chest and leg injuries.

Doreen Wiesner, 19, of London, and Miriam Todd, 19, of Winnipeg, died in hospital Friday as a result of the same crash. Louis Tuttle, 19, of London, remains in critical condition.

Coldwell Funeral To Be Held Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Funeral services for Mrs. M. J. Coldwell will be held at 10 a. m. EDT Monday at Ottawa's All Saints Anglican Church. After the service, the body will be cremated at Montreal.

Mrs. Coldwell, wife of the national CCF leader, died Friday, a victim of a paralyzing illness which forced her to spend the last 21 years in a wheel-chair. Despite her illness, she was a constant encouragement to her husband and maintained an active interest in his political career.

Russians Fail Attend Meeting

BERLIN (AP)—A meeting of the Western high commissioners for Germany came and went today in West Berlin without any sign of the Russians. There had been speculation that a Soviet representative might come over from East Berlin to participate.

The British, American and French high commissioners for Germany discussed for two hours and 35 minutes the dynamic developments of last week's workers rebellion in the Soviet sector of Berlin and East Germany.

Although the Soviet news agency ADN claimed that 70,000 workers participated in two East Berlin meetings, Western sources said the affairs apparently were a dismal failure for Premier Otto Grotewohl's frightened regime.

These sources said only about 6,000 hand-picked listeners gathered at the demonstrations in Wilhelmstrasse, scene of wild battles between club-swinging police and bare-handed workers June 17, and in outlying Koepenick.

Despite the reported flop of the "loyalty" meetings, Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, Soviet military commander, announced he was reducing the East Berlin curfew from six to four hours (11 p.m. to 3 a.m., local time). Observers said this apparently foreshadowed complete lifting of the Russian-imposed martial law next week.

Rhee "Very Happy" After Secret Talk

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee of South Korea was described as "very happy" today following a 40-minute secret conference with a special truce envoy from Washington and the United Nations military commander.

Speculation mounted that the stubborn old statesman might accept an armistice.

No new conferences were scheduled. Most members of Rhee's cabinet went into closed door session immediately after the meeting. Members of the UN delegation met at the United States embassy.

Rhee's price for accepting a truce has not been disclosed.

Canada Anxious To Start Seaway Work—St. Laurent

HAMILTON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent wound up an Ontario tour in his Aug. 10 federal election campaign Friday night and headed eastward. He will spend the week-end at his summer home in St. Patrick, Que., then leave for a swing next week through the Atlantic provinces.

Speaking to a gathering aboard a cruise ship on Lake Ontario near Hamilton, he said Canada is anxious to get started on the St. Lawrence seaway-hydro project.

"The federal government is ready to start work on the seaway and the Ontario hydro-electric power commission is just as ready to start on the power project as soon as the federal power commission of the United States authorizes an American agency to co-operate with the Ontario hydro in building the dam required for the power development. . . .

"We have high hopes that the time is not too far off when the necessary authority will be granted to the state of New York to do its share of the power development."

The prime minister spent a relatively leisurely day in this industrial area on the fifth day of his initial vote-catching swing through southwestern Ontario.

On his way south by train from Owen Sound in the morning, he got off the train at Brampton in Conservative-held Peel riding and chatted with some of the 75 persons at the station.

At Malton, 18 miles northwest of Toronto, he saw the assembly line of the CF-100 all-weather jet fighter at the big A. V. Roe airplane plant, watched the making and testing of Orenda jet engines and the final production of the planes. He bought a 49-cent lunch in Avro's cafeteria and ate with 400 of the plant's 14,000 workers.

He said in a speech in the cafeteria he hopes Canada's plane production facilities soon can be diverted entirely to peaceful purposes.

Mr. St. Laurent adressed about 1,000 persons in a park at Oakville, midway between Toronto and Hamilton. He said he does not feel the government has betrayed the trust placed in it by the people in the 1949 election.

Athabaskan In Select Group

TOKYO (AP) — The Canadian destroyer Athabaskan, on her third Korean tour of duty, Thursday joined a select group of United Nations warships which specialize in the destruction of North Korean railroads, locomotives and rolling stock.

The destroyer was welcomed into the "Train Busters Club"—composed of ships which have destroyed one or more trains carrying supplies to North Korea Communists—when it derailed a locomotive and five cars, damaged several other units, and tore up a stretch of track.

Lookouts on the Athabaskan sighted the train shortly before midnight streaking between two tunnels. Salvos from the four-inch guns smacked the front of the locomotive.

Fog and low clouds prevented accurate observation of results so the Athabaskan resumed her coastline patrol, returning later to shell the train again. This time one of the cars was seen tossed in the air.

A second train was later spotted half a mile north, and was trapped inside a tunnel as wreckage from the other train still cluttered the track.

Sleepwalker High In Tree

ENID, Okla. (AP)—A 27-year-old Enid housewife, who sleep walks at midnight when the moon is full, was found nude early today picking leaves 20 feet up in a tree.

Police answered a call from her distraught husband, who was unable to find his wife.

He told authorities his wife often walked in her sleep and it was always when the moon is full and around midnight.

Police reported the following events:

The husband found his wife missing from her bed shortly after midnight.

He searched the neighborhood and was unable to find her. Alarmed, he called Enid police who also started searching the the tree as a full moon illuminated the tree as a full moon illulinated the weird scene.

The woman, still asleep, was nude and picking leaves while she balanced on a limb 20 feet in the air. The fire department was called and rescuers working silently so that the woman wouldn't be startled, stretched a life net under the tree.

The husband then climbed the tree, carefully wrapped his shirt around his wife and gently awakened her.

Pay Envelopes Come Sailing Through Air

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Pay envelopes came sailing through the air Friday for six men working on building projects near Toronto.

The six work for an electrical contracting firm headed by St. Thomas Alderman, Arthur Wilson.

It was Mr. Wilson who carried out "operation pennies from heaven." He put some $500 in a bag, climbed into his plane, flew low over the site of the new plant and tossed the bag to foreman Pete Boshart.

Lawyers Would Stop Kissing Of Bible

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia section of the Canadian Bar Association wants the procedure of kissing the Bible before testifying in court discontinued.

The annual convention of the section here Friday approved a resolution urging enactment of legislation abolishing the Bible kissing.

The resolution said the main objection to kissing the book is that it is unsanitary, especially in large cities where thousands of witnesses kiss the same book.

William A. Shultz, chairman of the administration of criminal justice committee, suggested witnesses might simply hold the Bible when they take the oath. Others opposed the resolution. Douglas Brown of Vancouver said witnesses are more liable to tell the truth if they kiss the book.

India Won't Send Troops Yet

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru said today India will not send troops to supervise a Korean truce until conditions are "ripe" there for them to function peacefully.

Nehru made the statement upon his return from the Coronation and Commonwealth prime ministers' talks in London.

The armistice terms call for a five-country truce commission to supervise Communist prisoners unwilling to be repatriated, but India would be the only neutral nation to provide supervisory troops.

Asked whether India would send troops to Korea if Rhee did not agree to an armistice, Nehru replied:

"Indian troops are not going there to fight anybody. We will send them when conditions are ripe there for them to function peacefully."

Catch Ontario-Born Fugitive

Seized In Washroom Dressed As Woman

CHICAGO (CP) — One of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives—born in the Ontario town of Simcoe—was seized Friday in a ladies' washroom masquerading as a woman.

He is Isaie Aldy Beausoleil, 46.

A policewoman seized Beausoleil in the washroom of a north-side beach where she had been called by the manager.

The manager said he became suspicious of Beausoleil's husky build. Police said that underneath his dress the fugitive wore a bathing suit and falsies.

Beausoleil had been sought since August, 1949, after the bludgeoned body of Rose Trahan of Danielson, Conn., was found in a ditch in London township, Monroe county, Mich.

WANTED ON 2ND CHARGE

The FBI office in Chicago said that in addition to the murder charge, Beausoleil is wanted on federal charges of illegal entry into the United States and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The body of the Trahan woman was found Aug. 17, 1949. Detective chief John T. O'Malley said Beausoleil entered the United States from Canada illegally in 1946 and met the woman in East Lansing, Mich., in 1947. He made frequent trips to Michigan to see the woman while employed by a Chicago manufacturing firm from 1947 to 1949.

RECOGNIZED PICTURE

O'Malley said the futigive was married to Catherine Schenk, 46, in 1950. They lived together in Chicago until three months ago when she recognized his picture in a newspaper which described him as one of the FBI's 10 most wanted men and he left town, O'Malley said.

O'Malley said Beausoleil returned to Chicago three weeks ago and began masquerading as a woman to avoid detection.

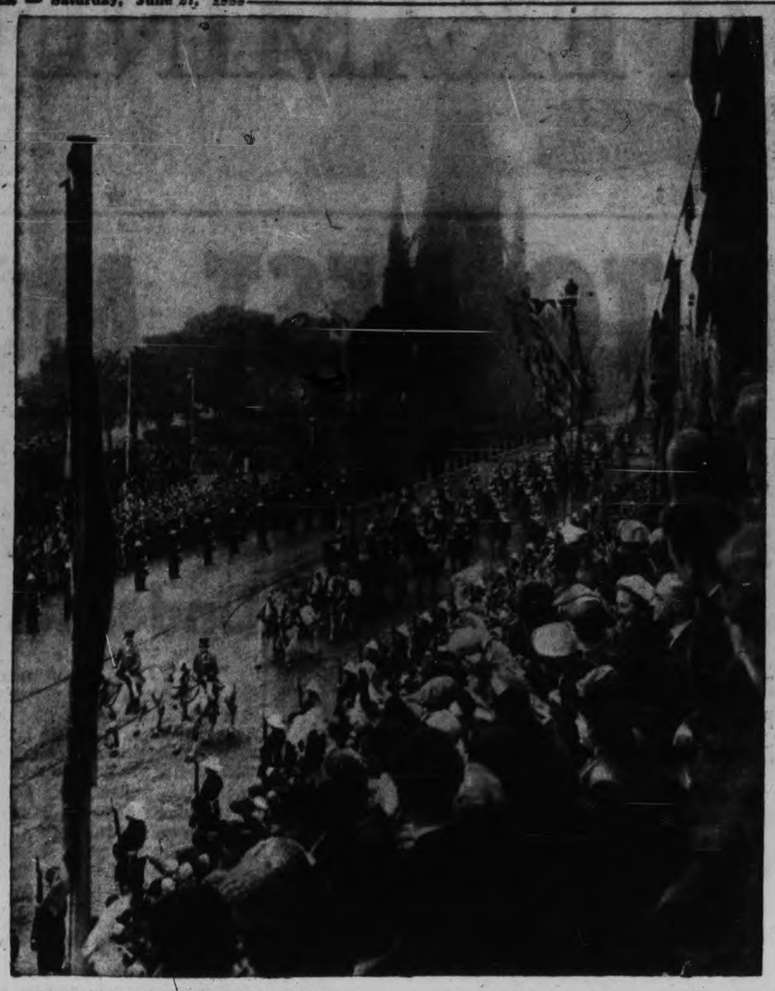
Morning After Nine In Court On Liquor Counts

A "morning after," reminiscent of January 1, was witnessed in magistrate's court today as nine men appeared for remands and adjournments on liquor charges, including two counts of drunk driving, seven of being intoxicated, one of having liquor, and one of illegal possession of liquor.

Joyner Ryan, 27, of 388 Murray Street, was one of those charged with drunk driving. He was involved in an accident on Friday night with Clarke Whittington of 183 Lock Street.

Whittington's car was parked at the east curb of Aylmer Street, just south of Hunter, when Ryan's car collided with it. Ryan was driving north at the time. Damage in the crash was estimated at $75 to the parked car and $150 to Ryan's. PC Gerald Emmons investigated.

Joseph Traynor of Nogie's Creek was also charged with drunk driving today. His car was damaged to the extent of $25 Friday night when it struck a rural mail box on Water Street, just north of Langton. PC William G. Scott investigated the accident.



ADJOURNED

Both charges of drunk driving were adjourned until Monday.

Adjourned on drunk charges until Monday were Frank Traynor of Cavan and Steve Traynor of Nogie's Creek. A charge of being intoxicated against Earl Keller of 373 Bethune Street was adjourned until July 6, while one against Harold Keller of RR 5, Peterborough, was adjourned until Thursday.

John Hawkins, 73, no fixed address, was remanded until Monday on charges of being intoxicated and illegal possession of liquor, while Oscar Calberry of Douro was remanded until Monday on charges of being intoxicated and having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Also remanded until Monday on a drunk charge was Frank Johnson of RR 1, Peterborough.

THROUGH EDINBURGH STREETS—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh ride in the royal carriage along Princess street in Edinburgh as thousands line the route to cheer the royal visitors. 16 Boys Fight About Girl

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two teenage boys were injured and another was dunked in the Detroit river during a fracas early Friday after 14 Windsor youths went to nearby Belle River to visit a girl whom police described as "popular."

Police said the Windsor youths, who went to Belle River in three cars, fought several times during the evening. However, they soon united forces when two Belle River boys, who had been attending a high school picnic, arrived on the scene just as the Windsor boys were about to leave for home.

Joseph Meunier, 17, suffered bruises and a cut over his right eye when attacked by the Windsorites. His companion, Jack Nichols, 18, was thrown into the river but escaped injury.

The unidentified 16-year-old girl apparently became bored with the whole thing and went home soon after the first battle started.

Plane Lands On Tiny Beach

TORONTO (CP)—Gerald Pare, Toronto pilot who landed a plane with four passengers on a narrow beach on a tiny island in Georgian Bay, said Friday night that there "wasn't any trouble."

Flying four passengers to Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron Thursday, Pare was forced to turn back because of heavy fog. He found a hole in the "soup" and landed his Piper tri-pacer on a 450-foot-long beach on Lonely Island.

He came back Friday flying the same plane. Meanwhile his passengers were taken on to Gore Bay, Manitoulin Island, by an amphibian plane. They were Gilbert Owen, 40, of Miami, Fla., Owen's two sons, Billy, 9, and Richard, 7, and the boys' governess, whose identity wasn't learned. The boys went to a summer camp on Manitoulin Island, some 180 miles northwest of here.

The plane was the subject of an intensive search Thursday and Friday after being unreported for seven hours.

A lighthouse keeper and his helper sheltered the stranded passengers and despite heavy static managed to get out word that they were safe.

The party left Toronto Thursday on the two-hour flight. Sixteen RCAF search planes from Centralia near London and the Trenton air station hunted for them until bad weather forced cancellation of the flight last night.

Veteran pilots marvelled at how Pare managed to set down his plane safely on the tiny stretch of beach, never wider than 20 yards and marked by holes and stones.

Beach Opens Wednesday At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, chairman of the swimming and water safety program, sponsored by the Lakefield branch Canadian Red Cross Society, in co-operation with the village council and the Recreation Committee, has announced the opening day at the beach as July 2. The slogan, "Use It: Don't Abuse It," has been adopted for the beach, and it is hoped that the children will do just that.

Instructor Ron Gould of Ottawa is qualified to teach junior, intermediate and senior Red Cross courses, and has prepared a special course for beach patrols and more advanced swimmers as well as Royal Life Saving classes. Classes for adults will be held also, provided enough register for them.

Registration for classes will be held during the regular hours of supervision, which are 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. During these hours supervision will be given by ladies of the beach committee who will be identified either by arm bands or the familiar Red Cross uniform.

An important addition has been added to the rules of other years which says: "Pre-school children must be accompanied by an adult or responsible 'teen-ager." These children will be looked after during classes, but only then.

The beach house has been given a coat of paint and looks very trim with its colorful awnings and window boxes. The painting was done under the supervision of A. G. Buchanan, who was assisted by several men of the village.

Principal Retained

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—J. W. Rollins, school principal accused of brutality toward pupils, Friday was retained in that post. The school board voted unanimously to reject the request of a group of parents that Rollins be removed. Rollins was accused of brutally whipping pupils, and sometimes broadcasting the whippings over the school intercommunications syste. Another group supported him, maintaining he was "stern but fair."

Plans New Helicopter

DUESSELDORF (AP) — Professor Heinrich Focke, noted German aircraft designer, is building a new "convertible" helicopter in Brazil which will reach the same speed as conventional planes, his former chief engineer said Friday. Engineer Karl Rode told a meeting of the German Society for Aviation Research that Focke's helicopter will gain that speed by shifting its rotor blades in flight. He did not elaborate.

Indian Mystery Solved

OTTAWA (CP)—The mystery of the duplicate Indian has been solved. From Deadman's Creek, B.C., came the story of Alex Ignace, an Indian, whose fingerprints were said to be "approximately" the same as those of another Indian of the same name hanged 34 years ago. Indian folk of the area wondered if the Indian from Deadman's Creek, sentenced to six months in jail on an assault charge, was a reincarnation of the Indian who was hanged. Not so, said the RCMP. The Indian hanged was Alex Ignace while the now jailed Indian is Alex Eneas.

Woman 80, Jailed

STERLING, Ill. (AP)—An 80-year-old woman driver is spending five days in jail rather than pay a $10 traffic fine to the "crooked" state of Illinois. Justice of the peace Gus Hansen said he ordered Anna Pittman jailed Friday after she told him she would pay "no damn fine" because the state and its justices of the peace are "crooked."

Plan No Emergency Session Till Seoul Talks Develop

OTTAWA (CP)—UN's two top figures agreed Friday it would be premature to seek an emergency Korean session of the UN general assembly at least before current talks in Seoul have time to crystallize, it was indicated. Canada's Hon. L. B. Pearson, assembly president, and Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general, said in a communique after a day-long meeting that they considered steps for an assembly meeting both after a truce and in the event the current situation is "prolonged."

They left it at that but the implication was that they feel the current discussions between a troubleshooter for President Eisenhower and President Syngman Rhee of South Korea should be allowed to develop.

BACKED BY DEPARTMENT

A spokesman for the external affairs department said Canada's own official opinion is along that line—that the Eisenhower envoy, Walter S. Robertson, should have every chance to win Rhee over to a truce settlement if possible.

If he can't, the situation will be re-examined.

The spokesman said the departmental view—therefore also Pearson's—is that time should at least be allowed for the Robertson-Rhee talks to bear fruit. An emergency meeting of the assembly, in this view, would not be useful until the result of those talks becomes clear.

The case for the calling of an emergency session was brought up Thursday night in a cable Mr. Pearson got from Prime Minister Nehru of India suggesting that there should be an immediate UN session because of Rhee's opposition to a truce.

Mr. Hammarskjold flew here for a general discussion with Mr. Pearson on the truce situation. He returned to New York by plane Friday night.

Socreds Plan

Under the party's financial policy, said Mr. Low, a national monetary authority would exercise full control over the issue of money and credit under a specific policy laid down by Parliament.

Money would be issued at a rate necessary "to insure continued expansion of production and consumption;" credit "on suitable and reasonable terms would be given to agriculture and industry to finance efficient production of goods required by the people; basic interest rates would be reduced; lower down payment and interest rates would be given to home builders; the public debt would be systematically reduced. Also:

Consumption would be balanced with production by financing the equitable distribution of surplus goods and services so as to make possible a full employment and full distribution in peacetime — "the only possible insurance against depressions."

OPPOSE STATE SOCIALISM

The program opposed "state socialism, totalitarianism and regimentation," and advocated "free competitive individual enterprise," and "the highest standard of Christian morality in politics and government."

Other program items included:

Pensions for all aged and disabled citizens commensurate with Canada's ability to produce; new federal - provincial financial arrangements to ensure each province adequate revenues to discharge fully its constitutional responsibilities; an assured home market and export markets for farm, factory, mines, fisheries and lumber industries; adequate military and civil defence forces.

On trade, the program advocated "an international trade policy under which goods will be exchanged between nations on basis of mutual advantage to all and through which the production of the world will be made available to feed and bless all humanity."

Mr. Low said the proposal of Progressive Conservative leader George Drew for a tax reduction of $500,000,000 "is quite possible and practical," but that it could not be accomplished by the "orthodox" means which the Progressive Conservatives would use, without reducing present services or impairing the defence effort.

WISE MANAGEMENT

"We Social Crediters can show Mr. Drew and the government exactly how, by wise management and through our Social Credit financial proposals, to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year without in any way reducing present social security payments or essential services, or in any way impairing the defence effort."

He said the Liberal government has been "notoriously loose and wasteful," and, by its taxation policies, has "seriously undermined the spirit of independence of the whole people."

Liberals Trying Lift Trade Barriers

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—The Liberals are trying to remove the barriers of trade—tariffs, currency and controls and quota systems, George J. McIlraith of Ottawa, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, said Friday.

Speaking at a meeting which nominated W. G. Weir to run in the Portage-Neepawa riding in the Aug. 10 federal election, Mr. McIlraith said the Liberal government maintains 90 trade commissioners in 40 countries.

Canada will continue to have trade problems including the threat of higher tariffs in the United States, he said.

"The same talk can arise right here in Canada. I hope Canadians will repudiate it."

Went To Phone Police Driver Didn't Return

A hit-and-run accident Friday night at the corner of Hunter and Rogers Streets resulted in damage to two cars totalling $450. The driver of a car, identified as belonging to Alfred Marshall of 367 Rogers, left the scene to telephone police, but never returned.

Richard Doris, 25, of 747 St. Mary's Street, was driving east on Hunter when the Marshall car, southbound on Rogers, failed to stop at the intersection, colliding with Doris.

Both drivers got out of their cars. One said he would go to telephone police, but never returned afterwards.

PC William G. Scott investigated.

Two vehicles stopping suddenly on George Street near Antrim resulted in an accident in which damages were set at $175.

Barry Kilborn, 22, 856 George Street, was driving north on George Street when he was forced to stop quickly to avoid a truck. R. J. Fraley, 30, of 425 Bethune Street, driving behind Kilborn, could not stop quickly enough to avoid a crash.

PC William A. Scott investigated.

Polls Open Here August 10 9 a.m. To 7 p.m.

OTTAWA (CP)—Polling hours in the federal general election will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. local standard time. Where communities are on daylight saving time, the hours will be 9 a.m.-7 p.m. EDT.

As in the last three elections, voters who are at—but not actually in—the polling place at closing time will be allowed to ballot.

Before the 1940 election, only those inside the polls at the deadline were given ballots.

Employees who are electors must be given three consecutive hours —apart from lunch periods—to cast their votes.

This does not necessarily mean that the employee gets three hours off from his work. If the polls in his riding open at 8 a.m. and he is not due at work until 9 a.m., he can be given the three hours between 8 and 11 a.m.

Also, if his working day ends normally at, say, 3 p.m., the remaining part of the voting day may be taken into account in figuring time off.

It is provided that, whatever time an employee gets off from work, his pay will not be docked.

Will Inoculate 30,000 Children

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—All available gamma globulin was flown here Friday night to begin mass inoculation of 30,000 children in an effort to check a threatening polio outbreak.

National poliomyelitis experts and local doctors assembled for the campaign against the dread disease, which has stricken 73 persons and caused three deaths in Montgomery since the polio season opened.

Montgomery, declared an emergency area, will be the first major U. S. city in which mass immunization has been attempted, state health officer D. G. Gill said.

"We could no longer hold off," he said. "Washington agreed to let us have all the available gamma globulin." "The 250,000 cubic centimetres will be enough to vaccinate our children nine and under."

Seventy-five Montgomery county physicians agreed to administer the 2,200 pounds of vital vaccine flown here to augment Alabama reserves.

APPEAL TO LABOR

Mr. Ketcheson asked all groups to rally to the CCF banner. He made a special appeal for unity among the conflicting labor groups in Peterborough.

"There's no question about it," the Peterborough CCF leader said, "Peterborough is going to go CCF. We're going all out to win."

At present Mr. Ketcheson is president of the Peterborough CCF Association. He has been a party member since 1935 and has held all of the executive offices in the Association.

This is the first time he has been a CCF candidate in an election though he was nominated in 1949, losing out by only a few votes at the nominating convention to Mr. Miles.

Mr. Ketcheson has never held civic office though he once ran as an aldermanic candidate. He is well known locally for the interest he takes in civic affairs. One of his most recent one-man campaigns was circulating a petition to get action on Peterborough's long-awaited Memorial Centre.

Danes Halt Shipment Of Strategic Nickel

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Police said today Danish port officials have thwarted an attempt to smuggle two shipments of strategic nickel through Copenhagen's free port to Communist Eastern Europe.

The announcement said 12 tons of the metal were seized about two months ago. The shipments, from France for re-export to Poland by way of Rotterdam, were listed on the shipping paper as cast steel.

Croll Offers Housing Plan For Liberals

TORONTO (CP)—David Croll, Liberal candidate for Toronto Spadina in the Aug. 10 federal election, said Friday night that the Liberal government hopes to provide a home for every family that wants one after the Korean war is over.

He was speaking at the two-day Canadian Legion housing conference here and said that housing demands "are still sitting in second priority to the war effort." Nearly 100,000 homes will be finished by the end of the year, he added.

Mr. Croll was one of many speakers at the conference. The others included George Hees, Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto Broadview, Joseph Noseworthy, CCF for York South, and civic officials.

POLICY ENDORSED

Mr. Hees told delegates that the Progressive Conservatives, if elected, propose to reduce the down payment for National Housing Act dwellings to 10 per cent. The present requirement is 20 per cent of the purchase price.

Mr. Hees said he was announcing the official party policy endorsed by its national leader, George Drew.

Mr. Noseworthy charged that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation was a tool of lending agencies and was not interested in the welfare of Canadians.

He said the Liberal government had 18 consecutive years to solve the housing problem, but had built only 700,000 homes, a figure equal to the number of new families formed by marriage in the same period.

Fair Farm

Mr. Drew denied statements he said had been made that the Progressive Conservatives would cancel the existing federal-provincial tax agreements.

Provincial and municipal governments needed an adequate financial basis to carry out their responsibilities.

Since the start of the present tax agreements in 1943, the federal government had promised to reach a broader agreement with the provinces on taxes, financial problems and constitutional issues.

This had not been done, and the only reason was that "the present government has no intention of signing a permanent agreement."

It wanted to centralize power in Ottawa and be in a position where it could "dictate" terms to the provinces. It was reaching this position year by year, taking a larger share of taxes, and last year collected 78 cents of every tax dollar.

TO REVIEW SITUATION

"Our purpose is to review the whole situation," Mr. Drew said. "Any province wishing to arrange with the federal government for federal collection of its taxes and their repayment to the province would be able to do so at all times "through fair negotiation."

The provinces would be "much better off than they are under the present temporary agreements." And it would be a "new deal" for the municipalities, which would be in a position to carry the cost of education and health without a tax burden on property that discouraged the buying of homes.

"It's time we got this constitution of ours back in working condition through agreement of all the governments."

G. E. Hunter

George Edmund Hunter's funeral occurred yesterday at Little Lake Cemetery. He was the son of Anthony Hunter and Sarah Ward of Cavan, and spent his entire life upon the farm.

Services were held at the Comstock funeral home at 3:30 p.m. yesterday with the Rev. E. W. Rowland officiating. Active pallbearers were, Walter Bowles, Ira Robson, Clarence Lainey, Arthur Stintson, Percy Forester, Leo McCabe. The honorary bearers were Bruce Eakins, Bruce Johnston, Norm Stintson and Henry Batton.

German Government Gets Steel Workers Returned

BONN (AP)—The giant former Hermann Goering steel works, where German workers once rioted against Allied dismantling, today was formally handed back to the West German government.

The Allied high commission announced that it was relinquishing its control over the state-owned iron-steel-coal group and entrusting to the federal German government the task of completing decartelization.

The plant was one of the main targets of the Allied occupation plan to reduce what they called "excessive concentrations of economic power."

ENFORCED DISMANTLING

Britain sent soldiers into the Salzgitter steelworks in March, 1950, to enforce dismantling of equipment destined for Greece as reparations. Protesting German workers rioted and menaced British officials. Later the Germans were allowed to keep a lot of the equipment by sending diesel motors to Greece as substitute reparations.

The giant enterprise was built by the Nazis in 1937 as part of the four-year economic plan preparing for war. The main company employed 393,000 persons and also absorbed many plants in Nazi-conquered Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and France.

After reductions owing to the war and Allied-ordered reorganization, the group now has a capital of 140,000,000 marks (about $33,000,000) and staff of 62,300, of whom about 40,000 arem iners.

Black Border Around The Week

This editorial should be bordered in black to memorialize the black week of accidents on which it comments. In the seven days preceding last night there were eight deaths in this district as a result of a mishap. Two persons were drowned and six killed in motor accidents. In all Peterborough and district's history there has never been such a deadly series. (In addition there were two other deaths this week, one in the river, and one as a result of a previous car accident.)

* * *

Our news reports of local accidents, and figures on city and district accidents as compiled by the Department of Highways compel us, more times than we like, to call attention to Peterborough's accident rate and to warn of the dangers to life and limb which lurk on our roads and in our waterways. The Peterborough district record is not much worse than that of other parts of the Province, but as we pointed out a few days ago, the rate of accidents hereabouts is increasing faster than the rate for the province generally. Slogans can be paraded, figures published, admonitions given and advice propagated, but still the accidents occur, and more of them than ever before.

* * *

We are now in the midst of another summer weekend, a period notorious for its casualties. We do not look forward with pleasure to the reports of yet other accidents we shall have to publish Monday, accidents which have not happened as you read these words, but which will, as sure as death, happen before our next issue is published. What else can be said, what advice given, except this: that constant vigilance is the price, not only of liberty, but of life itself.

* * *

Last year in Ontario ten thousand people were killed in highway accidents. That is catastrophic. If a tenth that number—a thousand—Peterborough people were wiped out through some phenomenal or human upheaval at one time, the catastrophe would rouse the whole world's attention and concern. Because 10,010 deaths as a result of motor accidents were spread throughout the year and in various parts of the province, does not lessen the alarm which all of us should feel. The eight violent accidental deaths in this district in the last seven days may rouse people from the passive acceptance of the appalling figures, local as well as Provincial. Let it be remembered that accidents do not happen; they are caused.

U.S. Trade Barriers And The Sterling Market

Ever since the Great War the preponderance of Canadian external trade has tended to shift from Britain to the United States. This process was accelerated in the years immediately following the Second World War and now the bulk of Canadian exports as well as imports is with the States. This heavy dependence on the American market has not been a deliberate policy of the Canadian Government. It is the result, first, of geographical and industrial affinity with the States, and secondly, of the dollar-pound problem.

Britain did not have enough dollars—despite American and Canadian loans, and Canadian gifts—to buy dollar goods as freely as before. The British Government made capital (in pounds) out of this difficulty, cutting off trade with dollar markets in favour of building up the sterling area. The result of all this is that, now, Canada is seriously dependent on the American market, and therefore extraordinarily sensitive to American tariff policies. The Eisenhower administration with a Republican Congress catering to manufacturing and agricultural protectionists, has been curtailing imports. New and stronger barriers have been raised particularly against Canadian farm and dairy produce. There is no sign that American tariffs will be reduced; and some disturbing indications that imports will be further restricted.

Canada has made representations in Washington urging a more liberal attitude towards Canadian imports. What else can be done? Can trade with Britain and Europe be expanded? The difficulties in this are great, and are not lessened by the sharp cuts which the American government is making in its direct financial aid to European countries; American dollars which can be used to buy Canadian as well as American goods.

Canada continues to sell more to Britain than she buys from Britain. Last year, for instance the U.K. imported 319 million pounds worth of Canadian goods, and exported to Canada (or re-exported) 130 million pounds worth of goods and services. This favourable balance is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough, either in the total amount of trade or in the amount of the excess of British imports from Canada over exports to Canada. It is this excess in all former decades of our trade with the U.K. which permitted a flourishing trade, and made Canada the third party in a three-way British-American-Canadian trade. This old pattern has virtually disappeared.

Whatever excuses or reasons may be advanced for the relatively small trade between Canada and Britain, none can gainsay that it is small. Only 9.1 per cent. of Britain's imports last year were from Canada. Only 4.8 per cent. of her total exports were to Canada. In contrast, 41.3 per cent. of British imports were from the Sterling area outside Europe, and 47 per cent. of her exports were to this area. British trade with the U.S.A. was as small as with Canada: 9.1 per cent. of her imports and 6.6 per cent. of her exports.

The chief barrier to increasing British trade with Canada and the U.S.A. is and has been the inconvertibility of the pound into dollars. When Mr. R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, visited Washington last Fegruary, he told the Americans that Britain was prepared to take steps towards the convertibility of sterling into dollars. But he asked the U.S. to assist the United Kingdom in doing this, through support for international institutions such as the International Monetary Fund. He also asked the U.S. to adopt "good creditor" policies. The U.S. is obviously not willing to do either, this year at least. In fact its policies are veering the opposite way. Nevertheless, at the conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers which Mr. St. Laurent attended at Coronation time, it was decided to carry on with plans for ultimate sterling convertibility, despite the lack of American support.

The Dollar Curtain had become almost as restrictive as the Iron Curtain, and as difficult to penetrate. Canada knows this to her own inconvenience, as reflected in the dwindled post-war trade between Canada and the United Kingdom, and the increase in her dependence on American markets. If the pound can be made convertible, Anglo-Canadian trade would benefit. The question is whether this can be achieved without vigorous American support, which is now being withheld.

Visits By The Queen

An English newspaper is spreading a rumour that the Queen may come to Ottawa this Fall, on her way to the Antipodes, to open the Canadian Parliament. The suggestion is interesting but not new. Such a visit is hardly a possibility this year, although Canadians generally would give the Queen an enthusiastic welcome for this State purpose any year.

With today's quick means of transport, we consider that the ruler might visit Commonwealth countries more frequently, if for shorter periods than the former Royal Progresses through them. These extensive tours must be a heavy burden on the person of the Sovereign. More frequent but shorter visits will enable the Queen to see this country just as fully, and with less expenditure of time and energy.

There is in this suggestion no hint of depriving the Queen of her right to enjoy throughout the year the permanence and convenience of her homes in Britain. Few Canadians would expect the Queen to take up official residence in this country, even for a part of the year. They realize that Canada has neither the habitude nor the facilities to establish a Royal Court and to provide the Queen and her retinue with suitable residences and offices to enable her to carry on the routine duties of her great position. The Queen should not be asked to establish, periodically, official residence in this country. Let Canada be a holiday for her—not in the former fashion of exhausting tours (which was far from being a holiday) but as a resort to which she might fly for brief visits, intermingling state appearances with pleasure.

The Abominable Snowman

The climbers who conquered Mount Everest saw no trace of the Abominable Snowman. They do not, however, deny his existence. So he may continue to haunt the Himalayas where he was first discovered thirty-two years ago. It was on June 19th, 1921, that Colonel Howard Bury, leader of the first British expedition, came upon footprints in the eternal snows of Everest which resembled those of a human being. The guide whispered in terror, "The wild man of the snows."

Natives call the wild man by many loathing names. The various British expeditions have pooled the terms and tongues and devised an English translation: The Abominable Snowman. He is as real, even to H. W. Tilman the veteran Himalayan climber, as the giant creatures who inhabit the Canadian northern woods for better or for worse, and as weird as the voice of the great spook who lives in caves in Bohemia.

ITALIAN POLITICS

Thawed Left Wing

By CECIL SPRIGGE

THE ITALIAN general elections of June 7, 1953, like those of April 18, 1948, have coincided with big world political developments. The 1948 elections followed closely upon the Communist suffocation of representative government in Czechoslovakia, while those of this month shortly preceded the popular rebellion against the Communist occupation regime in East Berlin.

In both cases the coincidence was more than casual. The Prague act of tyranny symbolised a pressure from the East against which the Italian electorate strongly rebelled, refusing to give more than eight millions of vote (31 per cent of the total) to the Communists and their associates who two years earlier in general elections in 1946 had won nine-and-a-half millions, or 41 per cent of the total. This month's elections, on the other hand, were held in an atmosphere of apparent thaw in the cold war. The Communists no longer appeared as the long arm of a rapacious Russian despotism in the eyes of all thbse who had voted against them in 1948.

JUST as the East Berliners appear to have sensed that the Russians were weakening, and to have chosen the moment for a rising, so the Italians, or rather about a million of them, appear to have sensed that the Russians were softening, and therefore to have thought that the local Communist Party could be safely treated as a sort of local Labour Party, and be accorded votes as a simple expression of desire for strenuous economic reforms. Accordingly the Communist and near-Communist vote in Italy is back once again to nine-and-a-half millions, or the same figure as in 1946, though this is now only 35.5 per cent of the present larger electorate.

It is true that the local elections throughout Italy in 1951 and 1952 gave warning of a recovery of Extreme Left strength, for in them Communists and quasi-Communists gained 33.5 per cent of the votes. However, on the one hand this latter proportion, though representing a distinct advance on 1948, has been now appreciably exceeded, and on the other hand, people are inclined to be more cautious in their voting in national elections than in local elections. The latest Communist advance has been gained in the teeth of what many considered to be unfavourable conditions for them. Of their gain of a million-and-a-half votes compared with 1948 (though natural growth of the electorate during the five years, it must be remembered, would have in itself brought their total up by half-a-million), considerably the larger part was won in agricultural and relatively unindustrialised South Italy, the gain in North Italy's strong industrial centres being smaller.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE effect of the thaw in the cold war has in South Italy been indirect. The peasant has probably in very few cases indeed thought out for himself that a vote for Communism no longer means a vote for Russian tyranny of the Prague 1948 order. This may have been a powerful consideration for small middle-class voters of the North, and perhaps for some industrial operatives. What happened in the South was rather that the land-owning and otherwise wealthy families thought it now safe to subtract their votes from Christian Democracy and make them over to the Extreme Right (the two parties of which have increased their share in the national vote from ten per cent in the recent local elections to thirteen per cent.)

✧ ✧ ✧

THESE WEALTHIER families, hit or threatened by agrarian reforms sponsored by Christian Democracy, thought it was by now time to have their interests more robustly represented by the Monarchist Party (or sometimes by the Missino or neo-Fascist Party). This involved repudiating the Christian Democratic Party's claim to be the necessary bulwark of the country against the Communist peril. The word went round, in propaganda for the Extreme Right, that there was no longer any such pressing need for a united and single-party defence against a no longer very acute Communist peril.

THE SOUTHERN Right-wingers thus not only lured away a million or two votes from Christian Democracy to their own choice of party, but they also encouraged the spread of the belief that Communism was no longer an international or national danger. Sir Winston Churchill's recent diplomatic initiative is in Government circles here thought to have contributed to this effect. It should be noticed that the Extreme Left vote has been distinctly weaker (33 per cent) in the election for the Senate, in which all voters have to be over 25 years old.

The election results which have dismayed the three smallish non-confessional parties allied to Christian Democracy, and also Christian Democracy itself, though its own totals were fully up to expectations, have answered the prayers of two sections in Italian political life in a rather embarrassing way. Among the non-confessional allies, Social Democracy, the largest, has always longed to be in a position to exercise a balancing power in the Parliament. It greatly fared to see Christian Democracy so strong as to be independent of Social Democracy's aid. Social Democracy has now achieved this position. Should it turn its nineteen parliamentary votes against or even withhold them from Signor De Gaspari, the Christian Democrat Premier, his present majority of sixteen would be turned to a deficiency (though this only means that he would be exposed to the rather unlikely danger of a simultaneous adverse vote of the Communist Left and the Fascistic Right).

SOCIAL DEMOCRACY in the person of its official but rather insecure and emotional leader, Signor Saragat, has promptly taken advantage of this position in order to advocate approaches by Christian Democracy to the Nenni or near-Communist Socialist Party. It is only a week or two ago that Saragat was regarding it as almost criminal sentimentality to suppose that the Nenni party, or at any rate Nenni himself, was redeemable for use as an ally of Democracy. He has changed his mind a bit too quickly for his political reputation.

Nevertheless, there may be in a few months' time an attempt at an "Operation Nenni" — an attempt to win this long-time fellow traveller of the Communists to an attitude of benevolence towards, or even collaboration in, a non-Communist Government. How would the Communists take this? No doubt very gladly if they could feel that Nenni had clambered back into a Ministerial seat to make things cosy in the future for themselves. It would have to be Signor De Gasperi's business — and also Signor Saragat's — to ensure that the Nenni collaboration would, on the contrary, betoken a complete abandonment of the Kremlin policy of the past by Nenni. (One is supposing that it will, indeed, be De Gasperi, and not some younger man in his party, to make such soundings. And here it should be mentioned that the Christian Democratic Party itself comes out of the elections tilted more to the Left than hitherto. Its Right-wing men have been somewhat mauled in the elections).

✧ ✧ ✧

THE OTHER section in Italian political life which has had its prayers embarrassingly answered is the Left-wing of the Left Centre (such delicate points of the compass have to be registered in any survey of Italian politics. Roughly, the three non-confessional parties, Liberals, Social Democrats, and Republicans, constitute the Left Centre. Jointly they seemed not long ago to have some hope of winning four to five million votes. But inside all there of them, in 1953, a rebellious Left-wing developed, and the secessionists, grouped in two small parties, and partially also in a third, drew off nearly half-a-million votes.

These schisms also cost the Left Centre much of what remained of its great post-war national prestige. (Ferruccio Parri, one of the secessionists, was the much admired Resistance Premier of 1945). The ostensible motive of the secession was the electoral law of 1953 which the seceders condemned as immoral. By preventing the Government coalition from winning half of the national votes, they have frustrated the hated law. But they have also sacrificed all their own seats, and are now without any voice in Parliament. By their action, Christian Democracy has been greatly weakened and its liberal-minded leader, De Gasperi, greatly hampered, but the prospect of the Left Centre itself, in the next span of years, enjoying anything more dignified than a disproportionate nuisance value has been rendered very dim indeed.

Letters To The Editor

PITIES MACBETH

Sir: The reply of "Macbeth" to my letter makes me feel that there is nothing to be gained by pursuing an argument with him. Argument is one thing and abuse is another. Macbeth has chosen to fight with abuse. I regret this because I would have enjoyed a good argument, and I have found that Scotsmen of the better kind are excellent and courteous arguers. In fact, Scots and Welsh of the better kind have always been good friends, from the time when the Scotch pagans of Glasgow drove their blessed St. Mungo out of his own country and he sought refuge with our great St. David who was glad to protect him from his less enlightened countrymen. I am sure that any good Christian Scot who cannot get along with the barbarians among his people will always find refuge in Wales, the cradle of Christianity in Britain and the land of the saints.

Yours respectfully,
CEIRIOG.

HAS PETERBOROUGH SATISFACTORY AMBULANCE SERVICE?

Sir: Having read a news account of the accident involving a roofer on Trinity Church, assuming that it and the statements in it are all correct, the question arises in my mind again, "Has Peterborough a Satisfactory Ambulance Service?"

Two points in this story are serious—(1) Who lowered a patient with thigh (or possible spinal) injuries in a sitting position in a chair? Was this done prior to the arrival of the ambulance or did the operator of the ambulance do it? If the latter is the case, what qualified ambulance man would think of moving a patient in this manner, assuming that a fellow workman was there to tell what happened, which information would be a guide for thought as to probably injuries? (2) Why would it require 30 minutes to travel from the ambulance garage to Trinity Church—a distance of less than a thousand yards?

Our citizens might well interest themselves in his matter. It can be very serious. Our City Council might well act on this subject, the citizens' welfare is the Councilman's responsibility.

"FAIR PLAY FOR INJURED HUMANS"

SCOTS AS CULTURE-SPREADERS

I wish to thank Rosa Dartle for leaving herself (?) wide open for further enlightenment and higher education.

Perhaps Rosa subscribes to the belief that missionaries and explorers left home solely to get more or better food?

If Rosa does not believe this, then let her look upon the Scots as missionaries spreading the gospels of culture and tradition throughout the universe. Let her commiserate with those who left the fog, the rain and the haggis to accept the smog, the tornado and the salami, all in the interests of civilization.

As for the bagpipes, they, like the poor are always with us, and no nobler sight can be seen, or better music heard than when a pipe band is on the march.

Oh Rosa darling,—pardon me, Dartle, I'm afraid you just don't understand. Why not bow out gracefully and takeup embroidery as a hobby?

Ochone, Ochone,
MACTAVISH.

SCOTS MISSIONARIES TO CANADA

Sir: In a recent edition of the Evening Examiner, I read that someone was running down my colleagues and myself.

We, as a whole, are not interested in songs written in the reign of George II, Henry V or Ethelred the Unready. We are also very proud to be patriotic, not only when we are surrounded be our kind, but also when we are 3000 miles away.

The people in Scotland are not starving and they do not live in poverty. Perhaps the said "writer" prefers things like peanut butter, weiners and canned beans (imaginite meals) of her own 'native' country. And what if some of us have forsaken fog and rain for smog and blizzards?

The only people who eat porridge are the farmers who do not like peanut butter and jam sandwiches.

Perhaps our writer should be told, that if Scotsman had stayed in Caledonia, the world may never have known such discoveries as electricity, the first steam boat, steam engine, penicillin, TV., radio and radar, (to name a few.)

An explorer does not leave his own country because he hates it, he leaves to try and improve matters in other countries.

Oh, no! I think perhaps our little Rosa Dartle should stick to Ed. Ev. Horton, Gracie Fields, etc., and leave writing to people who know at least how to write.

Saludos Amigos
DON MACBETH.

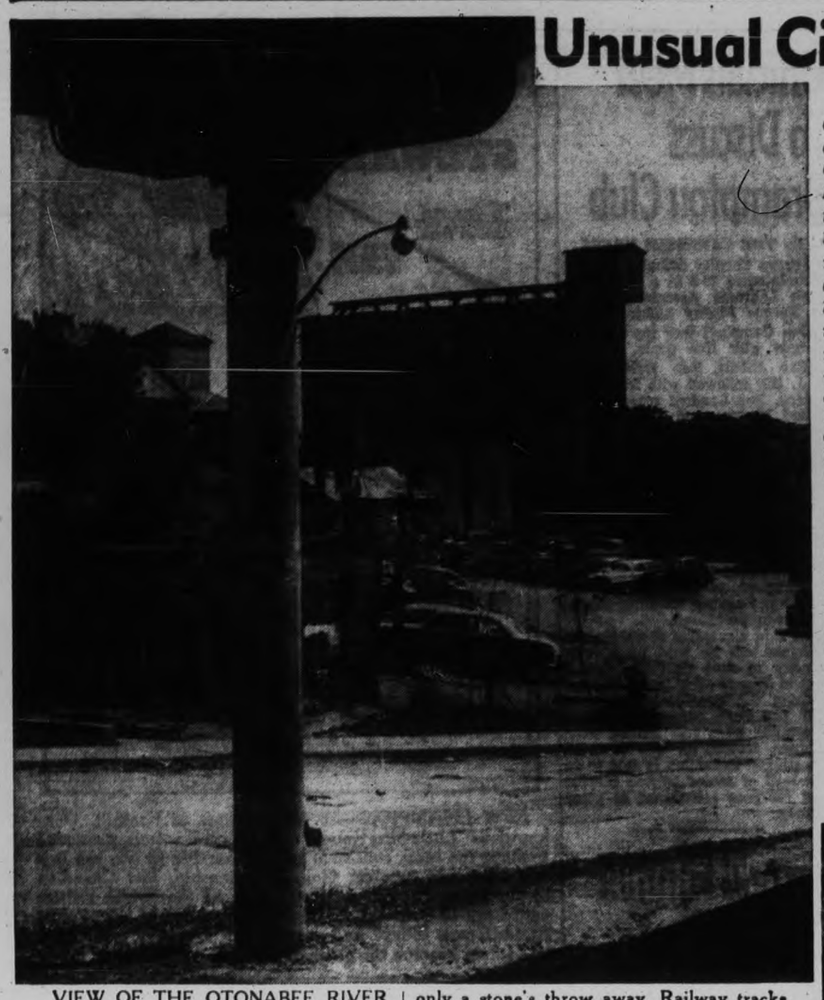
Lake Nipissing

The marooning of three Toronto anglers on a Lake Nipissing island in the aftermath to a storm points up again the need for a provincial police cruiser on this lake.

Lake Nipissing is some 40 miles in length, and 25 miles wide. Not only is it a big lake, but it's one of the most heavily fished bodies of water on the continent. Get a look at it from the air over a weekend and see what we mean.



It's a shallow body of water, and thus a temperamental one. A wind of even 25 miles per hour will heave it into a frenzy in a matter of minutes. A 50-mile wind turns it into a minor Atlantic in January.

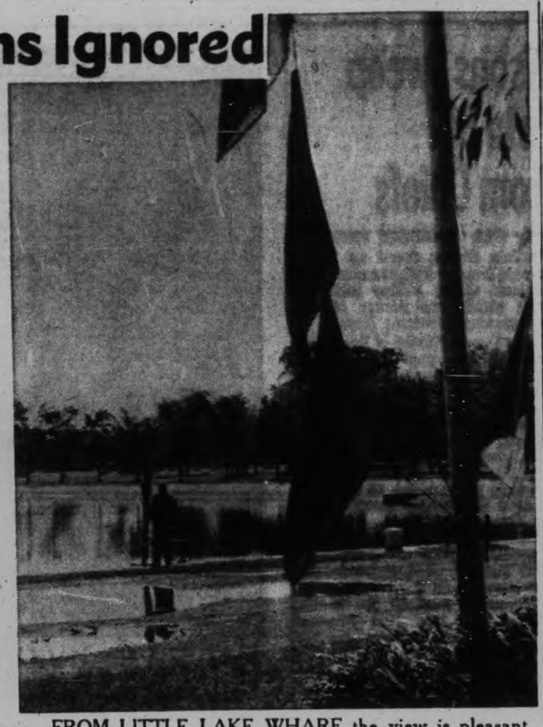
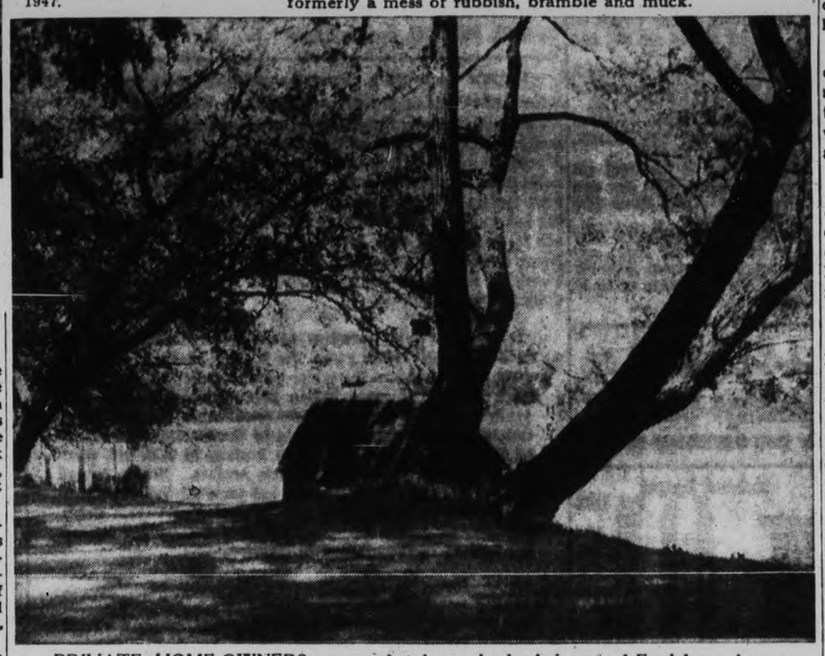
Unusual City Streams Ignored



VIEW OF THE OTONABEE RIVER from the corner of Charlotte and Water streets. The trouble with the view is that you can't see the river at all, though it is only a stone's throw away. Railway tracks (at right) freight sheds, mills, and the unprepossessing backs and shacks of other buildings completely obliterate the view and possess the river banks and their approaches.



"Peterborough is fortunate in having such natural assets as Jackson Creek, the Otonabee River and Little Lake. With the growth of the city, however, they have been ignored as the City's most important scenic spots and today their inherent beauty is no longer visible in many places. By reclaiming much of the land in the vicinity of the river and creek for park purposes, the beauty of these localities can be greatly restored and the attractiveness of the city enhanced.

"In Jackson Park only does the beauty of the creek show to full advantage. To provide additional scenic spots along the creek every possible piece of property with the exception of expensive industrial and commercial sites should be acquired. This property should be developed as park land making use of the natural setting of the creek."

—From the Faludi Master Plan for the development of the City of Peterborough, 1947.

FROM LITTLE LAKE WHARF the view is pleasant, and the Point St. Charles Park with its young trees (the man is looking at them) is now very attractive. This shows what can be done to reclaim the shores of the Otonabee. It was formerly a mess of rubbish, bramble and muck.

PRIVATE HOME-OWNERS can and have improved their Otonabee river frontages. What private people can do, the city can also do. This is a view from Ashburnham, the back lawns of Engleburn Avenue homes, looking south towards the CPR bridge. The large willows along many parts of the Otonabee banks give charm and verdure to the river.

Could Reclaim Two Waterways to Beauty

BY A. J. THOMAS

Last week on this page there appeared an article by a member of the Study Group, Peterborough, contrasting the comparatively unimproved river in Peterborough with the Avon, in Stratford, Ontario. The suggestion was made that what small Stratford could do with a much less attractive stream, originally, Peterborough could do as well or better with the beautiful Otonabee which flows through the city and at two points forms beautiful bays large enough to be called little lakes.

Another waterway which has long attracted the hopes of Peterborough people is the Jackson Park creek. This intrinsically charming stream angles from the north-west boundary of the city, cutting many of its busiest thoroughfares, to empty in the very heart of Peterborough into Little Lake.

On this page today are photographs taken of the Otonabee and the Creek showing how beautiful they are in places, and how disregarded and even blemished these beauties have become.

HARSHNESS OF HISTORY

The advance of transport and industry in the town during the last century, and right up to our own day, have dealt harshly with the Otonabee. It is a common occurence in many towns in many lands that some of the most beautiful natural endowments have been despoiled by commerce and industry. The reason, and certainly in Peterborough's case, is that access to the town and power for its first small industries was got from the river. Thus the river banks were first to be built over.

Peterborough's first mill, the Adam Scott mill, was on the Otonabee at the present King street. Its first houses and street were on or near the river banks. Commerce and transport were first possible—apart from paths through the bush—along the river.

As the settlement grew, more of the river's banks were pre-empted by streets and industry. When the railways came, their easiest, flatest path, and the one which led directly to the business of the town, was along the river. Thus, for more than half the total length of the Otonabee in Peterborough, the railway companies have rights and tracks and freight yards and shunting yards.

When the lumber era faded, and the age of hydro power came to Peterborough, the lumber mills powered by water were replaced by factories getting hydro power right from their own sites.

Thus two of the larger industries in Peterborough occupy potentially some of the most beautiful river sites in town. The Canada Packers company is at Little Lake. The Quaker Oats company occupies land on both sides of the river around Hunter Street.

FACTORY SITES IMPROVED

A complete reclamation of the river and banks, to restore it to public ownership and full beauty is not possible unless Canada Packers (in particular), the Quaker Oats (to a lesser extent) and the railway tracks are removed. No doubt all the companies involved would agree to set up in other parts of the town, if the city were to compensate them financially. To dream of this is pure fantasy, at this time. It would cost millions of dollars.

Industry is not necessarily a blemish. There are many good-looking factories in the city, which have some of the best private lawns and gardens and trees to be seen. The Quaker Oats company has wonderfully improved its property north of Hunter street. Canada Packers have created an attractive lawn and garden border fronting their factory on the west side of George street, and screening the parking lot which employees use.

This is evidence of the willingness of industry to co-operate with citizens and the council in making and keeping Peterborough an attractive place. There is little doubt that companies in town would support, as much as is reasonably feasible, any plans for the beautification of the city and restoration of its natural advantages.

RAILWAY BLEMISHES

The railway companies have been the least helpful. Instead of trying to abate the nuisances they cause, they have taken over more and more land along the railway (assuming a kind of squatter's rights over filled-in parts). They are doing more and more shunting between King street and Hunter street on the west bank of the river. They have made no effort to improve the ugliness of their tracked property, nor to control the belching smoke and clanging bells which harrass residential streets all day and part of the night. Shunting and racket are increasing along the Jackson Park creek way, at Bethune and Aylmer streets.

City officials themselves have not been alert to possibilities of many improvements, although much has been done at various spots. Little Lake is at long last becoming clean and pleasant (but do the gas works at Hunter street and the Canada Packers pour waste and oily messes into the river?) The little park beside George street wharf has been pleasantly created. Flower beds and shrubs make the bank at the Goose Pond attractive. City work has been done, and well done, around Hunter street on the east side of the river.

But the city has officially ignored other parts of the Otonabee's shores, on both sides. It has allowed increasing encroachment of industry and railways, instead of calling halt to this 125-year-old process.

CREEK ABANDONED

The city has officially ignored the Jackson Park creek as it flows through the city. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has made sporadic efforts to clean tin cans and other refuse from it, and city employees have assisted. But still the council ignores people and firms who throw waste of all kinds into the creek.

This lack of concern and regulations discourages private citizens with property along the creek, and business firms, from doing much to improve the creek. A notable example of care has been provided by the Lock Company and a few others, but the rest of the creek has been abandoned as a kind of open channel for refuse.

The city officially has been so unconcerned for this wonderful small waterway throughout the city as to sell city-owned property on it to private firms.

Where chances occurred to get pathway and garden rights (as behind the Loblaw store) these have been passed up.

CREEK PRIVATE PROPERTY

One of the difficulties regarding the creek is that much of the bed is private property. That is, the creek is not wholly, or even in large part, public property. Private householders (where the creek flows in or by their back yards), and business firms whose property includes the creek bed, can probably do what they like with the creek, so long as they do not create a public nuisance thereby, or so interfere with the creek's flow that flooding might result.

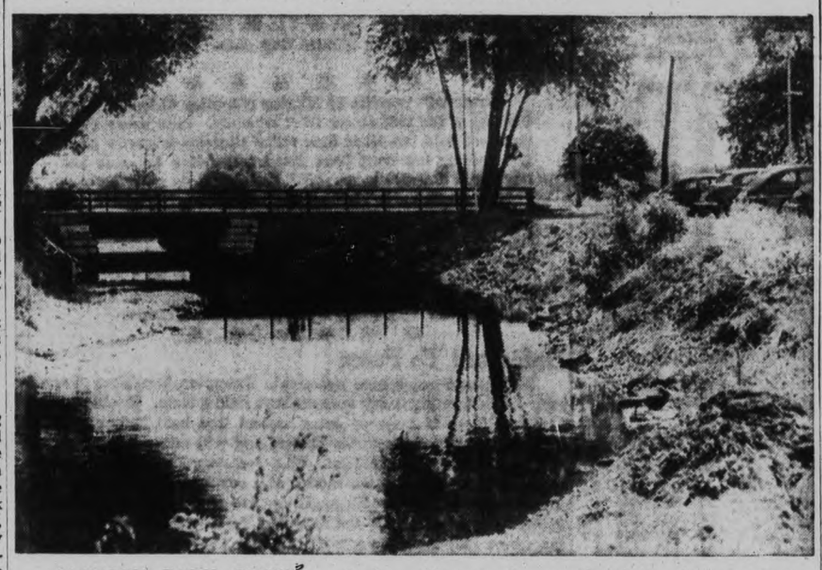
What is happening at the creek this very week is causing concern to many people interested in future possibilities. At King street, on the north side, its fine big willows have been cut down, its banks are being filled in, and a building site created. Farther up, to the property of the new Federal Building, the bus company has acquired rights to the west bank. The new Federal building heating plant is being erected right on the very edge of the creek. All these combine to make virtually impossible a public footpath and garden way along the creek from Charlotte to King and perhaps right down to the creek's mouth.

This is one of the dreams of people interested in preserving and beautifying this great natural advantage. With very little cost (once the property rights were acquired for it) a lovely footpath could be constructed along the creek—a green spot beside bubbling creek water in the very heart of the city.

Some of this may yet be possible if the city officially calls a halt to further closure of the creek, and, as opportunity permits, annexes strips of property along it for public enjoyment. Action on this would have to be taken very soon, before permanent buildings are put up, and before the creek, in the centre of the town, is lost to view entirely.

One of the most unsavoury views of the creek is at its mouth, at Townsend street. This (on both sides of the street and back up beyond the now-unused incinerator) is city property.

TO ROUSE INTEREST



The purpose of this article is to rouse citizens' interest in the possibility of improving what are two unique city advantages: the Otonabee river and the Jackson Park creek. Much is possible, even without any grandiose scheme of reclamation.

If the city wakes up to the situation, and were to call a halt to further desecration of these two streams, and to further encroachment on them by private persons, firms, and utilities, at least the deterioration now a century old would be stopped, and from that point forward, improvements could be made as time, money and opportunity—and the active interest of the citizens— permitted.

Peterborough is growing. Now is the time to prepare to hold and develop the two waterways as beauties and unique assets to a city which in time may become as beautiful as it is populous.

The first article in the series showed what Stratford has done. Pictures today show the Peterborough situation. A third article is to follow, to present and analyse several former plans for the preservation and development of the natural endowments which Peterborough has in the Otonabee River and Jackson Park Creek. A long-range plan, providing for piecemeal improvement, and a continually alert citizenry, would make Peterborough as charming, through its treatment and use of the Otonabee, as some of the famed cities in Belgium and Holland. The longer the delay the more difficult and costly will be any reclamation and improvement.

Stratford has shown what can be done. Windsor is showing this year what an active citizenry will do, when roused, to remodel a black river face and restore it for future enjoyment.

JACKSON PARK CREEK and the Otonabee, are two unique natural endowments which Peterborough has right in its very centre—if only these endowments are cultivated and not ignored and maltreated, as they have been in the last 125 years. Here is the mouth of the Jackson Park creek, at Townsend and George Street. This is city property. It is entirely unimproved, as the litter shows; but the photograph suggests how easily the creek in many places could be improved and made a beautiful stream for public enjoyment in the future. A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

Starting Dominion Day, next Wednesday, with the opening of bass and 'lunge fishing in the Kawarthas and the lifting of our walleye anchored-fishing ban, and following with the American Glorious Fourth, it should be the busiest start of the tourist season this district has ever seen.

The number of Americans who came to our lakes and rivers on May 15 this year was unprecedented. It shows you how well the Kawarthas are being publicized and how keen fishermen are to wet their lines. Most of these men, although their luck was poor this spring, will be coming back with their families.

District resort owners are rubbing their hands with anticipation and most of them report solid bookings for the full month of July, some openings in mid-August and full houses again toward Labor Day.

It is not our intention to forecast what the general fishing picture will be on the first opening days of the all-out season. That would be sticking our necks AWAY out. But reports that come in—and our correspondents are very keen about this—will tell the tales. We shall wait before summarizing.

Wildlife experts tell us that young bass will be guarded by parent fish near their nests until about July 10. They appeal to good sporting instincts that when parent bass are hooked they should be brought to surface slowly, released with care and returned to the water uninjured so that the young fry may be protected against predators.

'Lunge will get a great going over but these wily choosey kings of sport fish seem quite capable of looking after themselves. Their heavy population in our lakes prove this.

Walleye fishing has picked up considerably during the past week or 10 days and in talking to various intelligent fiishermen they tell me they are taking their limits, or close to it. Natural feed has been too abundant this spring for walleyes to bother with fancy lures but with the finish of late minnow spawning they may be getting hungry again.

It's always warming to hear of fairybook happenings to children. Little Joyce Brown of 9 Charles St., tried some commercial contest or other, and won. Being a great animal lover, anyway, her cup was full when the prize arrived at her home, a boxer puppy. Now she is so excited that she neither eats nor sleeps and has all the neighborhood on Burnham Ponit agog, in a happy way, of course.

MEMO to: Leon Dolan, director of Canadian Travel Bureau and Doug Oliver, secretary-treasurer of Canadian Tourist Association:

We are courteous to tourists in the Kawarthas, fellows, and thought you would like to hear a recent sample of this:

Peterborough chartered accountant Doug Lawrie met two tourists eating cold sandwiches on the Government dock at Mount Julian one cool weekend evening. He was alone at his cottage back on the hill and invited them to share his empty beds since they had been sleeping on the seats of their car during a week-long trip in Algonquin Park. They took him up on his offer and had a good night's rest and hearty breakfast next morning.

Doug showed me letters of appreciation this week from his one-night tourist friends. Both Joe Fischer of Washington and D. Pfanner of New York City thanked him profusely for his hospitality and said that during their whole stay in Canada—their first—they had experienced nothing but extreme courtesy and helpfulness from Canadians everywhere in this section of the province. They both wrote that they would be free Canada boosters to all and sundry henceforth.

Is that the sort of thing you like to hear, fellows?

The South-Eastern Regional office of the Department of Lands and Forests has been moved from Toronto to Peterborough and is now in operation. Situated on the south-east corner (upstairs) of George and Hunter Sts., it will control forestry matters from Bowmanville to the Ottawa River boundary under the jurisdiction of W. B. Greenwood, regional forester.

Zone Forester John Bell (Peterborough-Northumberland) who worked from his Lakefield home, now has an office there and also conservation officer Stan Windsor. Mrs. Mary Strickland of Lindsay office is moving here to do the secretarial work.

Though there has always been a regional office it was operated from Toronto under W. D. Cramm. Peterborough is now the central business point. The six other regional offices are in Kenora, Port Arthur, Cochrane, Sudbury, North Bay, and St. Williams.

SABOTEUR? . . .

P-C candidate Gordon Fraser regaled me at a recent garden party about the damage that beaver were doing to property at Burleigh. Last year, I think he said, one of them persisted in building a lodge in his boathouse; he got rid of the unwelcome tenant by having it removed elsewhere. Now, another animal is damming up a small streamlet that floods his roadway each night and nothing will stop it. I suggested that he talk to Harold Scott, MPP, who stood talking to a group nearby, to have the current beastie live-trapped. Gordon had already started the wheels turning in that direction and said he was completely baffled by this beaver's persistence.

Bisons Sweep Twin Bill From Chiefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons swept an International League doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs Friday night to move within two games of the front-running Montreal Royals.

Lefty Dennis Reeder of Rochester hurled a one-hitter as the Red Wings edged Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0. Montreal nudged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Springfield Cubs handed Ottawa Athletics a double setback, 4-2 and 5-3.

At Syracuse, the Bisons won 9-2 and 1-0. After slamming three Syracuse pitchers for 16 hits and an easy win behind Ernie Nevel, the Bisons used footwork to cop the hard-fought nine-inning nightcap.

Bill Tuttle walked in the fourth, stole second and third and scored on a squeeze bunt by Joe Erautt for the only run. Ken Johnson pitched four-hit ball in besting Duke Markell in the nightcap.

At Rochester, a scratch infield hit in the ninth deprived Reeder of a no-hitter.

SLOW ROLLER

Reeder's mound opponent, Don Johnson, hit a slow roller toward third with one out in the ninth. Third baseman Don Richmond ran over the ball but Johnson had the play beaten and it was scored as a hit. Reeder struck out six and walked only three.

Rochester won in the ninth on a single by Tom Burgess, a sacrifice and another single by Lou Ortiz.

At Montreal, Hamp coleman went the route for the winners, allowing the Birds 11 hits.

Sandy Amoros of Montreal got his seventh homer. Stan Jok and Roy Weatherly of the Birds also had round-trippers.

At Ottawa, Springfield's Ron Northey connected for three circuit clouts, one of them good for four runs. Two of them came in the afterpiece.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Morrow Park has a first-rate half-mile track, and it is well looked after during the summer months. While the stables need some improvements, they're suitable enough and will be fixed up more as money is realized from harness race meets here. There's a twilight meet starting today at 5.30 with five classes going, two heats each, or 10 races in all. Wagering permitted under the handbook system with odds posted on a board. A lot of sportsmen bet the horses but in the past have been sending or taking their money out to town to Toronto tracks. Much better to keep it at home. Horse owners and drivers at these meets also leave quite a bit of money in town one way and another. The meet this eve should draw another big crowd.

Lacrosse is a Canadian game, unquestionably, but it is a Canadian Indian game, the Indians playing a type of field lacrosse before the white arrived from Europe. There have been some great Indian players down through the years in CLA competition. We recall when the Petes lost out in OLA intermediate finals to the Haldimand Indians of Brantford. The Lake Shore Indians in B.C. are running second at present to Victoria seniors. Yes, a lot of good Indians on different teams and some all-Indian squads. They seem to take to this speedy, rugged and trick sport, although of course the palefaces now greatly outnumber the Indians in Canada and in lacrosse.

* * * * * * *

Half A Dozen Stars

Peterborough has six good Indian lacrossers on their senior and junior "A" teams. Ross Powless (twice voted the outstanding Indian athlete) and young Roger Smith are valuable members of the senior Petes. The juniors have four Indians in their lineup: Goalie Roy Hill, Gary Smith (Roger's brother), and two newcomers recently from Oswego, Ivan Thomas and Willie Logan. All fine players. These juniors will be seen in action here tonight when the Pats play Dundas at 8.45 in Miller Bowl, weather being right. After their 18-1 four-point win last start in St. Kitts, the local Pats must be considered a potential Mimico Cup club. They're worth seeing in action.

* * * * * * *

Some talk persists of Mimico Mounties disbanding for the rest of the 1953 senior OLA schedule. Club prexy Fred Sandford said the other day: "The situation is pretty grim but nothing has been done about disbanding the club yet anyway." Injuries to players, plus raiding by other clubs—and no juniors of senior calibre available—account for the Mounties' poor showing and poor gates to date. They also have some holdouts, including Denny Peterson. Meantime, the Petes are off tonight for Orillia to tackle the Toronto West Yorks and then take on Fergus Thistles here Monday night. Next week they play Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday in a heavy grind in the hot weather.

* * * * * * *

Defaulted To Petes

No lacrosse match here last night. Brampton Excelsiors phoned early in the evening to say they couldn't field a team. It will go as a default. There is a rumor going around that both Brampton and Mimico are in dire straits for players and will either combine into one good club or both fold up. OLA secretary Chuck Rowan goes as far as admitting that the matter of a combined club will be discussed next week at a meeting. Things are pretty grim in all but St. Catharines, Peterborough, Orillia (West Yorks of Toronto) and Fergus, where they draw big crowds. Hamilton is by no means healthy in a lacrosse sense this year. Much of the blame can be laid at the door of the roving Yorkers, who have raided Mimico, Brampton and Hamilton this season instead of sticking to Toronto.

* * * * * * *

Those interested in the Peterborough Minor Baseball Association are asked to meet at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the UE hall, Reid at Dalhousie, to draft schedules for the peewees, bantams and the midget-juves. New coaches and umps should call Pat Calladine at 4750. Local midget-juveniles won 9-1 from Keene last e'en with McIlmoyle and Killen hurling for the winners and Board catching. The same squads tangle in Keene on July 1. This Peterborough crew will affiliate as midgets with the OBA for playdowns. They have a 6.30 drill Monday evening in Riverside. Meantime, our junior Lifiocs go to Cobourg today and tackle Whitby twice here on the July 1 holiday.

Jack Johnson, the first Negro to hold the world heavyweight boxing championship, defeated Frankie Moran in 20 rounds at Paris, 39 years ago today. Johnson lost the title the following year, 1915, when he was knocked out by Jess Willard in the 26th round at Havana.

MEDAL PLAY TOURNAMENT

SUDBURY (CP)—Open to amateurs, the 17th annual Seagram golf tournament will be held at the Idylwylde Club here July 23-25. The 54-hole medal-play competition will open with an 18-hole qualifying round. Defending Champion Gerry Knetchel of Kitchener, last year's Ontario junior champion, is expected back.

Officials Meet To Discuss Brampton Club

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fergus Thistles defeated Mimico Mountaineers 29-9 in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game at Fergus Friday night.

Don Campbell was top man for Fergus with five goals.

Stan Abbott, Bob Dobbie and J. J. Hill followed with four goals apiece. Ron Landoni scored three.

Bud Hudson and Joe Mihlison had two each for Mimico.

In Toronto, Chuck Rowan, secretary of the association, said Brampton Excelsiors did not show up at Peterborough for a scheduled game with the Trailermen Friday night.

GAME POSTPONED

Rowan said that as a result today's scheduled home game of the Excelsiors against Hamilton Tigers has been postponed.

He said a meeting of association officials will be held at Mimico Sunday to deal with the default and to discuss other problems concerning the Brampton club.

It has been rumored that the Brampton club will merge with Mimico. Reason for this move on the part of Brampton is said to be the lack of senior calibre players and the poor attendance at home games.

Second Fonthill Golfer Wins

HAMILTON (CP) — The young Fonthill woman who sold "Little Ben" her first set of golf clubs isn't doing so badly, either.

Marlene Stewart's triumph in winning the British amateur open in England has overshadowed the fourth straight tournament won Friday by Anne Sharp of Fonthill in the Hamilton Golf and Country Club's annual open tournament.

Miss Sharp, who won the Ontario Ladies' Open in Toronto last week, showed the way to a field of 106 women in the local tournament. She carded an 82 gross, three strokes better than her two nearest rivals, Rae Milligan of Jasper, Alta., and Shirley Grant of Toronto Lambton.

Rose Kampman, Kitchener Westmount, with an 87, placed third in gross play.

Miss Sharp, five years senior to the petite Marlene, was coming along quite well at golf six years ago and Marlene, a mere 13 at the time, tagged along to caddy. Then one day Marlene dropped a hole-in-one at the Lookout Point course's second hole, and that changed things.

Bethany Triumphs

BETHANY (ENS)—Christella Neals starred for Bethany as her team beat Millbrook 22-6 here in a Rice Lake League game this week. She hit three homers and a triple with the bases full as Bethany scored eight runs in the first inning, five next time up, seven in the third and two more in the fifth. The losers got one in the third, three in the fifth and two in the sixth. Agnes Martichenko and Audry Mulligan each hit triples and Bristow pitched well. Hutchinson got two three-baggers for the losers. Teams:

GOLF CLUB HITS BACK

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—O. M. Lofton taught that confounded golf club a lesson Friday—but it put him in the hospital to do it.

Lofton, infuriated by his second dubbed shot, shattered the steel-shafted club against a nearby golf-bag cart. The ill-tempered shaft snapped back, gashing Lofton's arm and severing an artery.

Lofton's brother, Barney, quickly twisted a tourniquet above the wound and drove him to hospital for treatment.

NEW CHAMPION—Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., known as "Little Miss Robot" to British golf writers, produced perhaps the most consistent play of her life to win the British Women's Amateur Golf championship, first Canadian to do so, at Porthcawl, Wales. One of the British writers called the 19-year-old schoolgirl "clearly one of the world's finest players today" and another said she was "a girl who will surely become the greatest-ever woman golfer."

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Although it was the best night for bowling so far this season, the attendance at the tournaments, last night was disappointing.

On Thursday evening with heavy threatening weather we had close to 125 bowlers on hand, and all stayed right through and played their schedule game, the last few ends in a light drizzling rain.

Maybe there are too many counter attractions on Friday night.

Could the interest in this summer sport be on the wane?

Is it too early to expect average attendance?

These are just some of the thoughts that come to us as we write this column.

If you have not already arranged for the Dominion Day holiday—look up a partner over the weekend— and enter in the Ovaltine Trophy doubles on Wednesday next.

Today we publish the skips who are leading in the schedule games, up-to-date:

Cleveland Dumps Yankees 7-2, Brooklyn Triumphs

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

When even Cleveland Indians can beat the Yankees maybe it's time to take this five-game New York losing streak seriously. Every other American League club has defeated the Yankees this season. But in seven games before sight of a New York uniform caused the second-place Indians to roll over and play dead. So what happened Friday night? The Yankees threw the ball around in the first inning like fugitives from class-E and presented Cleveland with four gift runs.

Such generosity couldn't be overlooked, even by the Indians, and Larry Doby and righthander Bob Lemon made sure it didn't go to waste.

Doby parked a pair high up into the seats in the third and fifth innings and only a ninth-inning, two-out homer by pinch-hitter John Mize saved the Yankees from their third shutout of the year. Mize's blow was the last of just five hits off Lemon. The final score was 7-2.

In the National League the pace-setting Milwaukee Braves put up a much stiffer fight than the Yankees, but they bowed to their second-place rivals, Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-3, on a pair of two-run homers by Duke Snider and Gil Hodges and now lead the Dodgers by only one game.

DOWN PHILLIES

St. Louis Cardinals took over third place from Philadelphia by beating the Phillies 7-0 and are 2½ games behind. Cincinnati won a twilight-night doubleheader from Pittsburgh 8-4, and 4-1 and New York Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 9-6.

A losing streak of five isn't too unusual, except in the case of the Yankees. They haven't lost any more than that in a row since cagey Casey Stengel took over as manager at the start of the 1949 season.

In less than two weeks the Yanks have frittered away 3½ games of their league lead. They still own a substantial eight-game bulge over the Indians, but even if Cleveland falters, Chicago White Sox—only half a game behind in third place—show definite indications of being ready and willing to take up the challenge.

Fresh from a three-game sweep over New York, the White Sox whipped Boston 5-3 Friday night. Philadelphia snapped a four-game St. Louis Browns winning streak 6-5 and Detroit beat Washington, 7-3.

MUSIAL ON JOB

Stan Musial drove in five runs with two homers and a double as Stu Miller blanked the Phillies on three hits for his second victory.

Ted Kluszewski starred in Cincinnati's double triumph, blasting a home run in each game to take over the National League lead with 21.

The Giants hammered the last-place Cubs for 14 hits including home runs by Wes Westrum and Daryl Spencer.

The White Sox spotted Boston three runs in the first two innings, then rallied for four in the seventh as Nellie Fox and Sherm Lollar doubled and Tom Wright delivered a pinch-hit triple.

With the bases loaded and two out Gus Zernial singled to give the Athletics their decision over the Browns.

The Senators' loss to the last-place Tigers was their sixth straight this week. Clyde Vollmer hit a home run with two on for all of Washington's runs.

First Dead Heat For First Place

TORONTO (CP)—The first dead heat for first place of the current Woodbine season was recorded Friday when Wolf Whistle and Montmartre II hit the wire together in the featured Brandon Plate.

In a sizzling finish, Wolf Whistle hung on to hold even against Montmartre II in the final sixteenth of a mile. The pair raced the six furlongs in 1.11 3-5, one second off the track record.

Triple Time was third.

Babe Zaharias Back At Golf

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Babe Zaharias returns to golf next week, apparent victor over cancer.

The great woman athlete, who had to quit the links trail for an operation, got the good word Friday—her physician told her she could start hitting that little white ball soon.

That was enough for the woman who starred in every sport she tried—champion of the Olympic Games, all-American in basketball, the top golfer. She said she plans to go to her home in Tampa Fla., Monday and after a couple of days rest will begin chipping and putting.

Dr. Robert M. Moore, who performed the operation 2½ months ago here, made it a sort of birthday present when he said: "We are all glad that you have recovered so fast. I actually think you will be back hitting a golf ball soon. Just how soon, I'm leaving up to your own judgment."

The Babe was celebrating her 38th birthday at the home of her brother, Louis Didrikson at Newton, Tex.

Marmora News

The WA of Zion United Church, North Marmora, served a well-attended strawberry social in the church sheds Friday evening.

Master Charles McCracken of Peterborough is spending two weeks holiday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sopha.

Agriculture Minister Has Model Farm

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta's 42-year-old minister of agriculture not only heads a department that can tell you how to farm. He is operating a farm that is a model of progressive methods.

The minister, David Ure, is not a white-collar farmer either.

"I average four hours an evening in farm work after getting home from the office," he said in an interview.

"I live on the farm, feed the hogs, milk the cows and operate a tractor and other farm implements."

FORMER TEACHER

Mr. Ure was a teacher and auctioneer before he won a Red Deer constituency by-election as a Social Credit candidate in 1943. Born in Delburne, Alta., he ran a farm even while he was teaching and he kept on farming after entering the Alberta Legislature.

"This is not a hobby," said the minister about his new 659-acre farm nine miles north of the Edmonton city limits. "The farm has got to pay."

He taught school for 13½ years, 7½ of them at Innisfail, Alta. He handled farm auctions and auctioned farm equipment once a week at Calgary.

This season Mr. Ure has planted 300 acres to grain, mainly barley, on the farm where he lives with his wife, three daughters and three sons.

He plans to raise 10,000 bushels of grain each year and this will be used on the farm to feed his cattle and hogs.

A farm foreman and three other men handle the fine Shorthorn beef cattle herd of about 95 animals the Holstein milk cow herd, about 200 Large English White hogs and about 200 chickens.

WINNER AT ROYAL

Mr. Ure won a reserve championship at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair last year with a team of Belgian horses but his main work is with the Shorthorns and the hogs.

"I am trying to produce good quality," he said, "and sell to others for breeding stock."

Mr. Ure, who was sworn in as minister in 1948, has established a pond containing 2,500,000 gallons of water on the farm. A pump will be installed to deliver water anywhere on the property.

Along the bank of the pond 600 willow trees have been planted. He has a permit to stock wildfowl. He plans to have Canada geese, blue geese, swans and other birds. As a start he obtained a peacock from the Calgary zoo.

"I am trying to get a few wild birds to add to the attractiveness of the farm," he said.

Visitors Swarm To Highland Games

By IAN McEWAN

BRAEMAR, Scotland (Reuters)—Visitors from all over the world will boost the 500 population of this quiet little highland village to about 50,000 when Scotland's greatest athletic event, the Royal Highland Games, takes place here Sept. 3.

Sightseers will jostle through the single-street village, situated on the banks of the River Dee, to a grassy bowl 1,100 feet up to see brawny Scots displaying their strength.

Last year the games attracted 40,000 persons. This year that record is expected to be beaten by 10,000 or more.

The organizers say that applications for the Coronation year games have been "phenomenal and unprecedented," with many from Canada, Australia and the United States.

LITTLE CHANGE

The little grandstand in the Princess Royal and Duke of York Memorial Park, where the games are held, was filled in four days when bookings opened this month. Some 4,000 ringside seats went quickly while standing room, too, now is nearly all taken.

The form of the games has changed little since they were started nearly 1,000 years ago. They consist mainly of pipe band contests, highland dancing competitions and feats of skill, such as tossing the caber.

Being a highland meeting, one of the main attractions is tossing the caber, a heavy pine log. Braemar has a special one. It is 21 feet long and weighs 224 pounds.

The highlight of the day is always the arrival at the games of the Royal Family, "the Royals," as the locals call them.

Their visit is never announced beforehand. But the crowd always seems to know when they leave Balmoral, the royal home on Deeside, eight miles from Braemar, to drive down into the village.

The villagers hope that the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh will attend the Coronation games this year along with four-year-old Prince Charles and two-year-old Princess Anne.

Doctors Order Williams Home

IN KOREA (AP)—Flight surgeons have ordered baseball star Ted Williams to the United States for treatment of an ear and nose ailment, a U.S. Marine Corps spokesman said today.

Williams, pilot of a marine Pantherjet, was grounded after his 38th mission June 10.

The spokesman said the Boston Red Sox slugger would leave for the U.S. within a few days.

A marine captain, the 35-year-old Williams flew Pantherjets in Korea 5½ months.

Flight surgeons described the ailment as "lack of ventilation in the ear and nose that causes interference with jet flying."

Williams has been bothered for about a month and hospitals in the war zone are not equipped to treat it, they said.

Rosewall Makes Magnificent Tennis Comeback

WIMBLEDON (AP)—Top-seeded Ken Rosewall made Wimbledon's sun-blasted centre court a stage Friday for a magnificent comeback from a two-set deficit into a stirring 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 tennis victory over Jack Arkinstall.

Rosewall, one of Australia's brace of 18-year-old stars, found that his tennis touch was all but gone and that his eye and aim were sadly amiss soon after he took the court against his fellow Aussie.

For two sets he netted forehand shots continually and made numerous errors in the fourth round all-England championship.

But in the third set he practically knocked his 31-year-old opponent from Brisbane off the court. His backhand came to life, his serve began to zip and he rushed the net to volley.

PAYS BACK UPSET

In Wimbledon's two other top flight men's singles, fourth round matches, Art Larsen, leftie from San Leandro, Calif., paid back Torsten Johannson of Sweden for an upset last year in the first round of this same tournament. Larsen blasted the Swedish star, 8-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Lewis Hoad—opposite member to Rosewall on Australia's fine team of 18-year-olds—looked good in winning from Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

The first break in the women's seeded ranks occurred when Mrs. Susan Partridge Chatrier of France No. 7, bowed to Mrs. Heather Brewer of Bermuda, 7-5, 6-3.

The No. 1 seeded men's doubles team of Rosewall and Hoad ousted Josip Palada and V. Petrovic of Yugoslavia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 in the second round.

England Gains Fine Cricket Start

LONDON (Reuters) — An unbroken second-wicket partnership of 168 by Len Hutton and Tom Graveney gave England a fine start in the reply to the Australian first-innings total of 346 Friday, second day of the second England-Australia test cricket match at Lords.

Australia was all out just after lunch and then gained a quick wicket when Don Kenyon was caught with only nine runs on the board. But Hutton and Graveney gradually got on top of the bowling and took the total to 177 for one by the close.

With the pitch giving little response, the Australian bowlers toiled in heat-wave conditions but the two English batsmen were never bothered. Early in the stand Graveney was more spectacular with his powerful straight driving and leg glides. But Hutton gave a masterly display against all types of bowling. His drives to the off and through the covers were a delight to watch while his placing of shots soon forced Australian captain Lindsay Hassett to set defensive fields.

The England captain reached his 50 in an hour and 50 minutes and at the close had batted three hours and 35 minutes for his undefeated 83 which included seven fours. Graveney's knock has so far lasted three hours and 23 minutes and included 12 fours.

Australia added 83 runs to its overnight score of 263 for five. The Aussies were indebted to an enterprising knock by Alan Davidson, the left hander, and profited by three bad fielding lapses by England.

Davidson, missed by Alex Bedser when 18, batted confidently for 76 which included one six and 13 fours.

Two of England's lapses were by Hutton who dropped two simple catches.

Thomas Mark

The funeral service for Thomas Mark, 85, of 779 Aylmer St., who died Wednesday, following a prolonged illness, was held Friday at the Belleghem funeral home.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland, assistant minister of George St. United Church officiated. The pallbearers were: J. J. Johnston, W. H. Girvin, F. E. Latimer, E. J. Ferguson, I. V. Drain and T. T. Rodger. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

DISTANCE MEN—Willie Jones, Walt Dropo and Mikey Vernon, left to right, swat the ball for distance and drive in runs for the Phillies, Tigers and Senators, respectively.

300 Oarsmen And Paddlers Gather For Big Regatta

TORONTO (CP)—Some 300 oarsmen and paddlers from 12 Canadian and United States points gather here Wednesday to make the 52nd annual Dominion Day regatta one of the largest in Toronto's history.

An all-day affair held on a mile-long sheltered lagoon at Centre Island in the city's harbor, it will include 28 rowing and 19 padling events.

Paddlers will come from as far away as Washington, D.C., and Sudbury, and oarsmen will represent such widely-separated points as Detroit, Buffalo and Ottawa.

Among those in attendance will be Henry W. Jahn of New York City, national commodore of the American Canoe Association, and Gordon Jermyn of Ganaroque, Canadian Canoe Association commodore. They are scheduled to discuss feasibility of holding international meets on the sheltered lagoon course.

THRILLINIG RACE

One of the most thrilling races on the day's card will bring together three Toronto canoe clubs and a powerful Sudbury entry in the senior war canoe. Top event on the rowing program will see St. Catharines, Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Argonauts, Buffalo West Sides and Toronto Dons battle it out in the senior heavy eights. St. Catharines and Buffalo, always strong in heavies, are favored.

Bill Sheutte of the Potomac Canoe Club of Washington, a member of the United States canoe squad at the 1952 Olympics, will challenge eight Canadian paddlers in the senior double-blade kayaks. Bill Oldershaw of the Toronto Island Canoe Club and Chuck Hubbs of Sudbury are expected to give him plenty of competition.

Bill Stringer and Pat O'Gorman of Sudbury, Dominion tandem canoe champions, will represent their club in the senior tandem event. Eight entries from three Toronto clubs will meet their challenge over the half-mile route.

Entries for the 20 swimming and diving events have been received from Peterborough, Fergus, London, Hamilton and five Toronto aquatic clubs.

MAIN TROUNCES TAILBY

TORONTO (CP)—Lorne Main of Toronto, Canada's second-ranking tennis player Friday blasted his way into the men's singles semi-finals of the 11th annual Toronto Cricket Club invitation tennis tournament with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Ralph Tailby of Kitchener.

Main will meet Doug Markel, 20, of Los Angeles, who defeated Jim Bentley of Toronto 6-3, 6-3 in a quarter-final match.

Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., will meet Fred Kovaleski of Washington, D.C., in the other semi-final. Bedard moved into that round Thursday and the favored Kovaleski got there Friday by whipping Beau Summers of Toronto 6-3, 6-2.

Main used his hard two-handed shots to keep the less-experienced Tailby off balance. In spite of the cheering of his two young sons from the sidelines, the 36-year-old Tailby couldn't match Main's speed and accurate volley shots.

In the Bentley-Markel match the lanky lad from Los Angeles was never in difficulty. Playing a deep hard-driving game, Markel kept Bentley away from the net.

✦ ✦ ✦

KESSELRING IN LEAD

BRANTFORD (CP)—Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener took a one-stroke lead Friday in the first round of the Calvert invitation golf tournament. A birdie on the 18th hole brought him home with a 69, three under par and one stroke better than Moe Norman, also of Kitchener. Nick Weslock of Windsor was third with a 72.

TRIMS WORLD RECORD

ALGIERS, North Africa (Reuters)—French Swimmer Gilbert Bozon shaved two-tenths of a second off the world record for the 200-metre backstroke when he clocked 2 minutes 18.3 seconds in a meet here Friday night. The previous record of 2.18.5 was set by Allen Stack of New Haven, Conn., on May 4, 1949.

Monday Favorite Election Day

OTTAWA (CP) — Monday has come up as the favorite day of those who pick federal general election dates.

Choice of Aug. 10 for the election put Monday into the lead among days chosen for ballotting since Confederation.

The selection makes it seven Monday elections and six on Tuesday since 1874, the first year in which elections were held on a single day. Five have been called on Thursdays and two on Wednesdays.

There have been none on Friday, Saturday or Sunday since the one-day procedure began.

Of the six elections beginning in 1930 and including the present one, five have been on Mondays. The sixth—in 1940—was on a Tuesday.

Before 1874, elections took weeks to complete. The first in 1867 ran from Aug. 7 to Sept. 20. The 1872 voting lasted three months.

Diefenbaker Plans Ontario Speeches

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the last House of Commons and candidate in Prince Albert in the forthcoming general election, will make a series of speeches in western Ontario early next month.

Party headquarters announced Friday that Mr. Diefenbaker will speak July 6 in Kitchener and St. Thomas, July 7 in Southampton and London and July 8 in Zurich, Exeter, Goderich and Clinton.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Friday that the speeches would be made Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Your Garden:

Menacing Crab Grass Should Be Attacked Early

BY HENRY PREE

With "this week" and "that week" being pushed by various and sundry industries, why not make this Crab Grass Week and thus benefit the home gardener as well as the sellers of crab grass killers?

Crab grass is making its annual appearance and wise is the home gardener who begins now to rid his lawn of this pest.

Crab grass is an annual grass, much branched and spreading, turning up at the end to bear several slender stalks at whose tops are borne three to 10 slender spikes each bearing a hundred or more seeds. And—unfortunately—the seeds live several years in the soil waiting for a favorable moment to germinate.

Despite the belief of many folks—crab grass does not live over winter and come to life each spring. The plants die each autumn and the seeds survive to come to life in late May.

The young crab grass plants are slender furled seedlings about an inch tall. Each seedling emerges as a complete broad, slightly curved blade about a quarter of an inch in length.

A second leaf develops before the plant is a half-inch tall—and from then on real growth appears. Seedlings may be easily distinguishehd by their light yellowish green coloring. The spreading crab grass-like plants now observed in lawns is probably quack grass or twitch grass.

CATCH BEFORE MATURITY

The best advice I can give is to begin spraying or dusting now to get the crab grass before it can mature. If you catch crab grass in the small seedling stage, a single treatment will usually kill it completely.

If you wait till the crab grasss is well established, you will not only have to use two or three treatments, but also your lawn will have a yellow appearance due to dying crab grass.

So act early—don't give crab grass a chance to crowd out your turf grasses!

Types of turf grasses, soil and weather conditions, different waters, may vary the effect on turf. Normally your turf grasses will show a temporary browning of the lower leaves and a lightening in color of the blades during treatment. They will soon recover and will eventually take on a darker, healthier color than ever before.

Clover shows more marked discoloration, but will recover quickly

Set mower to 2½ inches height during treatment then reset to recommended 1½ inches high. Do not fertilize during treatment. Feeding should be either two weeks before or at least two weeks after treatments however fertilizing during hot summer temperatures is not suggested.

Do not treat turf when temperature exceeds 90 degrees unless previous tests show that local conditions permit treatment at such temperatures.

KILLERS AVAILABLE

There are a number of crab grass killers which will do the trick if one follows the method recommended by the manufacturer. They can be bought at the better garden supply and hardware shops. Most of them are based on the chemical compound, potassium cyanate, which is not poisonous to humans, pets or birds.

They are easy to use, clean and harmless to the soil, and will not kill shrubs, trees or flowers unless sprayed on them directly.

Properly applied they will not kill bluegrass, fescue, clover, or other deep-rooted perennial grasses. Trade names confuse the novice in search of a crab grass killer. I mention the following which have come to my attention and which I am sure will prove satisfactory—DuPont Crab Grass Killer, Weedone Crab Grass Killer, Crab-Nol, Double-O, Scutl, Pura-Turf, Seltox, Tat-C-Lect, Zotox and Drumcliff Crab Grass Killer.

Gardening Questions

Q—What height of grass is best to insure a thrifty lawn?

A—Success is attained by cutting 1½ to 2 inches high.

Q—What advantage is to be gained from planting onion sets?

A—In about three weeks they produce the young green onions which it would take twice as long to grow from seed.

Q—When and how should one take rose cuttings for propagation?

A—Cuttings are made in late July and early August from the wood of this year's growth. Take them from healthy flowering shoots of about pncil thickness, cut into pieces about five inches long and include three to five leaves. Make the bottom cut ⅛ inc hbelow the point where a lower leaf joins the stem. Remove the lower leaf but retain the upper ones. Dip bottom end in rootone and insert in sand. Shade to reduce evaporation and keep moist to hasten rooting. A cold frame is best for this purpose, although inverted glass jars may be used. Allow no flowers or buds to remain.

Home Builders Question Column

"The Chestnutlawn"
HAROLD C. BECKETT, ARCHITECT

THE CHESTNUTLAWN—This is a small compact bungalow suitable for a 40' lot. Room sizes are based on two 12' spans of floor joists. The area is only 40 square feet over N.H.A. minimum. The kitchen provides ample table space. There is a full basement, but no attic. An attractive feature of the front is the porch which protects the entrance to the living room flanked by latticed posts and vines. This is another in the series of interesting and attractive homes designed by Harold C. Beckett, architect, 52 Chatham St. W., Windsor, Ontario.

Q. Will you please help me in selecting colours for my living room? The walls are now blue and I want a change. The rug is wine, the chesterfield gray, and an odd chair blue. What colours would you suggest for the wall, draperies and lampshades?

Ans. For the walls of your living room you could use rose; for the draperies, a floral pattern on a wine background; and for the lamp shades, white.

Q. We would like a suggestion for something striking in colour and pattern for draw draperies and a slipcover for the chesterfield in our den. The walls are powder blue; the woodwork, light oak; and the rug, powder blue with a floral pattern in rose and green in the corners.

Ans. For the draw draperies in your den we suggest a geometric pattern in white and chartreuse on a maroon background and for the chesterfield, royal blue piped in white.

Q. The bathroom in our new house is quite large. The tile is a very light shade of green with a black border and the fixtures are coral. What colours would you suggest for the wallpaper, ceiling, window curtains and towels?

Ans. For the wallpaper in your bathroom we suggest a broad stripe in black and white; for the ceiling, white; curtains in coral; and the towels in green and coral.

Q. I would like colour suggestions for bedspreads and draperies for my bedroom. The wallpaper has a pattern of yellow roses and dark green leaves on a light background; the woodwork and blinds are white; the linoleum, maroon; shag rugs are dark green; and the furniture is maple. I would like a change but do not like yellow. Would either maroon or chartreuse be good colours?

Ans. We suggest using maroon for draperies and chartreuse with maroon trim for the bedspreads in your bedroom.

Q. We are planning to redecorate our living room and would appreciate your advice as to suitable colours. We will have to take into consideration the slipcovers which we already have. The chesterfield and one chair are covered in maroon with white piping and the other chair has a pattern in green, chartreuse, gray, rose and white on maroon, background. What colours would you suggest for the walls, rug and draperies?

Ans. Chartreuse would be a good colour for your living room walls. For the rug we suggest dark green, for the draperies, gold.

Q. We hope to remodel our kitchen early in the new year. The built-in cupboards are natural finish with gray counter tops; the wallpaper, green, gray and white plaid; the linoleum, sand and brown; the dinette set is chrome with gray and red. We want to get new linoleum. What colour would you suggest? Also please suggest a good colour for the wall tile, inside of the cupboards and curtains

Ans. For new linoleum for your kitchen we suggest gray with a red feature stripe; for the wall tile, green; for the inside of the cupboards, red; and for the curtains, red edged with white wool ball fringe.

BEST JOBS IN KOREA—Pte. Stewart D. Lord (left) and L. Cpl. D. T. W. Smith, both of Vancouver, say they have "the best jobs in Korea." A month ago they traded frontline bunkers with the 3rd Patricias for a job in Seoul. They represent Canada at Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's Eighth Army headquarters where they belong to the new United Nations platoon of the honor guard. Canadian battalions will take it in turn to provide soldiers for a two-month assignment. 2 Canadians In Guard Have Best Jobs In Korea

By BILL BOSS

SEOUL (CP) — Two Canadians here say they have "the best jobs in Korea."

They are Ptes. D. T. W. Smith, 21, and Stewart D. Lord, 24, both of Vancouver. A month ago they traded frontline bunkers with the 3rd Patricias for a lush job in Seoul.

Smith and Lord represent Canada at Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's 8th army headquarters where they belong to the new United Nations platoon of the honor guard.

Their 37-man outfit, commanded by a sergeant of the Black Watch, comprises Commonwealth, French, Belgian, Netherlands, Thai, Ethiopian and other soldiers from a total of 13 countries. All retain their own uniform, weapons, drills and customs.

THREE PLATOONS

There are three platoons in the guard, one from the United States army, one from the republic of Korea army and the third representing the UN. After a one-month try-out the UN platoon has been accepted as a permanent part of the guard.

Canadian battalions will take it in turn to provide soldiers with a two-month assignment.

The two Patricias told The Canadian Press "the set-up is terrific."

Their Nissen-hut barracks, they said "are better than Currie barracks in Calgary," let alone the bunkers of a month ago.

Although there are 34 men to a hut, they said, they have more room than they did in Calgary, "and every man even has a writing table by his bed."

Their hob-nailed Canadian army boots were ruled too hard on the springy composition-type floors and off parades they wear rubber-soled US army boots to spare them.

They say meals taste better, although Canadian units draw the same rations. "Perhaps it's because we don't use mess tins," commented Lord.

CANUCK UNIFORMS

On parade they wear the regulation Canadian Army uniform—a clean freshly-starched one every day. They have five suits of uniforms—four more than they had with the battaloin—and the laundering is done for them.

So far the only change in dress is the substitution on the left shoulder of the 8th army patch for the Commonwealth division's, and the addition above it of a gold-embroidered flash reading "Honor Guard."

With four different shoulder flashes, his medal ribbons and paratrooper's wings, Lord is a teachnicolor cameraman's dream.

Besides daily practice parades they take turns as gate sentries, stand guard during air-raid alerts, and man the headquarters fence during demonstrations.

Only disadvantages they note are slow mail delivery and lack of Canadian news. Both are being remedied.

Power Tools For Home Workshop

BY MR. FIX

Every amateur home handyman whether serious about his efforts or merely a putterer, has at some time thought of owning power tools to speed his work.

With serious home handymen now tending to outnumber the putterers, quite a run on power tools is the result. Being a relatively new breed, unaccustomed to such luxuries, they don't always know what they are buying and why. This column may help them get what they need for what they want to spend.

First, let's take a look at portable electric drills. They're among the first power tools the handymen will buy. Novices will buy them, sometimes not knowing that electric drills nowadays can be equipped to do many more jobs than drilling in wood and metal.

Some models have accessories for sawing holes, for drum and flat sanding, for brushing, scraping and buffing, for grinding, cutting and one even has a hedge clipping attachment. The little power drill has grown up.

Electric drills are priced at $10 and up. The least expensive is a small drill for delicate hobby jobs. Its bigger brother starts at about $15 and is ideal for standard home uses.

Another highly favored tool is the jig saw. It, too, has a bigger borther the band saw and is a popular investment because it can do many things a band saw can't.

The jig saw is nearly as versatile as a power drill, for with some imagination on the operator's part it can be made to do such jobs as filing, sanding of wood metal and plastic, pattern cutting, besides its primary sawing duties.

It can make interior cuts a band saw cannot make, and, equipped with a heavy blade, will rip-saw wood. It will cut circles and sharp corners is very easy to use.

Most-popular makes have one-quarter horsepower motors, and cost up to $100 or so with the motor. Smaller vibrator- powered ones can be had for as little as $10.

The band saw, unlike the jig saw with its short blade, has an endless, belt-type blade that circles continuously on two wheels. Generally heavier than the jig saw, it will cut heavier material faster, in long or short graceful curves or straight lines. It will also cut thin sheet metal.

Band saws range in price from about $50 to $100, less motors.

The home craftsman, whose workshop boasts the power tools previously mentioned, is getting serious about his handy work. This is when he turns to the circular (table) saw and makes fast cuts through heavy stock, sawing perfectly straight lines.

It will make miter cuts, bevels, grooves, moldings, etc. and can be turned into a grindstone or sander. With different blades it can be used on metals and even stone. The eight inch blade is best for home use.

You can spend from less than $40, not including the motor, to about $800 with motor. Of course, you get what you pay for.

Well - equipped workshops wouldn't be seen without a drill press. Besides drilling holes up to one half inch in metal and two inches in wood, the drill press will also polish, sand, grind, rout, shape, plane surfaces, tenon and mortise and do other jobs when equipped with accessories. It costs from about $30 to more than $100 without motor.

Besides all these power tools and more, there are multipurpose tools on the market that will saw, drill, sand, do lathe work and combine many of the best "extra" features of some of the aforementioned power tools, all for about $200 and less.

Passenger Trains Halted By Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Two passenger trains of the Rutland Railroad which operate into and out of Montreal were halted Friday by a strike of Rutland workers.

The strike had no effect on Canadian National Railways trains crossing the border, which operate over their own lines to the United States border and then over lines other than the Rutland.

A spokesman for the CNR said the Rutland uses CNR lines in Canada, and because of the strike in Vermont the two Rutland trains using Montreal's Central station did not operate Friday.

Conservatives Plan To Cut Housing Payment To 10 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives, if elected Aug. 10, propose to reduce the down payment required for National Housing Act dwellings to 10 per cent. The present requirement is 20 per cent of the purchase price.

The party's plan was announced Friday by George Hees, candidate for re-election in Toronto Broadview, at the opening of a two-day Canadian Legion conference on housing.

Mr. Hees said he was announcing official party policy endorsed by its national leader, George Drew.

He said the policy is aimed at enabling a man earning $55 a week to buy, and pay the carrying charges on, a single unit four-room brick house. He said it holds out as well the goal of a five-room brick house for a man making $60 a week and a six-room house for a man earning $65.

To bring this about, Mr. Hees said a Progressive Conservative government would take these steps:

1. Reallocation of municipal tax arrangements so that local councils may have adequate resources to carry out ever-increasing responsibilities in relation to housing.

2. Halving the 20-per-cent down payment now required for purchase of NHL dwellings.

3. Spreading the present NHA amortization period on mortgages from 20 to 30 years.

Crippled Wife Helped In Politics

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell lost his wife Friday in the death of a woman whose brave, crippled 21 years in a wheelchair won admiration for both of them.

The former Norah Gertrude Stone died at the age of 64 while her husband was out on the hustings in Saskatchewan, engaged in the political life she kept him at even when he felt like quitting years ago.

He cancelled his meetings for the next few days and flew back to Ottawa by plane. He is due today.

His wife's death ended a married life which, in its own quiet way, was one of the most touching things in Canadian public life.

ENCOURAGED HIM

For years Norah Coldwell, imprisoned physically but never spiritually in her wheel-chair, supported her husband, encouraged him, appeared with him on the platform in her chair. Her spare, keen face and apt replies became hallmarks.

For years, the husband cared for her with a devotion which won him the admiration of all who knew the quiet story. They were married in 1912.

Lawyer Curtis-Bennett, planning to prove his client insane, was the one-time counsel for convicted atom spy Klaus Fuchs.

MAGIC RAIN—Manitoba's rainpower was illustrated this spring following a fear in the early season that this might be a year for drought. The bottom picture taken April 23 just west of Winnipeg shows a wagon abandoned in an incipient desert. The top picture shows the same wagon six weeks later after heavy rains caused lush growth.

Appeal Rejected

MONTREAL (CP) — Appeal of Kenneth Ford of Cowansville, Que., against conviction for the bathtub murder of his wife in 1952, was rejected unanimously Friday by the five-judge bench of Court of Appeals.

Ford is under sentence to be hanged July 3. The defence will petition Monday for a stay of execution and permission to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Old Age Pension Plan Unable To Pay Way

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's old-age pension scheme appears to be unable to pay its way.

A $2,647,000 deficit showed up in May, the government's financial statement for that month disclosed Friday.

As in previous months, the government made up this deficit with a temporary loan. This brought total temporary loans paid to the pension fund since April 1, 1952, to $110,186,44.

The scheme is financed by receipts from a slice of two per cent from the government's sales tax, individual income tax and corporation tax.

Canadian Korean Draft

SEATTLE (AP)—A draft of 279 Canadian soldiers is en route to the Far East from this port, the army announced Friday. The draft is made up of replacements on a man-for-man basis and represents no particular unit. The men will serve with units of the 25th Canadian infantry brigade in Korea and Japan.

Kaiser Layoffs

DETROIT (AP)—Layoff notices were distributed Friday to more than 11,000 Kaiser Motors Corp. workers at nearby Willow Run as plans for halting work on the company's aircraft contracts were being completed. Of the total layoff notices 9,600 were directly due to cancellation of a United States Air Force contract for production of C-119 and C-123 cargo-carrying planes.

Government Has Surplus Of $120,820,000 In May

OTTAWA (CP)—The government produced a surplus of $120,820,000 in its May budget accounts, boosting the total for the first two months of the 1953-54 fiscal year to $200,246,000.

The May surplus, however, was down $20,700,000 from $141,515,000 last year and the two-month total was down $40,900,000 from $241,129,000, Finance Minister Abbott said in issuing the May statement of the government's financial operations.

"As I have pointed out on many past occasions, based on long years of experience, the government's revenues in the earlier months of each fiscal year are always large, while expenditures are always much more heavily concentrated in the later months," he said.

COLOMBO GRANT

Canada's annual $25,000,000 Colombo Plan grant was included in the May expenditures. Defence spending, which had caused increases in previous months, was down.

Budgetary revenues rose in May to $409,858,000 from $402,193,000 last year, bringing the two-month total to $678,632,000 from $667,512,000.

Expenditures in May rose to $289,038,000 from $260,678,000, pushing the two-month total to $478,386,000 from $426,383,000.

Spiritual Songs In Night

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

In Tennyson's long poem, "Geraint and Enid," he tells of a certain Earl Limours, whose talk, "When wine and free companions kindled him,
Was wont to glance and sparkle like a gem
Of 50 facets."

That figure in a holier and better connection might well be applied to the life experiences of the Apostle Paul. The Book of the Acts and the Epistles reveal the versatility of that amazing man in ways that have seldom been appreciated.

Paul the theologian and the intricate expounder of his newfound Christian faith in relation to his former and intense Judaism has had his due. We are well aware also of his travels, his persistent persecutions, his shipwrecks, imprisonments and hardships.

But perhaps the most remarkable thing of all is that a man of such intense seriousness who had been twice left for dead by his persecutors should have so much to say about joy and should have assured us that he had so much joy in his own life.

Yet it is so. I find 24 references to joy by Paul in the Acts and the Epistles. This joy is the inner experience of joy in the Holy Spirit (Romans 14:17; Galatians 5:22). It is the joy of Paul in his friends and converts (II Corinthians 2:3, "My joy is the joy of you all"). It is the joy of satisfaction in the consciousness that he is fulfilling the mission to which God has called him and in his determination to be faithful to the end (Philippians 4: 1; Acts 20: 24).

Of the fact that Paul's joy was no pretense by a man who has sufefred deeply and is making a bold effort to keep up his spirits, we have ample verification in the vivid account of the prison experience in Acts 16.

In the jail at Philippi the outward condition of Paul and his companion Silas was in direct contrast with the irrepressible joy in their souls. Cast into the darkness of the inner prison with their feet fast in the stockts, at midnight after hours of distress these amazing Christians could none the less pray and sing praises, not in any inner silence,

BERRIES STILL IN DEMAND

The demand for strawberries this morning at the open market was just as big as ever this week, as local farmers and jobbers were sold out before 10 o'clock. They were asking 30 and 36 cents a box. Eggs were still up and they were selling for 75 cents for grade A oversize, 70 cents large and small 65 cents. Bunches of radishes, pepper grass, onions, and rhubarb were selling for 5 cents and spinach was selling for 20 cents a bag.

Children Sorry To Leave School Says Educationist

"How's that again?" asked your Rambling Reporter, forgetting for the moment both grammar and manners.

Perhaps his vacant stare and grammatical lapse could be blamed on what he had just heard. A top Peterborough educationist had just advanced this appalling heresy: School children aren't so happy now that classes are over for the summer, as a host of city editors, reporters—and especially photographers—seem to think.

"Every year on the last day of school I see pictures in the newspapers of the typical freckle-faced youngster tossing his books in the air as he skips out the school door," said the educationist. "The caption usually reads 'Free at Last' or some similar rubbish."

Fixing his eye with displeasure on your Rambling Reporter he continued: "The fact of the matter is that most children these days find school a pleasure. The curriculum is suited to their abilities, their work is interesting and instructive, and at school they meet their friends.

"Many of them are genuinely sorry when school is out for the summer. A good many more soon weary of 'holidays,' and — even if they won't admit it to their chums—would enjoy going back to regular classes again.

"Do the boys and girls ever look sorrowful — even to your jaundiced eye—when the first day of school comes round again in the fall?

"Of course not." said the irate pedagogue answering his own question. "The schoolkids are glad to be back."

"But surely there must be some kids that want a holiday," began the Rambling Reporter. That was as far as he got.

"The trouble with the newspaper crowd is that you must have been misfits in the class rooms," he snapped. "Some of the stuff I read makes me wonder if most of you went to school at all.

"Take my word for it within three weeks a good 75 per cent of those boys and girls will be eager to get back to their lessons again. Now good-day."

That's what the educationist said. But your Rambling Reporter is still looking for those glum children.

Early Fishermen Over-Eager Get Stiff Fines

Eager bass and 'lunge fishermen who think they will try to beat the opening season gun on July 1 in the Kawarthas are being warned by district Lands and Forests conservation officers that they will be prosecuted and have their equipment confiscated.

Already the law has moved in on both Canadian and American fishermen who are trying to get a head start by trolling. There is a district (Peterborough-Victoria-Northumberland-Durham) law which prohibits fishing from moving boats until July 1; fishermen must also use live bait from anchored boats.

Six persons have been fined this week in the district waters of Burleigh-Methuen townships. A Norwood man had his fishing rod confiscated and one from Campbellford lost rod, tackle, motor and boat and was fined additionally for having a loaded .22 rifle in his boat without covering license.

Four early season tourists from Warren, O., had all their equipment confiscated, one of them with undersized pickerel in their possession. Besides having their equipment lifted all offenders were fined $20 and $2.50 costs in Peterborough today.

Conservation officers say that the Americans apprehended were shocked at this severe treatment and said they would not come back to the Kawarthas again. They were told that unless they improved their sportsmanship and abided by the provincial laws they would not be welcome.

Since fishing opened here on May 1 (trout) and walleyes (May 15) 20 other fishermen have been convicted of fishing without a license, casting from boats with artificial instead of live baits, leaving set lines and trolling. They were fined $10 and costs each.

Drew's Pledge To Cut Taxes Phony, Says CCF Candidate

Opposition Leader George Drew's election pledge to cut $500,000,000 from the federal budget was denounced at a CCF meeting here Friday night as "phony". At the same time, the speaker, Andrew Brewin, QC, CCF candidate for Toronto St. Paul's, gave his party's stand on taxation. Taxation as a means of social justice—helping out those Canadians who are at the bottom of the income scale—was advocated by Mr. Brewin who is on the national executive of the CCF.

"One of the outstanding issues in this election is certainly taxation, but that issue does not arise out of the phony promise of Mr. Drew to knock $500,000,000 off the federal budget," said Mr. Brewin.

"Mr. Drew knows well that this is impossible without either an inflationary deficit or serious inroads into Canada's defence obligations, or cuts in essential services."

SIMILAR PROMISES

In the last United States' election Republicans made promises similar to those now made by Mr. Drew, the speaker said. But once they took office they found it impossible to carry out these promises.

"Perhaps Mr. Drew does not expect to have the obligation to carry out these promises, or perhaps he is prepared to treat them in the same cavalier fashion as he did the 22 points he put forward as election bait in the 1943 election when he became the Prime Minister of Ontario and then proceeded to disregard—what he had promised."

Mr. Brewin said the real issue of taxation is raised by the CCF Party. This is it: "Whether our present system of taxation is being used as an instrument of social justice or whether it is not designed to bring about even grosser inequalities in the distribution of wealth than we have at the present time."

Statistics were quoted by the speaker indicating that between 1935 and 1952 Canada's gross national product has expanded by 158 per cent; corporation profits, after taxation, by 176 per cent; corporation reserve surplus by 117 per cent; investment income by 328 per cent. However wages, salaries and earning incomes during the same period have only increased by 89 per cent.

LION'S SHARE

"This means that those who live on dividends—and they are the wealthiest section of the population—are getting the lion's share of the expanded prosperity of Canada," said Mr. Brewin. "The wage earners and workers are getting the short end of the stick and only a relatively small share in the prosperity we are enjoying at the present time."

He predicted a new depression if this continues. The expansion of credit, borrowing, and mortgages by Canadians in the lower end of the income scale will result in a drying up of purchasing power at the first breath of recession.

"A healthy and just economy such as the CCF alone in Canada stands for would result in a fuller distribution of the benefits of increased national productivity, and would see that the whole community shared in this productivity. This rather than phony promises to cut taxation is the real economic issue which faces Canadians in this election.

Mr. Brewin said that the crux of such a policy would be to relieve those at the bottom of the income scales before handing out concessions to those at the top.

"The beneficiaries of the present system are the tiny minority who are profiteering out of Canada's prosperity. These are the people who support the Conservative and Liberal Parties with huge campaign funds and expect to get their reward in the maintenance of the present unjust, inefficient and inequitable system."

Fred Young, CCF organizer, took issue with a recent Examiner editorial which stated that the CCF came into power during the depression of the '30s, as a party of protest, and it has never developed into a party with anything constructive to offer. The editorial also said that Canadians would "swallow socialism readily enough when it is given to them in Liberal or Conservative spoons."

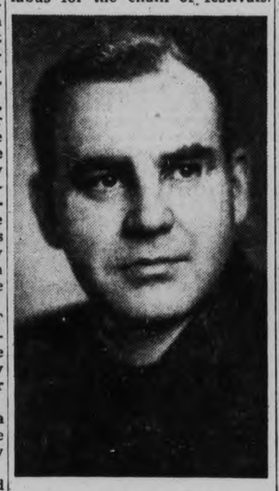
"Thank God for the CCF movement to make the Conservatives and Liberals use those spoons," said Mr. Young. "May they use bigger and better spoons."

Mr. Young said that it was a function of the CCF to force the "old parties" to adopt socially constructive legislation.

"The socialist movement around the world is very much alive today and in Canada the CCF will be heard from in the days to come. It is a long fight. . .It is part of our job to make the 'old parties' bring in better social legislation so that people can see that these things are practicable . . . After a crisis the people will turn to the CCF.

"We want more and bigger spoons to dish out the social security. We must keep this flame alive. Our candidates are fighting for the future. They are building something better."

Maurice E. Ketcheson, president of the Association, was chairman. He introduced and thanked both Mr. Brewin and Mr. Young. Earlier in the evening he was elected CCF candidate for Peterborough.



Music Festivals Convention To Be Held Here

The fourth annual convention of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals will be held in Peterborough June 30 to July 2. Approximately 40 delegates representing seven provinces will be attending the convention.

Sessions will be held in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel and the agenda will include announcing of national trophy winners in the 1953 festival series and the dates of the 1954 festivals.

MASTER SYLLABUS

Periods have also been set aside for the discussion of a national festival and a master syllabus for the chain of festivals.

DR. R. S. K. SEELEY

One of the highlights of the three-day convention will be a federation dinner Tuesday night at which the guest speaker will be the Rev. Dr. R. S. K. Seeley, Provost of Trinity College, University of Toronto.

The convention host is the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

The federation is the administrative body for more than 20 festivals held across Canada every year. This year's president is Reginald Hugo, Winnipeg, and the secretary-treasurer, Richard W. Cooke, also of Winnipeg.

7 Traffic Deaths, 3 Drowned In 8 Days, Grim Warning

With the busy summer holiday season barely under way, Peterborough district can already look back on a week of suffering and tragic bereavement that has shocked the community as thousands of visitors poured into the Kawarthas Friday and today.

Ahead is the prospect of heavy traffic and throngs of holidayers flocking to vacation resorts within the next week which includes Canada's July 1 holiday. Next Saturday, July 4, Independence Day, will start off a huge influx of United States weekend visitors.

A grim warning to motorists, swimmers, fishermen and boaters was the appalling toll of district accidents since a week ago Friday night: Six deaths as a result of traffic accidents, one death as a result of an accident on May 29, three drowned, 19 injured, many of them seriously, and thousands of dollars in property damage.

FIVE-VEHICLE CRASH

The week-long series of accidents began Friday night with a multiple collision involving four cars and a truck on Highway 7, one mile north of the city.

Although no one was seriously injured, Mrs. William E. Green, 731 Donegal St., and Mrs. Bernard Langen, 623 Little St., wives of two of the drivers, suffered minor head injuries when their heads were thrown against the windshields. Damage to the vehicles involved was estimated at about $1,400.

The chain reaction accident started when John Loucks, 301 Townsend St., driving south, collided with the left front of a northbound car driven by Mr. Green, as he was passing a light truck driven by Alvin Stoneburg, 611 McKellar St.

Loucks' car bounced back to the west side of the road to hit Stoneburg's truck, back to the east to sideswipe a car driven by Francis King, Chemong Park, then ran off the east side of the road to crash into an elm tree.

Mr. Langen, driving north behind Green, piled into the rear of Green's car and King ran into the rear of Langen's auto.

Saturday morning brought news of two drownings which had occurred Friday night and Saturday morning.

Arnold Tripp of Oshawa drowned in the Crowe River near Cordova Mines, 15 miles north-east of Havelock.

WENT FISHING

Donald Ware of 123 Cedarvale Ave., Toronto, a 23-year-old steel-worker, was drowned when his boat was swept over the Perry's Creek dam at Burleigh Falls while he was fishing in Lovesick Lake, an hour or so before midnight. Ware, who could not swim, was holidaying on the lake, which he had never seen before, with his wife and two other young Toronto couples.

Five other Toronto people were injured about 11:30 a.m. Saturday when their car collided with a dump truck loaded with sand about a mile west of Young's Point. Driver of the car was Mrs. Howard Vear.

Injured were her mother-in-law, Mrs. R. J. Vear, 21 Golf Rd., Toronto, who suffered lacerations of her head and face and had a bruised jaw; Mrs. Violet Cass, 283 Logan Ave., Toronto, who had cuts on the top of her head and upper left arm; Mrs. Howard Vear's one-and-a-half-year-old son Douglas, who was cut on his right side.

About 7:45 p.m. Saturday, Mrs. George Thorn, 35, a nurse in Cobourg General Hospital, who lived with Mrs. Amos Strong at RR 2, Millbrook, was killed when the car in which she was driving alone went out of control and crashed into a tree about three-quarters of a mile west of Bailieboro on a county road.

SMASHED INTO TREE

It is thought Mrs. Thorn, who had not been feeling well and had been lying down during the day, may have taken a weak spell. The car apparently went out of control in some loose gravel as it reached the bottom of a steep hill. It smashed head-on into a large tree on the north side of the road, killing Mrs. Thorn almost instantly. The car was demolished.

Mrs. Elizabeth Furtner, 75, 1 Toronto Rd., Scarboro Junction, received a fractured left shoulder and injured hip when three cars collided on Highway 28 Sunday afternoon on the hill west of Armstrong's lumber yard. Driver of one of the cars, Herve LeBreton, 21, 295 Clark St., Oshawa, suffered abrasions and lacerations over his left eye.

Crawford Hall, 42, of Millbrook, suffered a fractured skull Monday afternoon when he fell from a truck on Highway 62 at Combermere, 110 miles northeast of Peterborough. Hall was a passenger in a truck driven by Kenneth Sherwood of Port Hope. The pair were proceeding to Killaloe.

The truck was rounding a curve when Hall grabbed for the window handle for support but caught the door handle. The door opened, throwing him to the road.

KILLED ON MOTORCYCLE

Nineteen-year-old John Bambrick, 2 Aberdeen Ave., was instantly killed Monday night when the motorcycle he was riding with Ian Findlay, 23, of Tory Hill, left Highway 7 east of the city and crashed into a ditch.

Both Finlay and Bambrick were thrown 50 feet or more when the motorcycle plunged into a ditch eight feet deep. Finlay suffered a fractured right ankle, dislocated neck and concussion.

The motorcycle had pulled out to pass a light truck driven by Joseph Hartwick, 17, RR 8, Peterborough. Hartwick told police he heard the motorcycle hit his truck. A dent was found on the truck's left rear fender.

Two women were killed and three others seriously injured late Wednesday afternoon when their car went out of control and careered down a steep hill in Millbrook and crashed into a large maple tree. Dead were Mrs. Morley Cane, 45, of Cobourg, driver of the car, and Mrs. Elizabeth Annie Davidson, 81, of Millbridge.

Taken to hospital were Mrs. William P. Platt, 67, of 467 Watton St., Cobourg, with a fractured pelvis, cuts on her face and arms and possibly other internal injuries; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donald Platt, 23, same address, a fractured jaw and facial cuts and bruises; and Susan Platt, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Platt Jr., facial cuts and bruises and a scalp cut. Condition of Mrs. William Platt was reported critical and Mrs. Donald Platt fair today. Susan is to be released from hospital.

SKIDDED ACROSS STREET

The car drove at a high speed down Parkway Dr., in Millbrook and failed to make the sharp turn onto King St. Instead, it skidded across King St.—the main street in the village—smashed through an iron-pipe guard rail and hit a maple tree 18 inches in diameter.

A stout limb sheared off the top of the car level with the hood and tore open the vehicle like a tin can. None of the occupants were thrown out of the car which was wedged between the tree and the sidewalk. Both women in the front seat were killed instantly.

The body of 53-year-old John Grant of Peterborough was taken from the Otonabee River by city firemen Wednesday about 6:00 p.m. It was discovered about 150 feet from the end of Dublin St., floating against the log boom just above the Quaker Oats Co. dam. Grant had last been seen sitting in Nicholls Oval on Sunday.

Bruce Lywood, 21, of 193 Robinson St., a roofing workman, fell 25 feet from the steeply-pitched roof of Trinity United Church about 8:30 a.m. Thursday when a two-by-four used for a foot-hold came free at one end, breaking his left thigh and causing shock and badly scraped hands.

Injured in an auto accident on May 29, William Olson, 56, 179 Carlton St., Toronto, died Thursday in hospital here. His wife and two-year-old daughter Judy were also taken to hospital. Judy was later released.

The accident occurred just north of Bewdley when Olson took to the shoulder of the road and applied his brakes in an attempt to avoid an approaching truck but the car started to roll. Olson went through the windshield and landed 20 feet in front of the car. Mrs. Olson was bounced around in the back seat and the baby was pinned under the left rear window.

TWO KILLED

Two died as the result of a two-car crash at 10:45 a.m. Friday on Highway 7, 12 miles east of Peterborough. They were Mrs. Harry Steinburgh, 35, of 28 Cherrywood Dr., Toronto, who died in emergency ward shortly after the accident, and Leon Lipson, 30, of 15 Arlington St., Ottawa, who died in hospital at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Frank Wiley, 46, of Malone, Marmora township, and his 47-year-old wife suffered cuts and bruises and shock. Mrs. Wiley also had a cut on her forehead, scrapes on both knees and an injured wrist. Mrs. Steinberg's nine-year-old daughter Judy was taken to hospital in a semi-conscious condition with a fractured left hip. Mrs. Cecil Holland, 33, Deloro, was also taken to hospital with a fractured right thigh, a fractured right leg and multiple bruises.

Mrs. Steinberg and Judy were passengers in Lipson's car. Lipson, who was driving east, pulled out to pass a car in front when a westbound car came over the hill. Lipson passed the car in front and cut back sharply into the line of traffic.

The highway was slippery and he apparently skidded. The car slid across the highway into the northern lane of traffic and was struck by Wiley's west-bound car, rolling on to its right side and skidding about 35 feet. It hit a large tree and bounced back on to its four wheels, right side up, 15 feet from the tree. The trunk and whole rear end of the 1952-model car were crushed in, the seats were uprooted and the rear door was torn off.

Wiley's 1953-model car stopped almost at the point of impact. The force of the collision drove the whole front end in almost flush with the shattered windshield. The right front wheel was pushed back against the front of the passenger's seat.

Hungary Imprisoned Flower Of Russia's Satellites

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary, five years after a coup d'etat brought communism to power, is a flower among Russia's dreary East European satellites, but a flower imprisoned and wilting.

Its jailers are 25,000 rarely-seen Russian troops and the all-powerful Hungarian Communist leaders who are driven in curtained black sedans.

Prisoners are more than 90 per cent of 9,000,000 Hungarians who appear to have just enough to eat.

Budapest, once queen city of Eastern Europe, today is almost as shabby and depressing as the cities of post-war Germany. Gone are the smart Paris-style salons, the sidewalk cafes of the Danube embankment and the Magyar women who gave Budapest more beauty than any city in Europe.

Suppressed, too, are Budapest's traditional gaiety, its carefree love of life.

In their place, the Communists have shuttered thousands of shops, ripped off the names of their owners and replaced them with state stores whose poor quality goods are out of reach for virtually every one but the new upper and middle classes of communism.

Hotels are deserted except for visiting Communist dignitaries.

Over the entire new society, Hungarian communism has imposed the grim conformity of Bolshevist dress.

To American correspondents visiting Budapest from Vienna, itself the over-crowded capital of a poor land, the Hungarian capital is depressing. But it is said to be a dreamland compared with Prague Warsaw, Bucharest and Sofia.

It has the atmosphere of war. Truckloads of soldiers, singing in the Russian style, roar through the streets at night. Brown uniforms of the military branch of the secret police mingle with blue-clad civil police.

There is hurried construction of buildings meant to house the instruments of Communist power, but cracked streets and sidewalks remain unrepaired and unswept.

Of new developments, outstanding are the two-block square complex of the Hungarian defence ministry and the nine-storey dazzlingly-white headquarters of the state police.

Paid Off Lien On Car Sentence Suspended

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Lindsay magistrate's court was told Friday that a man, given two days to pay off a $700 lien on a truck when he appeared Wednesday, has made good his promise, and cleared the title to the vehicle so the new owner could take possession.

Allen Ferguson did not appear in court, however, to hear his two years' sentence for false pretences suspended by Magistrate Gee, and costs of $15.50 imposed. He was given an additional two days to pay the costs, and warrant was made out for his arrest in the event he failed to do so. Default of payment was set at 15 days. Ferguson of Little Britain was convicted of false pretences, when he signed a guarantee that a truck he sold to Len Sholer of Lindsay was free and clear when a lien of $700 was held against it.

Charge Liberals Get More Radio Time

TORONTO (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, Friday night accused the Liberal party of taking an undue proportion of the free time offered by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for the presentation pf election platforms.

In an address broadcast over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC, Mr. Low said the CBC had asked the various parties to decide among themselves how they should divide the time available. He added:

"Conservatives, CCF and Social Crediters proposed an equal division of time among the four parties on the ground that each party had a definite program and it would require as much time for one to do a complete job as any other.

"But like a stubborn mule the Liberal party put its ears back and refused to budge from their demand for a lion's share of the time for themselves.

"They held out to the bitter end for the same kind of unfair, undemocratic division of free time that was made upon their insistence in the election of 1949, wherein they reserved 21 quarter-hour periods for themselves and grudgingly allowed the Social Credit Association of Canada only six quarter-hours for the whole campaign.

HALTING STEP

"When the other three parties refused to countenance such gross unfairness, and it was clear no agreement was possible, the CBC issued a directive under which the Liberal party was given only twice as much time as Social Credit.

"CBC is to be commended for making even a halting step towards something more fair and just than has been the case in the past.

"But the best I can say about the Liberals is that they were quite taken aback by this rather unexpected demonstration of independence by the CBC, because the Liberal party for years has thought it could use the CBC for any of its purposes and in any way it liked, without question.

"When the Liberal party claims to believe in freedom of speech it does so with its tongue in its cheek and with serious reservations."

The CBC allotted 16 hours, 10 minutes to the four parties divided as follows: Liberals, 33 per cent; Progressive Conservatives, 30 per cent; CCF, 20 per cent and Social Credit, 17 per cent.

Prices Advance Steadily On All Stock Exchanges

By GORDON MacKINNON

A keynote of cautious optimism was struck at stock exchanges this week as price levels showed a series of steady advances following a month of almost uninterrupted decline.

Brokers cited several promising "signs of the times" in explaining the mild recovery.

The United States federal reserve board's decision this week to ease its tight money policy was said by many to have made funds more accessible to investors and acted as a "shot in the arm" to New York stock markets.

Canadian observers were convinced that reliable reports of a big uranium strike on the north shore of Lake Huron were at least partially responsible for the current upswing among selected uranium stocks listed on the Toronto stock exchange.

The Financial Post commented on the new find: "After five years of extensive exploration Eastern Canada seems to have emerged with the prize of a major uranium find."

In interpreting trading statistics, market technicians refer to a well-known economic axiom which states that the combination of increasing volume and rising prices denotes confidence among investors. During the week, turnover at Toronto, in keeping with this axiom, increased an average of about 600,000 shares a day until Friday when volume contracted slightly in the usual pre-weekend reaction.

However, pessimists were quick to point to certain warning signs. They say that all's not well with the market in view of the softness appearing in western oils from mid-week onward.

Taking a shorter-range look at activity in Toronto, base metals proved the market's most consistent winners. Following the resistance of lead and zinc commodity prices to further declines the grouping has gone ahead 10 index points since June 16.

Industrials reflected Wall Street's stronger trend while western oils came out with a modest gain during the week. Golds showed little change.

PAPERS TAKE LEAD

In Montreal, papers took the lead Tuesday in a general market advance that was joined Wednesday and Thursday by industrials.

New York markets made headway Monday and Tuesday, slipped back Wednesday but forged ahead Thursday. Closing activity struck a mixed note.

The Toronto stock exchange's weekly index had industrials up 4.45 at 304.00, golds up .68 at 77.43, base metals up 7.14 at 158.93 (their best advance in more than two years) and western oils up 2.36 at 109.56.

Montreal averages showed banks up .66 at 33.84, utilities up 1.8 at 95.5, papers up 16.09 at 675.71, industrials up 2.2 at 184.9, combines up 2.1 at 155.1 and golds up 1.23 at 56.96.

According to the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, New York markets advanced narrowly —up $1.60 at $107.20.

Social Credit Lauches Election Drive

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

With a promise of tax cuts and financial reforms to make them possible, Solon Low Friday night launched Social Credit's election campaign.

And in a national radio address, he said the Social Crediters he leads can show Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and the Liberal government how to make the $500,000,000 tax reduction Mr. Drew announced as a major plank of the Progressive Conservative platform.

While Mr. Low mapped campaign strategy at a Toronto meeting with senior Social Crediters, including Premiers Bennett of British Columbia and Manning of Alberta, other political leaders stumped the country.

In Hamilton, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he is sure the federal and provincial governments will reach agreement on constitutional issues. This apparently referred to Mr. Drew's charges in Quebec Thursday that the Liberals don't want agreement with the provinces.

Mr. Drew, opening the western leg of his campaign in Winnipeg, promised "fair and sound" prices for agriculture through the national agricultural board mentioned in his manifesto.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, brought his campaign to a halt in his home province of Saskatchewan to return to Ottawa where his wife, ill for many years, died Friday at the age of 64.

Mr. Low pledged Social Credit to abolish hidden taxes and all sales taxes except the two-per-cent levy for old age pensions, reduce personal income taxes and increase exemptions. This was meant to lower living costs by 15 per cent, encourage production and stimulate a spirit of independence among Canadians.

A Social Credit government would follow a financial policy providing for a national monetary authority to control money and credit, issue money at a rate to ensure continued expansion of production and consumption and credit "on suitable and reasonable" terms for agriculture and industry.

Such a policy also would provide safeguards against inflation and deflation, lower interest rates, lower down payment and interest for home builders.

Mr. Low said Mr. Drew's tax-cut proposal "is quite possible and practical," but he differed with Mr. [illegible] to know [illegible] be achieved. It could not be done by orthodox means.

"We Social Crediters can show him and the government exactly how, by wise managemen and through our Social Credit financial proposals, to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year without in any way reducing present social security payments or essential services."

Mr. St. Laurent said he is certain that "some day" the federal and provincial governments will agree on methods of amending the constitution in matters of joint federal-provincial interest.

Referring to the St. Lawrence seaway-hydro project, he said "nothing we can do" will be left undone to get this great development started. The federal government was ready to start on the seaway and the Ontario hydro-electric power commission on the power project as soon as the United States names an agency to co-operate on the latter.

"We have high hopes that the time is not too far off when the necessary authority will be granted to the state of New York to do its share of the power development."

Mr. Drew said his proposed national agricultural board would be farmer-directed and independent; it would "not simply be another voice for the minister of agriculture."

Mr. St. Laurent's criticism of the board as bringing about "socialized farming" was meaningless "unless he intends to repeal the Farm Prices Support Act." If he didn't mean to repeal it, then he was committed to price support. He should welcome the proposal.

"While the prime minister was criticizing support prices for farm products in Ontario, the minister of agriculture was boasting . . . about the amount the government had spent to help farmers."

LONDON (AP)—Roger Bannister today ran the third fastest mile on record but failed by two seconds in an almost secret attempt at the legendary four-minute mile.

The 24-year-old Oxonian now a medical student was clocked in four minutes two seconds in a paced race at Motspur Park.

His time was the fastest ever for a British runner and was only six-tenths of a second short of Gundar Haegg's world mark of 4:01.4 set in Sweden in 1945.

Premier Frost Welcomed To Lindsay From Britain

LINDSAY (ENS)—Two things impressed Premier Leslie M. Frost most about his trip to the coronation, from which he returned to a civic welcome in his home town here Friday afternoon.

One was the sold basis of understanding, respect and co-operation which bound together the nations of the Commonwealth, and the other was the growing signs of a return to world leadership by Britain, evident throughout the national scene over there.

"We were present at a number of engagements," he said, "where we saw men and women from all over the world meeting together as equals in the commonwealth. This is a great thing, and the key of tomorrow. We can win the peace by such understanding and respect as was shown there."

Secondly, said the Premier, "don't sell the old country short. Britain is on her way up, and the dark days are over. The people are full of self respect and energy, and everyone is working hard. Industry is booming, and great progress is being made in recovery in every field."

The Premier and Mrs. Frost were given an enthusiastic reception by several hundred of towns people as they drew up to the town hall to receive the official welcome of Mayor Lamb and County Sheriff Jasper Forman. Reeve Richard Butler presented Premier Frost with a wrist watch on behalf of the town council, after Barbara Maidens, daughter of one of the councillors presented Mrs. Frost with a bouquet of roses.

Following the official ceremonies, Premier and Mrs. Frost spent some time greeting old friends, many of whom they have not seen for some months, since the Premier's last visit home.

Police said apparently Mrs. Stark and her husband neglected to lock the door when they returned to the hotel from a nightclub.

Tariffs Wall Of U.S. Cause Of Worry In Britain

BY LEON DENNEN

LONDON — (NEA) — British businessmen are raging mad at Sen. Karl Mundt's charge that 100 British ships did "a lush profit in blood" in recent months.

Britain must export to live, they retort. "Britain must export to earn dollars to buy essential goods in the U.S."

Since the end of the war, the British have based their trading policies on the belief that the U.S. would eventually agree to ease tariff barriers. They no longer have any illusions.

The Simpson Amendment to restrict President Eisenhower's power to negotiate changes in the U.S. tariff was a rude awakening for British economists and businessmen. They now believe that the Republicans will even tighten tariff regulations if they win the Congressional elections in 1954.

R. A. Butler, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, is especially gloomy over the prospect of Anglo-American trade relations.

Butler went to Washington last February to convince the Administration to reduce trade barriers to allow sterling countries to sell more to the U.S. He also sought dollar support for the British pound to make it once more freely convertible.

MISSION FAILED

Butler's mission was a failure. Britain therefore insists on continuing the export of non-strategic goods to Red China and other Red nations. But many U. S. Congressmen—even some high tariff advocates—would like the British to embargo all trade with Russia's satellites, in line with American policy.

Moscow is, of course, aware of Britain's economic troubles. The Russians seem to believe that they have found the real weak link in the Western coalition. Profitable trade deals with Britain—and with the rest of Western Europe—is Premier Malenkov's bait for a Big Four conference.

Sir Winston Churchill is expected to use all his prestige and powers of persuasion at Bermuda to get President Eisenhower to agree to an early top level meeting with the Russians.

He will plug for the admission of Red China into the UN—though fully aware that the U.S. Senate voted unanimously for a resolution opposing the concession.

The French will likely back the British on both issues. But West Germany—though not a member of the Bermuda conference—will side with the U.S. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is carrying on a historic fight to bring Germany back into the Western community of nations. He fears that Britain will try to make a deal with the Russians at the expense of West Germany.

AGAINST MEETING

U.S. observers in Britain believe that the U.S. will be against an early meeting with Russia and will oppose the seating of Red China in the UN as a condition to a Korean peace settlement. The Korean agreement, in their view, is as yet no proof that the Kremlin is prepared to back up words with deeds—since the war in Korea has long been a hot potato for Russia and Red China.

The State Department is not likely to be pressured into a meeting with Moscow without knowing whether the Russians are really ready to make reasonable concessions.

And there are many influential leaders in Congress, opposed to a new "Munich" and a policy of appeasement, who believe that the Kremlin rulers are only playing for time.

A Big Four meeting may become inevitable, however. President Eisenhower may not be able to resist for long European pressure for a conference with Premier Malenkov. Only the U.S. would prefer to postpone the meeting and wait for further proof of Russia's real desire for peace.

Nevertheless, Sir Winston is said to be of the view that the Bermuda talks will strengthen rather than weaken Western unity — especially Anglo-American unity.

LONE OPTIMIST

Competent observers in London do not share the Prime Minister's optimism. It will take enormous tact, understanding and good will for the Anglo-American partnership to reach the wartime level.

Well-meaning people on both sides of the Atlantic have long tried to base Anglo-American partnership on family feelings—the British-American "cousinship" and the common English tongue. Sir Winston himself has been plugging this line. But this is like building on sand.

The U.S. and Britain are countries with varying national interests and contrasted historical backgrounds. A London Cockney and a Cleveland Pole or a Chicago Czech are not "cousins". They hardly speak the same language.

What will ultimately compel the U.S. and Britain to co-operate—as they co-operated during the war—is the fact that their interests overlap in every quarter of the globe. That, and the realization that if they do not stand together the whole structure of the free, non-Communist world will go to pieces.

Only Russia could gain from continued Anglo-American disunity

Laniel Begins To Form Government

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Joseph Laniel today began his talks with political leaders to form France's 19th post-war government.

He plans to have his cabinet list ready by tonight, before President Vincent Auriol's departure for southwestern France.

Political quarters said Georges Bidault, Popular Republican, would remain at the foreign ministry. Laniel was also expected to give an important post to his friend, ex-premier Paul Reynaud—probably a ministry of state with the special task of looking after Indo-China.

Laniel's government will include Gaullists for the first time since Gen. Charles de Gaulle's resignation from the cabinet in 1946.

SOLVED CRISIS

Laniel, a Moderate Conservative, solved the French cabinet crisis on its 37th day. The triumphant manner of his investitute Friday night—he received 84 votes more than the 314 needed for election enable him to speak with considerable authority at next month's Bermuda conference with Presi-Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill.

Laniel, 63, a millionaire farmer and industrialist, had the almost solid support of all but the Socialists and Communists. But even the Socialists endorsed main foreign policy lines he developed in his speech asking for investiture.

The cardinal foreign policy point, Laniel said, was fidelity to the Atlantic pact. Point two was French readiness to seize every chance of talking with the Russians—"provided there is tangible proof of goodwill," he said.

On the latter point Laniel appeared to be more in line with Eisenhower's cautious approach than with Churchill's advocacy of a four-power conference.

Girl Admits Stole $40 Cash

LINDSAY (ENS)—A 20-year-old Lindsay district girl, a first offender, Friday was placed on a year's suspended sentence by Magistrate E. A. Gee when she pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of some $40 in cash and $343 in cheques from the home of a neighbour, Ernest Tipling of Mariposatownship. She was also assessed costs of $15.50.

The girl's counsel, I. E. Weldon, asked that the girl receive the light penalty, since she had not been in trouble before. According to the evidence, Mr. Tipling left his farm house last October 24 to do the milking. While he was out of the house, someone entered and stole a purse containing the cash and cheques.

No progress was made in the investigation of the theft until early this month when a Toronto man, John Dudgeon, who was boarding at the home of the girl's parents found the cheques in his room. Payment on the notes had been stopped, and they had not been used, although they were endorsed in a forged hand.

Investigation then continued and the charge was laid. The girl returned the 40 to Tipling in court Friday.

Stories Match Magistrate Believes One

LINDSAY (ENS)—"If this was the horse and buggy days, we wouldn't have any of these careless driving cases," commented Magistrate E. A. Gee, at the outset of a case involving William Hughes 29, of Kinmount charged with careless driving following an accident on highway 35 near Minden last month.

Hughes was convicted and fined $10 and $18.50 costs. The second driver in the collision had just been released from hospital and was available for the trial for the first time.

According to the evidence, presented by both sides of the case, both drivers, William Thompson, of Toronto, and Hughes, were travelling on their own sides of the road, on May 15 last, each driver stated his speed was about 40 miles per hour, while the other car was doing at least 50 to 60, and both drivers stated the accident occurred on his side of the road.

According to the evidence of provincial constable Al Hardy of Minden, however, the debris of the head-on collision indicated that the impact had occurred completely on Thompson's side of the road, at the intersection of the Minden cut-off. Damage to the two cars exceeded $500, but Thompson was the only one seriously injured, suffering a smashed knee-cap, broken nose and bruises. He was rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay following the accident.

Thompson was returning from North Bay to Toronto at the time of the accident. Hughes was heading for Minden but missed the new road into the village, which was opened only the night before. Magistrate Gee accepted Thompson's story that Hughes veered to his side of the road, causing the head on crash. Hughes was defended by Trevor Clarke of Peterborough.

Remanded One Week One Cheque Charges

LINDSAY (ENS)—A former army nurse, Mrs. Wilma Biggins, of Lindsay was remanded a further week for the mental observation Friday, when she appeared for trial on four charges of using bad cheques. Crown Counsel Lorne Jordan QC agreed to the remand, when Mrs. Biggins promised, through her counsel that some $118 in funds, lost by victims of her bouncing notes, would be returned in that time.

Magistrate Gee, in granting the adjournment told the woman that "during this coming week, you'd better lose your pen".

Engineer 40 Yrs. With CGE B.L. Barns Leaves

An engineer for almost half a century and an employee of the Canadian General Electric for the past 40 years, B. L. Barns retired Friday from the company.

On graduating from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor he went to work at the GE Schenectady works and then returned to the U of M to teach electrical engineering for a year. Following a year with the Allis Chalmers he set up an electrical contracting firm for himself.

Mr. Barns came to Peterborough in 1912, on answering an advertisement offering positions to electrical engineers at the Peterborough works. He enlisted in the American Army in 1917 and served overseas as a captain for two years and returned to Peterborough in 1919.

He has been active in engineering associations, such as the EIC and AIEE and served on the electrical committee of the latter group for a number of years and was eventually made a life member. He was made an honorary member of the Peterborough branch of the EIC and gave a prize-winning paper on electrical engineering.

He is responsible for a number of engineering practices that he invented and they have become world wide in use in industry today. Some of these practices still remain with the CGE and are secrets of the business.

The most striking change Mr. Barns has witnessed over 40 years of service with the CGE is the evolution from castings to steel plate, in the manufacture of generators.

Family Vacation Trip Requires Careful Planning

By NANCY CLEAVER.

"Of journeying the benefits are many;
the freshness it brings to the heart,
the seeing and hearing of marvellous things,
the delights of beholding new cities,
the meeting of unknown friends,
the learning of high manners."
(Written by Saadi in the 13th century.)

Vacation time is approaching, and many families are making plans to go on a trip. Parents realize the educational values of travel some of which are mentioned in the above quotation written so long ago. Adventuring in far places has cast its magic spell over people in every generation. Robert Louis Stevenson once said: "For my part, I travel not to go anywhere, but to go. I travel for travel's sake."

FAMILY TRAVEL

Journeying for the individual is much simpler than travel for a group, especially for a family group which includes small children. But never before in the history of mankind have so many families had the leisure, the money and the facilities for voyages of discovery on land and sea.

Careful planning beforehand removes many of the difficulties of family travel. It is fun to look forward to holiday good times as well as remember them afterwards with pleasure. Plans should be flexible enough that they can be changed if unexpected events occur.

It is very important to remember not to travel too far any one day or to plan too long a trip. If any member of the group becomes exhausted, extreme fatigue almost always shows itself in irritability or lowered resistance to illness. The too weary traveller is miserable—and John Buchan once wisely remarked: "Misery knows no manners."

EFFORT TO BE COURTEOUS

On a trip the members of the family see more of each other than they do on ordinary days at home when father goes to work and the children attend school. It takes a little etxra effort to continue to be courteous and considerate throughout the whole day on a trip. Mark Twain once observed, "I have found that there ain't no surer way to find out whether you like people or hate them than to travel with them."

To prevent individuals in the family from getting on each other's nerves, it is wise to split up into smaller groups of mother and daughters or father and sons in the latter part of the day. If the family are motoring, likely father is doing the driving while mother has major responsibility for keeping the children happy and occupied in the car. Perhaps after supper at a tourist camp, dad will offer to take the children on a walk while mother has the chance to relax all by herself. Then during the children's bedtime hour, dad can do as he wishes.

HAVE CAR CHECKED

No careful parents would take their children on a trip in a car which had not been carefully checked by a reliable mechanic. Many of the accidents on our highways, however, can be traced not to defective brakes or a stalled engine, but to the driver being crowded or his attention being distracted at a critical moment. There should be a strict rule that the driver must have plenty of room. The driver's complete attention must be on his job. Heavy traffic frequently demands quick and wise decisions.

In recent years a number of families have taken advantage of between weekend and off season lower plane rates for families. If a long trip is being considered, a plane trip can be a never-to-be-forgotten experience for a boy or girl. So can a train trip.

Such a large number of families own cars, that many children of the present generation have never known the thrill of living on a train, eating in a diner and going to sleep in a berth. The inexpensive fares of the large bus companies do attract many families who must budget very carefully. If dad is a commercial traveller or must do a good deal of driving in connection with his work, it is worthwhile giving careful thought to the advantage of a family trip by plane, train or bus.

COMFORTABLE CLOTHES

Sunburn, poison ivy, and drinking untested water are all carefully avoided by experienced trippers. Clothes for travel should above all be comfortable. In the hot weather the "small fry" can wear sun suits combined with cotton jerseys when necessary. On cooler days seersucker or corduroy overalls for tiny tots are practical.

A large thermos bottle with drinking water and plastic cups, a different color for each member of the family is a good idea. So are damp, clean wash rags in a plastic bag and a small bath towel to wipe off sticky fingers and faces. A number of simple games are a MUST. Look up some new ones in a library book before you set out. Whatever are your vacation plans, Good Luck to you and "Happy Landing."

Grandmother, 55 Top Member Of CCF Party

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Therese Casgrain, 55-year-old Montreal grandmother, is one of the CCF party's top woman members although she joined the party only five years ago.

In those five years she has become leader of the Quebec section of the CCF and now is a party candidate for the second time.

Mrs. Casgrain, handsome and grey-haired, joined the CCF because, she said, the party had a "positive approach" to social questions which matched her opinions formed in 20 years of championing women's rights.

Her first political contest was in 1942 as an independent Liberal candidate for the Charlevoix-Saguenay seat in the Commons which her husband, the late Mr. Justice Pierre Casgrain, had vacated on his appointment to the Quebec Superior Court. Her father, Sir Rodolphe Forget, had earlier held the same seat for 13 years as a Conservative.

Mrs. Casgrain's first campaign as a CCF candidate was in the 1952 Quebec provincial election, when she lost in Montreal-Verdun constituency. In the present campaign she is a candidate in La-salle-Jacques Cartier constituency in Montreal.

FIRST WOMAN LEADER

Her election in 1951 as the CCF leader in Quebec made her the first woman to head a political party in the province.

She has had other "firsts" As president of the League for Women's Rights she led the fight to get the franchise for Quebec women in 1940 and helped bring about legislation the following year which allows women to practise law in Quebec.

It was Mrs. Casgrain, too, who helped make sure that federal family allowance cheques were made payable to mothers—not fathers—in Quebec. When the first cheques were to be paid, it was rumored that fathers would get the cheques in the province. Mrs. Casgrain led a three-week campaign and organized a flood of protests to Ottawa. When the cheques came out —later than those for the rest of Canada—they went to the mothers.

A fluent speaker in English, French and Italian, she has served on the Quebec minimum wage board and the wartime prices and trade board. She is an executive of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Graduation Held At Confederation Dr. Ray Speaks

Confederation School graduation exercises were held Thursday afternoon with pupils and parents in attendance.

Principal Mr. J. Nichols spoke briefly to the graduating pupils encouraging them to continue their good work. He also gave credit to the parents and to the teachers whose help made this a happy milestone. He stressed the point of happy relations existing between Kenner Collegiate and Confederation school.

Guest speaker was Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner Collegiate, who gave an interesting talk to the pupils. His subject was entitled "Sign Posts." Taking the example: "Where are you going, what are you leaving," Dr. Ray emphasized that the pupils should look back remembering mistakes made and resolve to try harder in the years to come. He asked them to remember for the future that sign posts were not made wholly of dollars and cents, but also consisted of fair play, honesty, courtesy, thoughtfulness, clean living, sportsmanship and worship of God.

Encouraging those who failed to pass he asked them to learn to take disappointments, still keeping these same "sign posts" in mind, and determine to try harder the next time.

The Board of Education award for top student went to Julia Poole who gave the valedictory address. Home and School president, Mrs. Harvey Sutton, presented the association award to the next highest pupil, Donald Rusaw.

Grade 8 teacher, Mr. L. Corbett, thanked Dr. Ray for the interest and co-operation of himself and Kenner Collegiate. He congratulated the pupils on being a fine class and the Home and School Association for their backing in the different activities.

Mr. Corbett then presented the certificates to the pupils.

The Home and School Executive provided refreshments for the pupils and parents.

As the graduates left the school they walked through a guard of honor made up of the remainder of the pupils.

Those graduating were: Julia Poole, Donald Rusaw, Carole Anne Doleman, David Kiff, David Nichols, George Houghton, Joan Kay, Sandra Wood, Carol Fallis, Gary Henwood, Diane Hillson, Gary Rollins, Ruth Trotter, Morley Overholt, James Kenball, Lenora Westwood, Ted Wood, James Knox, Marily Orr, George Lunn, Michael Stock, Frances Wineberg, Brian Reid, Ted Trotter, Mavis Siddall, James Doleman, Paul Clark, Allan Moffatt, Judith MacLellan, Jane Kelly, Robert Kelly, Larry Ferguson, Jean Burnett, Gerald Kimball, Beverley Thompson, Edward Anderson.

Graduation exercises for the two grade eights at Queen Mary School were held in the auditorium Thursday night with Principal O. M. Steer as chairman. The 65 pupils, their parents and friends, filled the auditorium to capacity.

The Rev. Henry Cotton opened the meeting with prayer. This was folowed by Mr. Steer's remarks and a civic greeting to the graduates by Ald. T. Douglas Miller.

Mrs. Jas. Goldie gave two vocal solos, with Mrs. Adam Sands at the piano. Mrs. W. L. McNeil, wife of the vice-principal, gave two numbers on the piano.

The two valedictorians were Miss Edna Wall and Miss Wendy Collins. They expressed the appreciation of the pupils to staff and to parents. Board of Education scholarships were presented to these two highest grade eight pupils by Dr. Donald Whyte on behalf of the Board. The two second highest pupils in the two grade eights, Katherine Magee and Arthur Mandell, were presented prizes by Mrs. Robert S. Hutton, president of Queen Mary Home and School Association.

Mr. Cotton challenged the graduating pupils to go on to higher things, both at Collegiate and in business life, and to make of themselves true Canadian citizens.

Vice-principal W. L. McNeil was called on for a few remarks which he directed to his own graduates. He then presented them with graduation certificates. Mr. Victor Northcott did the same for his grade.

In closing the meeting, Principal Steer announced that Mr. McNeil had been given the principalship of the new Armour Heights Public School, and that Mr. Northcott would also be leaving, as he was returning to University for one year to obtain higher teaching certificates. Mr. Steer expressed the best wishes of the staff and parents to these two valuable men.

The graduating pupils retired to their classrooms for refreshments prepared by the H. and S.

Brush All Summer Through

By ALICIA HART

Your hairbrush, always important to your grooming, becomes even more so in summer. The very short coiffure, which is whisked into place with a few flicks of a brush, puts it to frequent use. And comfort demands that you lift your locks with a brush often to let the air circulate through your hair.

Selection of a brush is not a matter of buying the first one that comes to hand. Examine it carefully before you purchase. One brush is carved out of lucite for light weight, has a curved handle for a better grip, and is made with five staggered rows of nylon bristles.

The feature of this brush, which makers claim is an improvement, is the crimping of the bristles. The crimp insures that your hair will be picked up securely in the grip of the bristles and soil whisked out, say the makers.

Keep your brush clean so that you won't be putting soil back into your hair. Wash it in warm suds to which you may add a few drops of ammonia.

Lace Finds New Uses In Shorts And Parasols

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA)—In a day when rickrack is used to trim cashmere sweaters and the tweed sheath is worn to dinner, the use of lace are not in the conventional manner.

The latest is lace shorts. And then there are wispy parasols (the size of a large handkerchief) made of lace. Neither of these may seem overly important (and to the average woman they aren't), but they are an indication of a brand-new way of thinking that will affect the average woman.

The new thinking is this: a fabric (or a fashion) is no longer rigidly limited to a certain time of day nor is it confined to combination with only one other fabric (wool jersey with satin or lace with velvet). These days, brocade meets tweed and the two get on pleasantly together.

That most women take readily to new fashion ideas has been proved again and again. This is something that men have never understood. If the suit (or the earrings, shoes or hat) could be worn with pride last year, why isn't it equally good this year?

Well, often it is because it has to be. There isn't money for something new. But if there isn't you can bet that a woman will find a way to alter the old to conform to the new as nearly as possible. And if there is money, she'll buy the new simply because a new way to look, to herself and others, is always exciting.

This brings us all the way back to the lace shorts and the parasol. We don't need either, of course, just as we don't actually need many things that contribute to pleasure in living. We could get by in a gunny sack or what used to be known as the bungalow apron. But who wants to?

Princess Changes Styles To Deeper Colors Now

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—The four-day Ascot race meeting, fashion-plate windup to London's debutante season, turned the royal fashion spotlight back on Princess Margaret.

This petite bachelor girl, more or less a background figure during the last two years, is making a notable comeback. She's disclosed the old flair for "something different" that induced her to wear post-war ankle-length outfits before British women had fully accepted them.

Throughout the Coronation season of royal engagements, her skirts have been wider and longer than is generally fashionable at the moment. Her hat styles have been different to those worn by other royal women. Experts say she has broken many accepted fashion rules on what should be worn by petite women.

It seems Princess Margaret left behind many of the dress restrictions she could not escape as a daughter of a King on her recent move from Buckingham Palace to Clarence House with the Queen Mother. She is choosing deeper colors and more outstanding styles than she wore when second in line to the throne.

Her most notable Ascot fashion was a full-skirted navy organza dress with choir-boy collar and cuffs in stiff white pique, worn with a white pancake hat and white accessories. Skirt fullness started from the hips.

On the first day of racing her big-brimmed hat was the brightest color in the royal box—a shade of flush-rose reminiscent of her outfit worn at the Commonwealth May garden party.

At a Blenheim Palace garden party in June, attended by Prime Minister Louis S. Laurent of Canada after he received an honorary degree at Oxford University, Princess Margaret wore an outfit that experts say broke all rules for "small women."

The skirt of the stiff silk dress was wide and long, the grey mink clutch-cape waist length and flared a the back. Her hat had a wide shuttle brim in front and her shoes were toeless sandals composed of three wide straps.

For the antique dealers' fair in London she wore a navy and white, wide-skirted grosgrain dress with cap sleeves and deep neckline. The neckline was lined in white and the eyelet-embroidered marguerites that formed he dress pattern were backed in white. Most outstanding feature of this outfit was her Flemish bonnet of navy silk with close-fitting helmet brim, the soft Flemish crown suggested by a circle of pleated organza placed like a bun on the crown.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl Advised To Give Up Her One-Sided Love Affair

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 20, suffering from a broken heart. Three months ago I broke my engagement to a man, two years my senior, because I found I was to have his baby and loved him too much to put this added burden on him.

Perhaps I ought to have told him, but during the last month of our engagement he had begun to change toward me—becoming inconsiderate and thoughtless.

I spent at least five evenings a week with him, but he complained it wasn't enough, and my health began to suffer because of the late hours I kept. After I broke the engagement, I had a miscarriage, then told him of my plight. I was very ill, but he claimed I was entirely responsible for everything that had happened, and that I had made him very miserable. Now, he has another girl and says he doesn't know which of us he loves. He is still inconsiderate, yet wants to alternate dates with me and the other girl. Although I realize his faults, he's like a magnet—I cannot stay away from him. I love him. Will my love be enough to carry us through or should I go ahead on my own? H. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly reached into the very dregs of humanity to come up with this specimen. On no single count does he rate the most casual consideration of a decent girl—yet you are fooling yourself into believing you love him. Some day you'll look back on the present and be very much ashamed. True love cannot exist without respect. You can't possibly respect a man who lured you into physical submission with the oldest and most contemptible dodge in the world—that he wouldn't love you if you didn't give in. He hasn't the decency to stand by you in illness, won't even accept the moral responsibility for what you've gone through—takes up with another—and probably equally acquiescent girl—then puts you to the final humiliation of expecting you to share dates with her. He's taking no chances. While you still have some self-respect to salvage, break off with him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a young man of 26, whom I have known for four years. Two weeks ago he advised me to forget him, that he could not marry since he is the only support of his invalid mother. Don't you think if he really loved me we could make ends meet by my continuing to work? — R. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I agree with your contention, but did you ever make the point clear to the young man? Either he is very conscientious about his obligation, or he is really becoming indifferent to you. In the latter case, nothing will help, in the former, the solution is probably up to you. Have you at any time shown or expressed impatience with his mother or indicated that you wouldn't care to live with her? Discuss the matter frankly with him, and judge from his reaction what the real problem is.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last year I graduated from high school and was unable to continue on to college. I live in a small town where most of the teen-age social activity centres around the high-school group, so I go along with my friends to dances, etc., at the school. Older people tell me I shouldn't do this since I have left school. PANSY D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There's no reason why you shouldn't take advantage of the entertainment available, especially since you have friends who are still in school. However, by the end of this school year you will be a bit too old to continue with the same group, unless others of your age are included. Since you have finished high school, you must learn to grow emotionally away from the school crowd. It's difficult for a girl of 19 to have friends, what with so many of you contemporaries away at college or in service, yet you should be able to find people in similar circumstances. Whatever you do, don't continue to depend upon the young crowd for amusement.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: Would you please send recipes for Pineapple cream pie, also simple recipes for raised doughnuts and glaze. I wish to thank you so much for help received. MARION M.

ANSWER: Pineapple cream pie and doughnut glaze appeared here recently so I am mailing you copies of them.

RAISED DOUGHNUTS

Soak 1 package granular yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water with ½ teaspoon sugar for 10 minutes, then stir it. Mix together in large bowl ¾ cup lukewarm milk, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt. When yeast is ready add it and stir in. Beat in 1 egg and ¼ cup soft shortening. Sift all-purpose flour and measure 3½ cups. Stir this in first with strong spoon, then knead with hands. Smooth over top, brush with soft butter, cover and let raise until doubled. Punch down dough, turn it over, pull sides to centre, cover and let rise again until almost doubled. After second rising roll out dough on lightly floured board to 1-3-inch thickness. Cut with floured 3-inch doughnut cutter. Let rise on board until very light. Do not cover. Have ready deep hot clean fat at 375 deg. Fahr. Carry board to stove and slip doughnuts into fat on wide spatula. Only fry as many at one time as can readily be turned as they rise to surface and show a golden color. Turn over. It requires about 3 minutes to fry both sides. Without pricking doughnuts lift from fat, drain a little, drain on absorbent paper.

QUESTION: I am a regular reader and enjoy your column immensely. Would you send a small recipe for soft sugar roll-out cookies, for use with regular shortening such as——, etc. MRS. P. I. W.

ANSWER:

SOFT ROLLED COOKIES

Mix together well 1-3 cup soft shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2-3 cup honey. Sift together and add 2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour (exact measurement), 1 teaspoon each salt and soda; add vanilla or lemon extract, about 1 teaspoon.) (1 teaspoon ginger and 2 teaspoons cinnamon may be added if desired). Stir well and chill. Roll out thick—about ¼-inch. Cut into large rounds with scalloped floured cookie cutter. Place 1 inch apart n lightly greased cookie sheet, bake until when touched lightly with finger, no imprint remains. For small batch cut recipe in half.

NOTE: These cookies are excellent for cutting into shapes for children's parties. They may be iced and decorated if desired.

QUESTION: Would you have recipes for making rhubarb wine and for rhubarb juice to be used as fruit juice. I tasted some years ago and remember it to be delicious... BETTY T.

ANSWER: I am going to give you rhubarb punch for I think that is what you are referring to. If not leave out the orange juice and lemon juice and salt and soda water or ginger ale and only add ice and water.

RHUBARB PUNCH

Four cups rhubarb cut in small pieces, 2 cups sugar, ½ cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice ⅛ teaspon salt, soda water or ginger ale. Cover rhubarb with 1 quart water and cook until very soft. Strain through cloth. Do not squeeze or it will be cloudy. Add sugar, bring to boil, stirring. Remove from heat and add orange and lemon juice and salt. Chill. When ready to serve mix with equal quantity of soda water or ginger ale and pour over ice. This amount serves ten generously.

RHUBARB WINE

(I have not made this.) Wash and dry and cut and mash with heavy potato masher 25 lbs. rhubarb, and in clean cask pour over it 5 gallons cold water. Let it remain covered 10 days, stirring daily. Strain the liquid into another vessel, add 3 lbs. sugar for each gallon liquid. Add the juice and thinly pared rind of 1 lemon. Add 1 oz. isinglass (sheet gelatin to be obtained at drug stores) soaked in cold water for 5 minutes (I would guess 1 cup). Cover the bunghole with folded cloth for 10 days while it ferments, then bung securely, and allow to remain undisturbed for 12 months. Rack off into bottles for use.

DID YOU KNOW?

Summer's two-tone spectator pumps can be given a professional looking polishing at home by using a small inexpensive water-color brush to smooth the liquid polish along the edges where the two colors meet. After the edges have been outlined, use larger applicators to rub the white and brown polishes on to the rest of the shoe.

6—In Memoriam

CUNNINGHAM—In loving memory of Mr. J. J. Cunningham, who passed away June 28, 1950.
When the weary ones we love
Enter into rest above
Seems the earth so poor and vast
All our life's joy overcast
Hush he every murmur done
It is only 'til he comes
—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

YOUNG—In loving memory of a dear Dad, George Young, who passed away June 28, 1946.
There's a place set apart, Dad.
In the depth of my heart
A corner that's always your own;
No one can replace it,
Nor time erase it,
I keep it for you alone
—Ever remembered by your son George and daughter-in-law Shirley.

YOUNG—In loving memory of a dear husband, George Young, who passed away June 28, 1946.
At night the silent stars look down
On a grave not far from here
Where sleeps the one we can't forget,
The one we loved so dear.
The dearest husband this world could hold,
A beautiful smile and a heart of gold.
And those who knew him, all will know
How much I lost seven years ago.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Margaret. Eternal rest grant unto him O Lord and may perpetual light shine upon him—may he rest in peace.

WHETUNG—In loving memory of Arthur Whetung, who passed away so suddenly two years ago today, June 27, 1951.
A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our hearts
Which never can be filled
—Art, Doreen and family

WHETUNG—In loving memory of Arthur Whetung Sr., who passed away June 27, 1951.
No pen can write, no tongue can tell
Our sad and bitter loss.
But God alone has helped so well
To bear our heavy cross
—Ever remembered by his wife and his son Joe.

YOUNG—In loving memory of a dear father, George Young, who passed away June 28, 1950.
A faithful father, one of the best,
May God grant him eternal rest.
—Ever remembered by daughter Margaret, son-in-law John, granddaughter Marlene.

Lawn Social Aids Church Building Fund

NORWOOD (ENS) — Despite intermittent drizzles, the lawn social, sponsored by the 50-50 Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Knox, was a huge success. The proceeds were for the building fund of the United Church.

About 250 attended from Norwood, Peterborough, Hastings, Havelock, Westwood, Warsaw and surrounding territory.

After supper a program was given. The Rev. H. K. Wright thanked Mr. and Mrs. Knox for the use of their lawn for the affair.

John Hamblin and his music-makers played, followed by CGIT campfire songs by Misses Sandra Flett, Nancy Flett, Catherine Hudson, Pat Atkinson, Beverly McNab, Gail Baker and Patricia McNab.

A pie-eating contest ensued with Arnold Lobb, Albert Thistlethwaite, George Richardson and Jack Stewart. The contest was won by Mr. Richardson.

A men's quartet by E. Bongard, R. Webster, Harry Gyde and W. Garden, accompanied by Barbara Gyde, was followed by a piano duet by Verna Caskey and Audrey Garden.

A balloon-breaking contest was held. The participants were all school teachers, Herb Caskey, Arnold Perry, John Auckland and Harry Gyde, who was the winner.

A girls' quartet was rendered by Mesdames Mary Knox, Ruth Scott, Marion Perry and Helen Garden, accompanied by Barbara Gyde. Derek Jiminez played a violin solo, accompanied by Helen Garden on the piano. An accordion solo was presented by Mary Richardson.

Then, the expected happened—a thunderstorm took charge of the remainder of the program and so, program unfinished, the evening broke up.

Mrs. I. Donaghue Leaves CGE After 36 Years

Mrs. Irene Donaghue, in the accounting department since 1917, received a electric clock from the staff of the CGE, upon her retirement last week.

During 36 years, Mrs. Donaghue has seen Peterborough works expand to its present proportions. With the expansion, many changes have occurred in Accounting in added work, changed methods, and change of personnel. During this time, Irene has kept pace with the changes and has accumulated a wealth of experience.

Her father, Patrick Heenan, retired from service at the CGE nearly 25 years ago. He was a transformer winder in the days when transformer manufacture was carried out in the Peterborough works. A brother of Mrs. Donaghue, Vincent Heenan was also a transformer winder for several years.

Present Gifts To Principal

Billy Dainard, Grade III, presented an autograph book, containing the signatures of each pupil in the school. Then Grades 7 and 8 presented Mr. Thurston with a flash attachment and bulbs for his camera. Mr. Thurston thanked everyone for their gifts and good wishes.

The pupils returned to their classrooms where they received their promotion results.

In Mr. Thurston's room Ron Sargent was asked to come forward and Peter Crate read a short farewell address and Bob Jones on behalf of the pupils of Grades 7 and 8 presented Ron with a flashlight.

Ron is moving to Peterborough and he thanked his friends for remembering him. The address was afterwards signed by all the pupils.

How To Steal Scene Shown By E. E. Horton

Edward Everett Horton, veteran actor making his final appearance in Nina at the Summer Theatre tonight reveals a few tricks of his trade in next week's Weekend that will appear in the Examiner of July 4.

In a series of photos he illustrates the fine art of scene stealing, but disclaiming with tongue in cheek that he ever practices the tricks himself.

"Of course I would never, never steal a scene by using tricks like pouring tea or coffee, or staring at an invisible object hanging from the ceiling", says Horton. "Nor do I relish tying and untying my shoe laces, although it seems to fascinate the audience, probably because so many women have their shoes off—or wish they did. But of course if these techniques don't work", concludes Horton, "upstaging is still one of the best bits in the business. Its easy to compete with actors when their backs are to the audience, also, you can enjoy observing the rage on their faces."

Churchill's Health Has Had Ups, Downs

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill has had many ups and downs in his health in the last two decades, but weathered them all with typical vigor.

The 78-year-old prime minister last was indisposed in April, and went to his country home at Chartwell to recover from a heavy cold.

In March, 1951, he had to call off a ceremony because he was suffering from boils.

During the war he was stricken three times with pneumonia. At the end of 1944 there were rumors that he had died of a heart attack, and Churchill replied, "in the words of Mark Twain the reports are grossly exaggerated."

Early in 1947 he had a slight attack of bronchitis while visiting Marrakesh, French Morocco.

In February, 1939, he was confined to bed with influenza. Seven years earlier he had a serious relapse from an attack of paratyphoid fever.

In 1931 Churchill was knocked down by a taxi in New York, and the injuries brought on pleurisy. But he recovered quickly to carry on his public life.

These totals represent an official count as of Thursday.

Allied prison camps held a total of 98,890 war prisoners and civilian internees, the command said.

Father Seeks Son's Arrest

BRAMPTON (CP) — Police sought 17-year-old Clifford McMath today on charges of reckless driving and automobile theft after the youth's father accused him of stealing his car.

Police said McMath, of Weston, a Toronto suburb, was one of five teen-agers and a two-year-old baby who were in the car when it overturned near here Friday.

No one was hurt. Offfcers said McMath fled after the accident.

The father swore out a warrant for the youth's arrest two days ago when he couldn't find his car.

Challenge Given Queen At Drawbridge

EDINBURGH (AP) — Gravel-voiced sentries barked a challenge at the Queen today when she tried to enter grim old Edinburgh Castle for a look around. When Her Majesty was identified, the sentries let her in.

It was all a part of m[illegible] tradition. The sentries really the Queen was but the dra[illegible] called for them to shout "Halt! Who goes there?"

Elizabeth rode up to the castle in a clattering open carriage with the Duke of Edinburgh at her side after a medieval-like procession through Edinburgh streets, one of the highlights of a state visit to her northern realm.

STOPPED AT DRAWBRIDGE

The sentries stopped the landau at the castle drawbridge and Lord Lyon, king of arms—Scotland's chief herald—answered their question without mincing any words.

Lyon said it was the Queen and ordered the guards to "open the port and gates and deliver the keys of the castle . . . all of which we do hereby command you strictly to do and forthwith to perform with certification that if ye fail ye shall answer to your highest peril."

Scarlet-uniformed state trumpeters sounded a fanfare as the sentries drew back their bayonets and shouted, without a trace of uneasiness: "Advance, Your Majesty, all is well."

MP's Demanding Gov't Review

LONDON (Reuters)—A growing number of Labor members of parliament are demanding a government review of the execution three years ago of truck driver Timothy Evans who was convicted of murdering his 14-month-old daughter.

Labor member Anthony Greenwood announced he will ask the government to reopen the case "in view of widespread public anxiety" following revelations in the trial of John Christie, self-confessed slayer of seven women. Christie, convicted Thursday of murdering his wife, said he also killed Evans' pretty 19-year-old wife.

Greenwood was joined by Labor MPs Reginald Paget and Sydney Silverman. Friday, two other Labor party members called for an inquiry. Silverman said he will introduce a bill in the House of Commons next Wednesday for the suspension of capital punishment for a five-year period. The Labor party, when in power in 1948, tried but failed to gain approval of a similar bill.

Christie served as chief Crown witness at the Evans trial. Evans accused Christie then of killing both his wife and child.

Leave Koreans Fight It Out Shinwell Says

BOLSOVER, England (Reuters) Emanuel Shinwell, defence minister in the former Labor government, said today the United Nations should leave the Koreans to fight out their differences among themselves.

"If President Syngman Rhee believes he can fig[illegible] it out with the North Koreans w[illegible] not let him?" he told a meeting at this Derbyshire town.

"I doubt whether the UN has much more to gain by backing this adventure," he said.

"It responded with courage to the act of aggression. It has done everything possible to promote a truce and to bring the affair to an end. In doing so it has justified its existence. Why not leave the Koreans to fight the matter out themselves?"

Shinwell said it seemed to him the Americans had "a knack of backing the wrong man." For a long time it was Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese Nationalist leader. Now it was Rhee.

"If they want to defeat the Communist peril, they must find a better way," he said.

Design For Living Coward Comedy Summer Theatre

The permanent company of the Summer Theatre arrived in Peterborough today to complete rehearsals for Noel Coward's "Design for Living".

Robert Gill, director of Hart House Theatre, has been producing the famous comedy in Toronto, while Edward Everett Horton has been playing "Nina" in Peterborough. On Monday "Design for Living" will open at the Queen Mary Auditorium, featuring in the leading roles Fran Mallis, Harry Geldard, Steven Appleby, and David Powell.

When Mr. Coward first wrote "Design for Living" he was determined that he would appear in the play with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. However the Lunts were starring on Broadway and not available. Undaunted Coward waited, but the Lunts' play continued to run: finally the author accepted another part, and when the Lunts were finally free he was engaged. Things continued this way for the next three years, but Noel Coward doggedly refused to let anyone else appear in the play. At the end of three years the Lunts and Coward suddenly found themselves at liberty at the same time, and the riotous comedy was produced on Broadway. It became one of Mr. Coward's greatest sucesses, and he and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have remained close friends ever since.

Two interested spectators at Saturday afternoon's rehearsal were Edward Everett Horton and Marta Linden. Mr. Horton appeared in the film version of "Design for Living" with Frederic March, Gary Cooper, and Miriam Hopkins. His part is being played in Peterborough next week by David Powell. The last time "Design for Living" toured, about three sumers ago, Marta Linden played the female lead with Jean Pierre Aumont and David Wayne.

The company will be in the Queen Mary Auditorium for the remainder of the season, and curtain time is eight twenty.

HISTORY IN SCOTLAND—Bearing the Crown of Scotland on its golden cushion, the Duke of Hamilton, high officer of state, leads a procession along the nave of St. Gile's Cathedral in Edinburgh, during impressive ceremonies marking Queen Elizabeth's Coronation visit to Scotland. Immediately behind the Duke is his son, the Marquess of Clydesdale, followed by Queen Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh and other dignitaries. The procession was part of a national service of thanksgiving during which the Queen participated in the traditional rite of taking the Scottish Crown.

London Crash Kills Two Girls

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two young girls lost their lives and three youths were hurt severely in the head-on crash of a car and truck on No. 2 highway about four miles east of Crumlin early Friday.

Marion Tod, 19, of Winnipeg, died of head and chest injuries and Doreen Wiesner, 19, of London, died of head and leg injuries in Victoria hospital.

Brian Collins, 17, of London, driver of the car, is in critical condition in the hospital with head and chest injuries and a fractured right leg. Louis Tuttle, 19, also of London is in hospital in serious condition with head injuries.

The four young persons were on their way home to London following a holiday outing at Niagara Falls when they collidead head-on with the truck.

Robinson's vehicle had eight tons of corn aboard and was headed for Rochester. His cargo was strewn over the highway and traffic was tied up for about an hour.

The Todd girl had been visiting in London with Mrs. Richard Greensides a relative. She was going to return home today.

Navies Guide Yachtsmen In Annual Powerboat Race

By PETER MURRAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ships from the Canadian and United States navies will take up stations along the sea lane from Seattle to Vancouver early next month, but their activities won't have anything to do with joint defence exercises.

The warships will be there for the sole purpose of herding along some 150 pleasure craft taking part in the Pacific international powerboat race.

One of a number of similar international competitions to be held along Pacific northwest waterways this summer, the powerboat race is a typical example of the enthusiasm fostered by yacht clubs in the area.

EXPECT BIG SEASON

This sport, growing in popularity, is slated to have one of its biggest seasons this summer.

Topping the list of almost weekly events is the northwest's annual Pacific International Yacht Association regatta, to be held at Vancouver this year, June 28 to July 3. At least 225 boats are expected to compete for the many trophies at stake.

About 1,000 sailors, half of them from the U.S., will be manning the boats, which will range in size from midget flatties to large, luxury cruisers.

The eight yacht clubs on the lower British Columbia coast will also stage closed races for their own members—but most of the competitions will have an international flavor.

In fact, B.C. yachtsmen have no provincial association of their own, preferring to throw in their lot with the Pacific associations which take in most of the coast. When any of the member clubs decide to stage a race of any size, it's a foregone conclusion that everyone else will be invited to enter crews.

POPULAR RACE

One of the events that attracted entries from many ports was the Swiftsure lightship classic, held each year on the last week-end in May. It is the only ocean race held in the Pacific northwest.

The boats start from Victoria, head out into the open Juan de Fuca strait, round the Swiftsure lightship and return to the starting point. In this year's race the boats were buffeted by winds up to 50 miles an hour.

Officials of the yacht clubs are quick to point out, however, that racing events comprise only one part of an active schedule.

Most week-ends, sail and power boats band together in groups for trips to favorite anchorages around the spacious, yet sheltered, Gulf of Georgia.

At the drop of an anchor chain, local yachtsmen will expound on the ideal sailing conditions to be found in this area. The scenic routes between the many islands dotting the gulf can't be matched anywhere, they say.

Add Probation Officers

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Dana Porter said Friday that Ontario plans to more than double its probation services. Only nine of the province's 48 judicial districts now have probation officers for adult courts. Mr. Porter said he plans to hire enough officers to serve all districts, "as and when we can get them."

UN Secretary Sees Peace Hope

OTTAWA (CP)—Dag Hammarskjold, UN secretary-general, said Friday on arrival in Ottawa, that UN authorities have not abandoned hope for a truce in Korea.

Mr. Hammarskjold is in Ottawa for one-day talks with External Affairs Minister Pearson, president of the UN assembly.

He was non-committal on most questions, but when a reporter asked him whether UN authorities are still operating on the premise there will be a truce or whether they have abandoned hope for a truce, he replied that hopes have not been abandoned.

Mr. Hammarskjold said the basic reason for his visit is the "inside UN business" of discussing arrangements for a session of the assembly which must be called after an armistice.

Reporters raised the question of India's call for an emergency pre-armistice session. This, said the secretary-general, was the first and so far the only request of that sort.

Any decision for an emergency session would rest with a majority of the 60 UN member countries. He declined to comment on whether they would be polled on the Indian request.

RCR Winds Up First Tour In Korean Line

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—With one good battle and 46 nights of routine patrolling recorded, the 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, has completed its first tour in the Korean line.

The RCRs now hope an armistice will intervene to make their first tour also their last.

But the 47 days between April 21, when the unit relieved the homeward-bound 1st Royal 22nd Regiment, until June 8 when the 3rd Princess Patricias took over its sector, established that the battalion was found in all departments.

Says Lt.-Col. Ken Campbell of Perth, Ont., officer commanding: "The troops proved to have been as well prepared for battle as the soldiers we took into battle during the war and who had four years of training. Perhaps our men were even more fit."

NOTABLE BATTLE

Highlight of the 47 days was the May 2 battle when the Chinese swarmed in strength over a platoon position commanded by Lieut. Ed Hollyer of Toronto only to be destroyed by lashing artillery fire from the 81st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery.

The night's fighting yielded the RCR two Military Crosses, three Military Medals and three mentions in dispatches.

"For the rest it was straightforward, not very difficult, soldiering," says Campbell.

"We learned a lot about patrolling. . . An officer who can handle a fighting patrol can do anything."

The command post worked out so efficient a counter-mortar technique that RCR mortar bombs were in the air, engaging enemy mortars, before the Communists' own bombs had landed.

Constantly watching the front through 50-power binoculars, RCR observers took on particular areas of responsibility. As soon as enemy mortars coughed from his assigned area an observer would shout a code word into the radio linking him with the mortars. Canadian bombs would be in flight toward the active mortar before the enemy's had arrived.

LUCKY VISITOR

One of the few to see a Chinese soldier from the RCR positions during the almost seven weeks, in the line was Air Commodore L. E. Raea, air member for personnel at RCAF headquarters, during a tour of the Far East as he visited the Canadian brigade.

Campbell took him to his best observation post and through the high-power binoculars Rae scanned the front. An RCR mortar shoot was done for him and as the last explosion blasted at the hill 600 yards away a Chinese soldier got up and high-tailed it out of the zone.

"Gee," exploded Campbell, "you have all the luck. You see a Chinese on your first day. I've been here for two months and still haven't seen one."

Rae had to be pried from the binoculars after that.

Need Housecleaning In Ottawa—Fleming

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The St. Laurent government, with "arrogance and autocratic attitude," has created a "progressive decay in Canadian democracy," a top Progressive Conservative member of Parliament said Friday night.

Donald Fleming, member for Toronto Eglinton, said only a real "housecleaning will arrest this decay and restore health" at Ottawa.

Speaking at a meeting at which Middlesex East Conservatives unanimously chose the present member, Harry O. White, as candidate in the Aug. 10 election, Mr. Fleming appealed for a wholly-Conservative anti-government vote.

"OLD" IS NEW—An old design becomes new among modern aircraft with the production of this twin-engine plane using "old-fashioned" pusher-type propellors. It made its first appearance at Hagerstown, Md. The five-passenger plane is said to attain speeds greater than any other type executive plane, but can be operated at unusually low speeds. Note the unorthodox seating of the engines.

Charges Liquor Board Has Deal With "Gangsters"

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—John Ferlecki, a former hotel owner, charged Friday there was a "source" on the Ontario liquor licence board who had direct contact with an organized group of city hotelmen whom he described as "gangsters."

He made the charge in attempting to block the issuing of a licence to John Yarmoluk, owner of the Royal York Hotel which was formerly owned by Ferlecki.

Appearing before the board, which later reserved judgment on Mr. Yarmoluk's application, Mr. Ferlecki said the group of hotelmen had "destroyed men financially and physically."

"They are gangsters and have threatened me and my family to lay of and let this deal go through."

SALE PRESSURE

He charged Mr. Yarmoluk was a member of the group which was responsible for "pressuring" him into selling the hotel to Mr. Yarmoluk.

Board chairman Judge W. T. Robb said no person on the board was connected with such a group and added that it was impossible for Mr. Yarmoluk to be the only person that could get a licence for the premises, as Mr. Ferlecki had charged.

"And you lost your licence," the judge told Mr. Ferlecki, "because you made a false statement to the board—it was taken to court and proved."

Mr. Yarmoluk's counsel read a statement to the board which denied all the Ferlecki charges.

That was the joy of which Paul wrote. Manifest under the most trying circumstances, it was evidence of the joy and triumph of Christian faith. Nor has the example and experience of Paul been unique or isolated in Christian history and experience.

Many are the evidences of the joy of the martyrs. Nothing is nobler in the annals of the British history or more significant of Pauline joy than the words of Hugh Latimer to his fellow-martyr Ridley, as they perished in the flames: "Be of good comfort, Master Ridely! Play the man! We shall this day light by God's grace such a candle, in England, as I trust shall never be put out."

Snatch Mother, Baby From River

MONTREAL (CP)—A 33-year-old mother, snatched from the St. Lawrence river with her infant daughter after a wild trip through a huge pipe, was charged Friday with attempted murder and attempted suicide.

The child, 10-month-old Denis, was reported in serious condition in hospital. The mother, Mrs. Jeannette Roy, was refused bail in Criminal Court and preliminary hearing was set for July 2.

A police report, produced in court, said the woman wheeled the baby in its carriage from Lafontaine Park to Black's bridge over the Lachine canal—about three miles. There she threw the baby into the canal, the report said, and attempted suicide by leaping in herself.

The mother and child were drawn into a 45-inch surplus pipe, which carries excess water into the river, were swirled along 300 yards through the pipe and ejected into the St. Lawrence.

There seamen saw them and rescued them.

Red Division Pounds Korean Line

Furious Attack On Seoul Gateway Surprise Move

SEOUL (AP)—Twelve thousand Chinese Reds backed by a booming artillery barrage crashed into South Korean positions along the gateway to Seoul today.

Far to the north, Allied Sabre jets blasted six Red MiGs to earth, running their score for the month to 59 MiGs kills, only four short of the one-month record set in September, 1952.

The MiGs were shot down as the Sabres flew a tight cover over 36 fighter-bombers striking at Namsi, near Sinuiju in northwestern Korea.

The Reds poured a division or more into three-day-old battles for two outpost hills 40 miles due north of the capital just as South Korean infantry had swept to the crest of one of the hills.

The furious Red attack, unusual because it came in broad daylight, hit a two-mile-wide stretch on the western front. The targets were outposts Bak and Queen, rising 500 to 800 feet.

REDS HOLD BOTH

At last report the reds held both, but fighting raged at the foot of the outposts as the South Koreans regrouped and counter-attacked.

There was an unconfirmed report that one Red battalion—500 to 750 troops—had broken past the heights and was assaulting the Allies' heavy, dug-in line.

Covered by artillery that one Allied officer said hammered hills "like an anvil," the Communists slammed back Republic of Korea infantry which had clawed up the slopes of outpost Bak. The RoKs counted nearly 5,000 rounds of Red artillery during an eight-hour period on the narrow front.

U. S. and South Korean big guns struck back at the advancing Chinese and their support areas.

SEE-SAW BATTLE

Another see-saw battle raged on the eastern front, where the Communists pushed forward five miles in the last two weeks.

South Koreans and the Chinese, at last report, were fighting on towering Lookout mountain, more than 1,500 feet high, with neither side able to hold the crest.

Two other smaller actions were reported Sunday night. The RoKs began a counter-attack east of the Pukhan river in eastern Korea in an attempt to regain lost ground between the river and Christmas hill.

The other was at Sniper ridge on the east-central front where two Communist platoons probed for about an hour before being driven back.

May Call Truman

WASHINGTON (CP) — Former president Truman may be called before a Senate Committee to tell about a list of U.S. atomic spies he is said to have received from the late Canadian prime minister W. L. Mackenzie King. This was disclosed today by Senator Joseph McCarthy who said Truman may be asked to appear before his Senate investigations sub-committee in a new probe of suspected atomic spying in the U.S. McCarthy announced he is asking the justice department for a report "on whether it ever received from Truman a list of American members of an alleged atomic spy ring" which he said Truman received in 1945 from the Canadian government.

Two Vessels In Collision, One Man Missing

BARNEGAT CITY, N. J. (AP)—A vast sea search today left only one man missing in a jolting tanker-freighter collision that could have turned into a maritime disaster. Two were injured.

The tanker Gulftrade's bow knifed into the starboard side of the Brazilian freighter, Loide Panama, just behind the super-structure as they groped their way in fog 12 miles off the New Jersey coast Sunday night.

The tanker backed off under its own power and stood by, with nobody aboard hurt. The Panama, a 25-foot gash in its side, slowly took on a 45-degree list.

An all-out rescue operation, quickly begun, was carried on through the night. The coast guard reported 25 persons missing. Hours later, the estimate began to plummet.

Lloyd Brasileiro, New York representative for the 5,400-ton Brazilian freighter, carrying general cargo said he talked to the ship by radio and learned that 24 men remained aboard. It appeared to be in little danger.

A reported 26 men were taken from the water by the African Endeavor, an American freighter that answered a frantic call for help.

Two other men, both injured were taken into Barnegat coast guard station on a coast guard cutter.

The Panam's complement was 53 officers and men, Brasileiro said, but many stayed aboard safely.

The 10,195-ton Gulftrade, suffered only a damaged bow.

Reports of the missing were confused by language difficulties—apparently none of the Brazilians spoke English.

As the Loide Panama drifted helpless today in the dull morning light, crew members smiled and waved to rescue ships from the slanting deck. The decks were not awash at any point.

A light rain, punctuated by thunder and lightning, lashed the water as two coast guard cutters, helicopters and a twin-engine flying boat combed the sea in a search for the missing man.

The accident occurred in one of the most heavily-travelled shipping lanes in the world, and radio appeals for help were answered immediately.

Coast guard life boats and picket boats dotted the area, as well as lifeboats from the African Endeavor, which took its rescued men on into New York, 45 miles north.

Two Brazilian men who were injured were picked up and brought into Barnegat, where they were transferred by ambulance to the marine hospital on Staten Island.

The collision occurred around 7:30 p. m. EDT four miles southeast of the Barnegat lightship, a miles off the coast of Long Beach Island.

The coast guard said both ships were headed north.

Trying Out New Motor With Friend

Man Goes Overboard Boat Upsets In Rescue Attempt

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Edward Wilson, 21, 1560A Danforth Ave., Toronto, was drowned in the Trent River, three miles west of Hastings early Saturday afternoon. Wilson, who had returned from Korea only last Friday, was spending the weekend at the cottage of a friend, William Mills, 19, of 20 Marlow Ave., Toronto. Mills, who is also in the Royal Canadian Regiment, is on embarkation leave and expects to go to Korea next month.

NEW MOTOR

The accident happened when Wilson, along with William Mills, Harry Abbott, 37, and Bud McFarland, 26, were trying out a new outboard motor which Mills had recently purchased.

While the craft was travelling at high speed one of the steering ropes to the heavy motor broke, causing the boat to veer sharply to one side. Billy Mills lost his balance and was thrown into the water. The motor was immediately stopped and Harry Abbott dived overboard to rescue Mills, who, although a good swimmer, had taken in a considerable amount of water and was in difficulty. Abbott managed to get Mills back to the boat but was unable to get the now unconscious Mills into the craft.

BOAT UPSETS

McFarland and Wilson both came to one side of the fourteen-footer to help and the boat upset, throwing McFarlane and Wilson, who was unable to swim, into the water also.

McFarland and Abbott managed to get back aboard and also got Mills in, but Wilson, who, his companions state, was deathly afraid of the water, was not seen again.

Harry Abbott dove repeatedly into the deep water but saw no sign of Wilson. They then managed to get the craft to shore where Abbott and another member of the party, Joseph Burgess, applied artificial resuscitation and brought Mills around.

Dr. William N. Campbell, of Hastings, was called to look after Mills. Chief Len Switzer, of Hastings, was notified and he in turn notified Provincial Police in Campbellford. Constable Archie Eady rushed to the scene and dragging operations were started immediately but the body was not recovered when darkness forced a halt. Police and neighboring cottagers continued dragging on Sunday without success.

Allies Ask Reds For Immediate Truce Signing Date

SEOUL (AP)—The Allies today asked the Reds to agree immediately to a date for signing a Korean truce, indicating they have either persuaded rebellious President Syngman Rhee to agree to an armistice or have decided to go ahead without his approval. Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations commander, told the Reds in a letter delivered at Panmunjom that the UN command will enforce truce terms to "the limit of ability".

His letter was delivered shortly after he conferred in Seoul with Rhee, President Eisenhower's personal envoy, Walter S. Robertson, and other top American officials.

Although the meeting was secret, the UN command's readiness to go ahead with its truce plans indicated it had found some sort of solution to the problem of the stubborn South Korean leader's refusal to accept the present truce terms and his threat to fight on alone if an armistice is signed on those terms.

There was no immediate comment from Rhee on Clark's letter.

The Republic of Korea president's arbitrary release of 27,000 anti-Red Korean war prisoners had frozen the truce talks, just as the negotiators appeared on the verge of final agreement.

If the Reds accept Clark's terms it could put the armistice where it was before the prisoner release began two weeks ago—practically complete and ready to sign.

The Reds protested angrily in a full-dress truce session June 20 demanding recapture of the prisoners and assurance the UN command would control Rhee if an armistice were signed.

CLARK'S ANSWER

Clark's answer, deltvered at Panmunjom by liaison officers, told the Reds:

1. It would be "impossible" to recapture the released PoWs.

2. The UN command will "make every effort" to gain South Korean co-operation in a truce.

3. "Where necessary, the UNC will, to the limits of its ability, establish military safeguards," to enforce truce terms.

4. The truce would be a "military armistice . . . between the military commanders of both sides" (answering a Red question if the South Korean nation would be included in a truce).

5. The UN command "does not exercise authority over the Republic of Korea, which is an independent, sovereign state. . . ." But it "does command" the RoK army.

6. The UN command still considers the prisoner breakout an "escape" as far as it is concerned. Clark said the prisoners were " 'released' in that the RoK government without the knowledge of, and contrary to the intent of, the UNC planned and arranged the breakout. . . "

Trenton Has Centennial Celebrations

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—Trenton, founded as a settlement in 1790 by the United Empire Loyalists and incorporated as a village in 1853, today starts week-long centennial celebrations.

Trenton's 10,000 residents living within earshot of the jet planes of the biggest RCAF station in the country, will recall this week the simpler pioneering days of 1853 when the settlers refused to allow their community on the north shore of Lake Ontario to be called Port Trent, Fort Trent or Trent Port and decided simply on Trenton.

The festivities opened Sunday with special services in all churches and a parade of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. The RCAF training command band held the first of its nightly concerts.

During the week there will be a demonstration by RCAF frogmen, a manufacturers' day with sightseeing tours, a concert of Dutch folk songs and a street dance, a Dominion Day parade of floats and a historical pageant for the anniversary of Trenton's coming of age as a town on Dominion Day, 1880. There will also be a military parade and a fly-past.

Trenton is 105 miles east of Toronto and 11 miles west of Belleville.

Ex-Treasurer Of Province A. Gordon Dies

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Arthur St. Clair Gordon, 58, business man who succeeded the late Mitchell F. Hepburn as Ontario provincial treasurer and served as liquor commissioner under both Liberal and Conservative administrations, died early today.

From 1934 until his retirement nearly 12 years later, the keen and forthright executive represented Kent West in the Ontario legislature.

His death came after more than two years of poor health due to a heart condition. In recent months he was in hospital in Chatham several times.

He became a minister without portfolio in the cabinet of Liberal Premier Hepburn in 1937. He was appointed Ontario liquor commissioner in April, 1939, and the legislature amended the Liquor Control Act so that he could retain his seat in the House. Premier Hepburn said at the time he wanted a commissioner "right in the House so that he can answer charges when they are made."

When Mr. Hepburn stepped down and the late Gordon Conant took over the premiership in April, 1943, Mr. Gordon became provincial treasurer as well as liquor commissioner. Mr. Gordon continued to hold both positions under Premier Harry Nixon; who led the Liberals into the 1943 provincial general election.

The election swept the Liberals out of power. The new Conservative premier, George Drew, recognized Mr. Gordon's ability and popularity by re-appointing him liquor commissioner. Mr. Gordon retained the commissionership for a year.

Mr. Gordon, known in his Queen's Park days for his fondness for grey suits and dark red ties, came by his political inclinations naturally. His father, the late D. A. Gordon, represented Kent East in Parliament for several years prior to 1917 when the two Kent Ridings, east and west, were consolidated.

His first stint in public office was in 1924 when he started three years as a Wallaceburg councillor. He was elected mayor in 1927 and again in 1928.

In 1929 he was nominated by the Liberals to oppose the late Rev. A. C. Calder, Conservative, for the Kent West Legislature seat but lost. Nominated again in 1934, he won a three-way fight and in the 1937 election he carried every poll but one.

He was the fourth member of the Hepburn cabinet to die this year. Mr. Conant died Jan. 2, Mr. Hepburn three days later and Norman Hipel, who held the labor and lands portfolios at various times and was provincial secretary, Feb. 16.

Marketing Policy Poor Drew Charges In West

VICTORIA (CP)—The Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, carried his election campaign to the West Coast today following a Prairie speech that centred on his party's tax-reduction promise. He told an audience of 500 at Regina Saturday that his election platform pledge to cut at least $500,000,000 a year from taxes would help export trade in farm products and end "waste and extravagance" in the defence department. A Progressive Conservative government, if elected Aug. 10, would appoint more than one minister of national defence to reorganize the department and would find savings of "many millions of dollars" there.

The Liberal government had rejected repeated Opposition requests for a commission to study ways of increasing government efficiency, Mr. Drew said. A U. S. congressional committee had found there could be savings of 10 per cent in that country's defence budget, and the same savings could be made in Canada.

SOMETHING SIMILAR

Referring to last year's Washington investigations into lobbyists, he said Canada hadn't mink coat scandals but it did have horses on the army payroll and theft of railway sidings and cement at Petawawa camp as reported in the Currie report on the army works services.

Mr. Drew flew from Regina to Victoria Sunday and will address an election meeting here tonight following an afternoon picnic at nearby Sidney.

His Regina speech criticized Liberal government marketing policies and said British and other sterling-area markets could be restored and expanded "by a government that shows real faith in the future of Great Britain and the Commonwealth."

He referred to the United King-

Small Tornado Near Ottawa

FINCH (CP)—Torrential rains smashed windows in this Ottawa valley village Sunday as a miniature tornado swept the outskirts, damaging farm buildings and uprooting trees. No one was injured.

The wind came out of the northwest, veered off to the east just outside the town, and skirted the edge.

A silo on the farm of Hugh Shaver, two miles southeast of here, was knocked to the ground and a barn was twisted to a 70-degree slant. At the neighboring farm of F. C. Eligh, a carriage shed was torn off its foundations and a car and tractor in the shed were damaged. Sections of a barn owned by Aden McMillan, two miles north, were carried 300 feet by the wind.

Damage to the village was confined to broken windows. Telephone and hydro services were disrupted for several hours.

Expect Martial Law Lifted Soon In East Germany

Berlin (AP)—Germany's Communist Eastern zone returned closer to its normal occupation status today as many Soviet troop units moved back to their barracks. Curfews were relaxed and announcement was expected soon of the lifting of martial law.

German police took over patrolling in parts of East Berlin and units of the two armored divisions which quelled the June 17 workers' revolt there withdrew. The curfew was cut to four hours nightly.

Similar action was taken in many of the other revolt centres.

Throughout the Soviet Zone, Red leaders staged "loyalty" rallies to bolster East German puppet Premier Otto Grotewohl's shaky regime.

Continuing their policy of decommunization to placate the population and restore German efficiency, the East government gave back more plants and shops to former private owners and returned farm lands to dispossessed owners.

Western military men, meanwhile, after pondering closely their reports on the outbreak in East Germany and the Russian actions which quelled it, reached some eye-opened, and chilling, conclusions about the Red army across the frontier.

Allied sources said these conclusions are inescapable:

1. The 300,000-man Soviet force is not a soft occupation army. It is a hard-hitting juggernaut that can take off now and strike in any direction.

2. The combat teams are trained to the last detail in swift, forced marches, rapid deployment and that final evidence of the real soldier—he doesn't fire at shadows.

3. The rolling armored equipment is kept in top shape and is good equipment. The Russian field uniform is new and good and so are his weapons. The officers are smartly turned out and there isn't a ragged looking one in the lot.

500,000 Cigarettes Seized Near Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The RCMP today announced seizure of 500,000 American cigarettes on which duty had not been paid. The seizure, one of the largest in several months, was made during the week-end at Frelighsburg, about 65 miles southeast of Montreal.

Gerard Proulx, owner of the car in which the cigarettes were found, was arrested.

In another raid, 4,000 pounds of American margarine was seized. Manufacture and sale of margarine is banned in Quebec.

Butler Begins Extra Duties

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill rested at his country home today while R. A. Butler, Britain's "temporary prime minister," presided over a meeting of the cabinet.

Overworked Churchill, 78, warned by his doctors to rest for at least a month, is obeying their orders. But he has their permission to study some of the most urgent cabinet papers and to see friends at Chartwell, his mansion in Kent.

He was up and about all week-end, and even was host at a small dinner party Sunday.

Meanwhile, Butler, 50, followed the Churchill pattern by assuming a double role—that of the prime ministership and as chancellor of the exchequer.

Butler has a partner to help him with House of Commons business—Capt. Harry Crookshank, Lord Privy Seal, who is leader of the Commons. Crookshank will deal with some of the statements and questions that normally fall to the prime minister.

Fly From Vancouver In 4 Hours, 41 Mins.

OTTAWA (CP)—An RCAF jet Comet transport aircraft Saturday made a record non-stop flight from Vancouver to Ottawa in four hours 41 minutes.

Air force officers said this was a little more than half the time the flight would have taken a piston-engined airliner.

The Comet made the trip at 36,000 feet, flown by Sqdn. Ldr. W. R. Lloyd, 32, of Regina and Toronto, with Flt. Lt. L. W. Hussey, 29, of Ottawa, as co-pilot.

Great Tokyo Flood Leaves 2,500 Dead

TOKYO (AP)—A great flood that left more than 2,500 persons dead, missing or hurt and 1,000,000 homeless receded today on the southern Japan island of Kyushu but dark rain clouds posed an ominous new threat.

Seven days of torrential rains turned much of the northern part of Kyushu, an area about three times the size of Prince Edward Island, into a vast lake. The hapless Japanese residents fled to any high ground they could find.

The known death toll stood at 409 late today. It was expected to rise when those missing, now numbered at 1,178, are accounted for.

Police said several villages were washed away and 350,000 homes were destroyed or damaged.

Big Three Plan Interim Meet

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's "temporary prime minister," Richard A. Butler announced today that preparations are going forward for an early interim meeting of Western ministers on current problems.

Butler, who is acting as prime minister during the month in which Prime Minister Churchill has been ordered to rest, said Britain would be represented by the Marquis of Salisbury, the government leader in the House of Lords.

Making his announcement in the House of Commons, Butler did not say which countries would attend the interim discussions. But it was presumed he meant the United States, Britain and France.

Windshield Wiper Inventor Dies In U.S.

MONTEAGLE, Tenn. (AP) — Miss Mary Anderson, who invented the windshield wiper, died here Saturday night. She was 87.

In 1903 she was granted a 17-year patent for a "window cleaning device for electric cars and other vehicles to remove snow, ice or sleet from the window." The first models were operated by hand.

The idea for the original fan-type windshield wiper came to her during a visit to New York city. She noticed a street car motorman kept his window open on a slushy winter day in order to see ahead.

Queen Leaves For London

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh ended their state visit to Scotland today with a tour of Lanark and other industrial towns in the Glasgow industrial belt.

They will return to Edinburgh tonight to travel down to London by the night train.

Lanark, centre of today's tour, is the second oldest royal borough in Scotland—600 years ago it was the court seat of Robert the Bruce.

But this was the first time that a reigning British sovereign had ever paid an official visit.

The town bell rang out when the Queen and the Duke drove in sunshine down the ancient high street past cheering crowds to the county hall.

Dairy Products May Be Short

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dairy products may be in short supply in the fall as a result of rapidly increasing shipments of dairy cattle to the United States and "too low" prices for secondary milk, Archie Hare, field man for the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, said here today.

Mr. Hare said there probably would be no shortage of milk for domestic use. Farmers get $4.60 a hundredweight for this and supplies generally used for other products may be diverted to the domestic market.

Romance Sparks Terrorism

Homes Burned As Doukhobor Leader Wed

KRESTOVA, B. C. (CP) — Romance kindled terrorism during the week-end when a young Doukhobor leader got married in the colorful ceremony the sect brought to Canada from Czarist Russia.

In the hours following the marriage of John J. Verigin torch raiders came out of hiding to strike at three communities and set fire to 10 homes.

Die-hard radicals of the Sons of Freedom sect don't recognize Verigin's leadership and it appeared the raids were timed to take the spotlight away from the peaceful joy surrounding the wedding.

The 30-year-ol Verigin, an enemy of violence, is secretary of the orthodox Doukhobor communities' 10,000 inhabitants. Born in Russia, he is a great grandson of Peter (The Lordly) Verigin, former Doukhobor spiritual leader in Canada.

Close to 50 dwellings have been destroyed by terrorists in recent months in the Doukhobor settlements in the province's southern interior.

HOMES DESTROYED

In the new raids four homes were destroyed at Gilpin, three at Winlaw and two at Krestova. A third attempt to burn a third home at Krestova was unsuccessful.

There was no trouble at the community of Brilliant, where Verigin claimed as his bride Doukhobor Laura Relkoff in a ceremony conducted "from the heart."

The Doukhobor form of marriage isn't recognized under B. C. law but the government has anounced it plans legislation which will give it recognition.

TWO CEREMONIES

Actually, there were two ceremonies, both attended by thousands of gaily-dressed orthodox Doukhobors as well as many tourists and other non-Doukhobors.

In Doukhobor weddings the first ceremony is held before the bride's parents and the second before the father and mother of the groom. If the parents are dead, somebody close to the family is named to represent them.

Choirs sang and chanted as the young lovers arrived for what was the brightest occasion in years in Doukhobor "society."

Following the ceremony, more than 800 persons feasted at rows of tables on the lawn outside the brilliant community hall.

Non-Doukhobors who stopped to watch the festivities were invited to dine in traditional Doukhobor style and throughout the day a choir sang Russian hymns and folk songs.

Election Count Starts Tuesday In B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Re-establishment of majority government in British Columbia appears in the making.

The final decision whether it will be Social Credit or CCF may be known this week.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his Social Credit party, who held office from last August until late in March as a minority government, appear to be on top following the June 9 election.

But Tuesday under the alternative voting system the counting of second choices starts. It may take several days, especially in the big city ridings.

FAR IN LEAD

The first count, made election night, showed Social Credit far in the lead with Premier Bennett and three of his cabinet ministers elected. The CCF elected only two, the new leader, Arnold Webster, and the veteran E. E. Winch, long a member for Burnaby.

But Social Credit was leading in 26 ridings as against CCF's 15.

The electors blew the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives right out of the picture. One Labor member was leading.

In the 1952 election, with the exception of six, all candidates who were leading on the first count were elected in the final tally.

For the 48-seat house the first-count standing this year showed: Social Credit elected four, CCF two. Leading—Social Credit, 26; CCF 15; Labor, one.

For an over-all majority the winning party will require 25 seats.

Under the alternative voting system, which gives the elector a choice of candidates, marking his ballot, 1, 2, 3, etc, a candidate must have a majority of votes to win.

When a majority is not obtainable, the candidate with the fewest number of votes is dropped on second count and his ballots distributed among the other candidates. Three or more counts may be necessary to elect a candidate.

He attended Queen Alexandra Public School and PCVS before entering the radiography field.

Delegates attending the convention, being held in the Royal York Hotel June 27 to July 2, are from the United States and Canada. Essay winners from both countries are presenting their papers and films at various sessions during the week.

Divilio, New Haven Conn., Floyd L. Driver, Sumter, S. C., and Julian C. Denny and Neil J. Lyons (tied), Portland, Oregon.

Awards will be made Thursday.

Houses Taken, 2 Families Without Place To Live

Mrs. Rosena Cottrell watched her neighbor's house being dismantled today while she waited for workmen to arrive to remove her own to Cobourg, with no prospect of any place to take her four young children.

"I'm just about ready to give up," she said in dismay. "I've answered every ad in the paper; I've put ads in myself and my friends and in-laws have been looking for a place for me to live for months. But I've been turned down point blank because I have four children."

Occupying one of the last of the war-time houses on Holloway Drive near the west end of Charlotte St., Mrs. Cottrell received word in December that the lease would expire in March. But the owner, George F. Turner of Cobourg, gave her an extension until May 31 when she could not find a place on which she could afford to pay rent from her $80-a-month mother's allowance.

HAD TILL TODAY

Mr. Turner came to see Mrs. Cottrell last Thursday and told her she would have to be out by Monday because the men were coming to move the house. They hadn't shown up this morning but on Sunday workmen came and started to jack up the house just across the way on Armstrong Dr., occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Perritt and their eight children.

The men were supervised by Ralph Atkin of Centreton who bought the house from Stewart Nelson of Baltimore in April. Mr. Nelson bought it March 31 from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation from which Mr. Perritt had been renting it since March, 1950. Mr. Atkin intends to move the house to Centreton.

Mr. Perritt, who has been a tenant of Central Mortgage and Housing since 1942, said the workmen were busy jacking up the house all day Sunday with the furniture still in it.

"They cut the telephone wires and broke the water pipe off," he said. "There was water running all over under the house until I phoned the PUC and had the water turned off."

RENT PAID

A cement finisher by trade, Mr. Perritt was paying $34.50 rent to Central Housing and Mortgage until the end of March when the house was sold. Since then he has been paying taxes on the house under an agreement with the purchaser.

"I definitely haven't been able to find a place where I can afford to pay the rent or where children are accepted," Mr. Perritt said this morning as he prepared to put his furniture in storage and move part of his family into a rented trailer.

His oldest son, Laverne, 21, who drives a ready-Mix Concrete truck, has moved to a boarding house, and his oldest daughter Lois, 19, has bone to board with a girl she works with at Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. Douglas, 16, is going to live with his married sister, while Eleanor, 13, and Marlene, 12, are going to spend the summer on a farm the other side of Omemee with Mrs. Perritt's sister who is ill. The other children, Caroline, 10, and Bernard, 5, and Keith, 17 months old, will share the trailer with Mr. and Mrs. Perritt. This morning, Mr. Perritt didn't know where he was going to park the trailer.

BAR CHILDREN

The lowest rent for a house he could find was $50 but the owner wouldn't rent it to a family with children. Another owner who had a place to rent for $90 wouldn't accept tenants with children either.

Mrs. Cottrell's experience trying to find a place to live was similar. She discovered a house at Eraserville for $50 a month but there were no sanitary facilities, inside or out, and water had to be drawn from a pump across the road.

Another place at Lakefield rented for $70 a month but the owner was apparnetly unwilling to let Mrs. Cottrell move in with her four children: John, 7; Barbara, 6; David, 4, and Valarie, 2.

"I've read about lots of apartments for $15 a week," she said this morning. "But that would mean $60 some months and $75 others. That wouldn't leave much from my $80 mother's allowance."

Mrs. Isabel Murray of the Children's Aid Society visited Mrs. Cottrell this morning to see if there was something that could be done for her and her family but admitted that the prospect looked bleak.

"I haven't the slightest idea what I'm going to do year," Mrs. Cottrell said. She has lived in the house since December, 1949.

Drunk-Driving Charge

Premier De Valera Faces Sharp Political Crisis

DUBLIN (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, 70 and handicapped by failing eyesight, faced up to the sharpest political crisis of his long life this week. He has decided to risk the life of his government on a confidence vote in Parliament Thursday. Even if he wins, all Ireland feels that a general election cannot be long delayed.

If de Valera's Fianna Fail party should suffer a sharp defeat in a general election—and it probably would face the grudge vote of a new element in Irish politics, the women—the belief is he would never again lead it in political battle.

UNITED OPPOSITION

With only a two-seat over-all majority in the Dail (Parliament), he faces a united opposition bitterly critical of high taxes rising unemployment and soaring cost of living. He will have to muster members, plus five independents, by bringing them in wheelchairs and on crutches to vote to win a narrow confidence vote.

Fianna Fail, with a straight nationalist policy held together chiefly by De Valera's personal leadership, has as its chief opposition the Fine Gael party, also a nationalist group. At present Fine Gael, with 45 seats, is lined up solidly with the moderately left-wing Labor party with 15 seats and other independents and members of small parties in the 147-member Dail.

Five Accidents One Injured On City Streets

Five accidents occurred on Peterborough streets of a minor nature Saturday afternoon while a sixth was reported early Sunday morning. Only one person was injured, Keith Blewett, of 711 Elcome Crescent, who suffered bruises after being struck by a car.

The boy had been riding a tricycle on the sidewalk at the bend of Elcome Crescent and Antrim St. He was forced off into the road by a second boy into the path of a car driven by Arthur Armstrong, 46, of 474 Weller St. The youngster did not require hospitalization.

Two rear end collisions involved H. A. Trethewey, of R.R. 4, Peterborough, and Alfred Hodgson, of Toronto, in one, and Alfred Hie, of Westwood, and Arthur Reycroft, of Campbellford, in the second.

Trethewey was driving west on Parkhill when he stopped quickly at George. Hodgson, following, struck his car in the rear, causing $25 damage.

Hie was driving south on George when he stopped suddenly causing Reycroft's vehicle to strike his. Reycroft's car sustained $100 in damages.

THROUGH STOP SIGN

A driver unfamiliar with Peterborough streets, Gordon Caullhard, of Toronto, was driving east on McDonnel St. early Sunday morning. He failed to stop at George St. and rammed Grant Taylor, of 61 Argyle. Damage estimates totalled $350 to the two vehicles.

Two other out-of-towners locked their cars together in a collision on George during Saturday afternoon. Murney Weirmeir, of R.R. 7, Peterborough, pulled out from his parking space as Freeburn was passing. Freeburn's car was damaged to the extent of $200 while Weirmeir's escaped with only $35 damage.

A similar accident occurred on McDonnel St. between George and Water as J. M. Gillespie, of R.R. 4, Peterborough, was backing into a parking spot. T. J. Carley, of 596 Gilmour, driving west, collided in passing.

Damages were estimated at $10 to Gillespie's vehicle and $85 to the Carley car.

Prices Drift Lower In Dull Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Prices drifted lower in dull early afternoon stock market trading today.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals were firmer spots as both groups showed a majority of winners. Gunnar led with a 20-cent rise.

Higher in industrials were papers, steels, liquors and manufacturing companies. Foods and miscellaneous issues tended lower.

In golds, seniors drew little interest at weaker prices, juniors were mixed and holding companies dropped back. Campbell, a junior, fell 30 cents.

Western oils absorbed a minor index loss in trendless dealings that saw Canada Southern drop 25 cents.

dom's withdrawal from the International Wheat Agreement because it wanted a top price of $2 a bushel instead of the $2.05 price finally agreed on.

"We turned our back on Britain for five cents, and have seen the price of wheat go below that price (of $2.05) since then."

BRITAIN FIRST MARKET

Canada's "first market" should be Britain, where 20,000,000 people relied on imported food, rather than the U. S. which produced much the same food as Canada and was raising tariff barriers.

The Liberal government's only answer was that it could do nothing until the U. S. acted to help Canada's exports.

"I'm not prepared to hang on to Uncle Sam's coattails and I believe the time has come to act."

Canada was taxing herself out of export markets, since the price of her goods included excise taxes and the 16-per-cent sales tax.

In 1951 the federal government took $138,000,000 in wages. The total federal tax on cars was 25 per cent while the U.S. government levied only a seven-per-cent excise tax.

"That is on reason why we have strongly opposed increases in sales and excise taxes on things that are necessities in modern life."

Driver Admits Was Drunk Jailed 7 Days

Pleading guilty to a charge of drunk driving, Joseph Traynor, 21, of Nogies Creek was sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp today. The charge was laid Friday night after Traynor's car struck a mail box on Water St.

According to PC William G. Scott who followed the Traynor car, the driver, driving south on George, then signalled for a left turn at Argyle St., pulled to the centre of the road and then turned right.

It followed the same procedure at the intersection of George and Argyle.

When the police officer stopped Traynor, he was found to smell of liquor and "didn't seem to know what was going on." At times, he was unsteady on his feet.

Following a conviction on the drunk driving charge, a second count of careless driving was dismissed.

ALSO ARRESTED

Arising out of the same incident, Frank Traynor of RR 3, Cavan and Steve Traynor of Nogies Creek were each fined $10 and $2.50 costs on drunk counts.

They were riding in the car with the accused.

Also convicted on liquor charges were John Hawkins, no fixed address; Oscar Calbury, Douro; and Melville Ketcheson, 185 Bethune St.

Hawkins was sentenced to 10 days on a drunk charge and one month on a charge of having liquor in an illegal place, sentences to run concurrently. He was unable to paly fines of $25.

Oscar Calberry was sentenced to one month on two counts, a charge of having illegal liquor and a charge of being intoxicated, both second offences. The sentences will also run concurrently.

Pleading guilty to the drunk charge Ketcheson was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Christie Won't Lodge Appeal Against Death

LONDON (Reuters)—John Christie, confessed slayer of seven women, does not intend to lodge a court appeal against the death sentence passed on him last week, his legal advisers said today.

But Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe will be asked to recommend to the Queen that she exercise the royal prerogative of mercy to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Christie, 55, discussed the matter this morning with his lawyer in a small room adjoining "death row" in London's Pentville prison.

Christie, mass murderer of women in a squalid back-street tenement, was sentenced to death at the Old Bailey, London's central criminal court, last Thursday. Though he confessed that he killed seven women, he was actually tried and convicted only for the murder of his middle-aged wife.

Force Of 800 Men Battle Forest Fires

MONT LAURIER, Que. (CP)—A force of 800 men was reported today battling forest fires which broke out during the weekend threatening 10,000 square miles of timberland belonging to the Canadian International Paper Company. The Coulange and Clova areas, 200 miles northwest of Montreal, were reported most affected.

At least 21 fires that dot the area were reported under control but a shift in the wind could spread flames through the tinder-dry forests.

Election Drive Hits Lull During Weekend

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The federal election campaign hit a lull during the weekend. Only two of the four political leaders were in action.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, took aim at the defence department's spending in a Regina speech Saturday night. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said the real fathers of family allowance and old age pensions were the Social Crediters. He spoke at a Saturday picnic at Aurora, Ont.

Prime Minister St. Laurent spent part of the weekend and today at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., resting for his invasion of the Maritimes this week. Friday he wound up a five-day Ontario tour in which he campaigned with speeches for the grown-ups and ice cream and half-holidays for the school kids.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, cut short his Saskatchewan tour to return to Ottawa for the funeral of his wife who died last week. He expects to remain in seclusion for several days after the funeral today, resuming on the hustings at Pike Lake, Sask., July 6.

SIMILAR SAVINGS

Mr. Drew said similar savings could be made in the Canadian defence program to the 10-per-cent cut made by a congressional committee in the United States.

A Progressive Conservative government could find savings of many millions in the defence department. Able ministers—"and I emphasize the plural"—would be named to reorganize the department.

The government claim that no savings could be made in the $2,500,000,000 defence budget was "contrary to common sense."

He repeated his earlier promise of a $500,000,000-a-year cut in taxes. Most of it would come from surplus since the war.

Turning to trade matters, Mr. Drew said Canada is taxing herself out of export markets. The price of her goods included excise taxes and the 10-per-cent sales tax.

AVOID DEPRESSIONS

At Aurora, Mr. Low said that ever since Social Crediters entered Parliament in 1935 they have urged avoidance of depressions by putting purchasing ower into the hands of the people without first passing through industry.

"Liberals held up their hands in holy horror. But they finally went to the people and offered family allowances if they were returned to power—thus doing what Social Crediters had preached, putting purchasing power into people's hands without the money first passing through industry."

But while the Liberals gave family allowance away with one hand, they took it back with the other through taxation and "mismanagement" which reduced the dollar's buying power.

Hidden taxes, especially the sales tax, were the biggest cause of the reduced buying power of the dollar. They should be abolished as soon as possible.

"If the government had removed it, the cost of living could have been reduced by 15 per cent. If the government says Russia, or the United States, or the stars, are responsible for the high cost of living don't believe it."

Ten per cent of the population lived at or below the borderline of poverty because of the government's policies.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE

In Port Arthur, Trade Minister Howe was unanimously renominated as Liberal candidate. He recalled the "grim days of the thirties" and said the Liberal platform was to continue "the progress and prosperity which Canada has enjoyed since then."

Resources Minister Winters told a Liberal nominating convention at Yarmouth, N.S., Saturday that Canada will never have another depression like that of the 1930s.

He said Liberal policies have so broadened the Canadian economy that a business recession of that magnitude is impossible.

Service Vote Available Aug. 17

OTTAWA (CP) — Any recounts ordered after the Aug. 10 general election will involve some delay because of the necessity of coordinating the service and civilian votes.

The service vote will not be available until Aug. 17. That means recounts will be possible about Aug. 28 in urban ridings, Sept. 4 in more scattered constituencies.

Ordered To Leave

TEHRAN, Iran — (Reuters) — Frank Ellis, a long-time British resident of Tehran who formerly worked for a British telegraph company, has been ordered to leave Iran. He was accused of "questionable activities against Iran," a government announcement said Sunday. It gave no details.

Howe Answers Charges Of Exfravagance

PORT ARTHUR—Trade Minister Howe was acclaimed Liberal candidate in Port Arthur riding at a nomination convention Saturday night. About 250 delegates attended.

Mr. Howe recalled in the Prince Arthur Hotel that "the man who seconded me tonight in this hotel was one of those working for five dollars" under a Conservative government in the early 1930's.

"At that time," he declared, "35 to 40 per cent unemployed wasn't uncommon. Today it is 3 or 4 per cent. Since then, I think you can say of Canada that each year was better than the preceding one."

The platform of the Liberal Party was "to assure that Canada marches on like this."

REVIEWS ECONOMY

Reviewing the economy in his own riding, Mr. Howe pointed out that the pulp and paper and grain industries had expanded since 1935. A ship building company "can be assured that its future is well-secured for a considerable time," and an aircraft plant "should see a substantial increase in employment by next winter."

Mr. Howe commented that "it is evident that the Tory line of attack will be that it is time for a change—but that has no value as a slogan. A government, like any other business, must learn by experience."

Answering charges of extravagance, Mr. Howe said that "if the Liberal government is extravagant, then I am extravagant, I do most of their buying. We are as careful as housewives with the family budget. We try to stretch a dollar of government money just as far."

The minister admitted that the Liberal government "did have some thieving" at Petawawa Military Camp, but "the lurid language of the Currie report didn't say it was reported months before the persons responsible were punished." The total loss from the thefts was not in excess of $50,000 and "was much less than the cost of the Currie report."

Buffalo Faces Transit Strike

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The threat of a paralyzing transit strike loomed today as the Niagara Frontier Transit Company and its AFL drivers and mechanics remained in disagreement in a wage dispute.

Division 1,342, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees has voted to strike if agreement is not reached by Tuesday midnight on a wage reopening of a two-year contract.

The company, which employs about 1,800, operates about 850 buses in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and several suburbs—an area of nearly 1,000,000 population.

The union has asked an increase of 19 cents hourly to make up for lowered income of the drivers as they are reduced from 44 to 40 hours weekly under the contract signed last July. The company has offered nine cents.

The old drivers' pay scale was $75.24 for the 44-hour week. Other pay scales vary.

Sentenced To 9 Months

COBOURG—Appearing for sentence on two break-in charges, Robert Richard Blythe, no fixed abode, was sentenced to nine months definite and three indefinite in the reformatory, to run concurrently. Blythe, who has a record, broke into the Dr. Powers School at Port Hope on June 2 and Cotter's coal office in that town on June 17.

Food Poisoning

TORONTO (CP)—Some 200 Toronto school children were treated for food poisoning Saturday after attending a picnic sponsored by the St. Clair Ave. Home and School Association. Cause of the poisoning has not yet been determined. Hospital officials said none of the children was in serious condition.

Mrs. Rockefeller Seizes Estranged Husband's Apt.

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara (Bobo) Rockefeller seized her estranged husband's Park avenue apartment during the week-end after suddenly arriving here from an Indiana farm.

With her were their four-year-old son and an unidentified woman friend.

Mrs. Rockefeller, blonde daughter of a coal miner, moved into the apartment while her husband, Winthrop Rockefeller, heir to Standard Oil millions, was in Little Rock, Ark.

She talked briefly Sunday night with newspaper men by telephone, indicating she was not impressed by a $1,000,000 trust fund being set up by Rockefeller for her, and then announced she would hold a press conference some time today.

The 36-year-old Mrs. Rockefeler and the oil heir were married five years ago. They were estranged shortly after the birth of the son, Winthrop Paul, who has since been in the exclusive custody of the mother.

Early this month Rockefeller announced he was establishing a $1,000,000 trust fund for his estranged wife. She had complained previously she was broke and living off the charity of friends.

Rockefeller replied he had supported her and the son with $1,000 a week. He added that a $1,000,000 trust fund had been set up earlier for the son.

The oil heir on June 7 moved to Little Rock, and a lawyer said he would establish permament residence there. The lawyer said the New York apartment was up for sale.

His move to Arkansas brought reports Rockefeller intended to seek a divorce. That state permits a divorce decree after 90 days residence. But Rockefeller scoffed at such rumors.

The New York Daily News said today in a copyrighted article that she spurned the trust fund as a device through which her husband might obtain a divorce.

She was quoted as saying she does not believe in a divorce where children are involved.

The News added that she described the fund as "a publicity stunt to give the public the idea that I had been negotiating for a settlement, which I had not."

The News quoted her as saying: "Furthermore, it is a revocable trust, which means Winthrop can stop it at any moment and contains a joker clause which states in effect that, if I accept it, I place myself under the jurisdiction of the state of Arkansas, where he has gone for a divorce."

Recover 20 Bodies In Steamer Fire

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP)—Rescue workers today recovered the bodies of 20 African workers suffocated in the 7,730 ton Belgian steamer Steenstraete after gasoline caught fire on the water in the harbor of Beira.

First reports Sunday said the flames spread after the Danish tanker Fenheim blew up while unloading gasoline. Latest advices from Beira, about 450 miles northeast of Lourenco Marques, said the Fenheim was undamaged.

About 40 natives were in hospital with severe burns. The flames caused damage also to four other ships and their cargo in the harbor—second largest port city in this Portuguese colony on the East African coast.

Visiting Justice

COBOURG (ENS) — Mrs. Norman Hardman, a justice of the peace in Bolton, Lancs., England, sat on the bench with Magistrate R. B. Baxter at the weekend session of police court here. She witnessed a variety of cases ranging from summary to indictable offences.

Mrs. Hardman, who is visiting friends in Port Hope, commented afterward that she found Canadian courts very interesting.

She is one of five justices of the peace who sit five days a week on cases much the same as come up in police court here. No fewer than three and no more than five justices of the peace try a case. Their services are voluntary.

Social Credit Real Fathers Of Old Age Pensions-Low

AURORA (CP) — Social Credit members were the real fathers of such benefits as family allowances and old age pensions, Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, said Saturday.

Addressing a picnic gathering in this town, 25 miles north of Toronto, Mr. Low said Social Credit members, since they entered Parliament in 1935, had pleaded for new financial arrangements.

They had urged that to avoid depressions purchasing power had to be put into the hands of people without first passing through industry.

"Liberals held up their hands in holy horror. But they finally went to the people and offered family allowances if they were returned to power—thus doing what social crediters had preached, putting purchasing power into people's hands without the money first passing through industry."

He said State Secretary Pickersgill is claiming in Newfoundland that he is the father of family allowances, and added: "Let him have his fun."

Mr. Low charged that while the Liberals gave family allowances with one hand, they took it away with another, by taxation, and "mismanagement" which resulted in reduced buying power of the dollar.

Biggest cause in the fall of the dollar's buying power, said Mr. Low, was the government's "hidden taxes," especially the sales tax which should be "abolished" as soon as possible.

"If the government had removed it, the cost of living could have been reduced by 15 per cent."

The government's policies, he said, "have consigned 10 per cent of the population to a perpetual existence at or below the borderline of poverty."

The example of the Alberta government had "shamed" the government into raising the old age pension level to $40 a month, but the rise in the cost of living had reduced this amount to the $20 level of 1935-39.

The "old sweats" or disabled veterans of the First World War had had their war allowance attached to the old age pension and limits put on their income.

"One of our first acts would be to divorce the War Veterans Allowance Act from old age pensions and attach it to the veterans' charter that has given veterans of the Second World War something like a decent show."

The Social Credit creed, Mr. Low said, means "maintenance of personal sovereignty and independence."

"We are not going to allow ourselves to become slaves of the state and of statism which have been growing in Canada at the same time as they have been growing in other countries under the name of state socialism."

He said Social Credit now is taking root in Ontario.

Seating Red China

The Big Five, according to the constitution of the United Nations, are the U.S.A., the U.K., the U.S.S.R., France and China. China continues to be represented by the Chiang-Kai-shek government, which has not one shred of authority or control over any part of the great mainland of China. This means, in world diplomacy as conducted by U.N., that China, the second largest country in the world and one of the most powerful, has no voice. Such a situation is so idiotic as to invite disaster. How can the world be made to wag well, if a great section of its area and population are excluded from both representation and inner council responsibility in U.N.? How can U.N. itself function well without filling China's seat properly?

* * *

At the conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers this month, Sir Winston Churchill's idea that Red China must eventually be seated at U.N. was endorsed unanimously. The present Canadian Government's position on this matter is quite clear. Mr. Pearson has stated his belief that Red China should be given diplomatic recognition by Canada after an armistice is concluded in Korea. And, as has just been inferred, Canada approves the admission of Red China to U.N.—in due course.

* * *

The two matters, though related, are not synonymous nor does one necessarily follow from the other. Diplomatic recognition does not imply approval. It is merely a recognition between two countries that they have business with each other. Canada has diplomatic relations with Russia. This does not mean that Canada approves of the Russian government. The establishment of diplomatic relations with Red China—such as now exist between Britain and China—would be no more than a businesslike arrangement. On the other hand, the admission of Red China to U.N. implies—and in fact requires under the charter—certain obligations. A member of U.N. accepts, for instance, Article 1 of the U.N. Charter; the U.N. purpose "to maintain international peace and security and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace . . ."

* * *

If Red China is to become a member of U.N. and takes the seat now inadequately and even improperly filled by the Chiang Kai-shek discredited government, Red China has much need to change the aggressive ways which led her into the Korean War. Then, too, before Red China is admitted, western nations should require Russia to change her mind about the admission of Austria, Ceylon, Finland, Ireland, Italy, Portugal and Nepal. The application of all these countries for admission to U.N. was vetoed by Russia. These countries are willing to abide by the charter of U.N., and not one of them stands accused of any breach of world peace.

* * *

The admission of Red China to U.N. is a thorny problem. The chief spike is the expressed objection of the United States. President Eisenhower himself, due perhaps to internal politics and Republican party pressures, has affirmed his objection to the admission of Red China. If this matter comes to a choice between the U.S.A leaving U.N. and Red China entering it, there can be no doubt that the U.S. must remain, even if Red China must continue to be excluded.

Despite American opinion (very close to prejudice) and Red China's degree of responsibility for the Korean War, the realities of the situation require, when the Korean War is ended, that China be admitted to U.N. membership. Mao's government is firmly in control of the country, the majority of the Chinese people support it fully, the condition of the life of the people has greatly improved, and the government itself is efficient, honest and progressive. To deny this government and people admission to U.N. would be folly of the first magnitude, if U.N. is ever to be the great world organization which its founders expected.

Should Atomic Information Be Released?

Certain provisions of the U.S. Atomic Energy Act have been criticized with increasing frequency during the past few months. These are clauses which impose secrecy, although it is not proposed that all clauses imposing secrecy should be deleted. The opinion has been expressed, however, that it is pointless, and may even be dangerous, to continue withholding certain information from allies of the United States, from Soviet Russia, and from the public generally.

Latest to express this opinion is Gordon Dean, retiring chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Dean believes that the Russians should be told the approximate destructive power of the U.S. supply of atomic weapons, in the hope this would keep them from blundering into war because they had underestimated U.S. retaliatory power. He also believes that the U.S. should be able to give its allies knowledge about the size, weight, shape and explosive force of atomic weapons that might be used in joint defence or retaliatory operations. Furthermore, he thinks the public should be shaken out of its lethargy by information of comparative Russian and U.S. strength in atomic weapons.

Similar opinions have been expressed in the past by other officials of the AEC, notably Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, former chairman of its Advisory Committee, and one of the scientists who directed production of the first bomb. There is no suggestion that all atomic secrets should be made public. Mr. Dean has specified the information he believes should be released, and has offered his reasons for his belief in each instance. There is no intimation that he thinks the AEC should go further than that.

We think this opinion eminently sound. No harm could come from the release of the specified information, and if it produced the results Mr. Dean envisions, it would be a wise and effective defensive measure.

Criminals And Judges Not Allowed To Vote

Enumerators began their house-to-house canvass in Peterborough and every other place across the land last Monday. They completed their enumeration by the end of the week. It is from their records that the voters' lists are prepared. The enumerators find out who in the house is of the full age of 21 (or will be by August 10th), what his occupation is, if he is a Canadian citizen, and whether this is his usual place of residence. Such people are qualified to vote—unless the person is crazy, a criminal, or a judge. These three special types of citizen do not have the franchise.

We have been asked if a British person who has lately emigrated to Canada may vote. Yes, provided he arrived by August 10th, 1952. Any British subject, whether from the United Kingdom, Ceylon, Pakistan or other parts of the Commonwealth enjoys full voting privileges in Canada. Even people from Eire and India may vote. The only requirement is that they have been "ordinarily resident" in Canada for at least twelve months before election day.

The purpose of the enumeration is to try to ensure that the name of every qualified voter is entered on the voters' lists. If by chance a person's name is omitted from the preliminary lists, he may have it inserted at the revision offices in mid-July. Incidentally, you have a right to insist on there being two enumerators when they come to call. This check on accuracy and honesty is hardly necessary in a well-ordered place like Peterborough, but it is a precaution provided by the Elections Act. And the enumerators are supposed to be wearing badges indicating that they are official enumerators, and not super-salesmen trying to get a foot in the door, or prying agents snooping for private information.

The enumerators need not see each qualified voter; they may get all their information from an adult person in the house able to give it. The enumerators must visit a house at least once. If they find no one home, or do not get all the information they need on the first call, they are bound by law to return once, having first indicated the approximate hour they will call.

Another piece of information which some prospective voters may like to have is this: you must vote in the division in which you have been enumerated, that is where your place of residence ordinarily is. You cannot vote in the district in which your summer cottage is sited. This regulation does not apply to clergymen, teachers and students. If a clergyman moves his place of residence between the day the enumerators called and polling day, he may vote in his new district, provided his name has been put on the voters' lists. Students and teachers may vote at the place in which their academic work is carried on, or in their ordinary home district. They may have their names put on the lists for both divisions, but of course, may vote only once.

Some of the rules and regulations about voters and voting seem elaborate. Yet the finicallity safeguards the rights and privileges of the Canadian people. It does not circumscribe the liberality of the franchise, nor make the actual voting process difficult.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Ottawa's Mayor proposes that the capital city apply to the College of Arms for a proper set of armorial bearings, instead of its present city seal, which looks like an illustration of a boy's tool set from a mail order catalogue. And thus Ottawa follows Peterborough's example, for we were granted our handsome arms in 1950.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

AT THE END of this week music teachers from all over Canada will be meeting in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto for a series of concerts, lectures, discussions, meetings, outings and demonstrations, not to mention an operatic performance, a Shakespeare play and a carillon recital at Niagara Falls. I have heard music teachers' conventions likened to the keyboard of a piano insofar as the distribution of the sexes is concerned; the ladies, like the white keys, are in the majority, and consequently the proceedings are apt to be conducted with a greater attention to the business on hand and less of the frivolity that characterizes these gatherings when the male is in the ascendant! I shall be attending this function, but as my annual aestivation (the musical equivalent of hibernation) is due to take place during the next two calendar months I shall have to withhold the wit and wisdom that I shall gather until a later period. Doubtless some of it will be worth keeping, to judge from the galaxy of stars that have been engaged to speak, sing or play.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT WAS SAID of Gluck that his ideal of perfect happiness was to have his harpsichord moved out into a meadow on a fine summer's day where he could sit at the instrument with a bottle of good wine by his side and savour the delights of art and nature simultaneously. The prospect is certainly alluring, but the weight of the modern piano rather militates against us imitating the master in this year of grace. I can imagine the reaction of the neighbourhood to a city dweller hauling his piano on to his minute back yard and pounding away at Rachmaninoff's second piano concerto; while the bottle of Nuits Saint Georges by his side would excite unfavourable comment and possibly a visit from the local constabulary! Yet there is a fascination in hearing music out of doors, especially on a luminous summer evening. It must of course be real music, not the canned variety. Mozart wrote a good deal of lovely music for this very purpose, to be played out of doors in the evening. The most famous, as it is the most perfect of these works of his is "Eine kleine Nachtmusik", or, as we would say in English, A little Serenade. I well remember attending a garden party in the evening several years ago in England, at which this was played by a small string band. For once the weather was kind, and the music and the Chinese lanterns created a magical effect that even the insects were unable entirely to dispel.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT HAS BEEN recognized for some time that Brahms is not quite the austere architect of pure sound that he was imagined to be by his contemporaries, who liked to think of Brahms, the "absolute" musician as opposed to Wagner, the advocate of the union of the arts. This tidy little antithesis has not stood the test of time. On the one hand it has been shown in innumerable concert performances that Wagner's music can stand by itself without dramatic props. As for Brahms we find even in his most abstract works traces of experiences that left their mark on his life. His D minor piano concerto has already for some time been accepted as a tone poem of Schumann's insanity and death. Schumann himself was very fond of weaving all sorts of private jokes and enigmas into his compositions, as students of his "Carnival" are well aware; and it is more than likely that Brahms was addicted to the same mystification. He was deeply influenced by Schumann at the formative period of his career, and though he reacted against it traces of Schumann are to be found throughout his output. The frequent cross-rhythms so typical of Brahms are also to be found in Schumann.

✧ ✧ ✧

FURTHER evidence is to hand that the monumental symphony in C minor (nicknamed Beethoven's tenth owing to the marked similarity of the main themes in the last movements of both works) was conceived by Brahms in a surreptitious way as a "Clara Schumann" symphony. His semi-Platonic love affair with his late mentor's widow is already well-known. and I belive that it has even been accorded the doubtful prestige of being "immortalized" and otherwise generally falsified in celluloid. The first clue to this interpretation of the symphony came in a postcard which Brahms sent to Clara from Switzerland in 1868 with the "Alphorn" theme that he later used in the introduction to the last movement: the theme reached Clara with these words:

Hoch auf'm Berg, tief im Tal
Gruess ich Dich vieltausendmal.

(High on the mountain, deep in the valley, I send you many thousand greetings.) There is also another theme, in the poco allegretto, which is related to the passage "at thy breast" in the song "In meiner Naechte Sehnen"; while another passage in the introduction to the finale is almost a note-for-note quotation from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman"—the words of the original being "one hope alone remains for me". Sceptics may wag their heads and attribute these references to the long arm of coincidence and no more; but if they really were intended it would be fully in accordance with what we already know about Brahms' character.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE of the most famous of musical riddles concerns Elgar's Variations on an Original Theme for Orchestra, better known by its apt sub-title Enigma. This work is dedicated "to all my friends pictured within", and each variation is prefaced with the initials of one or other of his friends. Elgar claimed to have "looked at the theme through the personality of that friend". Nowadays anybody who cares to find out who Elgar's friends were may do so by buying an inexpensive little volume published by Novello containing their photographs and a brief note concerning each of them. It may surprise some to find out that some of the variations had more to do with inanimate objects than the persons themselves: Var. II depicts the organ which H. D. S-P played, Var. VI Ysobel's viola, Var. VIII W.N.'s charming eighteenth century house, and so on. The attentive listener may also catch W.N.'s giggle (in the oboe), Dorabella's lisp and G.R. Sinclair's bulldog Dan diving into the Severn after a stick—or he may enjoy the variations just as pure music.

✧ ✧

BUT for the musical detective there is one more riddle in the Enigma Variations which has so far defied solution. Elgar mentioned that the theme itself had for its counterpart another theme which, however, is not heard. Several sleuths have exercised their ingenuity in trying to fit the theme to various melodies without conspicuous success. Another theory is that Elgar deliberately led his admirers up the garden path by his use of the word "theme", and that the real unheard but implied theme was that of friendship. This, to me, is the most plausible explanation. Elgar, like Brahms, was a sensitive person who hid behind an elaborate series of disguises. He had a horror of being buttonholed by boring admirers and snooping journalists. There is no doubt that he got a tremendous kick out of the success of his mystifying tactics. If Brahms played the hedgehog with the outside world Elgar enjoyed playing the chameleon. Few could have realized the nervous and quivering soul that hid behind his disguise as a retired Indian Army colonel.

An American Opinion: SORRY, WINNIE, THE WHITEWASH DOESN'T HELP!

South America Saluted

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

THE LATIN AMERICAN REPUBLICS have shown astonishing interest in, and respect for, the crowning of a British monarch.

Perhaps the most surprising tribute came from Argentina, whose recent relations with what Argentines somewhat inaccurately term Anglo-Saxon countries have not been very good. General Peron's Government decreed that on Coronation Day and the day after it, the blue white and blue flag of the Argentine Republic should fly over all public buildings in honour of the British Sovereign. The municipality of the city of Buenos Aires, following the Government's lead, decorated the Plazo De Mayo— the Trafagar Square, Times Square or Place de l'Opera of Buenos Aires, and the Plaza Britanica.

In Brazil, whose traditional ties have been more with the United States than with the British Commonwealth, the Senate approved a motion to insert in its annals a vote of congratulations to Queen Elizabeth the Second—apparently unopposed by any Brazilians of Scottish blood who might have contested the accuracy of the numeral. President Vargas, as "a proof of our people's friendship towards the people of Britain" directed that warships anchored in the Bay of Rio de Janeiro be decorated with flags on Coronation Day and fire a twenty-one gun Royal salute—a fitting tribute from the last country in the Western Hemisphere, always excluding Canada, to abandon its own monarchy (as recently as 1889) and the only Republic to retain on its soil a pretender to its imperial throne, after one of whose ancestors Rio's principal railway station is still named (the one at the other end of the line, in Sao Paulo, is called Franklin D. Roosevelt).

It is appropriate that Brazil's tribute to her Majesty should be in essence a naval one, because Brazil's admiration for Britain has been largely a maritime one. The same is hardly true of the Spanish-speaking Republics, whose earlier experience of British seamanship tended to be confined to the depredations of the gentleman they refer to as "the corsair Drake". Nevertheless, these countries showed what was to a Briton an astonishing respect for the British Crown at the time of King George VI's death, when most of them declared a considerable period of national mourning, and they have exhibited a parallel feeling of understanding on the occasion of the crowning of King George's daughter.

Natal Angry At "Sanctions Threat"

By JOHN WORRALL

THE South African province of Natal is incensed by the warning issued by Mr. Eric Louw, Minister for Economic Affairs, that Natal's industrialists and businessmen could expect little in the way of import quotas, foreign currency and loans, unless the province was less awkward politically.

Mr. Louw's remarks were directed towards the new federal movement which has been gaining ground in Natal since the Nationalists won the recent general election. "Political blackmail" is how the Natal chairman of the Federal Party, Mr. E. G. Ford, described Mr. Louw's warning this week. Emergency meetings of industrialists and businessmen have been held, but they have decided to defer formal expression of their views until the full implication of the Minister's statement is obtained from him personally.

Mr. Louw was reported as having said that the political developments in Natal had harmed the Union's credit abroad, particularly in the United States.

Mr. Douglas Mitchell, the United Party leader in Natal, is to raise the question when Parliament meets. He will ask whether Mr. Louw's views are the considered opinion of the Cabinet. He described the speech as in "shocking taste," resulting from Mr. Louw's chargin at the Nationalists' inability to increase their representation in Natal at the general election."

It will certainly be a remarkable development in South African politics if economic sanctions can be imposed on a whole province because its politics differ from those of the Government in power, and businessmen in the Union are justifiably alarmed. It is being asked: can the allocation of investment capital and import permits be governed by considerations of party politics? It is pointed out here that few political developments are more likely to scare foreign investors than this.

Those opposed to the Federal movement are saying that nothing is likely to strengthen the movement more than selecting Natal for political reprisals. The Durban Chamber of Commerce is greatly concerned that Mr. Louw should have challenged its business relations with the Government which have never been on a political basis.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine . . . I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back; bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him. (Isa. 43:1,6,7.)

Collector Of Fairy Tales

(BBC Bulletin)

Michael J. Murhy, a slow-spoken Irishman from County Armagh, has one of the most unusual jobs in Britain for he is a full-time collector of folk-lore employed by the Irish Folk-Lore Commission. His life is passed in an enchanted haze of fairies, charms, stories of legendary Kings and Queens and anecdotes of what the wee folk said, did and sang, and from this wealth of material he writes books and articles and gives frequent broadcasts for the BBC.

When Michael was a farm labourer he heard the men around him constantly talking of fairies and telling folk tales. He became very interested and at last he wrote an article on the subject. He immediately sold it to a newspaper, and although the pay received was little it seemed munificent to a man who was earning only two shillings and sixpence a day. He wrote more articles and stories and was then asked to broadcast and eventually gave up farm labouring to devote his entire time to searching for folk-lore and writing about it. He also writes plays and several of them have been broadcast. He spends two years working in each county and is now living with his wife and three small boys on a hilltop under the ruins of an old castle outside Cushendall, in County Antrim, with a magnificent view along the shore below.

Folk-lore Commissions cannot afford cars for their employees, and Michael peddles off on his bicycle to search for what stories he can find. Belief in fairies is still widespread in Ireland, and the people will talk about them, often quite expansively, to one of their own kind, but not straight away, and much laborious exploratory work has to be done before Michael can induce them to share their knowledge of the fairies and fairy-lore. His eldest son, aged seven, states firmly that he does not believe in fairies, but on the other hand he longs to catch a fairy, and "tie it up tight so that it couldn't get away". Michael Murphy had a great deal to do with the series of BBC programmes on fairy-lore, for which the whistled signature tune was "The Fairy Reel". Some people said that the man who whistled it would thoroughly annoy the fairies, even though before the broadcast he placated them by saying, "Far may you go and fair may you go and your heels to us", and when his cow died later of a mysterious ailment his neighbour said triumphantly, "I told you so!".

Another thing this quiet and humorous Irishman collects is old charms and spells. These do not always turn out as effectively as they are meant to do and he recollects the man who, murmuring a charm, threw a very large block of wood over his shoulder, expecting it to bring rain to break an unaccustomed drought. The spell did not break the drought, but the block of wood killed the pig belonging to the man next door.

Gadabout And Miss Chipso Win Heats In The 2.19 Of Fine Harness Race Meet

Blanket finishes marked several of the harness horse races staged by the Peterborough Turf Club in Morrow Park on Saturday evening before a good-sized crowd. The feature 2.19 class in particular saw three horses finish each heat with not a neck separating first from third. Graydon Sheldon's local Gadabout won the first heat, six and a half furlongs, in 1.39, while another Peterborough pacer, Manson Cathcart's Miss Chipso, won the mile heat in 2.14. Hal Gratton Patch of Cobourg was a very close third in each case as this trio led the field of eight horses in the event.

DOUBLE WINNERS

Double winners marked all the other classes. Peter Direct L. of Oshweken took both ends of the first race, an event for non-winners of $300, while Dave Dowson drove June Elgin of Cobourg home in second spot each time. Dorothy Star and Big Walnut each took a third. In the 2.25, Hugh Davis drove ably to put Pastime Vern of Toronto in front twice, as Peter G. Dillon of Hagersville twice was second, Molly Elgin of Cobourg and Oxford Gail of Renfrew each showing once.

The classified race saw Calumet Baldwin of Port Perry top the field each time, with Mabel Mac of Belleville twice placing. Hugh Davis' Blanche Gratton and Harry Van of Oshawa each took a third. In the 2.22, Mr. Bobby Henley from Renfrew won both heats. T. A. Atkinson's Empress Elgin of Campbellford and Mac Volo, owned by Stan Blewett of Indian River, each came second once, the latter also taking a third, as did Charlie G. from Oshweken. Jim McIntyre drove Gababout and Dave Dowson handled Miss Chipso in the 2.19 class.

DASHES AND MILE

The first heat in all five events were dashes of six and a half furlongs, starting behind the McDonald starting gate from Hamilton. The second heats were the mile runs. Eight raced in the 2.19 six in the classified, and seven in each of the others, none being drawn. The betting booth got a good play.

In thanking the people in attendance at this second twilight meet of the local club this summer, Hugh Stewart said enough good horses from around Ontario were not available for a meet here this coming Saturday, but the Turf Club would stage another meet in the near future, possibly in two or three weeks if good pacers and trotters are free at the time. Tennis Title Winner Still Uncertain

By MILTON MARMOR

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The second week on the plush green courts of Wimbledon starts today and it is still anyone's guess who will take the coveted men's singles tennis title.

The first week in broiling sun yielded some of the dullest tennis seen in years at this world citadel of tennis—and one of the most thrilling matches in the history of the game.

That one was Thursday's epic struggle of 93 games in which Jaroslav Drobny, the exiled Czech, downed Budge Patty, the Los Angeles star who now lives in Paris.

Now the men are down to the quarter finals.

For the women, all brackets but one in the round of eight are completed. Yet, as far as anyone can say, the women's singles is a certain victory for Maureen Connolly, the San Diego Calif., 18-year-old.

Drobny Saturday knocked out Rex Hartwig of Australia 6-3, 7-5, 7-5. Drobny showed signs of exhaustion in the third set.

Kurt Neilsen of Denmark pushed aside fifth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Miami Beach, Fla., 10-8, 6-3, 7-5. Mervyn Rose of Australia downed Jacques Brichant of Belgium 6-4, 6-4, 8-6. Seixas and Sven Davidson of Sweden also advanced.

Miss Connolly toyed with Anne Shilcock of Britain, winning 6-0, 6-1. Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., defeated Angela Buxton of Britain, 6-3, 6-1.

Main, Rochon Will Play Against Mexico

TORONTO (CP)—Lorne Main of Vancouver and Toronto and Henri Rochon of Montreal, veterans of Davis Cup tennis, along with four newcomers, will carry Canada's hopes in Davis Cup matches against Mexico July 18-19.

Announcement of the team selection was made Sunday by Dr. George Leclerc of Montreal, nonplaying captain of the squad, following completion of the Toronto Cricket Club's 11th annual invitation tennis tournament.

The newcomers to the team are: Bob Bedard, 22, Sherbrooke, Que., Paul Willey, 22, Vancouver, Lawrence Barclay, 22, Vancouver, and Jim Bentley, 20, Toronto. The four while experienced players, have risen to top-rankers within the last couple of years.

Of the team, Leclerc said this line-up will stand "unless there are some startling upsets" in the province of Quebec open senior championships in Montreal, which started Saturday and wind up July 4.

KOVALESKI WINS

The tournament in which several Davis Cup trial matches were played, was won by Fred Kovaleski, a powerhouse from Washington who had no trouble in dropping Lorne Main, 6-4, 6-4, 8-6 for the men's singles crown.

The more experienced American outplayed Main all the way, using tactics that the younger Main couldn't contend with. Kovaleski made the final Saturday with a 6-3, 6-0, 6-2, victory over Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que. Main reached the final by defeating Doug Markel of Los Angeles 6-0, 6-1, 6-1, in a Saturday semi-final.

Hilda Doeschell of Toronto won the women's singles title with a 6-1, 11-9 win over Louise Brown, also of Toronto. In a final Saturday, Harold Peterson of Toronto won the veteran men's singles with a decisive 6-1, 6-2, victory over Ben Freedoff of Toronto.

Athletics Clip Thistles 10-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics Saturday won their ninth straight game in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association by defeating Fergus Thistles 10-3.

The Athletics led 2-1 at the quarter, 3-2 at the half and then jumped ahead with four goals in the third period without reply. Al Frick and Gerry Davies fired three goals each for St. Catharines. Singles were scored by Skip Teal, Jim Bradshaw, Norm Corcoran and John Dewar.

Fergus scorers were Bob Beddie, Don Campbell and Ron Landoni.

Executives of the seven clubs in the league met in Toronto Sunday and decided to cut the number of men on a team to six, eliminating the rover. The decision, announced by league secretary Chuck Rowan, will go into force July 6 on a trial basis, ending with the season Aug. 8.

The executives hope the switch will allow teams to field a stronger starting squad and to cut down crowding in smaller arenas.

The meeting also discussed the proposed amalgamation of the Mimico Mountaineers and Brampton Excelsiors. Officials said each club has been given until Tuesday to reach an agreement.

Both Brampton and Mimico have been hampered this season by lack of players and poor attendance.

Avro Cricket Club Defeats The Locals

The local "B" cricket team dropped a low-scoring council cricket match here Saturday to the Toronto Avro "B" club, 49 to 23. The visitors batted first and had a tough time against local bowling. R. Low did account for 17 and B. Hill 10 as they took the count to 44 for five wickets, but later could add only five runs.

Local bowlers had some success, F. Dyer getting two for 18, K. Illingworth two for 13 and R. Rollwagon two for 12. The star performers was S. Jennings who, coming on the second change, only bowled two overs, both maidens, and had four wickets for no runs.

Peterborough batters didn't fare so well, but G. Rashleigh, a newcomer, accounted for 10. It was 17 for four wickets, and 23 for 10. D. Swanston had two wickets for seven, and S. Hill eight for 13. Score:

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Ald. Don McNevin announces that he will not sponsor the OHA Belleville senior "B" entry in our group this coming puck season. He is burned to a crisp at a statement recently made by Ald. Don Thomas of that city that the Quinte arena commission had made a "criminal agreement" with the junior and senior hockey clubs regarding financial splits. McNevin, in a letter to the press, says the regular senior "B" players each received $252 last season, the total for coach and players being $4,656, and the sponsor ending up with $2,158, with which he intended to build a better club for the 1953-54 season Hm, they did a whale of a lot better than the Petes last year, eh? The arena there made $1,295 more from senior hockey last winter than the year before as the Glens had a successful season.

* * * * * *

So, things look a bit dark at the moment for the Quinte crew, and they also wonder what sort of a grouping would be possible this coming fall and winter, if they do get a new sponsor. Kingston said to be flirting with the idea of going down east in a setup with Brockville and other clubs, though the K's did very well last year in the Central Ontario grouping. Stouffville seeks a Toronto berth, and Oshawa hopes to get permission to go senior "A." However, these may be just off-season rumors without much fact to them. And we might cheer up Belleville officials by reminding 'em that the Petes operated for years without a sponsor at all.

Kicking Up The Turf

Ideal weather attracted quite a few men and women to Morrow Park on Saturday eve to see 10 good harness horse races. Some of the events were exceptionally good, and you could have tossed a blanket over the first three finishers in the two heats of the featured 2.19 class. One heat was taken by Graydon Sheldon's Gadabout, and the other by Manson Cathcart's Miss Chipso, both Peterborough horses. An Oshwekan pacer, Peter Direct L, took both in the first race, Calumet Baldwin of Port Perry won two in the classified, Mr. Bobby Henley of Renfrew won each heat in the 2.22, and Hugh Davis drove Pastime Vern of Toronto to two wins in the 2.25. Jimmy McIntyre had the reins for Gadabout and Dave Dowson piloted Miss Chipso around. Betting booth was busy enough. Next meet maybe a week from this coming Saturday.

* * * * * *

Haven't heard at the moment if the OLA will okay a senior hookup between Brampton and Mimico, trailing senior "A" squads. Maybe we'll get word on it ere column's end today as they expected to make a ruling over the weekend. But Fergus Thistles, a thorny team to the three top clubs this season — they trimmed St. Kitts once — will be here tonight, weather permitting, to tackle the Petes. Latter are a bit tired but have to keep hustling to stay up there around the top as the pace gets hotter. They have three more tilts this warmish week. Dundas juniors defaulted to our Pats Saturday, not having enough players available.

Yorks In Second Spot

Toronto West Yorks, by way of Orillia, took a 16-8 senior OLA win at home Saturday night o'er the Thorpe team. The McPhail men finished stronger to earn the duke. Penalties earlier hurt the Petes' cause and they were minus Harry Wipper in this game. But Yorks deserved the verdict on their drive in the final frame of a fairly rugged match. These teams are even in four clashes so far, Petes winning once against Toronto in Orillia and once here, while losing one here and one in Orillia. Ken Croft, Elmer Lee, Joe McNulty and George Masters led the victors, while Lou Nickle notched three for the losers, and Don Ashbee got a couple. Two ace goalies in action. Third-place Petes have to keep hustling to stay up near the top.

* * * * * *

'Twas a nip-and-tuck ball number Saturday aft in Cobourg ere the home club grabbed an 8-6 verdict over our junior Liflocs. C's came through with a brace of markers in the eighth to win but they had to really work for it as Lee and later Frizzelle pitched neat ball and had okay backing. Also the boys under Howie Dalton and Shockey Mein were running 'em ragged on the paths. Sullivan got two hits, as Pammett and MasSporran each banged out a double, the latter and Sullivan pilfering a base apiece, and Kearns stealing two. Whitby (with some former seniors aboard) play here twice on the Wednesday holiday, at 10 am. and at two p.m. in league fixutres.

Cobourg Gains 8-6 Tussle From Liflocs

Cobourg yanked out an 8-6 Lakeshore Baseball League decision over Peterborough Liflocs in a tidy loop tilt in Cobourg on Saturday afternoon. Liflocs play Whitby twice here on Wednesday, the July 1 holiday.

Each side scored three runs in the first inning, and each added two in the second. Cobourg went ahead with a run in the fifth. The Dalton-Mein lads tied it once more in the top of the eighth, but Cobourg broke through with the winning markers in the last part of the eigth inning. They only outhit Liflocs by 10-8 and had four errors to the losers' two. Ingamells fanned 10 in the seven heats he worked for Cobourg, Lawless finishing up to whiff three. Lee hurled fine ball for the visitors till he weakened slightly in the eighth, Frizzelle finishing up.

Sullivan had two singles, and Foley and Pammett each a double for the losers, as Kearns pilfered two bases, and Foley and Sullivan each stole one. Campbell and Galoski each had two singles for Cobourg.

St. Edmund's batters did poorly and the side was all out for 51. E. Chapman scored 18 and B. Spratley nine. There were 11 extras out of the total.

The visitors had no trouble getting the necessary runs. F. Smith and B. Roberts took the score to 26 when the former was out for 16. F. Booth joined Roberts and the pair got the needed runs with the score at 60 for one wicket, when the match ended. It was the sixth straight council win for Peterborough.

Toronto Yorks Take Petes In 16-8 Lacrosse Fray To Hold Second Spot Alone

Bobby Thorpe's Trailermen journeyed to Orillia Saturday night and absorbed a 16-8 defeat at the hands of Toronto Yorks in a regular senior "A" lacrosse struggle before a good-sized crowd. The defeat left the champs a third place tie with Fergus Thistles, each with nine victories and four defeats behind the league-leading St. Catharines Athletics and Toronto running one-two in the hectic senior gutted-stick derby.

The teams battled on even terms for the first half of play as both George Johnson and Moon Wootton gave great displays of goaltending at either end. Yorks took a slight edge in the third frame to eke out a 10-8 margin in a torrid session, then went on to complete their victory march by peppering six tallies past the rival custodian to double the score on the highly-rated Liftlock City crew.

LED THE ATTACK

Leading the attack for the Toronto-Orillia pack were George Masters, Ken Croft, Joe McNulty and Elmer Lee, who led the northern sharpshooters with a total aggregate of 19 points. Lee, a former "bad boy" of hockey and lacrosse, together with the veteran master playmaker, Scotty McPhail, and the rest, showed an even temper to prove an important factor. The stirling work of Johnson in the cage, however, possibly proved the most effective single weapon of all from a defensive standpoint; he stopped 48 shots in all against 32 for the Moon.

Brightest star for Peterborough from an offensive standpoint was big Lou Nickle, whose mighty rushes with his mates contributed three brilliant goals; while reliable Don Ashbee potted a pair. Curly Mason, Nip O'Heron and Ross Powless were the other Trailer marksmen with single tallies.

Toronto Takes Twin Bill From Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are driving for the International League lead. The Herd has been going great guns for the last two weeks, jumping into second place ahead of Rochester Red Wings.

Buffalo now is only 1½ games behind Montreal Royals.

One answer to the Bisons' current surge upward is pitcher Milt Jordan. The righthander became the loop's top hurler during the weekend, winnig his eighth and ninth games of the season.

Jordan, his record blemished by only one setback, shut out Syracuse Chiefs 1-0 Saturday with a six-hitter and won his own game in a relief role Sunday. Jordan hit a three-run, ninth-inning homer to beat Ottawa Athletics in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader 10-7. The second contest was called at the end of three innings to enable the A's to hop a train.

SPLIT DOUBLEHEADER

The Royals and Baltimore split a Sunday twin affair, the league-leaders winning the opener 7-5 and the Orioles the abbreviated and rain delayed nightcap 2-0.

Lefty Tom LaSorda won his eighth game of the season in the opener, but needed help from Ronnie Lee in the ninth. Bob Greenwood held the Royals to four hits in the second contest for his fifth win.

Toronto Maple Leafs recovered from a 3-0 whitewashing Saturday at the hands of the Red Wings to sweep a doubleheader Sunday from Springfield Cubs.

Hal Keller's double with one aboard in the eighth of the opener drove in the run that gave the Leafs a 3-2 victory. The Leafs had a 12-1 lead going into the sixth of the abbreviated nightcap, which they won 12-8.

The Wings split a Sunday doubleheader with Syracuse, losing the opener to the Chiefs 3-2 and winning the nightcap 10-9.

In a Saturday game, Springfield pitcher Dave Hillman walked in the winning run as Ottawa shaded the Cubs 6-5.

Milwaukee Suffers 11-1 Rout; Yankees Bow 4-1

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Moaning Milwaukee fans were crying in their beer today over the collapse of their beloved Braves but their gloom was shared by millions of New Yorkers who still cannot understand what has happened to the once high-and-mighty Yankees. Seven straight defeats have been suffered by the world champion Yankees, the same outfit that had rolled up 18 consecutive victories earlier this month. A week ago the Yankees led the American League by 11½ games. Today, following their 4-1 defeat at the hands of Cleveland, the Yankees' margin over the Indians has been whittled to six games.

Milwaukee's plight is even worse. The Braves, too, dropped their seventh in a row Sunday, suffering an 11-1 rout by Brooklyn to lose first place to the Dodgers. Just seven days ago, they were enjoying a comfortable three-game bulge.

RACES TIGHTEN UP

The two league races tightened considerably following Sunday's results. The White Sox walloped Boston 13-4 to climb within 6½ games of the Yankees. The third-place White Sox now have won seven straight and 14 of their last 16.

Philadelphia's fourth-place Phillies halted St. Louis with an 11-inning 4-3 triumph over the Cardinals to close within four games of the league-leading Dodgers. The Cardinals remained in third place, one game behind the Braves and two back of Brooklyn.

New York's fifth-place Giants thumped Chicago Cubs 12-2 to wind up their western swing with nine victories in 13 games. The resurging Giants are only 7½ games off the pace. Cincinnati's improved Redlegs shellacked Pittsburgh Pirates twice 4-1 and 9-2.

DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADERS

Two American league doubleheaders ended in splits. Philadelphia's Athletics nipped the Browns 2-1 after St. Louis won the opener 4-1. Detroit whipped Washington 5-1 after the Senators took the first game 5-2.

Al Rosen's three-run homer and Early Wynn's three-hit pitching gave the Indians a sweep of their three-game series with the Yanks.

A five-run fourth inning climaxed by Minnie Minoso's three-run homer and Harry Dorish's relief pitching helped Virgil Trucks post his second straight victory since he joined the White Sox two weeks ago.

The Dodgers backed up Russ Meyer's four-hit pitching with 16 hits. Warren Spahn was the victim of most of the cannonading. Carl Furillo banged three doubles, Jackie Robinson hit a double and triple and Gil Hodges blasted his 13th home run.

Granny Hammer's 11th-inning double followed by two infield outs produced the winning Philadelphia run over the Cardinals.

CLUB 5 PITCHERS

The Giants clubbed five Chicago pitchers for 16 hits. Jim Hearn pitched a six-hitter and slammed a bases loaded triple for his sixth victory.

Gus Bell drove in seven runs on his 18th and 19th homers and two doubles to help the Redlegs sweep a five-game series with the Pirates.

Pitcher Carl Scheib singled following catcher Joe Astroth's two-out triple in the ninth to give the Athletics their 2-1 triumph.

Billy Hoeft's eight-hitter gave the Tigers a split after Walter Masterson had held them to eight hits in the first game to register his sixth victory for Washington.

96 For One Aussie Score

LONDON (CP)—Australia had scored 96 for one wicket at the close of play Saturday in the second innings of the second test cricket match with England at Lords.

Australia was all out in its first innings Friday night for 346 and England, with an overnight score of 177, ran its first inings total to 372.

The first Test match of a series of five for the mythical Ashes ended in a draw forced by rain.

A 145-run stand by Len Hutton put the home team slightly ahead of the Australians when its last wicket fell.

At lunch-time, soon after Hutton was caught by Grame Hole, England stood at 287 for three and needed only 60 runs for the lead in the second cricket test of the tour.

But the deadly bowling of the Australians, combined with timid and uninspired English batting, dismissed the side for 85 more runs.

The Australians went into their second innings confidently and by close had reached 96 for one

UN'S TOP OFFICIALS—Dag Hammarskjold (left), secretary-general of the United Nations General Assembly, confers in Ottawa with Canada's Hon. Lester B. Pearson, assembly president. They agreed it would be premature to seek an emergency Korean session of the assembly at least before current talks in Seoul have time to crystallize.

Woman 102 Enjoys Plane Flight

And seven of her 200-odd descendants turned up in the pouring rain at Carp airfield, about 10 miles southwest of here, to see her do it.

"It was absolutely wonderful," she told them after the 15-minute flight. "If I was younger I'd like to go up much more."

The plane, a small four-seater, was flown by Jack Ralph, president of the Kingston Flying Club, who had read of Mrs. Majaury's wish on her birthd y last Thursday "just to get above the trees."

LET OUT WHOOP

She nodded to her sons, Joe, 78, and Tom, 59, climbed into the cockpit and let out a whoop as the engine started.

At 1,500 feet she said the altitude would do fine, and sat watching the countryside slide by through the rain-streaked window.

On landing she brushed off people wanting to help her down. She shook Mr. Ralph's hand "God bless you," she said. "When I was a girl someone said carts would fly without horses. Now I've been in one."

Identify Wrecked Plane

HALIFAX (CP)—Aircraft wreckage found last week by a Quebec Indian trapper in southern Labrador has been identified as that of a United States civilian aircraft missing since last fall, with two men aboard. The plane, a twin-engine Beechcraft, disappeared Oct. 16, 1952, on a flight from Idlewilde airport, New York, to Goose Bay, Labrador.

Urge Subsidy For Housing

TORONTO (CP)—A conference on housing needs, sponsored by the Canadian Legion, expressed the view Sunday that low-rental housing should be made available with a public subsidy.

T. A. M. Hulse of Ottawa, head of the legion's Ontario command, was conference chairman.

"Estimates reveal that the unsatisfied demand for housing is greater today than ever before in Canadian history," said a statement issued at the close of the two-day conference, attended by representatives of 15 national organizations including labor bodies, women's groups, churches, welfare workers and the legion.

"It is the opinion of the conference that the provision of good housing is a basic protection for family life and should be considered a top priority by governments."

Will Build $210,000 Water Tank

500,000 Gallon Tank Will Supplement Lindsay's Water

LINDSAY — (ENS) — The Lindsay Board of Water Commissioners today approved in principle the building of a $210,000 storage tank, to supplement the present tank in use since 1940, and now considered inadequate for the town's needs. The tank will hold 500,000 gallons.

The new tank to be built in the east ward of town, near the eastern boundary would, according to the architect, W. B. Redfern, of Toronto, provide maximum storage facilities necessary for the present rate of water consumption and would give better water service to both the east ward and western sections of the town, by joining up with the present tank, at the western boundary.

The architect recommended a larger main to connect the two mains, across the town, since, he said, the main serving the existent tank is not large enough for efficient service.

Mr. Redfern quoted a price of some $150,000 for the 500,000 gallon tank plus $60,000 for the connecting work on the mains. Other quotations were $130,000 for a 416,000 gallon tank, $85,000 for a 250,000 gallon tank.

TOWN GROWING

Mayor Lamb, in commenting on the report, which was the result of inquiries made by the board earlier this year, said that the present rate of growth of the town made the building of the tank necessary. Mr. Redfern added that if the present filtration plant is enlarged during the next five years, it would need some 1,500,000 storage capacity. A 750,000 underground tank at the new plant, plus the new elevated tank would take care of this need.

Mayor Lamb also asked whether the tank would provide enough storage facilites in the event of large new industry moving to town, and was assured that it would.

An additional cost to the estimate would be a contract of some $15,000 probable to a local builder, for the concrete foundation for the tank. The tank would be some 125 feet high, to equal its level with that of the existent tank.

Fierce Storm Cuts Hydro Line

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A short, fierce electrical storm hit the Campbellford area Sunday evening, plunging part of the town and the district into a hydro blackout and damaging crops.

High winds and lightning hit the town about 6 p.m. and was all over in about 20 minutes. It cut the 4,400 volt feeder line which crosses the Trent canal to the west side at the Highway 30 bridge. The heavy cable dropped into the river. Campbellford Utilities linemen worked all night to restore power.

Eight transformer bushings (insulators) were broken and 35 individual line fuses were blown out.

Crops were flattened and some trees blown down in an eight-mile path that reached from Healey Falls to Meyersburg travelling due east. A little hail fell.

The Peterborough rural hydro office said it had received no reports of a storm in this district.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD HEROINE of a near-drowning in Pigeon Lake Sunday afternoon, Miss Ruby Perdue (right) gazes at a portrait of her brother-in-law, Joseph Devlin, 38, 125½ Lock St., with Mrs. Devlin. When Mr. Devlin sank beyond his depth, Miss Perdue towed him to shallow water where Mrs. Devlin helped to carry him to shore. There Miss Perdue applied artificial respiration until the arrival of a doctor with oxygen. Feared to be near death, Mr. Devlin was given the last rites of the church but rallied and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where his condition was reported improved today. —Examiner Staff Photo

R. J. Kidd Businessman Churchman Dies Aged 92

BY HARRY THEOBALD

Robert John Kidd, 462 Hunter St. W., retired president of Robt. Neill Ltd., chain of retail shoe stores in Ontario, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday morning. His age was 92.

Illness of only a week appeared to be an effect of shock from a fall in which he suffered a broken hip. He had been a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital since then.

Mr. Kidd had been identified with the business life of Peterborough chiefly through his association with the late Robert Neill and subsequently to his death as the head of the business in the responsibility of president and general manager until his retirement in 1934 at the age of 75, succeeded by Clare G. Collins.

A lively interest in the business and the staff in Peterborough remained with Mr. Kidd continually through the nineteen years of his retirement. His last of customary calls at the store was only a day or so before the misfortune of the accident which developed into fatality.

ARRIVED IN 1880

That interest was characteristic of R. J. Kidd from his arrival in Peterborough in 1880, beginning work here in the harness business. It was a reflection of the sincerity of his nature, in all its aspects of literally serving the public.

It was that earnest attention to the needs and wishes of customers that stamped Mr. Kidd as a salesman who built a wide friendship on the confidence of the people who met him in the Neill store. They were customers from the city and country in the first place, and they remained admirers of Mr. Kidd to the end of his business years and just as warmly in retirement.

Born in Walkerton, Ontario, Mr. Kidd took up harness-making there as a boy out of school, served his apprenticeship, and then came to Peterborough. He recalled to the Examiner one day recently, how he answered one of many papers, he answered one of them, discovering that job was in Peterborough with Wm. J. Devlin, whose harness shop was on the north side of Hunter St. about opposite the Percival store.

Mr. Kidd remained with Mr. Devlin into his early twenties, when he transferred to the B. F. Ackerman leather factory in Port Perry and subsequently in Peterborough.

By that time Mr. Kidd had become established here and as a personality in the community. It is safe to say that he favorably impressed everyone he ever met. And, not the least, was Robert Neill.

One evening, Mr. Neill called at the home of Mr. Kidd and offered him the managership of that retail business comprising then an extending chain of seven stores. To Mr. Kidd's reply that he had no experience in selling, Mr. Neill said he was convinced of Mr. Kidd's ability. Within a short time, that overture was accepted, thereby beginning a business relationship that was based on an enduring friendship.

Mr. Neill's estimate of the capacity of the man he chose to succeeded himself as manager was evidence of his own percipience. The Peterborough business flourished to such an extent, that Mr. Kidd eventually became president of the company's at Mr. Neill's death.

Two years ago, in an interview with the Examiner, Mr. Kidd's tribute was expressed in the warmth of these words: "Robert Neill was one of the finest men I ever met. He was fair and liberal in all his dealings, most agreeable in all his relations with me and with people generally. My associations with him during the long period from 1903 to 1934 were always harmonious and exceedingly pleasant."

Mr. Kidd mentioned incidents of the generous and considerate disposition of Robert Neill, and emphasized that the atmosphere of the business extended from Mr. Neill through the staff and out to the host of customers.

"In that relationship we could hardly do anything else but succeed," was Mr. Kidd's modest memory in a permanent spirit of gratefulness to his employer, the man who had chosen him as associate and successor.

INTEREST IN CHURCH

One of Mr. Kidd's deep interests was Trinity Church. He is the last survivor of its original board of trustees. Those contemporaries of his were: Dr. M. A. Morrison, W. G. Morrow, Robert Neill, Dr. Frank C. Neal, A. B. Cunningham, Wm. Switzer, Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

Toronto Woman Suffers Injury, Driver Charged

A smash-up at Armour Rd. and Lansdowne St. about 6.00 p.m. Saturday, when a Toronto woman suffered minor shock and abrasions, resulted in charges of drunk and careless driving being laid against Lloyd Greenley, 33, of 293 Caddy St., today.

Hearing of the charges was adjourned until July 8 by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

The accident occurred as Mr. and Mrs. Ronald W. Bunting, of 71 Hillcrest Rd., Toronto, were nearing the end of a 1,500-mile trip to New York.

Greenley was driving east on Lansdowne St. in a half-ton pick-up truck belonging to a construction firm when he apparently started to turn left onto Armour Road. The right front of the truck collided with the right front of the car driven by Mr. Bunting, who was driving west into the city.

Mrs. Bunting received a shaking up and suffered minor abrasions requiring medical treatment. Damage to the car was estimated at about $800 and to the truck $750.

PC William G. Scott investigated.

He outlined four main aims of the union as the 40-hour week, a basic rate of pay which would provide workers with a proper standard of living, the adoption of its job classification program and a guaranteed annual wage.

Man Saved From Drowning By Sister-In-Law, 16 At Pigeon Lake Picnic

Joseph Devlin In Difficulty Beyond Depth Brought Round By Artificial Respiration Believed Dead, Last Rites Performed

Miss Ruby Perdue, a 16-year-old office-worker at CGE, used the knowledge of lifesaving and artificial respiration she had learned at school to save the life of her brother-in-law late Sunday afternoon. It was a close call for Joseph Devlin, 38, of 125½ Lock St., a glazier with the Peterborough Lumber Co., who was going for his first swim of the season in Pigeon Lake during a family picnic on the beach at T. J. O'Neill's summer resort on the western shore of the lake about eight miles from Downeyville.

Venturing out past a steep drop in the bed of the lake, Mr. Devlin suddenly called for help to his wife's sister, Miss Perdue, the only other swimmer in the party. Miss Perdue lives with Mr. and Mrs. Devlin in Peterborough.

By the time Miss Perdue had reached his side, Mr. Devlin had sunk beneath the surface. Putting one arm around his waist and swimming with the other, Miss Perdue towed him several feet across the shoal to about five feet of water. From there Mrs. Devlin helped to carry her husband to the shore.

Miss Perdue tried to find Mr. Devlin's pulse but it had stopped. Remembering the lessons she had been taught in the Downeyville School and at Lindsay High

JOSEPH DEVLIN

School, she applied artificial respiration to the unconscious man, while Mrs. Devlin ran to the O'Neill house for help. She called Dr. B. E. Kelly, of Bobcaygeon, her former doctor, and the Rev. C. R. Kaye, of Downeyville.

Miss Perdue continued artificial respiration until the doctor arrived with a supply of oxygen. Mr. Devlin revived momentarily but relapsed into unconsciousness and was removed to the home of his father-in-law, Peter Perdue, R.R. 1, Downeyville, about two miles away.

In spite of the oxygen and the application of heating pads, Mr. Devlin's breathing grew fainter and then died away. Father Kaye performed the last rites of the church but Mr. Devlin rallied and was removed by Nisbett ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was placed in an oxygen tent. He was improving today after spending a comfortable night.

The near tragedy brought to a sudden end a happy family picnic which included Mr. and Mrs. Devlin, their five children, Miss Perdue and Mrs. Lillian Cunningham and her three children, of 46 Jackson Ave.

Early Sunday afternoon they had motored to the parental home of Mrs. Devlin and Miss Perdue. After a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Perdue, they had gone to the beach a couple of miles away at O'Neill's summer resort. At that point the water is quite shallow for several hundred feet out into the lake until the bottom drops suddenly into several feet of water. Mr. Devlin and Miss Perdue had swum out beyond this shoal when the former called out that he couldn't make it back.

"I didn't know I could swim well enough to rescue him when I did it," said Miss Perdue, who received high praise from Dr. Kelly for her lifesaving efforts.

Olympic Association Seeks Better Public Relations

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—The much-criticized Canadian Olympic Association has laid plans for a "good-will" campaign to get itself out of the doghouse with the public and press of Canada.

Directors of the COA met Saturday under the chairmanship of newly-elected Xen Farmer of Montreal, heard from its own ranks that it was in ill-repute with the public and decided something must be done to improve its relations with the people. It admitted the country's showing in Olympic Games hadn't been up to snuff and, in effect, laid the groundwork for a new deal.

Among other things, the directors:

1. Gave whole-hearted approval to the Canadian Olympic training plan designed to help the country prepare for future Olympics in track and field.

2. Recognized that the public and press have been taking a dim view of its operations and made initial advances to redeem itself.

3. Paid off its financial responsibilities to Jack Burney, the Vancouver kid who athletes and the public figured was given a raw deal in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki.

DON'T PULL PUNCHES

Two Toronto men—Don Ross, newly-appointed member at large of the COA, and George Duthie, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition sports department—didn't pull punches about what they considered to be wrong in the Olympic setup. The meeting was in accord with their views.

Duthie, who recently completed a cross-country tour advocating the training plan, said the COA must give "very careful consideration to good public relations."

If the proper approach is made to the press and radio of Canada you will get 100-per-cent co-operation," he added.

Ross, making his initial appearance as a COA member, bluntly told directors that "the man on the street holds the Oylmpic association in ill-repute at the moment."

SEEK FRIENDLY PRESS

He suggested that "an overriding committee be set up to handle money-raising campaigns and to get a friendly press and radio."

As a means of providing funds for sadly-needed interprovincial, national and international competion for Canadian athletes, Duthie and Ross suggested the COA might arrange with the government and race tracks in Ontario, and possibly Quebec, to extend the racing seasons a day or two and donate the proceeds to the COA for promotion of amateur sports.

Farmer and other COA members endorsed the statements of Duthie and Ross.

Directors made no comment on anouncement that the celebrated Burney case had been cleaned up.

LOUD PROTESTS

The 25-year-old hurdler, now living in Seattle, Wash., paid his way from Germany, where he was stationed with the United States Army, to the 1952 games and was charged $6 a day for lodgings and food in the Canadian camp. He was not allowed to compete and the COA's decision resulted in loud protests from Canada.

Burney paid $100 out of his own pocket to get to Helsinki. He believed he was on the team as an entry in the 400-metre hurdles but Canadian officials said he was not eligible because he had not competed in the Olympic trials at Hamilton.

Directors were told that a letter and cheque went to Burney June 1. The amount was not disclosed.

Middlecoff Winner Of Manakiki Tourney

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis won the $2,400 first prize in the 72-hole Manakiki open golf tournament Sunday, defeating Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., on the second hole of a "sudden death" playoff after they had tied at 275.

Middlecoff, who won the 1949 U.S. Open at Chicago, grabbed the victory with a par four to Kroll's five on the second extra hole.

Kroll's runner-up prize was $1,800.

Tommy Bolt of Maplewood N.J., wound up third with 279 for $1,400, and deadlocked at 280 were Jim Ferrier, Dutch Harrison, Ed Oliver and Fredie Haas.

Tom Fool Captures Carter Handicap

NEW YORK (AP)—Any doubts that Tom Fool is one of the greatest race horses the country has seen were dispelled Saturday when the Greentree Stable's four-year-old equalled the Aqueduct track record in winning the $59,800 Carter Handicap under a crushing burden of 135 pounds.

No horse ever had carried that weight and won the Carter in 52 previous runnings. It was the 25th start for Tom Fool and his 16th victory. He has been out of the money only once.

Tom Fool, ridden by Toronto-born Ted Atkinson, finished two lengths ahead of Mrs. Jan Burke's Squared Away, with Eatontown third, another 2¼ lengths back.

Pledge Support

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Olympic Association will give its whole-hearted support if Toronto makes a bid for the 1960 Olympic Games, it was decided Saturday.

The subject came up before the board of directors meeting of the COA and was enthusiastically received.

DONALD W. RICHARDSON, DC, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Richardson, Bridgenorth, who graduated recently from the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College, Toronto. He will start a pratice locally in September.

Kingston Victorious Against UEW Squad

Kingston United took a 3-1 Eastern Soccer League victory at home Saturday over Peterborough UEW. It was the latter team's first league loss since they entered the circuit. The much improved Kingston club deserved the triumph with a grand performance against stiff opposition from the smart UEW championship crew.

The visitors had a hard job to get 11 players to make the trip, and the hot weather and travel told on the players who had no subs. Kingston scored first but Hoyle evened it up and the count was 1-1 at the interval. Kingston finished stronger against the tiring Peterborough squad to notch two markers toward the end and carry off the verdict.

2 Speedboats Crash Neither Driver Hurt

ARNPRIOR (CP) — Art Hatch, noted Hamilton speedboat racer, Saturday crashed into another boat at an estimated 90 miles an hour during the Ottawa Valley Shrine Club regatta.

Neither Hatch nor Joe Less of Tonawanda, N.Y., pilot of the other boat, was injured when a cable broke in the Hatch boat during a heat of one race. The $5,000 boat sank following the collision but will be salvaged. Less was throwu from his boat.

In class C outboards, Victor Bieda of Buffalo, N.Y., tied with Jack Weston of Smiths Falls in one heat.

COLDSPRINGS—(ENS)— The Cobourg Rotary Club held a Strawberry Festival on Friday night in Coldsprings hall.

About 175 sat down to well-laden tables of delicious food prepared by the Coldsprings' Women's Association of St. Paul's United Church. The tables were decorated with streamers of royal blue and gold, the rotarian colors, and small vases of matching colored flowers. The stage of the hall was artistically arranged with large baskets of peonies, Canterbury bells, orange blossoms and primrose.

The president of the Cobourg club, John Ewart, presided.

Mrs. Seymour-Taylor was piano accompanist. Seated at the head table and introduced by F. L. Searancke were: Dr. and Mrs. Moorehouse, Dr. and Mrs. Crabbe, Mr. and Mrs. John Ewart, Mr. and Mrs. E. McFadyen, Mrs. A. Randell, Mrs. Bertha Bright Knapp, Mrs. Seymour-Taylor, Mrs. Searancke, Bill Stewart, Reeve C. Burrison of Hamilton township and Mrs. Burrison, Deputy-reeve M. Sandercock and Mrs. Sandercock and Councillor A. Jamieson and Mrs. Jamieson.

Mrs. R. A. Knapp of Detroit, sang several solos, and led the community singing.

Dr. Crabbe proposed a toast to the ladies and Mrs. C. Brooks, president of the W.A., replied.

The guest speaker was Hugh Palmer, Ottawa, director of CBC Television, who discussed the difficulties encountered in bringing the coronation pictures from London to Canada for television. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Moorehouse and thanked by E. McFadyen.

Mrs. A. Randell sang two solos.

Montreal Athletes Jolt Oxford Team

By W. R. WHEATLEY

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—Three Montreal athletes handed the touring Oxford-Cambridge team a jolt Saturday by winning three of the top events at the Eastern Canadian track and field championships.

The Ox-Cam boys emerged with four firsts, including David Law's victory in the featured Coronation mile, but the opposition was far less rugged.

The 10-hour meet rolled along through 71 finals, plus 30 heats and semi-finals, producing four Canadian open records, three in the women's division and one in the men's juvenile class.

The Toronto Track and Field Club put up a dazzling show. Of the 71 finals, 26 were won by the Toronto TFC contingent in both men's and women's classes, from midget up. Tom Skimming won five firsts in field events—four in junior and one in senior.

The first British setback came in the 440-yard open hurdles when Keith Holmes of Montreal and Dubuque University, Iowa, outlasted bespectacled Harry Whittle. As the two cleared the last hurdle, Holmes moved in front and ourtaced Whittle to the tape. Holmes' time was 55.7.

Ivan Livingstone, another Dubuque star from Montreal, took the measure of Britain's Al Sexton and Austin Pinnington in the 100-yard dash. Sexton essayed too much in trying for both the 100 and the quarter-mile, closely scheduled on the program.

Livingston took the first heat handily in 10.4, with Pinnington qualifying by placing second. Irving Petross of Detroit won the second heat, also in 10.4. Dave Innis of Montreal placed second. Sexton romped off with his heat in 10 seconds flat, Nayland Moll of Toronto placing second.

Before the final, Sexton made his bid in the 440 and lost to Jack Carroll, the Montreal-University of Michigan quarter-miler. Sexton won by two yards in 50.7.

Coming back for the 100 final, Sexton failed to place. Livingstone won it in 10.3, with Petross second and Pinnington third.

Law in the Coronation mile and Chris Chataway in the three-mile run won as they pleased. Law took the mile in the slow time of 4:27.5, with an 80-yard margin over Leo Weiss of Toronto East York Andy Crawford of Montreal was third. The red-haired Chataway made a show of the four other contestants in the three-mile, lapping the field three times and winning in 14:45.0.

Whittle took first in the open broad jump, needing only 22 feet, 1¾ inches to win. Then the Ox-Cam boys mustered a team of Sexton, Chris Higham, Whittle and Pinnington to win the 440-yard relay in 44.4, with the Montreal Olympic AC team second and Toronto East York third.

Of the four Canadian records broken, Carol Smith of Toronto TFC accounted for two, both in junior events. She erased the discus mark of 94 feet, one inch with a toss of 101 feet, five inches. She also cracked the junior broad jump record of 16 feet, 11½ inches, bettering it by a quarter-inch.

Joyce Brennan, also of the Toronto TFC, broke her own record in the women's open discus event, winning with 125 feet, 2½ inches. Her former mark of 124 feet, three inches was made in Hamilton at the Olympic trials last year.

The only open record set in the men's division went to Dick Anderson of Detroit in the juvenile pole vault. Anderson cleared 11 feet, 10 inches to break the old mark of 11 feet, 6½ inches.

Joan Wood of Montreal Olympic Club won the 100-yard open in 11.9, the 220 and the broad jump

John Sloan of Cornwall won the midget 100-yard final and the midget 220-yard dash.

Cornwall Collegiate finished second to Montreal TFC in the juvenile men's 880-yard relay while Don Smith of Cornwall Collegiate ran third in the midget 880-yard run.

Strawberry Jam in 15 minutes

COMPARE THESE TWO METHODS

WITH CERTO

1. Mrs. A. makes jam the short-boil way with CERTO. She has 2 pounds of fruit prepared ready to start at 9 o'clock.

2. The dotted line shows level of the prepared fruit in Mrs. A's saucepan.

3. Mrs. A. adds 3 pounds of sugar. A pound of jam made with CERTO contains no more sugar than a pound made the old long-boil way, but she knows the CERTO recipe will give her 50% more jam.

4. Mrs. A. brings the mixture to a full rolling boil; boils hard ONE MINUTE only; removes from stove and adds ½ bottle (4 ozs.) Certo. CERTO is the natural jellying substance in fruit in pounds of fruit. She gets sure results because she follows the CERTO recipe EXACTLY.

6. Mrs. A's 10 glasses of jam were made in just 15 minutes.

THE OLD WAY

1. Mrs. B. makes jam the old-fashioned, long-boil way. She, too, is ready to start her jam making at 9 o'clock.

2. Mrs. B. starts off with the same amount of prepared fruit in her saucepan.

3. Mrs. B. uses the old-fashioned long-boil recipe which calls for "one pound of sugar to every pound of fruit". So she weighs out 3 pounds of sugar and adds it to her prepared fruit.

4. Mrs. B. boils the mixture about 30 minutes before the jam thickens to the desired consistency. This evaporates about ⅓ the weight of the fruit, darkens the color and arms about 3 pounds (6 glasses) of jam from the same amount of fruit. Until it is finished she cannot tell for sure how well her jam will turn out.

6. Mrs. B. took 45 minutes to make her 6 glasses of jam.

Certo gave Mrs. A. sure results... much more jam... saved time, work and money

Austria Wants Tourists To Pay Visit

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Austria needs tourists and, one may say, tourists need Austria.

Austria needs tourists' money and the tourists may see at moderate cost one of the world's famous cities, Vienna, and a country of mingled pastoral and mountain beauty.

The delegates to the May congress in Vienna of the International Chamber of Commerce found the city and country so delightful that probably each one of them came away determined to pass the word along.

I asked Burgomaster Jonas of Vienna if he had any special word for Canada. He said, through an interpreter:

"We would like our friends abroad to know that even if, in Vienna, one is near the Iron Curtain, they can safely come here.

NEED BUSINESS

"We do not want to be written off the books of other democracies . . . We need the moral backing of democratic countries. If our friends do not come to visit us, then the Viennese will feel that they have been forgotten. It will be a heavy loss, also, for the democracies.

"That is why we asked the International Chamber of Commerce to come here, so that our friends may learn about us for themselves."

This statement of the Burgomaster draws attention to the hesitation felt by some would-be visitors because of the presence of Russian soldiers.

Vienna and Austria are occupied by four ountries—Britain, the United States, France, and Russia. But, in Vienna, one comes and goes as one pleases and virtually forgets that the occupation exists.

In Vienna one will note the big Red Star over the Imperial hotel, and Russian soldiers at the doors of both the Imperial and Grand hotel, which have been taken over by the Russians. But these soldiers looked bored, although, one is told, they will expose your film or seize your camera if you snap a picture.

And one may occasionally see the four-power jeep, carrying a soldier of each country, which patrols the city, or even pass the time of night with its occupants as one passes them in a taxi or car.

Entering or leaving Vienna by train or car a "grey card" is needed to pass through the Russian zone, but the card is easily obtained unless one is on the Russian's blacklist.

The city's store windows are a delight to the shopper, and probably especially interesting to the feminine shopper.

For the most part the Viennese are well-fed and well-dressed, and, outwardly at least, seem to put up with the occupation with a fair traditional gaiety and grace, although undoubtedly more subdued than in its grand imperial days, is still there in abundance.

Spectacular Scenery Lost In Depths Of Oceans

WASHINGTON — Earth's most spectacular scenery may lie at the bottom of the oceans.

Thanks to the comparatively recent invention of the sonic fathometer, so many towering submarine mountains, vast submerged chasms and mysterious flat-topped volcanoes are being discovered that chartmakers keep up to date only with difficulty.

The world's greatest known ocean deep was found only a year ago. Plumbing the Mariana Trench in the Pacific about 200 miles southwest of Guam, the British oceanographic research vessel HMS Challenger located bottom at 35,640 feet, thereby discovering a pit in which 29,000-foot Mount Everest could be buried more than a mile deep.

CHARTED RECENTLY

Much previously unknown deep sea bottom has been charted since World War II. Among the leading post-war expeditions have been those of the National Geographic Society, the Woods Hole Institution of Oceanography and Columbia University, which jointly explored the Mid-Atlantic Ridge, a submerged mountain chain extending 10,000 miles from Iceland nearly to the Antarctic Circle.

In this ridge, which has peaks more than 20,000 feet high, the ocean scientists found a previously unknown mountain range 50 miles long and 10 miles wide, comparable to California's San Bernardino Mountains. They also learned that the Hudson River gorge extends 100 miles farther into the Atlantic than had been suspected.

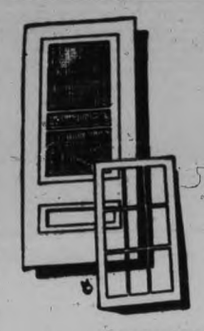
Newly discovered between Necker Island, Hawaiians, and Wake is the 1,000-mile-long Mid-Pacific Range, which has volcanic peaks up to 14,000 feet. Oceanographers also found the Mendocino Escarpment, a half-mile to a mile high, slashing due west off the California coast for 1,200 miles.

At about 200 places in the Pacific, strange "guyots," or flat-topped volcanoes, have been discovered on the sea floor. A rare Atlantic counterpart is charted some 800 miles due east of Washington, D.C. At least half a dozen "sea mounts," with normal cones, lie between Bermuda and the North Atlantic coast.

NEW GUINEA MARINE CANYONS

The Gulf of Alaska has a large number of submerged mountains 3,500 to 12,400 feet high, while huge canyons carved by submarine currents of some kind have been discovered off the coast of New Guinea. These match canyons off the coasts of Europe and North America.

Some of the modern sea floor discoveries have been negative. The National Geographic-Woods Hole expeditions were able to expunge banks between Newfoundland and the Azores that have been appearing on navigational charts since 1832 and 1878.



Before the days of the fathometer, sea depths normally were useful on a chart only when a ship's navigator could reach them with a sounding lead. Coming "on soundings" as he approached a coast, the navigator could compare the chart information with what he actually had under the keel, thus getting a check on his position.

With a fathometer and accurate charts of all sea bottoms everywhere, no ship will ever need be off soundings. By matching the fathometer readings to chart, the seafarer may one day merely follow known features of the sea floor from point to point, just as a motorist travels across a continent by means of road maps and visible landmarks.

Indignantly Deny Canadians Dull

TORONTO (CP) — Some Canadians are miffed because the British weekly, Truth, tabbed them as the dullest people in the Commonwealth.

"It's an asinine statement," said Prof. E. J. Pratt of the University of Toronto, noted writer of vigorous narrative verse.

"The Englishman doesn't know enough about us to say that," declared Robertson Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner and a noted author and playwright.

Their comments were presented Saturday by the Toronto Telegram, which selected a representative group of Canadians to reply to the blast.

Truth, in a full-page article signed "Curious Citizen," posed this question:

"How is it that Canadians have got a reputation for creating a brave new world when all the evidence is against them?"

The newspaper listed such Commonwealth personalities as South Australia's Sir Donald Bradman, in cricket; and New Zealand's Edmund Hillary, in mountain climbing, and said Canada's record looks dismal in comparison.

LACK OF KNOWLEDGE

Mr. Davies said by way of rebuttal:

"It's such a loaded kind of subject. . . I'm often in trouble myself by calling Canadians dull. But my own feeling is that Englishmen don't know enough about us; they don't take enough trouble to find out. Bradman, for example, is the dullest man in the world."

Prof. Pratt added: .

"It's written by some harebrain who has to have something to say. . . . There's as much dullness and snobbery over there as in Canada."

Jim Coleman of Toronto, one of the country's top sports columnists snorted:

"Dull? Is that guy kidding? Has he ever seen Lily St. Cyr do her strip tease at the Old Gayety in Montreal? That isn't dull, brother."

More than 1,000 entries were received for the instrumental and vocal competitions.

The RCAF training command band directed by F. C. O. Hint was a featured band. Four RCAF trumpet bands passed for the parade. They were from Centralia, Trenton, Clinton and one from Portage La Prairie, Man., which flew here for the festival.

Soloists were William Bell of New York, tuba soloist with the New York Philharmonic; Dixie Dean of Toronto, one of Canada's top accordionists; Raymond Hunker of St. Catharines, winner of the Canadian accordion championship, and Sgt. Thomas Magee, RCAF vocal soloist.

NEWEST COLLEGE—Carleton college in Ottawa, started in 1942, is Canada's newest university. It was founded when the capital was crowded with young people brought in on government work. The original idea was to give them something to do in the evenings. Before long it was well on its way to becoming a degree-issuing university. Its head is Dr. M. M. MacOdrum (centre) on the steps of the college with three of the 1,545 students registered last term.

Khaki College Builder Helps Found Newest University

By DONALD HAWORTH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Carleton College Canada's newest university, was started 11 years ago when the capital was crowded with young people brought in on government work. The original idea was to give them something to do in the evening.

But the man with the idea, Dr. H. M. Tory, also had the habit of founding universities. He helped to build the Khaki College in Britain for Canadian service men after the First World War. He founded the University of Alberta and was part founder of the University of British Columbia.

SURPRISE RESPONSE

Dr. Tory, supported by the Ottawa Association for the Advancement of Learning, began by putting an advertisement in the newspapers and waiting in a high school building one evening after hours for students to roll up.

He expected 100; 779 arrived.

Dr. Tory taught. Other teachers were hired part-time; by the month, by the week, by the night. Some of the courses cost $10.

And while this makeshift teaching was going on Dr. Tory worked out plans to found a real college for the veterans who would return after the war.

He looked for an assistant, a man who would understand veterans, a man who knew life as well as books. He chose Dr. M. M. MacOdrum.

A B.A. of Dalhousie, M.A. of McGill, PhD of Glasgow, Dr MacOdrum had been a Presbyterian minister, a newspaper worker, assistant to the president of a big corporation (Dominion Steel and Coal), a teacher at three universities, and on war assignments he had seen many parts of Canada, the United States and Europe.

IMPORTANT TASK

Dr. MacOdrum is 51, heavily-built and forthright. You know he believes it when he says:

"One of the most important tasks of education is to give a zest for living."

When he became president on Dr. Tory's death in 1947 he chose first to establish a school in the humanities; the applied sciences could wait.

"Today," Dr. MacOdrum says, "everybody knows how to do things but doesn't know why he does them. We are trying through the humanities to teach the way.

"The country has too few educated technicians. I would like to see men go on to engineering with an arts degree. In a top administrator what is wanted is sanity, wisdom, balance, appreciation of the human factor. That is what the liberal arts teach."

In the academic year just ended 1,545 students were registered, 412 of them working on full-time courses. Carleton is well-housed and has won the right to confer degrees. Students are coming from other countries.

The present degrees are in arts, commerce, journalism, and pure science. Initial advanced training is given in engineering, and the college may some time develop its own courses in applied science.

In 1946 there were six graduations—three in journalism, three in public administration. This year there were 123.

Carleton College has continued to develop its larger field among evening students. More than 1,100—61 per cent of them in the public services — attended lectures this year. Fathers and sons attend for landscape gardening; men of more than 70 turn up for conversational French.

In September the college begins its first post-graduate course in public administration.

There was one double fatality. Jules Lafreniere, 22, and Yvon Caplette, 23, both of Sorel, were killed when their car collided with a transport truck near Joliette, Que.

Leonard Jelfs, about 20, of London was killed at Brantford by lightning which struck the tree he was sheltering under during a storm.

Herbert Berlett, 60, of Listowel died of a fractured skull following what police termed a brawl at a party at Harriston.

Dies After Brawl

HARRISTON (CP)—Herbert Berlett, 60, of Listowel died in an ambulance on the way to Toronto Saturday after what police said was a brawl at a party here. He died of a fractured skull, doctors said. Police said there was a fight at the home of Mrs. Clayton Lang involving Berlett and Leo Lobsinger, 38, of Mildmay, a brother of Mrs. Lang. Police are holding Lobsinger on a charge of causing a disturbance.

Comedy Actor Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cris-Pin Martin, 59, the rotund actor who played Pancho in motion picture versions of "The Cisco Kid" died Saturday night of a heart attack. He had been featured in comedy roles since 1936. One of his best was in "Stage Coach," released in 1939.

Scotland Yard Announces Drastic Reorganization

By DONOVAN BESS

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard, determined to wipe out its list of unsolved murders, has announced a drastic reorganization.

This week the Yard will pull 200 policemen out of office chairs and put them on active crime-hunting. Three top superintendents will go to new key assignments.

In each year since the war ended, British police authorities have had to admit defeat in an average of 12 per cent of murder cases—and write into police files the words, "assailant unknown."

The Yard's tightening-up follows indignation over the fact that brutal killers—including sex fiends who attacked women and children—are still at large.

LATEST STIR

The latest public stir came early this month when two teen-age girls, bicycling along a "lover's lane" near the London suburb of Teddington, were raped and viciously stabbed by an unknown sadist-killer. Scotland Yard has put its best brains and equipment into an all-out effort to find the man who killed Barbara Songhurst, 16, and Christine Reed, 18. But so far the clues have been discouragingly thin.

The Yard's reorganization originally was ordered two years ago, when a committee of experts was set up to study the necessary changes.

The switch of 200 police officers from desk jobs this week will help meet a permanent shortage on the London force. Civil servants will take over the office work.

In the high-level personnel switch one of London's top crime fighters, chief superintendent Harold Hawkyard, was promoted to deputy commander to head a planning and research department.

Leather Shorts Good Buy Often Last For 40 Years

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—All Bavaria is a vista of hairy knees—the lederhosen season is on again.

Lederhosen are short leather pants with built-in suspenders and often fancied up with embroidery.

Lederhosen have more personality than a headwaiter. They're tougher than a gang fight. They last longer than a whale's tail and need less attention than two lovers in a canoe.

Nobody knows for certain where lederhosen got started. A couple of centuries ago, some Bavarian probably decided his knee breeches were too ragged or too hot. So he hacked them off well above the knee. The idea caught on. Tailors started turning out short pants made of chamois skin. Then the Bavarians found out what a good thing they had.

You can't—and must never—wash lederhosen. They acquire a genteel sheen through the years that puts an antique bronze to shame.

MUST BE AGED

Bavarians often say that lederhosen are not really aged properly until they can be tossed into a corner and stay upright.

All the males wear them, from kids no bigger than a beer stein to bearded ancients whose lederhosen, still made from chamois or stag leather, last up to 100 years if the wearer doesn't slide down too many mountains. Run-of-the-mill lederhosen of cowhide, which cost around $12, are good for 30 to 40 years.

The aura of age surrounding lederhosen makes it hard to see them in their original color, a fuzzy grey-green, except in a shop window. Young bloods use fat bacon rind to rub a new pair to the proper patina.

The lederhosen idea long ago spread to the rest of Germany, and they are exported in quantity to Scandinavia, the United States, Canada and Australia.

Last year Bavaria produced 500,000 pairs of lederhosen, half of them hand-made jobs with embroidery.

In most places lederhosen are still only outdoor gear. But in Munich, men even show up at night clubs in their leather shorts.

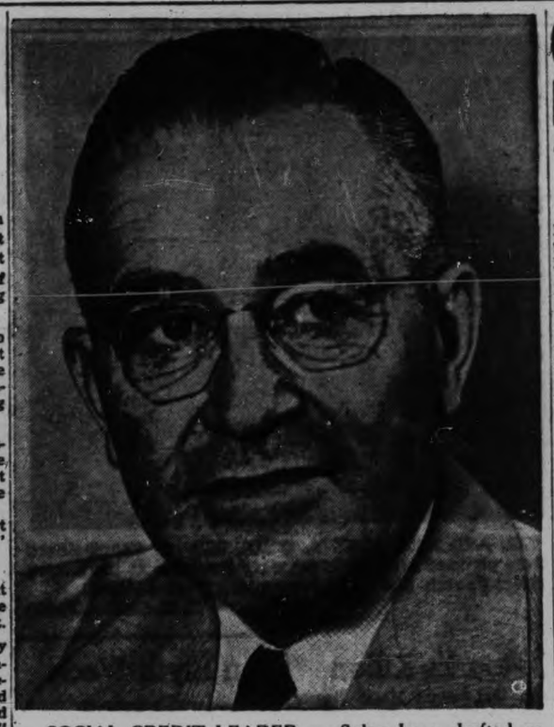
Flag Profit $3.38 Alderman Says

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Alderman John Charlton said in a statement issued during the weekend that his company made a profit of $3.38, before taxes, on each flag sold to the city recently.

The statement was in reply to a charge by controller W. Ernest Atkinson that the city paid he firm which Mr. Charlton represents, Dominion Tent and Awning Co. Ltd., "$15 for $8 flags."

Earlier Mr. Charlton had threatened a damage suit against the controller unless he retracted what Mr. Charlton termed "irresponsible false and untrue" statements.



Mr. Atkinson said he would let the alderman "go ahead and sue."

NO MENTION

The alderman's latest statement made no mention of whether he plans to go ahead with the suit.

The statement said the city agreed to buy flags from the company "of which I am a shareholder" because the price quoted by the only other company to bid for the contract was "prohibitive."

Mr. Charlton said company figures, which ere verified by a chartered accountant, showed the flags cost $12.37.

SOCIAL CREDIT LEADER — Solon Low, drafted as national leader of the Social Credit party in 1944 when he was 44, has proposed a program of tax reduction in Canada, accompanied by financial reform as the platform of the party in the August 10 federal election. In his keynote speech delivered from Toronto, Mr. Low said his party had adopted the program after the national conference of the Social Credit Association of Canada.

Chevrier Says Drew Pledge 'Ridiculous'

NORTH BAY (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said Saturday that proposals by Opposition Leader George Drew and the Progressive Conservatives to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year are "ridiculous."

Mr. Chevrier spoke at a convention which nominated J. R. Garland as Liberal candidate for Nipissing in the Aug. 10 general election.

Mr. Chevrier said 85 per cent of Canadian government spending is for essential defence and security benefits.

He said it is "ridiculous and impossible" to save $500,000,000 from the remaining 15 per cent since it totalled only $300,000,000.

The Liberal policy of seeking new markets for Canadian goods had brought Canada to its present level of unparalleled prosperity and had made the Canadian dollar the strongest in the world, he contended.

Astronomers Revising Ideas Of Age Of Universe

How old is the universe? How big? Can such questions be answered at all?

Astronomers are busy recomputing former estimates following discovery of the most far-reaching error man ever made. Measurements at Palomar Observatory have shown the entire visible universe outside the earth's own galaxy to be twice as far away, twice as old, and eight times as big as science previously thought.

Dr. Walter Baade of the California Institute of Technology's Mount Wilson and Palomar Observatories has opened a new perspective on the whole of creation. What do his measurements mean?

TWO-BILLION-YEAR JOURNEY

They mean that Palomar's 200-inch Hale telescope, largest in the world can see twice as far. Light that it captures from the farthest faint star has been on its way to earth for two billion years instead of one.

"Island universes" of stars, similar to the Milky Way but at staggering distances out in space, are twice as big as had been supposed. Thus our own galaxy, instead of being an unexplained giant, is scaled down to more matching size.

Distant nebulae, believed by the theory of the expanding universe to be rushing away from a common centre at ever-increasing speeds, have taken twice as long to reach their present positions. Thus the universe is twice as old, on a scale of four billion years rather than two. Earth's estimated age of about three billion years is no longer puzzling.

The entire volume of space within outermost view of the 200-inch reflector is swelled eight times.

PALOMER'S SKY SURVEY

Within a somewhat smaller sphere of vision, Palomar's 48-inch "Big Schmidt" telescope-camera for four years has been systematically photographing every part of the visible heavens in a sweeping Sky Survey sponsored jointly by Caltech and the National Geographic Society.

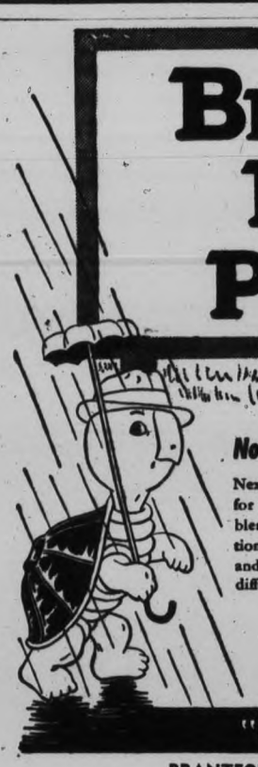
From this history-making map of the universe, astronomers expect to find new clues to how matter is distributed in the heavens, how it behaves in space we can see, and thus how it presumably acts in unknown space beyond.

Sky Survey astronomers bast their concept of a universe expanding like a balloon upon the nature of light from distant nebulae. This theory, established nearly 20 years ago by Caltech's Drs. Edwin P. Hubble and Milton L. Humason, has raised fascinating questions as to the origin and overall size of all creation.

Can the reel of myriad ages be regarded as having started at a specific time and place some four billion years ago? Do celestial systems hurtling outward eventually reach the speed of light and disappear forever from view?

Until the Sky Survey began, only relatively few wide-scattered nebulae could be studied for evidence. Now literally thousands of new nebulae and clusters of nebulae are being discovered as the photographic map is built.

From them will come new chance for man to learn how large creation really is—whether it has boundaries and a beginning, or whether it extends on endlessly and agelessly beyond all grasp.



This Small-Mouthed Black Bass may be easily distinguished from his large-mouthed cousin. In contrast, the latter's mouth reaches well past the eye.

Nicholas-Bennett Nuptials

HAVELOCK— (ENS) — Orchids, peonies and ferns formed the setting for a pretty wedding in Knox Presbyterian Church, Havelock, Saturday afternoon, when Lois Beverley, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bennett of Havelock became the bride of Bruce Lloyd Nicholas, son of Mr. Howard Nicholas of Campbellford.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson. Mrs. George Kennedy played the wedding music and the soloist was Charles Carter who sang "Because" prior to the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Guest pews were decorated with bows of white ribbon and orchids.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon net over taffeta. The net skirt was fashioned in tiers and the lace bodice in stole effect. A Juliet cap held her finger-tip net veil which was trimmed with French applique and rhinestones. She wore white net mittens and carried a cascade of red roses and duster 'mums.

Miss Shirley Bennett was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a waltz-length mauve gown of chantilly lace over taffeta with a deep skirt flounce of matching nylon net, accented with ruffled net. The bodice was in stole effect and she wore a matching headdress and mittens of net. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Elaine Graham of Havelock who wore an ice-blue gown of net over taffeta and Miss Freida Broadworth of Roseneath, cousin of the bride, who was wearing a gown of deep shrimp net over taffeta. Their gowns were similarly fashioned with full waltz-length skirts and bodices in stole design. They wore watching headdresses and mittens and carried bouquets of yellow roses and white 'mums.

The charming little flower girl, Susan Judd, daughter of Dr. W. M. Judd and Mrs. Judd of Havelock, wore a gown of maize taffeta, designed with short puff sleeves, Peter Pan collar and full skirt with crinoline. Her headdress was of matching taffeta and she carried a basket of roses and baby 'mums.

Donald Nicholas of Toronto was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Carl Pettifer of Campbellford and Robert J. Hill.

A reception was held in the church hall where the bride's mother received in a gown of midnight blue crepe and lace with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the groom's aunt, Miss E. Nicholas of Campbellford who wore a gown of navy sheer with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid, N. Y., the bride wore a coronation blue suit with white accessories. Her corsage was a pink feather and pink carnations. They will live in Havelock.

DOROTHY DIX:

Widow Hopes To Rewed Man Can't Forget First Love

DEAR MISS DIX: After seven years of widowhood, I find myself, at the age of 37, in love with a man five years old than I am. I have known him for many years. He has never been married, though at one time I know he was deeply in love. We have been seeing each other quite a bit, and when I asked him about his romance, he said the girl had finally married someone else after going with my friend for several years. I know he still loves her, that he will probably never love me, yet I can't stop hoping.

DAISY

CHANCE TO WIN HIM ON REBOUND

ANSWER: You clearly have a chance of winning the man on the rebound—but is he worth it? You also face the certainty that if the other woman ever is free again, you will be left in the lurch while your swain goes a courtin' her again. This romance holds promise of much more unhappiness for you than it does happiness. Better to have no husband at all than a reluctant one who'll strain at the leash.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have made a very foolish mistake and hope you can tell me how to straighten it out. A boy I go out with told me some unpleasant things about his cousin, Hope. Hope goes to my school, and when I saw her the next day, I repeated what I had been told. She told her mother, who had an argument with the boy, during which he denied everything. Now the boy won't speak to me, neither will Hope.

POLLY M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You have ceratinly failed your first test in achieving popularity. Or perhas you think there's something glamorous in the role of trouble-maker. Well, you sure found out, and I'll bet when the story was repeated to Hope it had a few embellishments of your own. Just let people know how little you can be trusted and they'll stay away from you in droves. You deserve it, too. You owe the boy an apology, but I doubt if he'll hav eanything to do with you again. Learn to keep your little mouth shut unless you have something pleasant to say.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 40 years old, have a good job at a fine salary, and would like to get married. Recently I met a lady of my own age and fell in love with her after a couple of dates. However she tells me she can't get interested in men, and told me to stop calling her.

KARL L.

ANSWER: Since the lady has ben so very definite in her assertion that she isn't interested in you, or any other man, you would certainly be wasting time to pursue her. I'm sure you'll have no trouble finding more agreeable feminine companionship.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: John Doe and my husband were friends for years. John's wife died fifteen months ago, and I was left a widow shortly after. Now John Doe has asked me to marry him, and I wonder if the proper time has elapsed. Another thing that bothers me: would it be proper for each of us to continue displaying pictures of our spouses? This may sound silly, but I'd like to know.

ELLEN H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The matter of the pictures is one of purely personal opinion. Since both families were friends for year, and since you and John Doe are mature people, there's no reason why these likenesses should disturb either of you. However, if time proves that the prseence of the pictures creates difficulties, put them away. As for the time limit—there has been a sufficient lapse of time to give propriety to your marriage. Good luck!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'd like your leaflet on "HASTY MARRIAGE" as I want to know your ideas on the subject. I'm 15, have been engaged for three months, and I know I love the boy because I have disobeyed my mother and have gone out wih thim. Don't you think that some girls of 15 are as mature as others of 18?

SHIRLEY R.

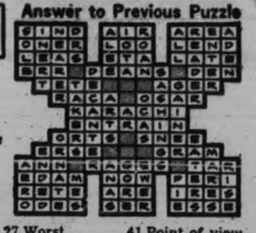
✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Some girls of 15 undoubtedly are more mature than their years, but you certainly aren't. You haven't acquired the sense of values that a five-year-old should have. Since when does disobedience constitute proof of love? You'll find nothing in the leaflet I'm sending you to encourage your tactics. If your boy friend really loved you, he'd be equally anxious to discourage your methods. Fostering patience and loyalty would be a far better test of love.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: As far back as I can remember my mother has worked hard to make ends meet. Now, she, my brother and I live at home, we all work and are doing well financially. The problem is that all my life the housework has been shared by mother and us children. Now my brother and I feel that we'd like to have someone in to help with the work, so we could have a little more leisure. Mother obstinately opposes such an idea. I am willing to pay the full cost of the work, but she refuses to allow a cleaning woman in the house.

SISSI



✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mothre's obstinacy is unreasonable. She is fortunate in having her two children so devotedly staying with her, but you couldn't be blamed if her stubbornness drove you both out. The only compromise I could suggest wuold be to acquire as many labor-saving devices as possible. In view of the fact that both you and your brother work extra long hours, and have little time for recreation, your mother really should agree to permit outside help.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Suggestions For Meals Prepared On Two-Burner

Do you remember that someone asked for suggestions for easy summer cottage meals and that I gave them to you three weeks ago?

Subsequently I received this letter: "...I think your giving us summer cottage menus, etc. is a wonderful idea but what about some for preparation with only a two-burner plate and no oven?"

MARY H.

... and then a letter arrived from a masculine reader who is trying hard to stump me:

"Dear Emem: Women certainly think you're tops. If you are so good would you ever-so-kindly-ma'am tell two fellows what to take with them in the way of grub for a fishing trip?"

ALEX.

I'm being twitted by Alex but you know if he could find a piece of string in his pocket and borrow a bent pin from his mother and hitch a ride to a certain trout stream I know and drop his line in, he could catch fish and not have to carry any grub at all, for he could have wild berries for dessert if he did not mind a few brambles. Seriously Alex. I've attended to your request by mail.

Now for Mary H.'s easy two-burner meals.

Mary you must have a large double boiler and at least 1 large frying-pan. Is there electric power in your cottage. If so could you take an electric tea kettle with you? You will need a large kettle with cover.

RECIPES

HUNGARIAN GOULASH

(serves 6 generously)

Two lbs. brisket beef, 1 28-oz. tin tomatoes, 6 medium potatoes, 4 medium onions, 1 green pepper, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, flour to thicken. Cut meat in small cubes (do not trim off fat) and arrange about 1-3 of it in bottom of deep kettle. Season with salt and pepper. Add a layer of potatoes cut in pieces, then a layer of sliced onions and green pepper. Continue until all ingredients but flour are used. Sprinkle the sugar over, now add water by full cupfuls, counting them, to cover. Be sure the tomatoes are in. Cover, bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer until meat is tender—about 3 hours. For each cup of water added stir in 1 tablespoon flour mixed smoothly with an equal quantity of cold water. Stir until thick.

If desired dumplings may be cooked on this during last 12 minutes, when flour paste would be omitted.

I hope you saved the recipe for Frying - pan cookies that I gave you two weeks ago.

STUFFED CABBAGE ROLLS

(sometimes called Kol Dolmer)

One lb. ground beef, ½ lb. ground pork, 1 cup raw rice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 small cabbage, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk or cream or sour cream. Break leaves from cabbage, and parboil 3 minutes to wilt them. Trim off thick part of rib. Mix steak, pork, onion, salt, sugar, pepper. Parboil or steam rice 10 minutes and drain and add to mixture. Put heaping tablespoon mixture on a wilted cabbage leaf and roll up, being sure to tuck in ends before you finish rolling. Place open side down in greased pan. Continue until all filling is rolled into cabbage leaves. Cover with 1 cup hot water. Cover. Simmer 1 hour. (This would be baked where there is an oven.) Before serving pour over heated milk or cream or sour cream. Lebanese and Turkish folk serve yogurt with this dish.

In meal No. 3 cook the rice in the bottom of the double boiler while you are preparing the creamed salmon in the top.

6—In Memoriams

COLLINSON—In loving memory of a dear father, Mr. Joseph Collinson, who passed away June 29, 1945.
Beside your grave we often stand
With hearts both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come
"Not lost but gone before."
God knows how much we miss him,
He counts the tears we shed
And whispers, "He only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead."
—Ever remembered by Harry and grandson Paul.

LOWES—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. W. Lowes, who passed away June 29th, 1951.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair,
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of one that once sat there.
—Ever remembered by her husband and family.

WHETUNG — In loving memory of Arthur Whetung, who passed away June 27, 1951.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Always remembered by his daughter-in-law and his grandchildren.

WHETUNG—In loving memory of my husband, Howard, who passed away June 29, 1945.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Remembered by wife and children, Isabel, Stewart and Howard.

WHETUNG—In loving memory of Howard Whetung, who died eight years ago, on June 29th.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
—Always remembered by his mother.

WOOD—In loving memory of Melville (Terry) Wood, who passed away June 29, 1950.
—Ever remembered by brothers Roy, Maurice and families.

WOODS—In loving memory of Melville (Jerry) Woods, who passed away 29th of June, 1950.
Until the day break and the shadows flee away.
—Always remembered by mother and dad.

WOOD—In loving memory of Melville (Jerry) Wood, who passed away June 29, 1950.
Not dead, but passed beyond
The mist that binds us here,
Into the newer, larger life
Of that unclouded sphere.
—Ever remembered by sister and brother-in-law Winnie and Bill Aggas.

7—Card of Thanks

Dear friends and relatives words cannot express my gratitude for all your kindness during my shut-in days. The flowers, fruit, calls, cards and letters all helped to smooth the way when the going was rough. Special thangs to Rev. Smith of Gore's Landing, Rev. Gilbert of Camborne and Rev. Larke of Springville whose frequent calls were an inspiration to help me get well. To the nurses and staff of both Cobourg General and Peterborough Civic Hospitals thanks for being so patient and kind. Part of my recovery I owe to all of you and a large share to the skill of the attending doctors of Peterborough and of Cobourg. I shall remember for a long time the many kind acts and may the same kind of accident never befall you. Again thank you.—Mrs. Sam O'Connell, Harwood, Ontario.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends in Belmont township and Havelock for flowers, cards and the many other ways they expressed their sympathy to us in our recent sad bereavement in the loss of a dear son.—Mrs. Robert Gratton and family.

Young People Hurt In Series Of Accidents

Five young people were injured during the weekend in small mishaps—most of them in outdoor activities at summer cottages.

Edward McGrath, 14, of 846 St. Mary's St., fell to the floor and broke his left wrist while swinging Sunday from a rafter in a North Monaghan barn. He had previously taken a tumble while swinging but got up unhurt.

Eugene Brzeski, 5½, of Fleet Ave., Cleveland, fell off a rock and cut her lower lip. She was admitted to Civic Hospital.

Two 16-year-old girls also received outpatient treatment. Marilyn Redpath of Lakefield received a cut on her left arm while swimming and Sylvia Irwin, 16, of Stormont St. received a gash on her right leg when she took a tumble and was struck by the fender of her bicycle.

Randy White, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White, Toronto, is in satisfactory condition after receiving a cut on his right leg. He fell out of a boat and was injured.

R. J. Kidd

When he came to Peterborough as a young man near the end of his teen years, Mr. Kidd became a member of Charlotte St. Methodist Church, which was situated in the block now occupied by the Peterborough Clinic at the south east corner of Charlotte and Reid Streets. He was treasurer of Trinity Church 40 years and had been superintendent of the Sunday School 25 years.

He had been a resident of Peterborough 73 years, from the year 1880, and had been with the Neill Company from 1903 until his retirement in 1934.

Peterborough will miss R. J. Kidd, and particularly the down town business section. In retirement he was just as personable as he had been as president of the Neill Company, a tall, fine figure, who wore his clothes well and chose them with a nice discretion.

R. J. Kidd was an example, into his nineties, of what a well dressed man should be in good and becoming taste and with an impressive manly appearance that will be effaced from his main street only as its memory gradually and inevitably becomes concerned with other things.

Literally, and in every sense of the phrase, Robert John Kidd had become Peterborough's grand old man.

Mr. Kidd's wife, Lena Keay, predeceased him. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. R. J. Allen, (Marguerite of Peterborough; his brother, Richard Kidd of Harriston; and his grandson, John Robert Allen.

He was a member of the I.O. O. F. The body is resting at his late residence until 11 a.m. Tuesday when it will be removed to Trinity United Church for service at 2.30 p.m. by Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Lindsay Wins

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Merchants climbed into second place in the Lakeshore League standings with a tight 2-1 win over Whitby here Saturday night.

The Merchants did it the hard way, making their only two hits off Don Crawford for two runs in the third, all they needed. Junior West went to the mound again, with Loucks and Lowrey absent, and held the visitors to four hits.

Crawford, the young lefthander for Whitby, pitched a great game, but his mates committed five errors beside him, one of them leading to winning run. He struck out 12 of the Merchants in six innings.

Junior West struck out five and walked only one. Whitby scored their one run in the first off a walk, hit and two errors. The locals came back in the third, when Huntley was on through an error, Stewart singled and Hank Debois poled a wrong-field double to score both of them. The locals dropped Whitby into third place, a full game behind Lindsay.

WILLIAM D. HUTCHISON

Crouch Heads Underwriters

Reg Crouch of the Norwich Union Life Insurance Society was elected president of the Peterborough Branch of the Life Underwriters' Association Friday at their monthly meeting.

Jack Hayes was elected vice-president and Al Doney secretary. Elected to the Board of directors were Arnold Graham, Earl Quinlan, Cy Churchly, Harold Blow, Malcolm Van Allen and Murray Ranesbottom.

C. C. Martin, manager of the Toronto number one branch of the Great West Life Insurance Company was the guest speaker.

He pointed out the value of the proper use of Life Insurance applied to the specific problems faced by all sole proprietors, partnerships and close corporations. Leslie Reichardt was the retiring president.

Finnish Gov't Has Resigned

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—The coalition government of Premier Urho Kekkonen resigned today, and the Socialists were expected to make a bid to take over.

Kekkonen, leader of the Agrarian party, handed his resignation to President Juho Paasikivi this morning.

The president was scheduled to receive Karl Fagerholm, Socialist Speaker of the House, later in the day.

The outgoing government, a coalition of Agrarians and Socialists, had deadlocked over economic policies. The Socialists favored subsidies to industrials while the Agrarians wished to reduce taxes interest rates and wages.

Kekkonen, in announcing Saturday he intended to resign, suggested that the Socialists should be asked to try to form a new government "to clear up our economic situation according to their own program." There was some speculation that a parliamentary election might have to be called to resolve the issues.

Three successive coalition cabinets have been headed by Kekkonen in the last three years.

Menzies Ill Delays Flight

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia was confined to his bed today after an attack of gastro-enteritis.

Menzies, 59, is running a high temperature, a spokesman for the Australian government in London announced.

He postponed a flight to South Africa for an official visit as guest of Prime Minister Daniel Malan.

Men

Calls On UN To Forego Total Victory

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP)—The new secretary-general of the United Nations said Saturday that the UN charter does not sanction use of force to win victory in terms of land or power, except in self defence.

On that basis he called on the UN to forego total military victory in Korea as a prelude to a peace without vengeance.

Making his first major address on world affairs since taking over the UN secretary-generalship from Trygve Lie, Hammarskjold said that once aggression had been repelled there is no UN provision for further punishment of an aggressor.

The secretary-general's broadcast address was made against a background of demands from President Syngman Rhee for continued war to unite divided North and South Korea and as new talks were going forward at Seoul with the South Korean president.

FIRST ATTEMPT

Hammarskjold did not refer specifically to Rhee's demands, but said the UN action in Korea marks the first attempt in history to meet aggression with unified force under an international standard.

"This approach is a new formula in the history of political conflicts," he said, "and its importance may well be underlined by the historians of the future.

"In exploring these new avenues of collective security we must adapt ourselves to accept such unfamiliar developments as a war which ends without total victory for any party, but only for a "Such a victory . . . is a full vindiction of those brave men who principle."

Trying To Get Nazis Released

WERL, Germany (CP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer visited the British war crime prison here Sunday and told prisoners his government is doing everything possible to secure their release.

Among those to whom he spoke was former German S. S. Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1944 for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners of war. Meyer was moved here from Canada last year.

At Ottawa a defence official said the Canadian government is not likely to make any move at this time to review Gen. Kurt Meyer's sentence.

However, Chancellor Adenauer has been pressing the United States, Britain and France to consider setting up tribunals to review the prisoners' sentences.

The tribunals would be set up automatically once a German peace treaty is signed, but the chancellor is understood to have made requests of the U. S. particularly to get the tribunals set up even before the signing takes place.

Study News Problems At Minaki Conference

MINAKI, Ont. (CP)—Problems of news gathering were discussed here Saturday as newspaper executives from the four Western provinces met for the West regional meeting of The Canadian Press.

Thirteen member newspapers of the national news co-operative were represented at the one-day meeting, at which Orton Grain of the Winnipeg Free Press presided.

A feature of the meeting was a panel discussion on teletypesetter operation, under which type can be set at several points from tape transmitted from one central office. The discussion was led by William Hay of the Lethbridge Herald and H. L. Crawford of the Brandon Sun.

The editors decided to meet next year in Saskatchewan.

Soldier Under 21 Allowed To Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A handful of Canadians will be able quite legally to wink at the law which says no civilian can vote in the Aug. 10 general election unless he or she has reached the age of 21.

They will be able to vote even though they are not yet 21.

The law provides that anyone who is or has been a member of the armed forces on active service since September, 1950, is entitled to cast a ballot. This includes men who have served their hitch and been discharged and now are civilians.

An unknown number of them are still under 21.

To Free Austrian PoWs

VIENNA (AP)—The Soviet government in Moscow has decided to release 600 Austrian prisoners of war and other Austrian citizens held in the Soviet Union after the war, the Austrian government announced Saturday night. The Soviet measure was made known to the Austrian government in a note which the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow delivered to the Austrian ambassador in Moscow.

Farm Fire Kills 4

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—A fire, believed started by a can of exploding kerosene, killed four persons and injured five others Sunday at a farm home near Albion, Pa., 25 miles south of here. Georgia Moyer, 19, and her 10-year-old sister, Judy, died instantly. Bonnie Moyer, 2, and Marian Chase, nine months, died shortly after being admitted to hospital.

Red Official Not Listed

LONDON (Reuters)—Lavrenti P. Beria, who became the No. 2 man in the Kremlin hierarchy on Stalin's death, was the subject of speculation Sunday as Moscow released a list of 12 top men which did not include his name.

Prime Minister Malenkov and 11 other Soviet leaders went to the Bolshoi theatre in Moscow Friday night to see a new opera. The 11 names comprised all the full members of the party praesidium (top direction) except Beria, who is secret police chief and interior minister.

No explanation of Berida's absence from the list was given. It was not known so far whether Berida is ill, out of town or out of favor.

Had Beria been in Moscow and in good health, it is regarded as certain that he would have been at the opera together with his colleagues for what was evidently a "state occasion." The listing of high Soviet officials in a strict order of seniority follows a definite pattern—and omission of names is never accidental.

Sister Of Quints Wed In Callander

CALLANDER (CP)—Therese Dionne, a sister of the quintuplets, was married here Saturday to Thomas Callahan of Espanola. Yvonne, one of the quints, was bridesmaid.

Therese, 24, met her husband while teaching school in Espanola. She was the fourth of the 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne to be married, and her wedding brought the first complete family reunion in months.

Mrs. Boyce Hostess To Dorcas Group

WARKWORTH — (ENS —The Dorcas group of St. Paul's W A met at the home of Mrs. Frank Boyce.

Mrs. Keith Thain, leader of the group, opened the meeting with a short devotional period.

It was decided to give $10 to the building fund. Mrs. Elgin Edgar gave a report on the WA Presbyterial meeting at Roseneath.

Mrs. F. Bowen, president of the WA asked that joint meetings be held with them beginning in September. Lunch was served.

Hundreds Decorate Graves For Annual IOOF Service

Hundreds flocked to Little Lake cemetery Sunday afternoon to honor Peterborough's dead and participate in the annual IOOF Decoration Day service. Two district lodges, Peterborough 111 and Otonabee 13, and several members of outside lodges took part in the afternoon's activites.

Before the service the lodge members paraded to Confederation Park where Junior Past Grand of Peterborough Lodge 111, Boyd Stinson placed a wreath on the war memorial. Following this brief ceremony the members paraded to Little Lake led by the Peterborough Salvation Army band. A platoon of city firemen brought up the rear of the parade.

The front ranks of the parade were taken up by Patriarchs Militant No. 17 and visiting Patriarchs from Cobourg.

Although they didn't take part in the parade a number of members of Rebekah Lodge 81 formed a guard of honor inside the cemetery gate.

The Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Anglican Church, and newly elected president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, was the speaker at the memorial service.

The speaker drew a parallel between the dangerous sea journey the Apostle Paul experienced on his way to Rome to make an appeal to Caesar and the sailing across the sea of life.

"How do we act in adversity?" he asked. "Do we call out that all is lost or do we throw out anchors to steady ourselves?"

The speaker pointed out that many turn away from God in times of adversity such as the loss of loved ones. Instead people should trust in God's judgment and throw out anchors that will keep the ship safe and take it to its destination— eternal life.

The four anchors which can be used in times of adversity, are memory, faith, prayer and sacrifice.

Through memory can be lived again many happy and beautiful moments with loved ones. By faith in Jesus Christ comes belief that loved ones will be joined in the life to come. Prayer brings the comfort of turning to man's greatest friend, Christ, in times of adversity. And the sacrifice of Christ on the Cross brings about the salvation of all men who believe.

E. Hatherly was chairman and parade marshal for the service and he was assisted by Elmer Pearce, noble grand of Otonabee 13, as chaplain, and Ernie Fowler, noble grand of Peterborough 111.

During the service a group of outside members laid a wreath on the Oddfellows plot in memory of members of all outside lodges buried in the cemetery. Stan Gillespie of Perth Lodge officiated at this ceremony.

The service was followed by the decoration of graves by members of the attendant lodges. The following section leaders were in charge of the decoration of approximately 295 graves: R. R. Ford, past grand of Otonabee 13; J. H. Price, past grand of Peterborough 111; Joseph Lancashire, past grand of Peterborough; W. J. Townsley, past grand of Peterborough; Reg. Gurney, past grand of Peterborough; G. Worboy, past grand of Peterborough; F. C. Ford, past grand of Otonabee; William Petrie, past grand of Peterborough; H. Blondin of Otonabee; Herb Frost, past grand of Peterborough; and C. Gardiner, past grand of Otonabee.

Graves throughout the cemetery were decorated with summer flowers by people who had visited the cemetery Saturday and Sunday morning.

Method Makes Dept. Unhappy

TORONTO (CP)—Alderman Arthur Wilson of St. Thomas made sure that his five electrical contracting employees got paid Friday —but he's worried as to what the department of transport may have to say about the method he used.

Wilson, whose contracting firm is doing an installation at a suburban Etobicoke furnace plant, was late in getting his payroll made up. So he hopped into his own plane and flew from St. Thomas to Etobicoke.

Circling low over the furnace plant, he dropped a sack containing $500 wage money to his waiting workmen.

"I couldn't let those men go the week-end without their pay," he said.

He has been informed that the department of transport isn't very happy about his low-flying delivery.

"I sure hope they don't penalize me," said Wilson.

Congregation Says Farewell To B. S. Morwood

A capacity congregation filled Mark St. United Church Sunday evening for the Rev. B. S. Morwood's final service in that church before leaving for his new charge, Trinity United Church, Kirkland Lake.

Following the service a special Friendship Hour was held to honor Mr. and Mrs. Morwood.

Norman Hewitt, chairman of the committe of stewarts of Mark St. Church was chairman for the occasion.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a cheque to Mr. Morwood by Ward Gamble on behalf of the board and congregation. In his presentation address, Mr. Gamble expressed the regret of the congregation on Mr. Morwood's departure and the appreciation of all for the splendid work he had done for the church during his-four-year pastorship.

THANKED CONGREGATION

Mr. Morwood thanked the congregation for the gift and expressed his and Mrs. Morwood's sincere apprecation for the affection and loyalty that had been given them. He also expressed the wish that this same loyalty and cooperation would be given his successor, the Rev. Dr. N. D. Patterson.

A bouquet of red roses was presented to Mrs. Morwood by Mrs. Ernest Lillico.

Appreciation for the contribution made by Mr. Morwood to the Peterborough Presbytery was expressed by E. L. Sackville of George St. United Church. Words of praise and apprecation were also given by the Rev. E. W. Rowland of George St. United Church.

Musical entertainmetn was provided by Mrs. Fred Hunter and Miss Gwen Pomeroy, who played a piano duet and vocal solists. Max Pomeroy and Mrs. W. Hepburn.

Refreshments were served and the evening ended with the singing of Spirit of the Living God now Descend on Me — a hymn that has always been associated at Mark St. Church with Mr. Morwood, who has used it as a theme song at evening services.

The arrangements for the occasion were made by Mrs. A. E. DeNure assisted by Mrs. Cecil Searles.

Learned Panhandling During Depression Can't Break Himself Of Habit Now

COBOURG (ENS) — Edward Alsoysen, 51, no fixed abode, appeared in court on his third offence for being drunk.

Early this month police picked him up for panhandling and were surprised to find that he had $57. He explained that he acquired the habit by necessity in the depression days and that every time he took to the bottle, he reverted to type.

His liquor offences dated June 15, June 22 and June 24. On the last occasion he had a bottle of wine on him, as well as considerable in him, and was charged with being drunk and having liquor in a place other than his residence. He has been paying his fines promptly from a bankroll of several hundred dollars.

Chief Constable H. Pearse said the accused quit his job in Owen Sound recently and left it with $500 in his jeans and has been drunk on and off ever since.

The accused told the court that he had been taking some pills to help his appetite.

"These pills that I have been taking, when I have only a couple of draughts, the pills make me stagger although I am not drunk," he said.

"He was picked up on a drunk charge, got out on bail in the morning and was drunk that night," said Chief Pearse.

Alsoysen commented that the "police were laying for me. Let me off with a fine and I'll get out of the county."

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman suggested a jail sentence as the accused would only spend all his money on liquor and fines if let off.

"Won't do me any good to send me to jail," asserted the accused positively. "When I run out of money I'll get a job. That is the way it always goes."

"Third offence, three months," was the laconic pronouncement by the magistrate.

Close Pools

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — All swimming pools and public baths were closed today to prevent the spread of the paratyphus epidemic which has been sweeping the country for the last seven days. Latest health ministry reports said that 3,000 persons are being treated at home for the disease and another 900 in hospitals.

Grable Horses Keep Wolf From Star's Door

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable has the most amazing horses. When she's not making money, they do.

The beauteous blonde is sitting out her third suspension from her studio, 20th Century-Fox. So last week James Session, a two-year-old she and Harry James own, romped down a $20,000 winner at Hollywood Park.

During one of her previous suspensions, the James' four-year-old Big Noise came through with $100,000 winnings.

But while she thinks the horses are considerate, she feels otherwise about the studio. She wants out.

"I've been trying to get out for a year and a half," she said before taking off to the race track. "I keep reading that the studio is willing to let me go, but that's not what they tell me.

WANTS FREEDOM

"I don't see why they won't give me my freedom. They have nothing at all planned for me. The only thing I can figure is that they're worried I might go out and make a lot of money for someone else."

Betty's relations with her studio have deteriorated in the last couple of years. Her first suspension came from turning down "The Girl Next Door." Then she got another one for refusing a non-musical part in "Pickup on South Street."

"I understand it's a good picture and is doing a lot of good for Jean Peters," she observed. "I still don't think it would have been good for me. It was a starkly realistic picture done in black and white. I think it would have been dangerous for me to do."

Recently she was suspended again for refusing to go through with a picture at Columbia.

"It wasn't that I didn't like the script," she remarked. "I just wanted to know who was going to be in it. I think that's very important. I don't demand a big name or anything like that. But there were two male parts in the picture that were as big as the girl's."

DROPPED OUT

"They announced William Holden and Henry Fonda would do the picture. That sounded fine. But when I got over to the studio, they said, 'Oh, we can't get them.' Rather than go through all the trouble and expense of rehearsals and fittings, I dropped out of the deal."

Betty, who is as trim and beautiful as ever, has been unhappy about her present contract. It looked good on paper, she said, but it hasn't turned out as fabulously as it seems. Although it calls for a huge weekly salary and whopping bonuses, it also has what she calls "a good girl clause." If she lands on suspension, she not only loses her salary but also is denied the bonuses when she does her next film.

"And when I'm on suspension, I can't take any other kind of job, not even washing dishes," she said.

Pats Prefer Front Lines To Hazards "In Reserve"

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The Patricias say it's tougher "in reserve" than holding down a sector of the front.

After 24 days in May and June as reserve battalion of the Canadian brigade, the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, said it was happy to return to the front's bunkers.

The climb back up into the hills for their third stint in the line was the evening of June 8, relieving the 3rd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

In eight months in Korea the Patricias have been "forward" less than three.

EAGER FOR FRONT

Maj. Charles MacNeil of Victoria, second-in-command, said: "When back in reserve you can hear the shooting, but you don't know what it's all about. In the line you do know, and can do something about it.

"You also lose an awful lot of sleep in reserve just 'standing by.'

"At one point we had three companies occupying blocking positions. That was during the Hook battle, the night of May 28."

That night 100 artillery rounds fell on Patricial companies, one landing close to a squad tent and wounding six men.

The Patricias had a grandstand view of the May 21 "first real airstrike on UN lines since the Korean war started."

The battalion news letter, written by Lieut. Peter Worthington of Ottawa, reported:

"Four 'unidentified' Thunderjets with UN markings bombed and strafed the Teal bridge area. The bridge was slightly damaged. By nightfall every man owned a brand new slit trench, ready for the next raid; however encores were not to be. True we saw more 'unidentified' UN jets—but they were heading north.

WILL BE EXAGGERATED

"In two years' time the four-plane, 15-minute attack will have developed into a 1,000-plane all-day raid, with more bridges demolished and casualties sobbing than there are bridges and troops in the battalion area."

Summing up the reserve period, the letter said:

"Troops, who when dug in a few hundred yards from the enemy were as cool and calculating as Hollywood movie stars, now became nervous and jumpy from listening to the guns and not knowing what was afoot.

"The reserve battalion, with the two other battalions to counter-attack for, was constantly being 'stood to' and 'alerted' just in case.

"After experiencing a few 'just in cases,' when the panic button had been pushed on in the middle of the night, 'stand-to company' leaps into steel helmets with cameras at the half-cock at every unusual noise from the sharp end.

"A few weeks in 'reserve' is all any self-respecting battalion can stand, after which it normally returns to the line to recuperate in preparation for the next session of 'rest.'"

Underwater Bird Spends Life Along Streams

High in the mountains of the American West, a solitary robin-sized bird flies under water and walks on the bottom of foaming pools. Winter or summer, it charms lonely trappers and anglers with torrents of song.

This borrower of a waterfowl's ways is the water ouzel or dipper, relative of wrens and thrushes. Nesting along cold mountain streams, the clean-living ouzel will not tolerate pollution.

An aquatic acrobat, the water ouzel does not fear crashing cataracts. It can literally fly under water against the current for a half-minute or more. If carried over rapids, its strong wings brake its fall. It feeds in the swiftest water, walking along the stream bottom on stout webless feet in search of aquatic insects and shellfish.

FOLLOWS STREAMS

Although sometimes frequenting ponds, the ouzel seldom strays far from streams. Its oven-shaped nest is usually found damp with spray in a rocky, streamside cranny or behind a waterfall. Dry inside, the nest on the outside is made of living, growing moss.

Three to six pure white eggs compose the ouzel's clutch. Two annual broods of downy young quickly learn to swim, dive and flutter in the current. Parent ouzels keep the nest premises spic and span.

The jaunty gray bird with perked-up tail is the only North American member of the dipper family, which includes a dozen or more species in Europe, Asia and South America. The name "dipper" probably stems from a characteristic bobbing and dipping while perching. These calisthenic curtsies are thought to be signals, for the bird's calls are often drowned by the roar of water.

The ouzel's thick plumage of down and feathers, carefully preened with "waterproofing" from a large oil gland, protects it from cold and wet. Ranging from Guatemala to northern Alaska, this nonmigratory bird sings as happily on an ice cake as on a summery bank. It has been known to endure -50 degree cold.

A taste for the roe and fry of salmon and trout has added fish hatchery managers to the ouzel's natural enemies. Although it likes secluded haunts, it is not particularly shy around people. Ouzels have nested near a whirring saw mill, and one has been observed singing within range of flying chips from a woodcutter's ax.

The ouzel's fearlessness does not mean that it can do without protection or can adapt itself to modern civilization. The bird is slowly disappearing from some of its former haunts, where it can no longer lead its spartan, water-sprite existence in clean wilderness.

POLISH MOBS RIOT AGAINST RED ARMY

Reds Reject Quick Truce Plan

Still Insist Allies Recapture All Escaped PoWs

SEOUL (AP) — The North Korean Red radio today coldly rejected the United Nations command offer to sign an armistice now on terms already agreed upon at Panmunjom.

Shortly after, President Eisenhower's special envoy to South Korea conceded that President Syngman Rhee also persisted in his refusal to accept the truce.

Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, told reporters after his fifth secret session with Rhee:

"Obviously, there are points which need clarification in out negotiation. Otherwise there would be no need for these meetings. President Rhee and I are trying to work out a solution which will be acceptable to our two governments and, at the same time, sacrifice the principles of neither."

REMARKS CONTRAST

Robertson's remarks contrasted with earlier expressions of optimism from himself and Rhee. He said he would meet again with Rhee Wednesday.

Communist reaction to UN commander Mark Clark's proposal for a truce now, irrespective of Rhee's opposition, was swift.

The broadcast from Pyongyang, North Korean capital, charged that Clark's letter to Communist military leaders Monday lacked "sincerity" and was "inconsistent" with the facts. It insisted there had been "connivance" between the UN command and South Korea in Rhee's order releasing more than 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners since June 18.

Pyongyang radio added that Clark's letter gave "no guarantee" on the future conduct of the South Korean government and that, therefore, the Communists could not accept it.

Man Interrupts St. Laurent Charges Unfair Pension Deal

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (CP)—An elderly man broke into a trainside speech by Prime Minister St. Laurent today to protest that he had been unable to get a pension after losing a son in the war. He described himself as having been "kicked to one side like a dog" when endeavouring to get the pension. The interruption drew a prompt reply by the prime minister that Canada's provisions for war veterans are the most generous of any country in the world.

The elderly man stopped Mr. St. Laurent as the prime minister was speaking from a baggage truck to about 200 persons at the station of this lumber town, the first speech of his Maritime tour.

The interrupter had come off a train that was just about to pull out and he hopped back aboard the starting train before anyone could learn his name. He said he had appealed unsuccessfully for a pension for the death of his son to former prime minister King, Mr. St. Laurent, Defence Minister Claxton and Health Minister Martin.

SURE MAN'S WRONG

Mr. St. Laurent, who had been talking of his trip to the Coronation, immediately took up the man's complaint and said he was sure the "kicking aside" claim was not in accord with what actually took place.

No man could be kicked around like a dog under Canada's laws. There are no dictators under our democratic system of government, he said.

It might happen that in a country of 14,000,000 people the laws passed for the general welfare might not provide what every individual wanted. The prime minister was sorry to hear that a man whose son had been killed fighting for Canada felt he was not fairly treated.

In the main part of his brief baggage truck speech while his special car was being switched from one train to another, Mr. St. Laurent said his government has been trying to discharge its responsibilities in carrying out the trust put in it by the people. "We have been doing it conscientiously and to the best of our ability," he said.

3 Men Locked In Cabin, Adrift 6 Days On Sea

COFFS HARBOR, Australia (CP)—Three dazed men staggered off the yacht Irene today after six days' adrift during which the owner locked them in a cabin and disappeared. The three set out June 20 with owner James Towers, 50-year-old retired business man, on what was supposed to be a pleasant 10-hour cruise.

The 36-foot yacht's engine broke down and she drifted into a storm. After five days, said 70-year-old Charles Newlin, Towers suddenly closed the hatch on them in the cabin.

"He jammed it with an oil drum," Newlin said. When they tried to break out, "he threatened us with a brass bar."

80 MILES OUT TO SEA

"The Irene broke down three miles from the starting point," Newlin said. "She drifted 12 hours. Then huge seas and a southwest gale drove her 80 miles out to sea where she drifted for six days."

After the passengers broke out of the cabin they found the owner had disappeared.

"He must have jumped overboard," Newlin said. "He had been acting strangely, standing on the deck gazing out to sea and would not talk.

"We managed to erect a jury-mast and finally got near the coast again."

HAD NO WATER

The only drum of water on the vessel had been washed overboard soon after setting out, Newlin said.

"We lived on sea water, condensed with an oil can and a piece of copper wire, and the little food we had taken for the short trip."

When they neared the coast they caught a few fish—"our first food in days."

RCAF Pilot Downs Red MiG

SEOUL (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. John McKay, of New Westminster, B. C. an RCAF exchange pilot, accounted for one of the 15 Russian-built MiGs shot down by Allied Sabre jet pilots over North Korea today in the biggest one-day bag of the Korean war.

RCAF officials in Ottawa said that under exchange arrangements with the United States Air Force, some six RCAF pilots are normally flying in Korea. They fly with the USAF for six months or for a "tour" of 50 operations, whichever is the shorter. Since the beginning of the Korean war, some 20 RCAF pilots have fought in Korea.

RCAF pilots are credited with destroying eight enemy aircraft, with damaging eight more and with one probably destroyed. They have been awarded one RCAF Distinguished Flying Cross, seven U. S. DFC's and four U. S. Air Force Medals.

Income Tax Cut Effective July 1

OTTAWA (CP)—That delayed-action income tax cut, made by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget Feb. 19, is only one day away.

Effective July 1, personal income taxes come down an average of 5½ per cent for the full year, or about 11 per cent for the balance of 1953.

Richards And Hobbs Knighted By Queen

LONDON (CP)—Jockey Gordon Richards and former professional cricket star Jack Hobbs queued with notables and Korea war heroes today to receive knighthoods from the Queen.

The Queen had to bend practically double to bestow the traditional accolade—a touch of her sword on each shoulder—on the kneeling Sir Gordon. He is just five feet tall.

The dubbing over, Sir Gordon took a plane to Newmarket racetrack to try to add more winners to his world record total, 4,670. He said the Queen told him she hoped "many more winners would come my way before the time comes to retire."

More than 60 other Britons, including Shakespearean actor John Geilgud, knelt before the Queen to receive knighthoods in the great white-and-gold ballroom of Buckingham Palace. Two hundred more received other awards, most of them to commemorate the Coronation.

The Queen, hatless and cool in a low-cut flowered silk frock, stood beneath a towering gold and crimson canopy surmounted by a crown. She wielded the sword confidently, bringing it firmly down on the new knights' shoulders and just far enough from their ears to put any fears at rest.

Spy List Data Generally Known

OTTAWA (CP)—The fact that a list of 163 names of Americans who might have been spying for Russia was delivered to the United States by Canada in 1946 was generally known more than three years ago.

Canadian government officials were inclined to shrug off Senator Joseph McCarthy's statement that former prime minister Mackenzie King handed such a list to former president Truman early in 1946. They said that such a list would more likely have gone through intelligence branches of the two governments.

The facts of the list were given by External Affairs Minister Pearson in the standing committee on external affairs May 1, 1950, and again a day later in the House of Commons.

A notebook with 436 names, addresses, telephone numbers and other entries was found on a Canadian suspect when he was arrested Feb. 15, 1946. This person was charged and later acquitted.

The names of the 163 Americans were immediately given to the American government. The names of the five Britons were given to the British government. Among this latter list was Dr. Klaus Fuchs, later convicted of atomic spying for Russia and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

Newfoundland People On March

Thousands Deserting Coastal Villages

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland people are on the march.

Thousands are deserting coastal villages and moving to larger centres, in many cases changing life-long occupations for something new and less arduous.

The movement amounts to perhaps the biggest population shift in the province's history. It is caused not by lack of work, but a need for better living conditions—larger schools; better roads, electricity, water and sewer facilities; social life and entertainment.

Its chief manifestation lies in the greatly reduced number of settlements in the island. There used to be about 1,300, ranging in population from a few dozen souls to 50,000. Now there are probably not more than 1,000, and many others are on their way out.

Hundreds of fishing villages lie deserted or nearly deserted in Bonavista Bay, Notre Dame Bay on the west coast and Placentia Bay on the south shore. At the same time new towns are springing up, growing from hamlets to incorporated communities and taking on municipal status.

The improved roads system in the province is perhaps the biggest contributing factor in the shift. It was after the completion of the Burin peninsula road that the big movement in Placentia West began.

In Bonavista Bay, where the movement has reached greatest proportions, the people are taking their houses with them. The moves are usually short enough that the houses can either be towed over the ice in winter or floated on logs in the summer.

Newfoundland's colorful place names figure largely in the migration. One of the new centres is the municipal area of Pool's Island-Valleyfield-Badger's Quay, near the southern end of Bonavista Bay.

"TRIPLE TOWN"

Wesleyville-Pound Cove to the north and Greenspond to the south are also growing centres, as is the triple town of Bamgo-Dark Cove-Middle Brook and nearby Hare Bay.

Offer Gooseberry Island and Inner Gooseberry Island are names of the past, inhabited by the ghosts of dead fishermen. Other deserted or dying communities in the same area are St. Brendan's, Bragg's Island, Deer Island and Flat Island.

Say Revolt Not Yet Suppressed

Angry Workers Set State Factory Ablaze In Kuestrin

BERLIN (AP)—Polish anti-Communist mobs have clashed with Soviet troops in widespread disorders on the Oder-Neisse frontier, the West Berlin Nacht-Depesche reported today.

Rioting workers set the state cellulose factory in Kuestrin ablaze and fought Soviet army units in the streets, the newspaper said. Communist-officered Polish militiamen were reported to have joined the side of the workers in the battle.

A mob shouting "Free Poland from communism" was joined by unarmed police in demolishing a theatre in Frankfurt-Dammvorstadt which had been showing a Soviet film, Nacht-Depesche continued.

It said the Polish uprising in former German territory broke out June 17 after news spread of the Soviet zone revolt just west of the Oder.

"Despite terror and force exercised by elite Polish and Soviet troops rushed in from East Brandenburg, the situation is still disturbed today," the newspaper asserted.

Allied officials here said they had no confirmation of the report.

Nacht-Depesche said it learned from other sources:

Farmers in the Zielenzig-Meseritz area stormed the houses of collective farm chairmen. Some persons were killed and wounded.

Workers stoned Polish troops sent in to occupy the strike-bound tannery at Koenigsberg, near Schwedt on the Oder.

Blast Wrecks Block, 42 Die

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters)—An explosion rocked Guatemala city at 3:10 a. m. (local time) today demolishing most of a city block in the crowded downtown area. There were 42 known dead.

Rescue workers were still searching the ruins of some 50 destroyed houses and two hotels from which the 42 bodies had been removed. Authorities estimated the number of injured at 200 and said they expected the death toll to increase to 100 or more.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

LIQUOR STORED

The explosion appeared centred at a warehouse where thousands of cases of liquor were stored. In the ensuing fire, they continued to explode hindering the work of rescuers.

Many guests in the two crowded hotels near the blast site were trapped as walls and ceilings collapsed. Others were caught in the wreckage of shattered homes and stores.

People from nearby areas, awakened by the blast, rushed to the stricken block and joined with police and army men in battling the blaze and helping to rescue persons trapped in damaged buildings.

Some of the victims could be seen and heard screaming beneath the masses of burning debris, out of the reach of rescuers.

Troops Alerted In Cambodia

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—Cambodian troops today took up positions in government buildings in Pnom Penh, the capital of Cambodia.

An uneasy quiet hung over the city but official sources here said there had been no clashes between the Cambodian troops and the French.

(In Paris, Cambodian officials said it would be natural for the authorities to reinforce sentries outside government offices after the deployment of French reinforcements in and around the capital.

(Hundreds of trucks were bringing French troops into the city while field guns, pointing against the capital, had been set up at the nearby airfield of Pochentong, the Cambodians said. French troops were concentrated at all strategic points around the capital and arms were distributed to French civilians, they added.)

Have Severe Storm

TRENTON (CP)—A severe thunderstorm struck Ameliasburg township Monday. Small buildings were wrecked, trees uprooted and hydro lines felled in the district four miles south of here. Lightning killed three pure-bred cattle on the farm of William Black.

Surprise Party Staged By Four Bandits

NEW YORK (AP)—Four young bandits with time on their hands and larceny on their minds—staged a "surprise party" Monday for a dentist, a woman doctor and 18 others.

The quartette took over for four hours the Brooklyn house used by the dentist and doctor, admitting 15 patients as they arrived, robbing them of jewels and cash, and keeping them prisoner through the siege.

But the four young men, before fleeing in fright when the physician fainted, treated their victims to drinks and snacks and even returned some of their loot at the request of three patients.

It all started late in the afternoon in the three-storey house owned by Dr. Sonya A. Monen, 50. She lives there and has an office there. The dentist, Dr. Irving K. Madow, rents rooms for an office.

The four robbers first invaded the dentist's ground-floor offices. One youth held a pistol, two others carried switchblade knives.

PUT IN DINING ROOM

Madow and a patient he was attending were herded into Dr. Monen's dining room. Then the robbers rounded up a maid and Dr. Monen's daughter, Mrs. Isabel Whitehall, who also was in the house at the time. Dr. Monen was absent.

At first, the bandit quartette went about their business in a determined and rough manner. They bound and gagged the four persons with adhesive tape.

However, after a half hour, when the victims complained of thirst, the intruders released them.

Soon patients started arriving. The robbers greeted them and took them into the dining room.

The thieves split up, a pair ransacking the house while the others stood guard in the dining room.

The bandits raided Dr. Monen's refrigerator and passed out beer and soft drinks, crackers, cheese and raw carrots to their "guests."

The quartette leisurely relieved their captives of cash and jewelry. But they returned some watches and rings of modest value to the three patients, who pleaded they be allowed to keep the articles.

It was about 8:30 p. m. when Dr. Monen returned to her home and found the "party" going on. She too was greeted by a robber, who demanded that she open a safe in a hall closet.

Her reply was a scream. Then she collapsed.

Alarmed, the robbers made a hasty departure.

PoW Discharged As Subversive

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—One of the first Americans freed in the disabled Korean war prisoner exchange in April has been discharged from the army as "disloyal and subversive."

Former Cpl. Paul F. Schnur Jr., 24, had been held virtually incommunicado by the army since he was handed over by the Reds April 20.

An army spokesman said Monday the "undesirable discharge" was ordered by the adjutant-general's office in Washington. He said it is not a dishonorable discharge and does not deprive the holder of any rights or benefits of a veteran.

Prime Minister Begins Quick Tour Of Maritimes

NEWCASTLE, N. B. (CP)—Changes in Prime Minister St. Laurent's election campaign itinerary for the Atlantic provinces were announced today as he moved into northern New Brunswick on a fast-moving four-day tour of the area.

Mr. St. Laurent has added several whistle stops to his Maritime schedule and will spend two nights at St. John's, Nfld., instead of one as planned originally.

The prime minister also will fly back towards Ottawa Friday taking a plane from St. John's to Chatham, N. B. He rejoins his train at Newcastle.

The prime minister rejoined his special campaign train section late Monday night after a week in western Ontario and a week-end rest at St. Patrick, Que., then opened the Maritime tour by an appearance in this Northumberland constituency town in northern New Brunswick.

He was met at the station by a group headed by Roy McWilliam, the sitting Liberal member of the Commons.

After an outdoors speech at Fredericton, the prime minister was to go on to Saint John. He will speak at Saint John and stay there overnight.

Wednesday he will start off the day with a ceremony in front of the historic legislature building at Charlottetown where the fathers of Confederation held one of their early meetings.

Big Celebrations Planned For Dominion Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada marks her 86th birthday as a nation Wednesday and the observances planned for Dominion Day stretch across the world from Korea to Germany. A Canadian Press survey found Canadians at home preparing to celebrate in the traditional fashion—with regattas, racing meets, picnics, parades, barbecues and baseball games, or by driving to the cottage or the beach. Business places, offices and stock exchanges will be closed. Overseas, where Canadian fighting men are calling July 1 "Canada Day" to emphasize to their friends that Canada is no longer a dominion but a full and independent partner in the Commonwealth, big celebrations are planned.

Members of Canada's 27th infantry brigade will stage a track and field meet in Hindenberg Stadium in Hannover, Germany. Athletes from all major units of the brigade will participate, three Canadian bands will play, Canadian ambassador T. C. Davis will take the salute at a march past, and a Canada Day ball at the British officers' club in Hannover at night will be open to all Canadian ranks.

INAUGURATE CENTRE

The Canada Day program in Korea will inaugurate the Canadian 25th brigade's new sports centre. More than $1,500 has been spent on prizes and trophies for winners in the 18-event sports program, which includes the brigade softball finals.

Travel agencies in Canada expect no unusual rush of travellers. However, bus lines look for heavy traffic on short runs to beaches and resort areas. Railway companies and airlines also expect a good demand for one-day trips.

The weather is expected to be generally favorable, sunny and warm with the possibility of showers in some areas.

The main celebration coincides with special observances planned for St. Jean Baptiste Day in Windsor, Ont., 250th anniversary of Windsor, N. S., Champlain Day in Quebec city and the start of a frontier days celebration in Swift Current, Sask.

For Newfoundland, July 1 is in part a day of mourning. It is the anniversary of the day on which the Royal Newfoundland Regiment went "over the top" at Beaumont Hamel, France, in 1916 and was virtually decimated.

PLAN AIR SHOW

Elsewhere in the provinces by the sea, a B-36 inter-continental atomic bomber from the United States will take part in an air show at Saint John, N. B.; Chicken barbecues are scheduled for Fredericton, Fundy National Park and Truro, N. S.; and Pugwash, N. S., is planning another gathering of the clans and a fishermen's regatta of the type which attracted 10,000 persons last year.

Queen Mother Stops Briefly In Rome

ROME (AP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret arrived here today in a jet comet airliner en route to Southern Rhodesia.

They had tea while waiting for an hour to continue by way of Beirut, Lebanon; Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and Entebbe, Uganda, for Southern Rhodesia to participate in the celebration of the country's centennial.

They were met at Rome's Ciampino airport by representatives of the Italian government and all Commonwealth ambassadors and ministers in Rome.

Wives of the ambassadors presented the Queen Mother and Princess with bouquets.

Housing Plans Failure Drew Declares

VICTORIA—(CP)—Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, says the Liberal government is incapable of dealing with the Canadian housing problem, because the number of houses completed in Canada was smaller last year than in 1950. Mr. Drew, in an election campaign speech delivered Monday night before he left for Vancouver, also accused the Liberals of sitting back while Communists burrowed into vital industry.

He said a newly-opened Kiwanis-sponsored housing project here which provides shelter for elderly persons at rentals averaging $20 a month shows that "by co-operation between the federal, provincial and municipal authorities, housing units can be constructed at purchase or rental prices far below those now generally prevailing."

The number of houses completed in Canada fell from 89,000 in 1950 to 73,000 last year, he said. There was "clear and positive proof that this government is incapable of dealing with this problem."

WOULD BAN COMMUNISTS

During a press conference he said a Progressive Conservative government would ban Communist activities under the Criminal Code because present Canadian laws had no way of dealing with Communists until they had committed sabotage.

The Liberal government took "arbitrary action" against employing some persons on Communist grounds while making no attempt to define communism under law, and at the same time employed "those of well-known Communist record in other agencies of the same government."

"The extent to which Communist organizers have established themselves in plants taking any part in the production of uranium or other atomic products suggests that the time for action in this country is long overdue."

He said also:

"During the last few years some of the most highly-trained Com-

Defence Minister Fired By Rhee

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters)—South Korean President Syngman Rhee today fired his defence minister, a militant nationalist, in a move that foreshadowed increasing co-operation with the United Nations on a Korean truce.

Until now Rhee's government has been violently against the armistice which the Allies have been working out with the Communists. A cabinet shake-up to bring in less fanatical nationalists would reflect the talks Rhee has been having with President Eisenhower's "save the truce" envoy, Walter Robertson.

The South Korean defence minister who lost his job was Maj.-Gen. Shin Tai Yung. He was replaced by Vice-Admiral Sohn Won Il, the country's chief of naval operations who is known as a moderate who believes in an armistice provided there are certain safeguards. Sohn attended the Coronation as a representative of South Korea.

Fire Hazard High In Northern Ontario

NORTH BAY (CP)—The fire hazard throughout this Northern Ontario district zoomed to high again today as hot dry weather hit the area.

A fire in Eddy township, put out May 10, started burning again today. Officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests said the blaze had been smoldering in the dry ground for weeks and then broke out in foliage and ground vegetation.

Elsewhere in the district, four fires were burning. All of them were being patrolled by forest rangers.

France Approves Big 3 Parley About July 10

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles said today the French government has approved holding of a big three foreign ministers' conference here about July 10.

It was disclosed Monday that Britain had suggested such a conference.

Dulles told a press conference one of the main reasons for a three-power meeting would be to draft a united Western position toward Germany.

Dulles also called attention to "extensive unrest" within Russia's European satellites. He indicated the East German riots and satellite problems generally would be discussed.

Answering questions, Dulles said the new French government headed by Joseph Laniel indicated in a cable received a few minutes before the press conference that France would attend the Washington meeting.

Although billed as an informal session, there is every prospect that critical cold war decisions may result from this British-American-French meeting.

Far Eastern problems, especially the wars in Korea and Indo-China, undoubtedly will dominate the agenda.

But, informed officials said today, such troublesome questions as Germany's future, the Anglo-Egyptian quarrel and North Atlantic defence problems will be reviewed also.

WANT GET-TOGETHER

The first inkling that a foreign ministers' meeting was being planned came Tuesday when the acting British prime minister, Richard A. Butler, told the House of Commons Britain had suggested such a get-together.

Butler said it was necessary to discuss urgent problems and to "maintain the impetus given to our foreign policy" by the plans for a later meeting between Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel at Bermuda.

The state department, somewhat surprised that Butler talked publicly about the plans, disclosed that Secretary Dulles has agreed to the suggestion that he meet here with Lord Salisbury, acting British foreign secretary.

FRENCH PROBLEM

France has been notified with the idea that the French would send Georges Bidault, the new French foreign minister.

State department officials, while publicly expressing the view that the conference would be "very useful," appeared privately to have some reservations.

One reason was an inevitable French request for more U. S. aid to fight Communists in Indo-China.

Laniel's new French government came to power last week with a pledge to do something about the heavy French financial and manpower losses in Indo-China.

Diplomats also believed it likely the foreign ministers would review German developments, in the light of the recent East German riots, and explore East-West relations generally.

U.S. Jet Pilots Shoot Down 15 Red Planes

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL — (AP) — United States Sabre jet pilots shot down 15 Communist MiG jets today to set a one-day and one-month record for the Korean war.

The Sabres boosted their MiG bag for June to 74, smashing the old record of 63 set last September. And today's kill erased the old single-day mark of 13 set last July 4.

The ground war dwindled to mostly probes and skirmishes, but the 8th Army announced that the Communists fired a record-breaking 1,500,000 artillery and mortar shells this month. That's more than double the number of shells fired by Red guns in any previous month of the war.

It meant that almost two shells crashed down on Allied lines for every single foot of the 155-mile front, more than four for every Allied soldier on the line.

INFANTRY RESTS

The U.S. jets scored their greatest victory over the swept-wing Red jets as battered infantry on the western front rested momentarily from two weeks of bloody fighting.

The 36th jet ace of the war emerged from afternoon battles over North Korea. Lieut. Henry Buttlemann, Bayside, N.Y., scored his fifth kill to win ace status.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., Korea's first jet ace, downed two MiGs to boost his kills to 14 in two combat tours.

The record-breaking victory came on the first day of good flying weather in nearly a week.

While ground fighting died on most of the line, a see-saw battle still raged on the slopes of Lookout mountain in the east. Neither the Reds nor South Korean infantry have been able to hold the crest in six days of attacks and counter-attacks. The hill is one anchor for the new South Korean front in the Pukhan river sector.

CASUALTY FIGURES

The seriousness of the ground war was reflected in last week's estimated enemy casualty figures, which topped all weeks back to that of Nov. 17, 1951. The new total for the week ending June 28 put Red killed, wounded and prisoners at 11,200 Chinese and North Koreans. Of these, 9,500 enemy were killed and 3,700 wounded.

While Allied casualties are not released by action or period, but only as isolated numbers from time to time, there is an obvious relation between Red and Allied losses.

Woman Fined On Charge Careless Driving

Mrs. Joyce Metcalfe, 23, R.R. 4, Norwood, was fined $10 and $11 costs for careless driving today.

The charge arose out of an accident about 4:30 p.m. last Thursday on Highway 45 about a mile south of Norwood involving a car driven by Mrs. Metcalfe and one driven by Clifford J. Keene of Havelock when the right rear fender, bumper and trunk door of Keene's car and the front bumper and grill of Mrs. Metcalfe's car were damaged.

Mrs. Metcalfe's evidence was that she wasdriving north and came over a knoll when she noticed Keene's car going north slowly, fairly well in the middle of the road. As she drew nearer, the other car pulled further to the left and she thought it was going to turn left into Rufus Redmond's lane, but, instead, it pulled back to the right. She tried to stop to keep from hitting it but couldn't.

"Can it all be boiled down to this," asked Crown Attorney John A. Bradshow, QC. "You thought he was going to make a left hand turn and you would pass on the right but instead he turned back and you clipped him. That's about the size of it."

"Yes," admitted the accused.

HIT IN REAR

Keene denied that he was ever at any time on the west side of the highway. He said the first sign of any danger was when the other car hit his in the rear.

Citing a judgment of Justice McKay in the Ontario Court of Appeals setting standards for safe driving, defence counsel Robert Carley argued that the standard was not one of perfection but of "a reasonable degree of skill" and that his client had shown this.

"I believe the prudent thing for the driver to have done was to slow down and use her horn if she was in any doubt as to Keene's intentions," said Magistrate W. R. Philp. "I think I might mention the admirable way in which Mr. Carley handled his argument."

OPP Constable Archie Eadie investigated the accident.

Delay Cheese Exchanges Week

STRATFORD (CP)—Word was received here Monday that Ontario cheese exchanges have been postponed one week on instructions of the Ontario cheese producers marketing board.

Cecil Gill, secretary-treasurer of the Western Ontario cheese exchange, said he believed the postponement was made to enable an orderly marketing plan.

The move was announced by the board at Belleville. It affects the Stratford exchange, scheduled to be held today, and five other exchanges in Eastern Ontario.

Prices Some Lower On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Prices tended gently lower in early afternoon stock trading today.

Uraniums and Bathurst area base metals dominated trading as moderate selling pressure weakened both groups. Losses ranged to 15 cents.

Although industrials showed a majority of gains, weakness in key stocks such as Ford A, B. A. Oil, Canada Cement and Consolidated Paper depressed the index. Steels turned in several good gains of more than $1.

Golds presented a mixed picture as seniors mixed, juniors slipped but holding companies firmed in light trading. Prospectors Airways added nine cents in holding companies.

Base metals fell back in two of three issues traded as interest centred in lower-priced stocks. Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel dropped fractions in the higher-priced group.

Western oils moved within a narrowly lower price range.

Churchill Host At Several Small Parties

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill, taking it easy on doctors' orders, is in his "usual good spirits," Lord Salisbury, acting foreign secretary, said today.

He was replying in the House of Lords to expressions of sympathy for the prime minister.

Churchill, 78, was host at a small luncheon party today at his estate at Chartwell, Kent, 20 miles from London.

Almost every day since last weekend, when he finally bowed to medical advice to take a month's rest, he has entertained at lunch or dinner. Today's guests included Lord Cherwell, his chief advisor on atomic affairs, and Churchill's daughter Sarah, who flew home from the United States Monday.

The prime minister spent most of the morning in bed, leafing through a batch of cabinet papers brought from his office at 10 Downing street. He also read some of the hundreds of messages of good wishes which have flooded in from all over the world.

KEEPING IN TOUCH

Churchill still is keeping in close touch with government affairs, though deputies have been appointed to handle the day-to-day running.

Authoritative sources said they expect no immediate government reshuffle. They said the appointment of Lord Salisbury to act as foreign secretary until Anthony Eden's return was the only change visualized by the prime minister at the moment.

Salisbury will head the British delegation to the "Little Bermuda" meeting of Western foreign ministers which is expected to take place in Washington in mid-July.

In Paris, a formal invitation to attend ministerial talks in Washington was handed to foreign Minister Georges Bidault by U.S. Ambassador Douglas Dillon.

Reds Reject

It also demanded again the return of all escaped prisoners.

Clark told the Red high command that the Panmunjom negotiations were for a military armistice and that while he doesn't control the South Korean government he does command its army.

The UN commander promised to do is best to get Rhee's cooperation and pledged his command to enforce the terms of a truce.

Red China's voice at Peiping joined in scorning the UN efforts to achieve a truce and accused Rhee of planning to release Chinese prisoners in Allied prison camps.

A broadcast monitored in London said that Rhee, "emboldened as a result of open American connivance" in the release of Korean PoWs, has been plotting with the Chinese Nationalists to free Chinese PoWs.

The Allies hold nearly 20,000 Chinese, 14,200 of whom have said they would resist being returned to Red rule.

INSIST ON RECAPTURE

The Communists officially have demanded that the Allied command recapture the 27,000 Korean PoWs and prepare to turn them over to a neutral supervisory commission as outlined in the armistice draft agreement.

The armistice talks are in an indefinite recess asked by the Reds June 20.

While dickering with Robertson, Rhee moved Tuesday to strengthen his military set-up by naming Vice-Admiral Sohn Won Il as his defence minister. Sohn, South Korean chief of naval operations, replaces Shin Tai Yung, whom the government said resigned for "personal reasons."

Jet Ace Has Narrow Escape

IN KOREA (AP)—Maj. James Jabara, the world's first jet ace, almost crashed over North Korea today after shooting down two more Communist MiGs to boost his total kills to 14.

The stocky Kansan had just downed his second MiG when the Sabre jet engine flamed out.

"Four MiGs were on my tail shooting away while I watched the MiG pilot bail out," Jabara said.

"I wanted to take pictures. But these four MiGs kept firing away—and then my engine quit."

"It's a good thing they're poor shots. It got pretty hot for a while but I went straight down for the deck with the MiGs right on top of me. When I got pretty low they wouldn't go in on top of me. The flame-out lasted about a minute and a half, then my engine started again and we looked for more MiGs."

Jabara, now on his second combat tour in Korea, needs only two more MiGs to equal the record of Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif.

Good Fisheries

OSLO, Norway (CP)—The spring fisheries off northern Norway made up for the failure of last winter's Lofoten cod fishing industry. Up to mid-June the cod and haddock fisheries showed a catch of about 49,000 tons, or 8,500 more than the same time last year. The winter Lofoten cod fisheries totalled 50,000 tons, nearly 36,000 tons less than the previous winter.

munists have been sent to Canada to organize plans for sabotage in the event of the outbreak of hostilities which involved Russia itself."

In reply to questions on other matters, Mr. Drew indicated his party will not ask support fr m Social Credit in the event the Progressive Conservatives do not get an absolute Commons majority; said he favored a royal commission to study British Columbia's Doukhobor problems and said Social Credit will not be a "serious factor" in the federal election east of Alberta.

In his speech, Mr. Drew, said a Progressive Conservative election platform plank promises exemption for municipalities and school boards from excise and sales taxes on equipment and supplies, and permission for municipal taxation of federal property.

In an earlier speech in the day in the new constituency of Esquimalt-Saanich, Mr. Drew said the government "over-taxation" is "directly inflationary" and said if the Progressive Conservatives are voted into office Aug. 10 sales taxes will be cut on a number of essential commodities.

INFLATION PROBLEM

The party leader told an outdoor audience of 150 persons at nearby Sidney—many of them pensioners—that inflation has depreciated the income of those living on pensions and investments.

His party's election promise of tax savings of at least $500,000,000 a year would affect those who pay "hidden taxes"—sales and excise taxes—"even more than those who pay income tax."

Mr. Drew said the government is spending a large part of its defence budget on rearmament to replace equipment that it "almost threw away" right after the Second World War. Now the government was buying that equipment back and "great fortunes" were being made by people who had earlier purchased it "for a few cents on the dollar."

Rule Company Must Pay Old Sales Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court ruled today that the Steel Company of Canada must pay sales tax on goods which were never actually delivered to the buyers. The case began nine years ago.

Under the law, a manufacturer is required to pay eight-per-cent sales tax on goods sold to customers. In this case, the government started action to recover $1,659 in sales tax from Stelco, plus $781 in penalties for non-payment. Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, president of the court, found in favor of the government.

Goods consigned for four Prairie companies were destroyed by fire in a shed of Canada Steamship Lines at Montreal May 5, 1944. The company contended that the sale contract was incomplete because the goods were not delivered at least to the Head of the Lakes.

The government successfully contended that since the merchandise was already on its way to the buyers, the contract, for purposes of sales tax, had been completed.

Purchasers in the case were J. H. Ashdown Hardware Co. Ltd., Winnipeg; Marshall Wells Co. Ltd., Port Arthur, Winnipeg and Calgary; North Hardware Co. Ltd. Edmonton; and Walter Woods Ltd., Winnipeg.

Stelco also was ordered to pay costs of the case.

Left Accident Driver Fined

Walter Morgan, 41, 144 Lansdowne St., was fined a total of $35 and $5 costs today when he pleaded guilty to charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving without a licence.

Chief Constable Price Morris of Lakefield gave evidence that a car owned by John Spargo of Lakefield was struck on the left rear fender while parked on Queen St. opposite Davis and Charlton's garage at 5:00 p.m. on June 18.

An eyewitness took the number of the car later identified as belonging to Morgan who was apprehended in Peterborough the next day. Damage to Spargo's car was $25.

Morgan was fined $25 and $2.50 costs for failing to remain at the scene and $10 and $2.50 costs for driving without a licence.

Housing, Finance Policies Under Fire In Opposition Campaigning

By CANADIAN PRESS STAFF WRITER

Liberal government housing and financial policies came under fire in campaign speeches Monday night by two Opposition political leaders. Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in a Victoria speech, said the Liberals are incapable of dealing with the housing problem. The decline in houses completed to 73,000 last year from 89,000 in 1950 furnished "clear and positive proof" of that. Solon Low in a national radio address from Ottawa said "financial mismanagement" by the Liberals caused the decline in purchasing power of the dollar. He pledged a Social Credit government to restore the dollar's buying power.

Prime Minister St. Laurent was en route to the Maritimes where he will campaign for the next few days. But Justice Minister Garson, speaking in Dauphin, Man., said Mr. Drew is deceiving no one but himself by promising to reduce taxes $500,000,000 "and increase expenditures."

CAN BE LOWERED

Mr. Drew said a new housing project in Victoria for elderly people where ents average $20 a month shows that by federal, provincial a nd municipal co-operation housing can be built at prices "far below those now generally prevailing."

He repeated his party's promise of exempting municipalities and school boards from excise and sales taxes on equipment and supplies and allowing them to tax federal property.

In another address, he said the government's over-taxation" leads to inflation. His party would cut sales taxes on a number of essential commodities.

He said government supporters are interpreting his tax-cut promise as meaning that surpluses should not be used to reduce the national debt.

SUPREMACY OF PARLIAMENT

"We never said the government should not get money to pay off debts. But we believe in the supremacy of Parliament, and if they want to reduce the debt they should put it in the budget before Parliament."

At a press conference earlier, he said the Progressive Conservatives would not seek Social Credit support if they do not get an absolute majority in the Commons Aug. 10.

He also said that Communists have infiltrated key industries and that the government is aware of it. His party would insert a ban on Communist activity into the criminal Code.

Referring to charges by government supporters that this would drive the Communists underground, Mr. Drew said most of them are underground now.

Mr. Low said family allowance is a good thing but financial mismanagement of the economy by the Liberal government resulted in a decline in the buying power of the dollar. The result was "that every child by 1952-53 was suffering confiscation of purchasing power to the extend of $32.17 a year."

The present economy was designed to finance production. Through issuing purchasing power to the people, Social Credit would help balance production and consumption.

NEED NEW POLICIES

Mr. Low said it is "high time that new financial and economic policies were introduced into this country that will put cents back into the Canadian dollar and restore its purchasing value so that when social security measures are provided, they will accomplish their full purpose.

"We Social Crediters commit ourselves with energy and conviction to the job of restoring the purchasing value of the Canadian dollar It can be done and it must be done."

In Dauphin, Mr. Garson said M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, "is more honest than some other public men in admitting that his proposals will add substantially to our tax burdens.

" . . . Mr. Drew with his usual masterly vagueness, is promising much of what Mr. Coldwell promises but at the same time is including a $500,000,000 per year tax cut."

PERSONAL ATTACKS

At Prince Albert, Sask., John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the last Commons, said there has been "an apparent concerted effort to indulge in personal attacks" on Mr. Drew:

"The endeavor to liquidate all political opponents by resort to personalities is not in keeping with the best traditions of public life."

He said in a national radio address the Liberal government has "all but achieved absolute power." Through the Emergency Powers Act, the Liberals can "put themselves above the constitution."

SOLON LOW AT BAT — Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, plays baseball at the SC picnic held at Aurora, Ont. Suporters from across Canada attended the picnic held following the party's national conference in Toronto. Mr. Low said the Social Credit party intends to campaign extensively in Ontario for the federal election of August 10.

Health Insurance Plan At Next Session: Croll

MIDLAND—The prediction that a health insurance plan will be initiated at the first session of the new parliament was made here Monday night by David Croll, Toronto Liberal. Speaking at a Simcoe East nomination meeting which chose W. A. Robinson to again contest the riding, Mr. Croll told his audience: "Health insurance must be undertaken at the first session of a new parliament. It will be, I am sure, a workable plan, not just something on paper."

We are now more than half way toward making health insurance a reality. As a party we are pledged and committed to it and we are not reneging on our solemn promise. But we have refused to yield to the temptation to give people a less-than-workable, realistic plan. There will be no phoney plan.

"The test it 'Will there be a hospital bed for a Canadian citizen when he falls sick?' and 'Will there be doctors and nurses to look after him?'

HAVE GOOD RECORD

Mr. Croll, who in the past has repeatedly urged his government to move faster in this matter, said the record of the Liberal administration was a record of good, honest and successful government. But, he added:

"We can't coast on what we did last year, no matter how good it was. The Canadian people are not going to the polls this year to vote on what happened last year. They want to know what is going to happen next year and the year after."

"To give the ctizens of Canada a health insurance plan on paper," he said, "is an easy thing to do. It is simply a matter of legislation. But before any workable plan of health insurance is provided, there must be adequate hospital facilities and sufficient doctors, nurses and all other necesssary technical help.

"It would be a bitter irony, yes a brutal hoax, to provide sound without substance, words without deeds, to place before the Canadian people an unworkable plan. This we will not do."

Mr. Croll said he was sure the Prime Minister, with his deep understanding of human needs, would make a start on health insurance at the first session of the new parliament.

In criticizing the Progressive Conservative Party, he said: "The fundamental error of the Tory Party is that it is trying to make 19th century policies work in the 20th century. If the 20th century is to belong to Canada, then the Conservative Party must belong to the past."

Gordon Graydon Lindsay Speaker

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Progressive-Conservative headquarters for Victoria Haliburton announced today Gordon Graydon, will be the speaker at the nomination meeting to be held Friday afternoon. Others on the program will be Premier L. M. Frost, and Clayton Hodgson. Headquarters for riding association have been set up in Lindsay.

Asks About St. Laurent Retirement

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—John Diefenbaker challenged Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday night to announce whether he will retire as federal Liberal party leader after the Aug. 10 general election.

In a speech over a CBC national network, Mr. Diefenbaker said there has been "an apparent, concerted effort to indulge in personal attacks" on Progressive Conservative leader George Drew.

Mr. Diefenbaker is Progressive Conservative candidate in Prince Albert after 13 years in Parliament as member from Lake Centre which was wiped out by redistribution.

He said: "The endeavor to liquidate all political opponents by resort of personalities is not in keeping with the best traditions of public life."

VIRTUAL DICTATORSHIP

Declaring the Liberals are describing themselves as the "men who cannot be replaced," Mr. Diefenbaker said if that were so, "we would have achieved a virtual dictatorship in Canada."

"The present government in Ottawa has all but achieved absolute power. It can control every avenue of life in Canada under the Emergency Powers Act and put themselves above the constitution."

Mr. Diefenbaker criticized Liberal campaigners for blaming Progressive Conservatives for the depression of the 1930s, for spreading the untruth that Progressive Conservatives will remove or reduce social security measures and for claiming Progressive Conservatives will erect high tariff walls.

Two Parties Send Delegations To Funeral

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP)—Representative delegations of both Liberal and Conservative parties will be in Wallaceburg Thursday to attend funeral services for Arthur St. Clair Gordon, a former provincial treasurer and former MPA for West Kent.

The Rev. R. R. Sadlier of St. James Anglican church will officiate at the service.

Combines Retain Lead In League

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Combines kept ahead of the pack in the Lindsay men's softball league Monday night, with a 18-8 win over the Fairway Motors Crew.

Errors played a large part in the game. Fairways committing eight to contribute to their own downfall. They managed to get 13 safety off Jack Kean, but left most of their men on bases.

Ken Baker and Richards led the Combines with home runs, while Bob Maidens was best for the losers with three hits. Lewis and Pullen had two each for the Motors.

The Lindsay Walkwoods entry in the tri-county baseball league lost their second game of season, dropping an 11-4 decision to Bolsover, a team they had previously beaten four times.

The Bolsover visitors collected 10 hits from Garf Teel, while eight walkwood errors help them win. Hugh Grant, with three hits, led the visitors.

Three Issues In Election

PORT COLBORNE— "The Liberal Party would have us believe that there are only 12 or 15 men in all Canada capable of providing good government for this country," declared Major W. S. Thomson of Oakville at a Conservative campaign rally here Monday. "I don't believe we're nearly so bankrupt as all that," he added.

To Liberal claims that no real election issues existed, Major Thomson said: "So far as I am concerned there are three main issues. First of all, I believe the time has come to restore the supremacy of parliament.

"Secondly, I believe the time has long passed when we should have had action toward reducing over-taxation."

Of national defense, he had the scathing comment: "I am unable to dismiss from my mind the picture, in the event of an enemy attack, of our headquarters staffs rushing forth armed with neckties to strangle the enemy; perhaps led by the generals, brigadiers and colonels who infest these many buildings, mounted on Petawawa horses and armed with some of the 14,000 serving forks bought by Mr. Claxton.

Seek Two Men On Murder Charges

BLIND RIVER (CP) — Police throughout Ontario today sought two men believed wanted in the United States on murder charges.

Taxi-driver James Shamas in this town 70 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie told police the two men forced him at gunpoint Monday to drive 21 miles to Markstay. The men put Shamas out and fled in his cab.

Provincial police at Toronto said they believe the two are wanted by the FBI on murder charges. They did not identify them.

Farmer Is PC Choice

ILDERTON (CP)—Cameron McTaggart, 45-year-old Ekfrid township farmer, Monday night was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate to contest the Aug. 10 election in West Middlesex. He defeated reeve W. H. A. Thomas of Metcalfe. Robert McCubbin, present Liberal member for the riding, is seeking re-election.

Campney Nominated

VANCOUVER (CP) — Associate defence minister Ralph Campney Monday night was nominated Liberal candidate for Vancouver-Centre in the Aug. 20 federal election. He has represented the riding since 1949.

PC Standard-Bearer

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Eugene King, 56, Dover township farmer, Monday night was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate for Kent in the Aug. 10 election. W. Watson, Harwich township, was also nominated but withdrew. The seat now is held by Blake Huffman, Liberal, who is seeking re-election.

Sybil Bennett Making Second Try For Seat

OTTAWA (CP)—Sybil Bennett, a Georgetown, Ont., lawyer who heads the national women's organization of the Progressive Conservative party, carries a famous Conservative name into the present political campaign.

The 49-year-old Miss Bennett, a distant relative of the late Viscount Bennett, prime minister from 1930 to 1935, is making her second attempt to return the family name to the Commons.

In her first campaign in the 1949 general election in her home constituency of Halton she lost to the Liberal candidate by fewer than 1,500 votes. For this year's election she got an early start with a nomination last summer, and since then has made a door-to-door canvas throughout the riding.

She is among the largest group of women candidates—seven at last count—ever to enter a general election for the party.

EFFECTIVE SPEAKER

Miss Bennett, who favors smartly tailored suits and ultra-feminine hats, is one of the party's most effective public speakers and this summer is going outside her riding to campaign in other Ontario constituencies.

Born at St. George, Ont., she is the daughter of a Methodist minister who was an ardent Tory, and she has never swerved from the family allegiance.

She was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1926 and after four years at Osgoode Hall law school was called to the Ontario bar. After a term as solicitor with the agricultural development board of Ontario, she moved to Georgetown where she became a partner of Leroy Dale in a growing law practice.

In 1935 she was named a King's Counsel—one of the first women lawyers in Ontario to receive that honors—and inherited the gown which had been worn in court by Prime Minister Bennett.

She finds time from her political and legal activities to act as a director of the Peel County Children's Aid Society, and is also a member of her local Women's Institute and the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Drew Deceives Himself–Garson

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Monday night Progressive Conservative leader George Drew "is unwittingly deceiving no one but himself in his promise to reduce taxes and increase expenditures."

Speaking at a public meeting here, Mr. Garson said he would not go so far as CCF leader M. J. Coldwell who said in a campaign speech recently that Mr. Drew's promise is "the most calculated piece of deceit" since William Aberhart promised the people of Alberta $25 a month.

"To give Mr. Coldwell his due, he is much more honest than some other public men in admitting that his proposals will add substantially to our tax burdens."

On CCF progress, Mr. Garson said Mr. Coldwell's idea "that he can carry out his program by soaking the rich is a fantasy."

Canada's national taxable income is distributed so well that a "comparatively small part of it goes to the rich," he said.

First Sod Turned For $186,000 School

LINDSAY — (ENS) — A start was made Monday night on the new Separate School building in Lindsay, when Monsignor John V. McAuley and Albert O'Neill turned the first sod for the $186,000 two-storey combined school and parish hall.

Chairman of the meeting and one of the speakers, was Leo Skipworth, chairman of the Separate School Board and Mgrs. McAuley also gave a short address.

Also present were the architects Servos and Cauley of Toronto, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Reeve Richard Butler, representing town council, James Doyle, Separate school inspector, Gerrard Connolly, representing the high school board and members of the Separate School Board.

Peterborough's Political Candidates

The three candidates who will contest the election on August 10 in this city are now all known. The sitting member, Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, will run in the Progressive Conservative interest once again. His experience as a campaigner, the advantage which lies with a man who has already held office, and his efficient organization will all work in his favour. Against him is the fact that he has always sat in Opposition, and this has seriously limited what he has been able to do for this riding.

* * *

Mr. Max Swanston, running as Liberal candidate, is very well known, and has a fine record as an alderman and Mayor of this city. Working to his advantage are his personal popularity, and his deep knowledge of the problems and needs of this community. Against him must be reckoned the fact that this riding has been Conservative for many years, and reversals are not easily achieved.

* * *

After some indecision the C.C.F. has decided that it will enter Mr. Maurice Ketcheson as its candidate. We admire Mr. Ketcheson as a man who is prepared to enter what he knows is a hopeless fight in order to uphold his principles. For him is the forthrightness of his own character, as shown in his attitude toward the matter of the Memorial Centre, and also the fact that he will be able to enlist some Labour support. Against him is the dissension which exists in Labour's own ranks, locally.

* * *

The contest is between Mr. Fraser and Mr. Swanston. We expect that the public will shortly be hearing from both of these gentlemen, and we urge the voters to hear them patiently, understandingly and consideringly. We shall report what they have to say as fairly as we can, and in future any political comment in this paper will appear in these columns. For this reason we shall enforce our usual election rule that no political letters to the Editor will be published between now and August 10.

From Sea To Sea At 86

Canada is now conscious of being Canadian. This, and not the reach from sea to sea of the third largest piece of real estate in the world, is the fulfilment of the vision of the Fathers of Confederation 86 years ago.

Canada has been Canadian since 1867, but Canadians have only become so. Even the leader of the Fathers, he with the greatest creative force in making this Dominion, this Nation, is remembered for his boast of being, not Canadian, but a British subject born and bred. We are today, and proudly, British subjects. It is our heritage, our birthright. But today we are Canadian citizens first, and we know it. This self-knowledge and national self-control, this self-realization, is the essence of our being Canadian. It is not the dollars we earn, the pulp and nickel we produce, the fourteen million people we can count within our borders, nor even our feats of arms which we celebrate tomorrow; it is our awareness of ourselves as a people.

On July 1st, 1867 the people of this land (its four provinces as then constituted) were made Canadians by statute, but it has taken the British North America Act, our material progress, our political nature and our social climate more than eight decades to make us Canadians in reality, that is, to feel that we are a Canadian people. Time and events have proved us to ourselves, and, oddly enough (it is part of our character) this recognition came first from outside. In fact, it was only last year, when many American publications saluted Canada with special articles on the land and people, articles which appeared after our 85th birthday and throughout the autumn, that Canadians themselves fully accepted the concept of their being Canadian. They had had the commendation and recognition of outsiders.

We have seen in the articles such phrases as this: "A powerful, prosperous, attractive, self-confident country that ranks sixth among the industrial producers of the world and probably exerts more influence than any other nation of her size in modern history" . . . "Canada's potentialities, largely untapped, are only partly measured" . . . "Her current expansion, unlike her past booms, is enlarging all phases of the economy, in all parts of the land" . . . "Canada is a nation without either the glory or bombast that usually goes with nationhood". The outside analysis of Canada, her character, her resources, her industry, her finance, and her future, has done more to make Canadians Canadian than even the Massey report on our culture. The long and slow struggle of Canada towards the light has been under two great shadows—Britain and the United States, and this has, more than anything else, given us what many analysts have called it a national inferiority complex. Now all that has gone. Canada and Canadians are confident and self-confident; their works have established their right to a position in the sun, and that position is recognized abroad, and now at home.

It is said in this Coronation Year, that we are entering upon a new Elizabethan age. This is not true in Canada. Here we are entering our first Elizabethan age. The circumstances of the great Tudor period were much like those in which Canada finds herself: rapidly developing power, a lively sense of discovery and exploitation, new worlds of ideas and science, and a newly-prosperous and comfortable material existence. Our hope now can be that the pattern of the first Elizabethan age in England can come full circle in the first Elizabethan age in Canada. New science, new technology, rich material progress and new wealth and leisure can lead to a good cultural and artistic national life, as they did in England. The Elizabethan age threw up—as well as explorers, heroes and statesmen—men of wit, learning and great creative powers. We may not look in this new age in Canada for a second Shakespeare, but a Kit Marlowe and a Bacon may emerge, because the economic and political climate should—this is a proper hope—provide in our own time the climate in which the soul and mind of Canada will flower.

Witholding The Right To Strike

At its annual convention in Quebec city, the Civil Service Federation of Canada passed a resolution asking that the right to strike be granted to civil service employees under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act. From the attitude shown at the convention it was plain that the civil servants want this permission very badly, but we cannot agree that it should be given to them.

Civil servants are not ordinary employees and when they strike they can cause much more than ordinary disruption. They strike not against an employer or a group of employers, but against the nation. At present policemen and firemen are not permitted to strike, for if they did so they would endanger whole communities. A civil service strike, we maintain, would disrupt the national economy, and might also endanger public health or safety. Civil servants, it must not be forgotten, enjoy an unusual tenure of office and are not usually in competition with other workers to hold their jobs. These advantages in our opinion outweigh the disability which they would suffer if they were not permitted to strike. The interest of the public must be put before their interest as a special group of workers.

Strikes of railway workers, government-employed, are strikes against the nation. So also are the strikes of postal employees. Such strikes are not solely against the business people of the nation, but against every man, woman and child in it. A grievance would have to be a very great one to justify such strikes, and the sympathy strikes in other branches of government service might be called at the same time. The right to strike in the civil service could mean a form of blackmail against a whole nation.

Of course it is discriminatory to forbid certain categories of workers to strike. But the first discrimination is made by every worker who seeks a civil service job, for he or she has chosen the government service, in which responsibility is rightly greater than for other employment. Those who put other considerations before their duty to their jobs and country should not seek civil service appointments.

Mr. Coldwell's Bereavement

Political friends, political enemies, and the press of Canada have all been quick to express their sympathy with Mr. M. J. Coldwell, whose wife died at the weekend. Mrs. Coldwell has been an invalid for many years, and those who knew her admired the courageous spirit in which she accepted an unkind fate. She kept her friends, her wide interests, and her devotion to the political party of which her husband is leader. Those who know politics best are often heard to say that a politician's wife can make his work supportable or insupportable by her attitude toward it; Mrs. Coldwell was a source of great strength to her husband.

That he should suffer this bereavement at the outset of a Dominion election campaign is a heavy blow to the C.C.F. leader. We hope he understands that a friendliness which has nothing to do with politics goes out to him from people everywhere in the country.

Schools In Scandinavia

By E. MICHAEL SALZER

IN Scandinavia's well ordered society, where "few have too little and fewer too much," to use the phrase of a former Swedish Finance Minister, where social welfare has ensured a stable and healthy foundation for the new generation, education is a matter of the keenest public interest. Educational methods are still in the melting pot and schools are being constantly reformed. The leading Swedish newspapers publish several pages with complete results of all higher school certificate examinations, not merely for the students, but for the whole nation to check and compare. The best essays are published in the Press and awarded high prizes. Well-known personalities of all walks of life are invited by the newspapers to write essays on the same subjects under strict examination conditions to be judged by a jury. Whenever a schoolmaster makes an unpopular decision—as in the case of a girl pupil, whose school certificate in general behaviour was reduced from A to B, because she took part in a student variety show without special permission of the teacher— his action is queried by the whole country. Education is thus one of the foremost problems in the public mind and every novel educational scheme rouses fierce storms of protest and of acclaim. The important feature of Scandinavian education is however, its keenness for experiments, which arouse interest throughout the world.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is, for example, the recently opened "shopping street" in the Mariekalls school in Sodertalje, near Stockholm. Apart from the grocery shop, used to teach practical mathematics, there is a hardware and ironmonger's store, a paint shop, a pottery shop with a complete ceramic workshop, a carpentry shop, a kitchen and a "guest room" (where pupils can learn to make beds and clean furniture) and a post office, where older pupils can prepare themselves for a career in the postal services. The idea is to give the children, in addition to the regular daily school work, closer contact with every day life, to make them "money conscious," so that they know what things cost, to teach them how the things they use every day are made (e.g. cups and plates and chairs— in other words, to translate book knowledge into practical experience. "A school for life," they call it.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Bernadotte School in Hellerup, near Copenhagen (Denmark) is an experiment in international education to promote understanding and tolerance. Started four years ago on private initiative, it is today supported to the extent of eight per cent. by the Danish state. The children are from many lands and from all strata of society. There are no classes; the children belong to groups (named after the teachers) and move from group to group as they progress. So every child can work according to its own rhythm. There are no examinations, but those who wish can take a special eight months' course in preparation for the usual school certificate. The most important feature is the "P" hours, the practical hours, where children can learn anything from weaving and carpeting to cooking, metal work, basket-making, painting, sculpturing, singing and dancing, according to their own choice. All this is in itself perhaps only a synthesis of ideas previously practised in "free schools" in other countries, but its application to an international group of children, and its accent on the international aspect, are original.

✧ ✧

TO bring beauty and colour in the drab atmosphere of their peasant homes, a Norwegian authoress, Ingeborg Reflinghagen, has sacrificed all her earnings for the children of her own native village. Through her untiring efforts the Stein school in the village of Nes in Romerike, two hours by train north of Oslo, has been turned into the most beautiful village school in the world. Everything from pen-stands and wash-basins to clothes-hangers and the small table on which a beautifully illustrated Bible lies in the entrance hall, has been decorated by painters and sculptors with lovely designs. Thus the children grow up in beauty and carry artistic understanding into their homes. Another such model school has been made beautiful in Mostu, nearby, and several others are to follow.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE child's inborn love for beauty and nature can easily be destroyed by cruel surroundings, by a disturbed home, drunken parents, by misery and hate. Juvenile delinquents, children considered by ordinary schools and homes "impossible", are transferred by the municipality of Stockholm to the corrective school at Ska Edeby, near the Swedish capital. There the young delinquents live in small houses under the guidance of house parents and teachers, who combine angelic patience and kindness, with the firm will to help these young unfortunates.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are no restricting walls or fences and no strict rules. Hundreds of broken window panes have to be replaced each year, dozens of chairs and tables have to be repaired, and bedding torn to bits or pillows slit open must be replaced. The children are allowed to vent their aggressive spirits freely, until they eventually calm down and find the way back into ordered society. They can attend classes or not, they can smoke and they may kick their teachers, who realise that they need such "safety valves" to air their accumulated grievances against their surroundings.

✧ ✧ ✧

AFTER a while, usually ten to twelve months, they recover and four out of five are "cured" for ever. Love, understanding and tolerance, paired with psychological and medical knowledge, to take the place of punishment and unresilient discipline, is the underlying idea of Dr. Gustav Johnson, the much maligned and much admired head of this unusual school, which is trying to mould young citizens out of those who rebelled against the harness of harsh rule and discipline elsewhere. Another "school for life," Scandinavian pattern.

Still Far Too Small

(Brantford Expositor)

Canada's population is on the increase and it is probable that before the end of this year it will have reached 15,000,000. While in the right direction, this is certainly not far enough extended. The figure of 15,000,000 still represents only a relative handful for a country as large as Canada and possessing such vast undeveloped natural wealth.

This point has been laboured frequently by The Expositor, but we make no apology for it. The fact is something of which all Canadians should become intelligently aware. From the point of view of military security alone, the existing situation is dangerous. Economically speaking it may be equally so.

WITH THE COMING OF DOMINION DAY holiday plans and preparations of all kinds are uppermost in Canadian minds. Above we see a group of specially interested spectators supervising work to put one of the city playgrounds in order.

Letters To The Editor

PETERBOROUGH AND STRATFORD

Sir: I should like to express my appreciation of your article on Saturday, June the twentieth, comparing Stratford's Avon river with Peterborough's Otonabee. I am sure that I speak for many Peterborough citizens who are aware not only of the great natural beauty of our own river, but also of its potential value to our tourist trade.

PETERBOROUGH CITIZEN.

BORN 50 YEARS TOO LATE

Sir: Can "Pansy" in Thursday's "Examiner" have in mind a certain picture of a church to be built soon in Peterborough? When she makes her remarks on modern architecture? If so she must be quite behind the times. Does she not know that these other world (which one—up or down?) ideas are the modern signs of genius? "How to become a genius in one easy lesson"— paint a picture of trees with blue leaves and pink trunks. If you insist that leaves should be green you are vulgar and commonplace. If you think a church should have "arched ceilings, coloured windows, pillars" — you have been born 50 years too late.

H. J. STREATER.

CIRCUS OVERCROWDED

Sir: I should like to express what I think must be a fairly wide-spread feeling of indignation about the recent circus sponsored by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

A great many of us were unable to see a large portion of the performance because of overcrowding, and this can be construed only as greed on the part of the circus management and possibly on the part of Kiwanis s well.

Adults had some advantage over children, but even I could see nothing of what went on in any of the three rings at ground level.

I inferred that there was some excellent tumbling because I caught an occasional glimpse of feet and heads flashing up, and some excellent equestrian performances because I occasionally saw a horse's head and some performing elephants because I could see their backs. The ring-master introduced and commented on various clown acts, and a tug-of-war between an elephant and a tractor and many other things "down here in front of me," but I could not find him, nor see the acts he was referring to. Even some of the aerial acts were obscured, especially for the children I had with me, by other children, and even adults standing so close in front of us.

At the outset, the performance was stopped a couple of times until everybody sat down, but this was effective for only a matter of a few minutes, and not very effective at that.

We were seated at the main entrance, and so many indignant adults and bitterly disappointed children went out past us during the early part of the performance that hopes were aroused for a better view of the latter part of the show. However, there were still too many to allow many of us spectators to see.

Since the management of the circus knows the capacity of the tent, and has a check on the number of people admitted from the tickets collected at the entrance, it would appear to be gross mismanagement and greed to allow some one or two thousand extra persons into the tent, and not, as it was explained by the ring-master, an act of munificence "so that all those people wouldn't have to stand out in the rain, and be disappointed because they didn't see the show." I believe now, that we would have been among the disappointed ones, but at least we would not have been charged for a performance which we did not see.

This experience will make one hesitant to support any such enterprises sponsored by Service Clubs in the future.

Yours truly,
THOMAS E. CURRIER, M.D.

"MAPLE LEAF ON THE PIPES"

Sir: I greatly enjoyed reading the letters by the Scotchman and the Welshman, and the sentiments expressed by both. I think the Welshman won on points. This is not surprising, since Wales produced a David Lloyd George who became England's Prime Minister during the first world war. Scotland, on the other hand produced a Robert Bruce—(Mac. slipped up on this point)— but it was from an Irish spider that Bruce learned the art of perseverence. As for the prophecy of Edinburgh being greater than London, all we can say is, "Great Scott". Maybe Nostradamus or Mother Shipton was pulling the Scotchman's leg. Mac deserves credit however for knowing how to blow on the bagpipes, but how much better we should all feel if Mac. would change his tune and provide some good music to the words : "The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose entwine the Maple Leaf forever."

Unconsidered Trifles

"Whenever my wife needs money, she calls me handsome."

"Handsome."

"Yeah—handsome over."

A gambler had died. The funeral was well attended by his professional friends. In the eulogy, the speaker asserted: "Spike is not dead. He only sleeps." From the rear of the chapel came the interrupting words, "I got $100 says he's dead!"

Jones took the ticket the agent gave him, picked up his change and walked away.

A few minutes later he was back again at the ticket window.

"I say," he said to the clerk, "you gave me the wrong change just now."

"Sorry, sir," said the agent, with a shrug of his shoulders, "it cannot be rectified now. You should have called my attention to it at the time you bought your ticket."

"Well, that's all right, then," said Jones with a faint smile. "I'm not worrying. You gave me five dollars too much."

A Matter Of Taste

(BBC Bulletin)

"It's nice but not really like my mother used to make" is a phrase that can drive a woman nearly mad, as Winifred Gill said in a BBC broadcast to women. "Whenever you hear that said you are meant to gather that mother was a better cook than you are. Don't you believe it!" said Miss Gill trenchantly, "Nine time out of ten she was nothing of the kind. It is merely a question of what a person is used to." Her own mother was a wonderful cook but it took her father some time to get used to his wife's pastry and cakes because he had been brought up on pastry made with a heavy hand and cakes with a little soggy raw patch in the middle. He complained that Mrs. Gill's cakes never had soggy patches in the middle and he liked soggy patches, or so he said.

Mrs. Gill would not have lowered her standard for any man, no matter how much she loved him, and her husband had to put up with her good cooking. Relief came for him unexpectedly when his five daughters learnt tocook in turn. When one of them made a horrible cake with a wet centre her father would twinkle at her comfortably across the table and say, "Now this is what I call a very nice cake—just as I like it".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

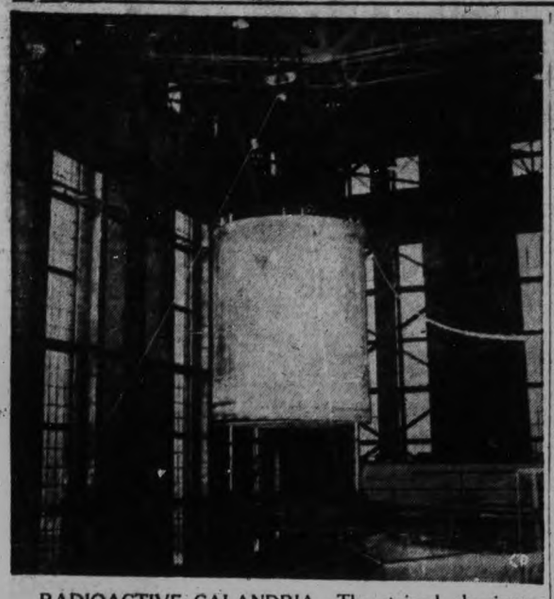
Wherewith shall I come before the Lord and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? . . .He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? (Mic. 6:6, 8.)

For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little . . .

Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation; he that believeth shall not make haste. (Isa. 28:10, 16.)

Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also . . . Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. (II Tim. 2:1, 2, 15.)

✧ ✧ ✧



But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. (II Cor. 11:3.)

"Teledu"

The following question was asked in the United Kingdom House of Commons on June 10th:

Mr. Llewellyn asked the Assistant Postmaster-General by what name Welsh television will be officially known in Wales. Mr. Gammans: As far as the Post Office is concerned I am afraid that, owing to my philological limitations, television in Wales must continue to be called television; but I understand that the BBC has already held a competition in which 500 people sent in their suggestions for a Welsh word of television. Those suggestions, which numbered nearly 1,000, were examined by three outside experts who, on 24th May, announced their decision that, in their opinion, the Welsh word for television is TELEDU.

RADIOACTIVE CALANDRIA—The stained aluminum calandria — believed the largest radioactive object ever handled—is taken out of the NRX reactor structure at Canada's atomic plant at Chalk River. The calandria is 10 feet high and eight feet in diameter. The radiation field around this tank is approximately equal in strength to that of half of all the radium that has been produced in the world. The removal operation took place after the 70-man team had been trained on a scale model filled with sand.

2 Labor Bodies Protest Russian Action In E. German

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's two top labor bodies Monday jointly accused Russia of "murderous repression" of the workers' rights in the recent riots in East Germany.

A strong protest against the use of Soviet troops and tanks to attack and put down the East German strikes was sent to the Soviet embassy.

The letter was signed by Percy R. Bengough, president of the 520,000-member Trades and Labor Congress, and A. R. Mosher, president of the 370,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor.

An embassy official said he had not seen the letter. He declined to say what would be done with it if and when it was received.

PROFOUNDLY SHOCKED

The letter said in part:

"We have been profoundly shocked by the actions of your government in sending troops and tanks to East Germany in order to suppress the legitimate protests of the workers in that area. For the Soviet government, which has always professed its support for the rights of the working class to struggle against injustice, to have collaborated in the ruthless suppression of the workers of East Germany is, in our opinion, worthy of the strongest condemnation.

"Our congresses deplore the use of Soviet guns and tanks against workers exercising their centuries-old right to strike as free men. We are aghast at the executions of workers before Soviet firing squads and the inhumane holding, as hostages, of the wives and children of striking workers with threat of reprisals against these innocent victims. Rarely in the annals of labor history has such murderous repression been utilized to stifle the right of working-class protest."

Reduce Murder Verdict

VANCOUVER (CP)—Court of appeal Monday reduced to manslaughter the verdict against Glen Donald Smith, 22-year-old army deserter who had been sentenced to hang for a murder in Whitehorse, Yukon territory, and sentenced him to 15 years in penitentiary. Smith was charged with the fatal shooting last Aug. 11 of Ralph Caruso, Whitehorse taxi driver.

Austria Has Many Problems But Still In Good Condition

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The four-power occupation of Austria is relatively inconspicuous to a visitor but it is a big drain on the country.

This is despite the fact that Russia, the United States and Britain agreed in 1943 that, at war's end, Austria should be regarded as "the first victim of Nazi aggression," rather than as an enemy country.

This agreement did have the benefit of allowing Austria to form its own government in 1945 and to run its own affairs since then with the exception of such matters as demilitarization, denazification and reparations.

An early peace treaty was certainly envisaged in the understanding among the powers, but more than 260 meetings of deputies of the council of foreign ministers for Austria have failed to produce agreement. Now it seems unlikely that Russia will agree to a peace treaty until she sees fit to use it in her bargaining with the West.

The powers' agreement provided for reparations from German-owned property in Austria, with certain limitations, and the Western powers either took reparations quickly or forgot about them.

Russia put such a liberal interpretation on the understanding and on what constitutes German-owned property as to virtually nullify its economic provisions.

HELPS HERSELF

She has taken over more than 300 businesses, including several large industries, and all of Austria's oil production, which is the biggest in Europe and is all in the Russian zone, additionally, Austria pays the costs of occupation, about $50,000,000 yearly, for all but the American forces.

These things, plus the value of plants dismantled at war's end, are estimated by Austrians to have cost the country, to date, some $1,000,000,000.

This loss would have been insupportable if it were not that Austria has received about $900,000,000 either through the United States' Marshall Plan, or the European Payments Union.

These things happened to a country which after the First World War was reduced from the head of an empire of 56,000,000 people to the head of a state of some 7,000,000 people occupying about 32,600 square miles.

IN GOOD CONDITION

Yet, today, Austria seems in quite good condition, though certainly facing many problems.

Rolf von Heidenstam, of Sweden, retiring president of the International Chamber of Commerce which met in Vienna in May, commented:

"We have seen what Austria is doing and trying to do, and it is a surprise to a lot of people."

An Austrian statement prepared for the ICC meeting said:

"We do not wish to remain forever dependent on outside aid but would rather strive by hard work to open the nuts which the Lord has provided for us; that is, to develop to the utmost our economic possibilities."

These possibilities are considerable. They include timber, iron ore, magnesium and other minerals; oil, for which the search continues; and good waterpower resources.

TRADE AT '37 LEVEL

Volume of trade is back to about the level of 1937, before Nazi aggression. A trade deficit has been reduced, although it shows tendencies to go up again, and the lessening of Marshall Plan aid, as it develops, will create problems. The currency semes to have been stabilized at a rate of 26 schillings to the American dollar. Inflation seems to have been checked.

The loss of markets in the neighboring European countries now behind the Iron Curtain has been a blow; although some think Austria can make up for it in trade with the West, if western countries will be more receptive to Austrian goods.

Intelligence Worker Dead In Apartment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Canadian-born stenographer employed by central intelligence agency, a hush-husn arm of the United States government, was found dead Monday in her apartment.

Police said Mrs. Jean Lawrence, 42, had been dead several hours. Her unclothed body was found on the bedroom floor after an apartment employee entered to find out why she hadn't shown up for work. A telephone receiver was in one hand.

The police report said there were no signs of violence.

Mrs. Lawrence was a widow. A native of Ottawa, she became a United States citizen in 1924.

TORONTO (CP)—A Welsh immigrant couple were given jail terms Monday for neglect of their three children and magistrate W. W. McKeown said he would recommend that immigration authorities deport them.

Cyril Jones, 27, was sentenced to six months in jail and his wife, Megan, 24, received a nine-month term.

Their boys, one four and the others two-year-old twins, were found alone in a room of their parents' home. Police said the room was "unbelievably filthy."

Report Mice Bad For Cat's Diet

TORONTO (CP) — Mice have known it for a long time, but cats may be surprised to know that mice aren't good for them.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in its annual bulletin on the care of pets during vacations, says mice infest cats with worms and are generally detrimental.

Cats should be well fed so they won't be tempted to eat the mice they catch. A well-fed tabby will catch as many mice as a hungry one.

Father Of Air Training Plan Dr. C. J. MacMillan Dies At Home

FORTUNE, P.E.I. (CP) — Dr. Cyrus J. Macmillan, one of the fathers of the wartime Commonwealth Air Training Plan and former head of McGill University's English department, died Monday at his summer home in this town 40 miles east of Charlottetown. He was 70.

During the Second World War he was parliamentary assistant to Canada's first air minister, Hon. C. G. (Chubby) Power, when the air crew training program was inaugurated in Canada.

He was one of McGill's most famous professors, dean of its arts and science faculty for many years. For a few weeks in 1930 he was federal minister of fisheries.

Dr. Macmillan was in poor health for several years.

He was born at Wood Islands, P.E.I., and received his early education in the local one-room school. He received his master of arts degree from McGill in 1930 and his PhD from Harvard in 1909.

BEGAN TEACHING IN 1910

Dr. Macmillan began his long teaching career at McGill in 1910 as an English lecturer. During the First World War he helped organize the 7th Canadian siege battery and went overseas in 1916 as captain of the unit. He was twice mentioned in dispatches.

In 1925 he became head of the English department, one of McGill's largest.

In 1926 Dr. Macmillan was appointed a member of the royal commission on Maritime claims, the Duncan commission, whose report became known as the Magna Carta of Maritime rights.

COME IN AND TALK BUSINESS

You are invited to come in and test and compare these new Dodge express models . . . the 108 inch wheelbase ½-ton with a 6½' box, and the big, roomy 126 inch wheelbase ¾-1 ton model with a 9' box.

You'll find that Dodge express bodies, with their extra width and depth, provide greater capacity — particularly important if your loads are bulky. Further, thanks to Dodge "Job-Rated" design (which reduces truck weight by shortening the over-all length) there's a sizeable payload advantage over trucks of similar Gross Vehicle Weight.

THEY'RE EASIER TO LOAD
Dodge express bodies are much closer to the ground than most competitive models, to make loading faster and easier — without sacrifice of road clearance. Running boards are full foot-width to make side loading easier.

THEY TURN EASIER
Dodge is the ideal truck for hauling on crowded streets, through narrow alleys or wherever a highly manoeuverable truck is desirable. With the shortest turning diameter of any popular truck, you turn in less space, with less effort.

FIRST IN VALUES FOR THE HOME

IN ON THE VICTORY — Though the whole team clicked well, these three of the Petes' Trailermen had a lot to do with the locals' 10-4 OLA senior "A" win over Fergus Thistles here last night to keep the club right up near the top. Playing coach Bob Thorpe (left) was as steady as ever to tally a couple of neat goals; Nip O'Hearn, centre, led the snipers with three smart markers; and goalie Moon Wootton, at right, was brilliant to hold Thistles well in check all through.

Petes Down Fergus By 10-4 Despite Most Penalties To Move Into 2nd Place Tie

Though drawing 12 penalties to Fergus Thistles' six, the Petes' Trailermen trimmed the fourth-place Thistles 10-4 here last night to move back into a second-place tie in the OLA senior standing with the Orillia Terriers—formerly known as Toronto West Yorks. Referees Mickey McDonald and Sandy Milne were rather rough on the Thorpe team at times, especially in the last half, and McDonald once abused his authority by giving Roger Smith a five-minute misconduct in the fourth frame when the player dropped the ball at a whistle instead of profferring it gently to the arbiter. Fights threatened a few times but play was generally clean, if a bit rugged, in the hot going.

Brilliant goaltending by Moon Wootton kept Thistles pretty much at bay throughout, though they outscored the winners 2-1 in the last chapter. Petes led 2-0 in the initial inning, had a 2-1 edge in the second, and rapped in five goals to Thistles' one during the lively third stanza. Jim Robertson made some neat saves, too, in the other net.

Harry Kazarian failed to show up with the Owen Sound contingent for Fergus, and Don Ashbee sat it out for Peterborough with a sore finger. Harry Wipper was hit hard off-balance in the last chukker and retired to the sidelines. The Petes played last Friday and Saturday nights, last evening, and will be in Hamilton tomorrow, here against St. Catharines on Friday of this week, and in St. Catharines the next night for a stiff hot-weather grind.

Nip O'Hearn blasted in three goals in a smart showing for the winners here last night. He had the prettiest tally of the night in the second period when he interrupted a hot Fergus pass near the Petes' goal halfway through and raced down the side to blister a drive from an angle into the Fergus cage. The fans gave him a hand for that sparkler.

Roger Smith and Bob Thorpe each tallied twice for the Petes, as Lou Nickle, Ross Powless and Harry Wipper got one apiece. Ike Hildebrand led in assists with three, Wipper and Jerry Fitzgerald each helping twice and Russ Slater once.

The losers' markers were by Jay Hill, Marlowe Woods, Stan Abbott and Bob Gear. The latter and Russ Black had an assist apiece for the Thistles. Teams:

Fergus: Goal, Robertson; defence, Woods and Dobbie; centre, Landoni; wings, Abbott and Allum; rover, Black; alternates, Campbell, Halls, Hill, Harris, Killingbeck, McWhirter and R. Gear.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, O'Hearn and Fitzgerald; centre, Mason; wings, Slater and Powless; rover, Smith; alternates, Nickle, Wipper, Thorpe, Vitarelli, Hildebrand, B. Robinson and Burns.

Referees: M. McDonald and S. Milne.

Bisons Edge Syracuse In 13-12 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons apparently were not fooling when they set their eyes on the International League leadership. Besides the backing of some good pitchers, the Herd showed Monday night that they also have the hitting power.

The Bisons overcame an early eight-run Syracuse lead in a rousing slugfest at Buffalo to nip the Chiefs 13-12 in 10 innings. Jake Crawford hit safely, with one down and the bases loaded in the big 10th, for the win.

The pace-setting Montreal Royals downed the tail-end Springfield Cubs 4-1 at Montreal behind the neat five-hit pitching of Lefty Ken Lehman, so Buffalo still is 1½ games behind the leaders.

Lehman fanned five and walked none in registering his eighth win against four setbacks. Springfield's Dave Hillman also allowed only five hits, but he walked five.

Buffalo scored six runs in the ninth to force a tie and extra innings.

13TH HOMER

Jack Wallaesa, the loop's home run king, smacked his 13th round-tripper to score two mates in the sixth. Eddie Kazak stroked a Bison home in the big ninth with one on to climax the rally.

Bill Voiselle, the fifth Buffalo hurler who worked the 10th, gained the victory.

Baltimore's Dick Starr hurled a three-hitter and scored the winning run as the Orioles defeated Ottawa Athletics 5-1 in 10 innings at the Canadian capital. Starr struck out six. Stan Jok paced the Orioles with a three-run homer in the four-run 10th inning rally.

DOWN RED WINGS

Toronto Maple Leafs routed Rochester Red Wings 10-3 before more than 17,000 fans—the second largest Toronto crowd of the season. This was the Leafs' eighth win in their last 10 games.

Toronto's Lew Morton hit his seventh homer of the season, while Mike Goliat, with two singles and a triple, notched four RBI's.

Pitching: Paul Minner, Chicago Cubs, gave up six hits and walked only one in winning his fourth game of the season 6-2 over St. Louis Cardinals.

Batting: Red Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals, singled and doubled to run his total hits for the season to 101, the first man in either league to reach 100.

Oshawa scribe says Bowmanville may withdraw from the Lakeshore Ball loop for lack of financial support. Says he: "We might say here that Bowmanville is not the only team feeling the financial pinch of poor gates. Almost every team in the league reports attendance down away below normal. And it's the same story in the Intercounty and other ball leagues around Ontario." The lakeshore officials are planning on their east-west all-star game in Colborne under the ares. Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby and Peterborough represent the west; while Lindsay, Colborne, Cobourg and Port Hope are the eastern teams. Three players go from each team for the July 14 game, coaches being Max Yourth of Bowmanville and Ed Campbell of Cobourg.

Twin Ball Bill July 1

July 1 in the old days was always baseball day in Peterborough. So, Shockey Mein and Howie Dalton have arranged for two Lakeshore League fixtures here on the holiday. A 10 o'clock morning melee and a two p.m. touch, both being scheduled games and counting very much in the loop standing. McGrath, Ash, Frizzelle, Lee and Sullivan are all available for local mound duties. Other players on the club include: Kearns, Foley, MacSporran, Lingard, Byrne, Ferguson, Young, Bigford, Pammett and possibly one or two we've missed. They're a hustling bunch of junior "A" ballsters playing in intermediate company, and they will form the nucleus of our seniors in another year or two. We hope the fans turn out to see these holiday games.

Plucking The Thistles

Petes earned a 10-4 OLA senior win o'er Fergus here last e'en, a fairly close-checking contest which threatened to rough up as the game wore on in sultry weather. Refs took a dim view of Petes' checking to toss off 12 while just six of the Thistles sat it out. Nip O'Hearn, Harry Wipper and Ike Haldebrand were each in on three tallies for the winners, and Roger Smith, Bob Thorpe and Jerry Fitzgerald got themselves two points apiece. Moon Wootton had to be good to keep the Fergus count down to four goals, well spread around. It's a warm race now and the Petes have three more melees this week, in Hamilton tomorrow, 'gainst St. Kitts here Friday and back in St. Catharines on Saturday night.

The six:

Lorne Main of Vancouver and Toronto and Henri Rochon of Montreal, veterans of Davis Cup tennis; Bob Bedard, 22, of Sherbrooke, Que.; Paul Willey, 22, of Vancouver; Lawrence Barclay, 22, Vancouver, and Jim Bentley, 20, Toronto.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

We know of no better way to pay tribute to our fair Dominion on this the eve of the 86th anniversary of Confederation, than to quote the verses of Edna Jaques:

TO MY OWN CANADA

Oh, might I give thee back an hundred-fold
The good that I have known, the living gold
Of warm, sweet-scented earth, with furrows brown,
Lilacs in spring, their petals drifting down.

Oh, may I give my talents back to thee
Who gave me ways to love, the soul of me,
Fed from the little fields where violets grow,
Drinking from thee the best that life may know.

Oh, may I pour with eager, loving hand
All of my richness back upon the land,
Singing her beauty and her starlit ways,
Loving her soil, her precious gift of days.

Who gave me little shady paths to tread,
Gave me shelter, happiness and bread;
Dear, kindly folk to be my blood and bone,
The happy right to claim them as my own.

All that I am of sod and air and sea,
Part of the fragrant earth that nurtures me—
Back to her gracious heart my songs shall flow,
Singing to pay her back....the debt I owe.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This column has been, since its origin, dedicated to good sportsmanship. And although horse-racing is an extremely practical business, we can't find a more truly fair and sporting event in 1952 than the running of the $50,000, international in Maryland.

That an English-bred horse, flown across the Atlantic, won the race, is beside the point. The sporting spirit in which the race was conditioned is the thing that intrigues, and wins admiration.

American horses races on dirt tracks. Flat races on the turf are extremely rare on this continent. But in Britain and Europe, the great percentage of races are staged on turf courses. And so, to give the foreign horses a fair chance the Maryland race was held on the turf instead of a dirt track. And the start was of a walk-up type, as used principally overseas, instead of from the electrical starting-gate commonly used in America.

How different from the other races of a similar type, in other years, in which great horses were brought from England and France, to race against the cream of American thoroughbreds, but were defeated under conditions strictly American, which gave the invaders little chance, particularly as in those days, the foreign horses were shipped by boat. For the Maryland race, they were flown across.

When in 1923, Papyrus, winner of the Epsom Derby that year was beaten by Zev, the Kentucky Derby victor, in a match race at Belmont, there was some American cheering over what was rated the superiority of United States horseflesh to that bred on the other side of the ocean. But experts grudgingly admitted that in the mud which happened to prevail that day, a track condition entirely strange to the British horse, Papyrus wasn't shod properly to combat the track condition. Even if he had been, it's doubtful if he could have won. Papyrus had never before set his dainty hoofs into mud, and that he was improperly shod in the bargain gave him no chance in what was by no means a real test of quality.

Then there was the case of "Spinach" the French racing star Epinard, brought across in 1924, and pitted against America's best horses at a variety of distances under American racing conditions. He ran three times against two or more American horses that represented America's tops at the various distances, and all the races were under American racing conditions.

With the International of 1952, more fair and sporting rules prevailed, designed to place no horse at a disadvantage, nor to give an edge to any. The horses met on exactly equal terms, and that, we believe, rates the event as one conducted in the spirit of true sportsmanship not excelled in any event of the year, anywhere.

Brooks Overpower Yanks 9-0 In Exhibition Game

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sport Writer

The slump-ridden Milwaukee Braves and New York Yankees packed up their troubles in their old kit bags and hit the road today hunting for something to smile about. The two clubs, deep in their longest losing streaks of the year, misplaced their winning touch in their own ballyards and they were hoping a change of scenery would make a radical difference. The Yankees went to Boston for three games starting tonight. The Braves headed for Cincinnati where they open a three-game stand with a twilight-night twin bill tonight.

Both teams have dropped seven straight. But the sudden backslide has proved considerably more costly to the immediate standing of the Braves than to the Yankees.

Milwaukee skidded from first place in the National League, which it held by 2½ games over Brooklyn, to second, a full game behind the Dodgers. The Braves also lost 3½ games of their edge over third-place St. Louis.

The Yankees are still in first place in the American League by six games.

CAN'T WIN EXHIBITION

The Yankees can't even win on the exhibition circuit. Before New York's largest crowd of the season, 56,136, the world champions were overpowered by Brooklyn 9-0 Monday night.

In the only regular game played in either league the lowly Chicago Cubs of the National League stopped the Cardinals 6-2, on the six-hit pitching of lefty Paul Minner.

The Cardinals had figured to gain half a game on the idle Braves and Dodgers but Minner kept them well under control and didn't yield a run until Ray Jablonski homered with the bases empty in the eighth. Red Schoendienst of the Cards singled and doubled to run his total hits for the season to 101.

The loss put the Cards 2½ games back of Brooklyn and 1½ behind Milwaukee.

The Cubs continue their three-game series in St. Louis tonight.

OPEN AGAINST PHILS

The Dodgers, who wound up their western trip with four straight victories including three over Milwaukee after a dismal start, open at home against the Phils.

New York Giants play hosts to Pittsburgh.

Cleveland, fresh from three straight over the Yankees, meets the last-place Detroit Tigers in six games starting tonight in Detroit. After three in Detroit the clubs shift to Cleveland, winding up with a 4th of July doubleheader.

The White Sox are at home for single games tonight and Wednesday against St. Louis Browns as they attempt to extend their seven-game winning streak.

Tigers Upset West Yorks With 12-10 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tigers upset the West Yorks 12-10 Monday night in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse game.

Hamilton outplayed the West Yorks all the way. Seven penalties were handed out in the roughest game at Hamilton this season.

Al Doyle led the Hamilton attack with four goals, followed by Barney Welch with three and Bill Rankin with two. Bill Henderson, Bill McLean and Tony Kapula were the other Hamilton scorers.

Jack Kapasky and Frank Facto scored two goals apiece for the West Yorks. Singletons were picked up by Ken Croft, Bill Timpson, Don McPhail, Steve Kapasky, Joe McNulty and Les Digby.

Tonight St. Catharines plays at Mimico and on Wednesday Peterborough is at Hamilton.

Silver Trays Presented At Picnic

Nicholls Oval was again the scene of a gala gathering when the employees and their families of the De Laval Company enjoyed their annual picnic.

The picnic was officially opened by Arthur Wells, master of ceremonies, and the younger kiddies were soon busy on the swings and slides, while a program of sports was run off for different age groups ranging from 5 to 55. Prizes were awarded to the winners of the twenty odd races and contests of various forms of sport by Don Carter, president of the Social and Athletic Association.

The afternoon, as usual, developed into an endurance contest between pop and junior in keeping everything under control and hungry appetites satisfied with the free ice cream cones, pop and chocolate bars. Hop-a-long Cassidy had nothing on the daring of the younger fry when it came to the pony rides and even the most timid eventually enjoyed the thrill of their first ride on a real "horse."

Following the supper hour Andrew Purdon, vice-president, presented prizes to the lucky winners of the attendance draw, Robert Edwards, Sid Ray, Alfred Clark, Vernon Heigh.

The winners of the other several draws were: for the largest family on the grounds. Three tied for first place here, Mr. and Mrs. B. Woodcock, Mr. and Mrs. C. Cowie, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McMannus. For couple on grounds married longest period of time, Mr. and Mrs. E. Tucker, by the way, 54 years.

To Mr. and Mrs. H. Fitzgerald went the trophy for having the youngest child on the grounds. The registration draw was won by Gerald Rose.

Silver trays were presented by Mr. Purdon to Allen T. Hendren and James E. Stewart, two new members of the Silver Circle Club completing their twenty-five years service with the company.

The highlight of the evening's entertainment was a real old time minstrel show "Dark Daze." This well known group of local entertainers, with their sparkling wit and repartee, brought to a hilarious close another industrial picnic day full of amusing incidents and pleasant associations for young and old.

Fish Jumps Into Boat

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-foot, 15-pound sturgeon needed no urging from 10-year-old John Spencer. It jumped into his boat from the Ottawa river Monday, bruising the youngster's leg and damaging the motor. The fish apparently was trying to scrape half a dozen leeches from its sides by rubbing against the 13-foot boat. John rowed ashore with his prize.

Fire Leaves 8 Homeless

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-seven persons were forced to vacate their homes Monday night when fire gutted one house and threatened another in the west end. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tremblay and their six children were made homeless by the two-alarm blaze in their two-storey home. Nineteen persons in an adjoining house were forced into the street.

next to nothing

WE WONDER how much finer you can get than the aluminum wire used in delicate apparatus which records the earth's tremors. Drawn out almost to the vanishing point, it is about one-fwelfth the diameter of a human hair. One pound of aluminum would make enough of this unbelievably fine wire to stretch 20,000 miles!

We know no more striking example of the way people make use of the lightness and strength of aluminum for all sorts of jobs. Our research and technical men are constantly tackling new questions brought to them by Canadian manufacturers who look to aluminum in developing new products, or better products, or products that cost less. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Oshawa Employees Accept Wage Boosts

OSHAWA (CP)—Workers at Fittings Limited Monday voted eight to one to accept wage boosts ranging from eight to 18 cents an hour retroactive to May 1.

The workers are members of local 1817, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL). They recently authorized union negotiators to call a strike if a reasonable settlement was not reached.

The increases bring the basic rate in the foundry division to $1.40 an hour and in the machining division it will be $1.35.

Missionary Speaker At Centenary Service

ROSENEATH (ENS) — "The Preparations for Eternal Life" was the subject of the address given by the Rev. Donald Stegink, missionary from Africa, at the annual decoration service held at Centenary Church and cemetery, three miles west of Roseneath, on Sunday afternoon.

A capacity congregation filled the church. There were many persons outside, unable to get in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Stegink also contributed a vocal duet, "Blessed Be the Fountain," with Mrs. Warren Atkinson playing piano accompaniment. The Rev. J. R. Wheeler, pastor, conducted the service, with a mixed choir from Roseneath United Church, with Mrs. Flex McMillan as pianist.

A male quartet, Messrs Louis Roberts, Melville Macklin, Alvin Kelly and Willis Dowler, contributed two numbers. Mrs. Louis Roberts was piano accompanist for the quartet numbers.

Friends were present from Port Hope, Coldsprings, Norwood, Centreton, Gore's Landing, Harwood, Fenella, Norham, Oshawa, Morganston and Roseneath.

Mrs. Coldwell's Funeral

OTTAWA (CP)—Government and civic officials and business and professional men joined Monday in paying tribute at the funeral of Mrs. M. J. Coldwell, wife of the national CCF leader, who died suddenly Friday. The service was conducted in All Saints Anglican Cathedral by Rev. C. L. G. Bruce. The body was taken to Montreal for cremation.

Given Chance To Prove Death

TORONTO (CP) An Ontario Supreme Court judge ruled Monday that a Canadian Army man absent without leave since 1941 will be declared legally presumed dead if he does not reply in 30 days to an advertisement in the British weekly newspaper, The News of the World.

Mr. Justice W. F. Spence ruled on a court motion to declare William Morris legally dead so that his wife, Mrs. Verna Morris of Cornwall, can collect his insurance.

Court was told Morris went to England in 1939 with the Seaforth Highlanders and went AWOL in the autumn of 1941. He has been heard from only once—in 1952, when he wrote his wife to say that he was working on a boat. The postmark was unreadable.

Mr. Justice Spence said it was possible Morris might have been killed while serving or working under an assumed name. He offered the suggestion that an advertisement asking his whereabouts be placed in the 8,000,000-circulation London weekly as a final precaution.

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — The Lakefield United Church Sunday school picnic, held on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park, Peterborough, was a decided success and a happy time was enjoyed by young and old alike. Races, games and swimming were followed by a bountiful supper.

Members of the Young Adult Society were in charge of the program. Those assisting were Mr. and Mrs. George Tanner, Ralph Jackman, Ray Marbry, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Whiting, Mrs. J. Kellar and Mrs. L. O. Bailey.

The prize list was a follows: Races, 6 to 7 years, girls, Linda Farrow, Jeannie Graham; boys, Randy Kingdon, Ricky Nichols; girls 12 years and under, Linda Walton, Susanne O'Brien; 5 years, girls, Donna Hendren, Sandra Nichols; boys 12 and under, pig-a-back race, Jim Henderson, J. Prizes were given to all children taking part in the races under 5 years.

In a novelty ball game between the men and the ladies the latter were victorious.

Freedom of the Press

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, 'freedom of the press'?

Fundamentally it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom—the freedom of all men to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right which should not belong to every citizen in a democracy. But freedom of the press is an all-important part of this larger freedom because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark, and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation.

If any proof be needed, it is supplied by the record of the totalitarian dictatorships which have darkened the twentieth century. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the cornerstone on which all these regimes—Nazi, Fascist and Communist alike—were founded. Without it, they could hardly have lasted for more than a few months. With it, they could keep their peoples in blinkers and drive them on any course they chose. The calamities of our age, its fear and insecurity, stem in no small measure from the simple fact that, at critical periods, great sections of the earth's population have been prevented by their rulers from learning the real news of the world.

These examples should provide a warning against any attempt, by governments or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard not only against direct censorship, but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

All liberty, of course, involves obligations. That of a free newspaper is to be truly free. It must strive to be thorough, accurate and unbiassed in its reporting, sincere and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understand it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the free peoples of the world have traditionally granted to their press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

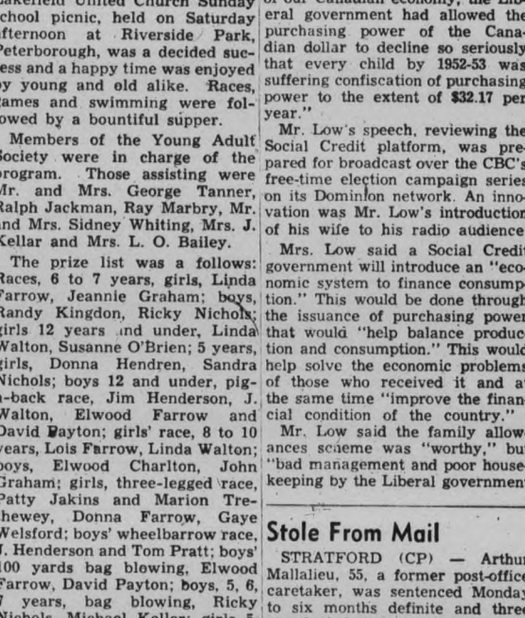
Low Charges Financial Mismanagement

OTTAWA (CP)—Solon Low, national Social Credit leader, Monday night charged the Liberal government with financial "mismanagement" and said his party will dedicate itself to the job of "restoring the purchasing value of the Canadian dollar" if elected to power.

The Liberals' plan of family allowances was a good thing, said Mr. Low, but through "its mismanagement of the financial part of our Canadian economy, the Liberal government had allowed the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar to decline so seriously that every child by 1952-53 was suffering confiscation of purchasing power to the extent of $32.17 per year."

Mr. Low's speech, reviewing the Social Credit platform, was prepared for broadcast over the CBC's free-time election campaign series on its Dominion network. An innovation was Mr. Low's introduction of his wife to his radio audience.

Mrs. Low said a Social Credit government will introduce an "economic system to finance consumption." This would be done through the issuance of purchasing power that would "help balance production and consumption." This would help solve the economic problems of those who received it and at the same time "improve the financial condition of the country."



Mr. Low said the family allowances scheme was "worthy," but "bad management and poor housekeeping by the Liberal government very largely nullified their effect."

". . . It is high time that new financial and economic policies were introduced into this country that will put cents back into the Canadian dollar and restore its purchasing value so that when social security measures are provided, they will accomplish their full purpose.

"We social Crediters commit ourselves with energy and conviction to the job of restoring the purchasing value of the Canadian dollar. It can be done and it must be done."

Stole From Mail

STRATFORD (CP) — Arthur Mallalieu, 55, a former post-office caretaker, was sentenced Monday to six months definite and three months indefinite for theft from the mails. He pleaded guilty. Post office officials said they sent a letter containing marked money through the normal mail-handling system at nearby St. Mary's, but the letter was not delivered. On questioning Mallalieu, they found the money in his wallet.

DOG'S A MAN'S BEST FRIEND—Chuckie McDonnell, of Denver, Col., believes the old-time adage after his cocker spaniel leaped from a 15-foot balcony in a vain attempt to stop Chuckie from running into the path of a moving car. Both boy and dog suffered broken legs and now each wears a plaster of Paris cast as a mark of their devotion to each other.

2 New Teachers Named To Lakefield Staff

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Two teachers, Mrs. Eileen Hill of Lakehurst and Donald J. Hillis, of Seaforth, were appointed to positions on the teaching staff of Lakefield district high school at the June meeting held at the school. Mrs. Hill will teach at Lakefield and Mr. Hillis at Apsley. Chairman E. P. H. Everett presided, and all board members but one were present.

The resignation of Robert A. Graham was accepted with regret.

Archie Stewart and Martin Reddick addressed the board regarding equipment for the home economics room and transportation, respectively.

The purchase of a refrigerator, a washing machine and a range will be made from Mr. Stewart. A sewing machine and furniture, as recommended by the committee for the home economics room will also be bought. The board will order 10 Remington typewriters, one Remington adding machine and 10 Underwood typewriters for the commercial room.

The sum of $50.00 will be paid to the Apsley Central school to cover administration costs for 1951 and 1952.

Face Assault Trial

KITCHENER (CP)—Henry and Sheila Paepcke of Elmira Monday were committed for trial on a charge of assault arising from the death last January of the couple's three-year-old daughter, Glenis.

They were released on bail and will be arraigned in county court here.

PASSED TOO

Missing from the list of those pupils who were promoted from Grade 9 to 10 in St. Peter's High School was the name of Shirley O'Rourke.

COMFORTABLE NIGHT

Joseph Devlin, 125½ Lock St., spent a comfortable night in St. Joseph's hospital Monday night. He narrowly escaped drowning Sunday at Pigeon Lake but was saved by his sister-in-law, Miss Ruby Perdue.

CONDITION SERIOUS

Mrs. William P. Platt, 67, of Cobourg, in Civic Hospital with injuries received Wednesday when the car in which she was passenger hit a tree in Millbrook, is still in serious condition. She has improved slightly. Her 23-year-old daughter-in-law Mrs. Donald Platt, is still only fair.

CHILD PROGRESSING

Judy Steinberg is progressing favorably in St. Joseph's hospital. The little girl was seriously hurt Friday morning in an accident 12 miles east of the city on Highway 7. Her mother, Mrs. Harry Steinberg, 28 Cherrywood Drive, Toronto, and her cousin, Leon Lipson, of Ottawa, died as the result of the accident. The child has not been told of the death of her mother.

NOT LEAST,—BLUE WEED

June retires tonight from another calendar of the years leaving as not the least of its gifts the fringes of blue weed and ox eye daisies along rural roads beyond the present of herbicide spraying outfits. They are a lovely symphony of color, and why many a motorist speeds by them is beyond understanding. One would naturally wish to tarry or loiter along,—until some impatient horn behind blasts that sentiment of appreciation.

Whether or not law enforcement is so efficient in the city that the police department, finding time on their hands, have decided to advertise their services is a matter for conjecture. At any rate, Peterborough's finest have erected a large black and white sign at the entrance to their driveway on Water St. to make it plain to all and sundry just where they are located. It's fitted with neon too so it can serve as a beacon for night-time customers.

Council Raises City Clerk's Salary To $7,000

Committee of the whole council recomendmed Monday night an increase of $800 a year in the salary of City Clerk E. A. Outram to $7,000 with an annual increase of $200 to a maximum of $8,000.

This item of business was deferred nearly two months ago until the return of Mayor Hugh Waddell from attending the coronation of Queen Elizabeth.

Salary discussions began early in the year, gradually reached agreement with the exception of the application of City Clerk Outram for $8,000, with an annual increase of $500 for four years to a maximum of $10,000.

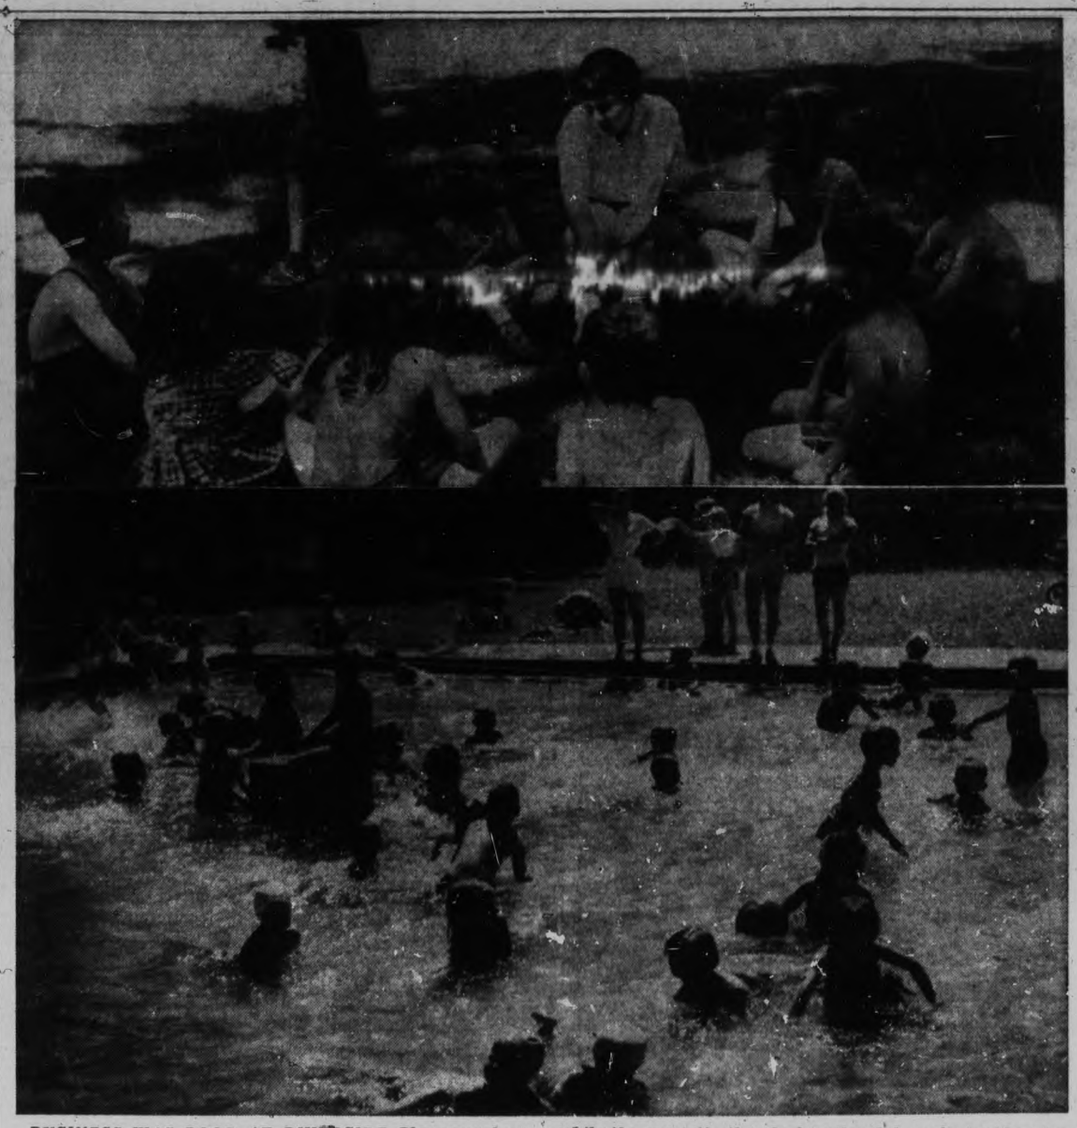
HAVE COMPTROLEERS

The core of his case was broadly that other cities such as Sudbury and Sarnia have municipal Comptrollers at salaries of around $12,000, plus assistants that carry most of the burden of detail, including a deputy-clerk; that these cities are comparable with Peterborough; that their civic administration is much the same framework; and so on down to the point of remuneration.

Changing times, City Clerk Outram said at one stage in the previous sessions, have tended to transfer far more detail to the office of the city clerk as the principal assistant of the council. The concluded a written statement to the council with the following assertion:

"I know of no other city where the Clerk gives the same personal attention to committee meetings and problems, and the preparation of comprehensive reports of the decisions reached. In many cities the Clerk never personally attends committee meetings—and in some, not even an employee of his Department attends — resulting in long debates and even misunderstandings in council meetings when Aldermen present committee reports which have not been properly worded and then circulated beforehand to council members."

SAME DUTIES



Mr. Outram [illegible]posed to the Council in the earlier hearings that, in as much as he was performing in Peterborough the same kind and scope of duties as the clerk-comptroller official in these other cities, his own expanded place in the administration should be recognized.

He said he had voluntarily assumed it through the years of his service down to the present, and he suggested that if the Council wished to define the duties of city clerk and fix the salary on that scale of work it would be acceptable to him on that basis, but not as compensation for the whole sweep of details he was now carrying out.

Mayor Waddell presided last night with all the members present excepting Ald. Wm. J. Beggs. Mayor Waddell said he had not changed his views on this question since his leaving for London.

Ald. T. D. Miller said he hoped

Knocked Down By Dog Youngster Breaks Leg

COBOURG — (ENS)—A two-year-old Cobourg boy, Michael Woods, is in Peterborough Civic Hospital with a fractured thigh bone and hip as a result of being knocked over while playing with his dog.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woods, was playing with his sister, Carol, 11, near the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg.

Playing with the dog, he was knocked over. When he went to get up, he complained of his leg hurting. His sister rode him home on her bicycle and his parents called a doctor. The youngster was sent to hospital in Peterborough.

To Ask Professor For Opinion On Pipe Problem

The dispute at the Peterborough Utilities Commission about the relative merits of cast iron and transite pipe broke out again Monday afternoon. The upshot is that the PUC are asking Professor Douglas Lee, consulting engineer at Queen's University, for a professional opinion.

One opinion—unfavorable to transite as underground water piping—has already been given, but Dr. Gordon R. Langley, himself an engineer, was not satisfied with it. He felt that the expert should have given the reasons for his unfavorable judgment on transite. It was not a proper engineering report, Dr. Langley said.

As the lone supporter of transite on the three-man commission Dr. Langley said that his fellow commissioners had been subjected to "behind-the-door knocking of transite". And they had all been exposed to the sales propaganda of the cast iron pipe companies.

By purchasing transite the PUC could save from 10 to 15 per cent, he claimed.

"I've asked several times that you make yourselves as well acquainted with transite pipe as I am. I realize the other members of the PUC don't have to, of course . . . As an engineer I'm completely sold on the substantial savings that could be made on transite . . . I don't want to bring this matter up again. I guess I'll just have to wait for a change in the commission and the management."

Dick Raine replied sharply that he had not been taken in by any propaganda by the cast iron pipe concerns. He said he had made considerable enquiries on the subject and drew from his folio a report prepared by the National Board of Fire Underwriters' laboratories.

Highlights of the first underwriters' report:

1. Cast iron pipe can stand 2½ times as much pressure as transite before it bursts.

2. The wall thickness of cast iron is twice as strong as a similar thickness of transite.

3. Tensile strength of cast iron is five times as great.

"That's good enough for me," said Mr. Raine.

"We've had cast iron pipe here and had very little trouble," said Chairman Fred Hills . . . "I may be wrong but I feel that if we do use transite our experience in laying it is not very extensive."

"Certain municipalities that have used it say there is a 10 to 15 per cent saving," said Dr. Langley. "Why shouldn't we get it? There is strong evidence of a substantial saving and no evidence of any cons (contrary evidence)."

One advantage is that it stays clean inside, said Dr. Langley. And he also said that transite pipe joints allow less leakage.

Mr. Raine didn't think much of the economy argument.

"We might possibly save something on the initial cost," he said, but that's doubtful. So why take a chance?"

Playground Supervisors Kept Busy Throughout Day

"Hey Miss! Could I please have a band-aid . . . I've cut my finger, see . . . " Inspecting the cut for a moment Miss Mary Craw said, "well you go over and wash it and then follow me and we'll see what can be done." This is just one of the countless chores that a playground supervisor has to attend to during a day at any one of the eight supervised parks throughout the city—parks that are staffed with competent young people from 9.00 a.m. to 9.00 p.m. five days a week.

A supervisor's job entails much more than the occasional administering of first-aid. "Our major responsibility is to see that every child is kept occupied and happy," said Miss Craw. "'We have children ranging in age from two to 18 and every age group requires something different to keep them interested."

MANY OCCUPATIONS

And just about everything that could possibly interest children is available. In the mornings games of basketball, volley-ball and soft-ball are organized, sometimes in two or more age groups depending upon the number and age of children present. As the heat increases during the day the stress is taken off active sports and placed upon such things as handcraft work, where the use of plaster moulds, wood carving, bead-work, etc., is taught.

"For the younger children we have story-telling periods and often the kiddies act out the roles. Sometimes we have very pretty looking 'Goldilocks', and the odd 'bad wolf,' too."

The supervisors are a carefully selected and well trained group. Most of the present members have had previous experience in dealing with children, and all of them have had a special course in the fundamentals of playground activity and child psychology.

"I have been supervising playgrounds for six years,' said Miss Craw. "My first position was at King Edward Park and that was my hardest year as far as keeping order is concerned— of course, I was younger then and inexperienced. There was never any real trouble, but some of the boys were older than I and just a little mischievous. Once I remember being locked in the supply shed while searching for some material, and having water poured on me by the bucketful."

Everything seems to be in order at Riverside this year, however.

ALWAYS HAVE IDEAS

Miss Craw has spent three years at King Edward, two at Fleming Park, and is now beginning at Riverside Park. When asked why she returns to this occupation summer after summer, she replied. "Well first of all I like the work—children are one segment of our population that doesn't become boring— they never run out of ideas.

"But I think the real reason is that one feels one is doing something constructive. Children come here from every walk of life—some of them very poor and uncared for. On occasion I have had to wash their little hands before allowing them to play with the equipment and then have them come to me in a few days and say —"Look Mary! I washed my own self today."

All the parks are staffed with two supervisors. There is one present in the morning, two in the afternoon and one again in the evening, although it is possible there will be two in the morning if the crowds persist. At Riverside, Lois Jones is Mary's helpmate.

They both agree that the big thing in this job is not to mother the children, but "teach them to entertain themselves, and provide the material and knowledge enabling them to do this."

Buried Lines To Cost $13,344

A bid of $13,344 by the Partex Engineering and Contracting Co. to lay an electrical underground system along the west side of George St., between Simcoe and Charlotte Sts., was approved Monday afternoon by the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

The other bid was by G. M. Guest Ltd. for $14,530.

The underground wiring will be laid below the west sidewalk, similar to the Hunter to Simcoe St. project earlier this year.

Partex will be instructed to get to work as soon as possible so that the work can be done during the holiday period for industrial workers in the city.

"A representative survey of the store owners involved indicated that their dollar volume is the lowest at this time of the year," general manager Howard Powell reported.

Plans for underground wiring have met with the opposition of Dr. Gordon R. Langley, one of the three members of the PUC. Only a few blocks in the downtown area will be done.

Thumbs Way Home From Texas In 48 Hrs.

KITCHENER (CP) — Howard Burns, 35, who "thumbed" 1,600 miles from Austin, Tex., to Kitchener, in 48 hours, says United States motorists are kinder to hitch-hikers than Canadians.

He waited three minutes for his first 641-mile lift to Gopler, Miss. In a restaurant there he met a man who took him to Detroit.

There he met an American who took him to Woodstock, Ont. But he waited four hours before Canadian motorists would take him the additional 50 miles to Kitchener.

He came here to visit his mother.

William Garner Given Promotion At Examiner

Directors of the Peterborough Examiner Company Limited announced today the appointment of William J. Garner as assistant general manager. Mr. Garner has been advertising manager since 1942 and has for almost 17 years been a member of the Examiner staff.

WILLIAM J. GARNER

Mr. Garner came to the Examiner when Perry Giffin was general manager and the plant was on George St. north of Hunter. He had had previous advertising experience on the Toronto Mail and Empire and for a few months on the Globe and Mail following the amalgamation of those two morning newspapers.

Mr. Garner is president of Peterborough Figure Skating Club, a member of the Kiwanis club and a director of the Chamber of Commerce. He is married and has a boy and two girls.

Finds Hong Kong So Packed People Can Hardly Move; Home From Trip To Orient

For Cantonese Who Have Come To Canada There Is No Home Left In China Jim Hum Finds On Visit to Hong Kong

Jim Hum, proprietor of the DeLuxe restaurant, George St., returned Friday from a visit to the Orient. That is an inclusive frontier of the world which once was home to him, specifically in the Canton countryside up the Pearl River. On any other return he might have made to China it would have been his destination. On this trip the end of his journey was that scrap of British territory, Hong Kong, a comparatively small island off the coast of Kowloon.

Caution and some apprehension for the welfare of his relatives, including his aged mother, one of the radical and violent aspects of change in his homeland, checks Mr. Hum's sketchy account of his trip.

"We don't know anything about a housing problem," he said today. "You should see Hong Kong. Normally its population used to be about seven or eight hundred thousand. Today it is more than 2,000,000. You can imagine that they haven't been able to build for that big increase, but can you see the bunks they've built on hillsides: Not houses—bunks. Mostly a place to rest and sleep, with a covering against the weather. Not that it gets uncomfortably cold at any time, but you do need protection against rain.

"That is typical of Hong Kong today. The city is so crowded you can hardly move. There are all kinds of people, but mostly Chinese, rich and poor. Many are poor today who not so long ago were rich.

MANY PROBLEMS

"Food and water are problems. In the hotels, they get water only at certain times of the day, and short periods of flow. Food—a lot of the rice comes from Siam, and is rationed. I understand the authorities dole it out at the cost price.

"There is quite a bit of trade, but nothing like what it would be in ordinary times. And it is controlled. The authorities in China say:
we want so much of this, and we'll send you so much of that. Maybe they send out meats, chickens and so on, and they might ask for rubber tires, or gas. I don't know much of the details.

"I have an idea there is quite a number of pickpockets. Hong Kong celebrated the coronation of the Queen. It was a big show, celebration and everything. A friend of mine, he used to keep a restaurant in Winnipeg—I met him over there—he had a camera and he was much excited about getting pictures of the parade and the people. The police had been sending out warnings to be careful about your money. We tried to tell this Winnipeg man he should leave his money where he was staying.

But, he didn't. And you know how it is with a camera you have to use both hands. Well, he got his pictures, but long before he got home he discovered that his wallet was gone, and his money— $1,700— but he was more anxious about his driver's license and other personal things that were important to him, back in Canada. He put an "ad" in the paper, even said he'd say nothing about the money if he got back his license and other papers. He heard nothing of it.

TO SEE MOTHER

The purpose of this trip, Mr. Hum said, was to see his mother, who is living in Hong Kong, and is now quite old. He was so concerned about her that he thought of trying to bring her to Canada, but it was thought she might not be able to endure the rigors of the long trip. He left Peterborough at the end of February.

"A friend I met over there took me to what I think was a newspaper club, —press club. I met reporters from a lot of countries, many of them, of course, Chinese. The theatres are crowded. You see British and United States cruisers and airplanes. Except for the crowds, thing look much like they used to be years ago. Oh, yes, some people crossed the border of China. They're there yet for all anyone knows. But, I don't want to say too much on that point."

There is British law in Hong Kong, "that's something", but not the business there should be for all those people.

"I think may be the ferryboats to Kowloon are making the most money."

NO HOME LEFT

Mr. Hum intimated that just as the newspapers have reported, you hear bits of news from behind bamboo curtain. One fact is a certainty, for the Cantonese who came to Canada, there is no home in China. The brutal prospect confronts them, that if they went into the country they might never come out, and they haven't the least idea of what might happen to them in the course of communistic indoctrination.

Subway To Carry 40,000 An Hour

By HARRY KINGDON

Rapid transit system workers say the temperature never varies from between 50 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit, whether surface dwellers are sweltering or shivering.

The city-owned Toronto transportation commission expects its subway to cost a cool $58,500,000 before its turnstiles open to the public in February, 1954.

The concrete tunnels that will carry the trains under crowded downtown streets are complete. More than 70 per cent of the track has been laid and most of the stations are in the final stage of construction.

CARS EXPECTED SOON

First of the 104 English-built cars will arrive in Toronto in July. The fleet will cost about $8,000,000. By the end of 1953, officials expect to see preliminary test runs started.

In full operation, the trains will be able to carry 40,000 persons an hour from downtown Union station 4½ miles north to Eglinton avenue. Trolley buses then will carry "northerners" about two miles farther to the city limits.

The whole subway trip is expected to take less than 20 minutes in rush hour.

Surface travellers should save time too. Yonge street—the city's main north-south artery—will be cleared of street-cars when the subway starts rolling. Yonge cars now carry about 12,000 passengers an hour in rush periods—and move an average of six miles an hour.

The constant below-surface temperature makes winter heating unnecessary but above-ground stations will be heated by "off-peak" power.

RUSH-HOUR DEMANDS

During rush hours the trains will need all the power to carry their thousands of passengers. But between the peaks of demand, some electricity will heat water to warm the stations.

Six of the 12 stations will have entrances directly from stores or office buildings.

The rushing trains will do more than carry passengers—they will also be air pumps. Huge vents have been built into the subway walls at each end of the underground stations. The trains—arriving every 2½ minutes—will act as pistons, driving stale air upward and out through steel gratings in the street. As they pass again, the suction will draw fresh air back in.

When the trains stop, big emergency fans will supply fresh air. Other emergency equipment in the tunnels includes doorways from one tunnel to another and lamps that operate automatically on batteries in case of a power failure.

Engineers have taken elaborate precautions to prevent accidents. The signal system not only warns the driver to stop with a red light but automatically stops the train if the driver doesn't.

AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Everything possible is being operated automatically in the subway. Each passenger sells himself tickets—in the form of dime-sized tokens—from vending machines. He will pick up his own transfer to surface cars from a rack and have it stamped in a time-and-date machine. He will drop his token into a turnstile slot to let himself onto the platform.

But subway officials have forbidden certain automatic machines. There will be no coffee dispensers, no soft-drink machines, no sandwich or food purveyors.

Each station will have its news stand concession selling papers, cigarettes and candy. Advertisements on the station platform will encourage the passengers to buy all manner of goods—somewhere else.

Advertising boards will occupy the pillars in the centre of each station—as far away as possible from the platforms and moustache-drawing children.

"PUBLIC-PROOF"

TTC engineers consider the stations almost "public proof." Glass-faced masonry on the walls is believed to be almost impervious to pin scratches and knife pokes, and drawings can be removed easily. Stainless steel hand rails and plastic-faced doors are designed to mark with difficulty and clean quickly. Aluminum oxide abrasives in the terazzo floors makes slipping almost impossible.

Getting lost in the subway will also be difficult. Each station is marked with its name in large letters along the walls and also by a distinctive color combination.

Above-ground stations serve "open cut" sections of the line. Here the rails emerge from the tunnels and run on ordinary railway-type tracks with wooden ties.

In the tunnel sections, the rails rest on steel plates bolted to the concrete floor. Rubber pads under the plates, sound-insulating material under the lip of the platform and acoustic tile in various sections are designed to reduce the noise to a minimum. Smooth-welded rails eliminate the characteristic clickety-clack of most railways.

More than 1,000,000 bags of cement were used to build the subway and 12,000 tons of reinforcing steel. Structural and rail steel accounted for another 13,850 tons.

ROSEDALE STATION—Rosedale station is located on an open-cut section of Toronto's subway—first rapid transit system in Canada—to be opened next February. In this artist's drawing the roof of the west side platform and of the bus platform, as well as the back wall of the station, have been cut away to show the general arrangement. The city-owned Toronto Transportation Commission expects the subway to cost $58,500,000 and first of the 104 English-built cars will arrive in July. In full operation the trains will travel the 4½ miles of the subway's length in less than 20 minutes.

UNDERGROUND STATION—This is the King street station, one of the downtown stops in Toronto's subway, now under construction and expected to open in February, 1954. The $458,500,000 rapid-transit system—first in Canada—will carry 40,000 persons an hour from dowstown Union Station 4½ miles north to Eglinton avenue. When the system is completed, surface cars on the city's main thoroughfare—Yonge street—will be eliminated.

WED 50 YEARS—Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Smith, Port Hope, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Until 1951 they lived in Millbrook.

Former Millbrook Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Former residents of Millbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Smith, 1 Brunswick Ave., Port Hope, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

They received many good wishes and messages of congratulations. A dinner party was held for them at the home of one of Mr. Smith's sisters, Mrs. H. Goss, of Bewdley. Sisters and brothers presented the couple with two table lamps and the nieces and nephews presented them with 50 roses.

The dinner tables, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake made by Mrs. Ada Armstrong, were set up on the lawn.

Forty-six relatives and three other guests were present including Mrs. W. J. McKnight, of Millbrook, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Carey, of Port Hope, who were also celebrating their 29th wedding anniversary.

Raise Taxi Fares For Sarnia

SARNIA (CP)—A taxi fare boost that will establish a 50-cent minimum for trips in the old section of the city and a 75-cent minimum for fares picked up in and beyond the annexed area was approved by Sarnia police commission Monday.

If it is accepted by the taxi-owners association the new fare schedule will go into effect Aug. 1.

A delegation of cab owners told the commission they were losing money on short trips.

Under the old schedule, the "drop charge" was 35 cents for the first three-fifths of a mile and five cents for each additional fifth.

The proposed new schedule will establish a drop charge of 50 cents for the first mile and five cents a fifth thereafter. A 25-cent surcharge will be made on fares originating in the annexed area of the city.

Parliament Assembles In South Africa

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — South Africa's new Parliament with Prime Minister Daniel Malan's re-elected Nationalists now exercising a majority of 29 seats, assembles July 3 for a first session which is expected to renew old controversies over the country's racial problems.

Priority on the government's legislative program must be given to the national budget normally presented in April and postponed for assembly elections this year.

But the Malan government is determined to re-introduce soon its bill designed to transfer colored (mixed blood) voters from the common electoral roll to a separate register.

LIMITS COLOREDS

The bill, part of the Nationalist policy for segregation of whites and non-whites, would limit the "coloreds," a mixed racial community living mostly in Cape province, to electing a few white legislators to "speak" for them.

An Appeal Court decision ruled the bill invalid in the last Parliament because it did not receive a two-thirds majority vote of the Senate and Assembly in joint session, a requirement of the constitution for altering voting qualifications.

Since the Nationalist party returned to power with more than double its old majority, it feels that it might now well be able to push the bill through "constitutionally" with the help of a dozen or so right-wing members of the opposition United Party to assure a two-thirds approval.

Amend Assessment Act For Beekeepers

BARRIE (CP)—The Georgian Bay Beekeepers Association announced Monday that an amendment has been made to the Ontario Assessment Act following its protest to the Ontario municipal affairs department.

The association said an obscure phrasing in the act had enabled assessors in various parts of the province to place a business tax on producing beekeepers. Several beekeepers in Simcoe county were assessed even though it was declared that they were not buyers and packers of ther people's honey.

The association protested to Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar who reviewed the case and approved the amendment to the act.

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. — This is an aerial view of Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories which has proposed new steps towards self-rule in Canada's North to the Northwest Territories council. The speech from the throne, read at the opening of the "little Parliament of the North," asked council to clear the way for Yellowknife itself to have a fully-elected council and mayor instead of the partly-appointed, partly-elected board of trustees that now rules. This would make the mining town of 3,000 the first self-run community in the territories.

Dream Cars Manufactured To Test Out New Theories

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry probably now is spending more money on engineering research than it has at any time in the last quarter-century.

If you are inclined to question this you need only check over the number of "cars of tomorrow" and other experimental units that have been hand-built by the various companies and the many items of refinement under test.

There is scarcely a car manufacturer who has not built one of the "dreamcars." Most of these, of course, never will reach the assembly lines. But many of their components will eventually get into production jobs.

STRICTLY IDEA CARS

Examples of the cars that will yield something to the assembly line models of the future are General Motors' Le Sabre; Chrysler's d'Elegance and Ford's experimental XL-500. All are strictly "idea" cars, designed to try out engineering principles and theories. Generally the ideas are too costly to have any popular appeal, although they excite curiosity and the urge to own the best possible car.

Le Sabre has such future potentialities as aluminum body and fiberglass fenders; a 335 - horsepower engine; disappearing headlights and built-in automatic wheel jacks.

Ford's XL-500 has a scarlet fibreglas body with a roof of glare-proof glass and three separate bumpers, one horizontal and two vertical, to protect the rear section.

Chrystler's d'Elegance has such things as an hydraulically - operated spare-tire mount, flush-type pull-out door handles and other such conceits.

LOWERING COSTS

While all this research on new devices is going on the engineering departments also are giving more than normal attention to simplification of many established accessory items like automatic transmissions and power steering.

Simplification, of course, is the first step toward lower manufacturing cost which in turn will bring lower retail prices. Automatic transmissions and power steering are the most popular optional equipment items in the car industry's group of accessories.

The industry is selling just about as many of them as it currently can produce. However, it is aiming at making them standard equipment on all cars as soon as possible. To do this it would likely half cut production costs.

Because its construction is somewhat less complicated power steering seems much closer to that goal than automatic transmission.

Plan Enlarging Tourist Booth

LAKEFIELD, (ENS)— A plan for enlarging the Chamber Tourist Information Booth and making it into a permanent office was discussed at a meeting of the executive held at the home of the president, Donald Hendren. The following committee, headed by Walter A. Killoran, was appointed to look into the matter more full, E. H. Northey, Perce Archer, Sam Hendren and Harold Hamblin.

The committee, appointed to check with the Lakefield Fair Board re the improvement of the fair, brought in their report. Howard Beavis, secretary-treasurer of the Agricultural Society, asked that the members of said committee attend a meeting and confer with the board members regarding suggestions for a parade.

It was decided that the next meeting will be held either in August or September. This will be a dinner meeting at which directors and executive members for next year will be appointed.

Turkey Ranks In 4th Place Wheat Exporter

By DON COOK
New York Herald Tribune News Service

ANKARA, Turkey—Paced by a phenomenal rise in agricultural production, Turkey is in the midst of an economic boom the like of which the Middle East has never seen before.

Wheat, cotton, coal, manganese, chromium, iron ore, oil, road-building, port-building, manufactures, exports, bank deposits, national income—all of these have soared beyond any targets anyone could have set or anticipated in the last four years. Everything is up, and the boom shows no signs of slowing down.

To take one simple example, three years ago Turkey exported not a single pound of wheat, but in the current year she will have shipped 1,000,000 tons of wheat out of the country and next year the total will be on the order of 1,500,000. From zero she has moved in three years to No. 4 among the world's wheat exporting countries.

HARD WORK, TRACTORS

How has it been accomplished? Hard work and tractors. In 1948 there were barely 3,000 tractors in the country and today there are over 35,000 plus 4,000 harvester combines—and the totals continue to grow every day.

Cotton has risen from 55,000 tons in 1947 to 170,000 tons this year. Since 1948, iron ore production has gone from 184,000 tons to 481,000 tons; copper from 11,000 to 23,000; chromium from 285,000 to 675,000; manganese a colossal jump from 8,327 tons to 106,395 tons.

Turkey has doubled the mileage of her "all weather" roads in four years, and doubled both her coal production and consumption. Gross national product in Turkey was estimated at 8.6 billion Turkish pounds in 1949, and stands today at 12.3 billion.

Turkey, in short, has proven to be the prime European example of American aid at work. American dollars have provided the spark which has galvanized the country forward, and now that things are rolling there seems to be no limitations in front of the Turks. Certainly they refuse to see any themselves.

INITIAL IMPETUS

Marshall Plan money, for example, provided 7,000 tractors for the Turks, which was enough to give an initial impetus to their huge farm expansion program. From that point, they went on to buy another 25,000 tractors themselves, sure of the foreign exchange through their increasing wheat exports. It has been a classic example of "pump priming," and there are still millions of acres of arable agricultural land to be put to use.

The boom, too, is reaching down to the roots of the country, and not just benefiting a few. Peasant income—84 per cent of Turkey's 21,000,000 people are farmers—has risen from an estimated $140 per year to $180 per year. These figures are tiny, but in comparison with the rest of the Middle East a Turkish farmer is a millionaire. He is, moreover, putting glass in his windows, white-washing his hut and occasionally even buying a battery radio set. One survey carried out by the University of Ankara showed that in 1950 the average peasant travelled only nine miles from his home in the course of the year but in 1953 he travelled an average of 60 miles distance.

The danger ahead are that Turkey has set in motion a very large and basic program of development, and at the moment her domestic boom is outracing her capacity to earn enough abroad to pay for the machinery, the engineering equipment, the steel and the imports which the boom is absorbing. The Turks think that with another two years of expanding wheat and cotton exports and increasing self-sufficiency of maufactures, it will come out even.

But American aid, which has in one way or another either paid for the boom or made it possible, is not going on for too much longer, and not everyone is as sanguine as the Turks. However, that whatever lows or settling down which Turkey must pass through, this is one of the most remarkable economic spots on the globe today.

Aussie Stars Given Rough Ride

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Australia, reigning power in world tennis the last three years, lost two of its stars in quarter-final round matches of the Wimbledon tournament Monday. Defeat of No. 1 seeded Ken Rosewall was a shocker.

The 18-year-old big gun of Australia's powerhouse team was whipped by Kurt Nielsen, 23-year-old Dane, an in-and-out player, by scores of 7-5, 4-6, 6-8, 6-0, 6-2.

Lewis Hoad, the other 18-year-old Australian, seeded No. 5 in this tournament, was spilled 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 9-7 by second-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

In the other quarter-final round matches, Mervyn Rose, the third member of Australia's youthful trio, eliminated Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., former U.S. champion, 6-3, 6-3, 16-14. Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, still weary from last week's exhausting play, used just enough of his energy to defeat Sven Davidson of Sweden 7-5, 6-4, 6-0.

LITTLE DECIDED FRIDAY

Wednesday's semi-final round pairings will pit Seixas against Rose and Drobny against Nielsen. The title will be decided Friday.

The defeats of Rosewall and Hoad boosted U.S. Davis cup hopes greatly.

The doubles team of Doris Hart, Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., seeded first, defeated Mrs. P. F. Glover of Britain and Mrs. Maria Weiss of Argentina, 6-0, 6-0.

Second-seeded Maureen Connolly, San Diego, Calif., and Julie Sampson, Pasadena, Calif., won from Mrs. N. W. Blair, Britain, and Mrs. Harry Hopman, Australia, 6-1, 6-2.

Nielsen Downs Ken Rosewall

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Ken Rosewall, 18-year-old Australian, top-seeded in the Wimbledon men's singles tennis tournament, went down to a surprising defeat today from Kurt Nielsen, the erratic, often brilliant Danish player, 7-5, 4-6, 6-8, 6-0, 6-2.

Elimination of the Aussie in five sets followed defeat for Lewis Hoad, Australia's other 18-year-old tennis prodigy, by Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, seeded No. 2. Hoad had been rated No. 5 in pre-tournament ratings.

Seixas came from behind to defeat Hoad 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 9-7.

YANKS SLUMPED BEFORE

NEW YORK (AP)—Is this the 1928 season all over again?

Just 25 years ago this month New York Yankees were enjoying a 13-game lead over Philadelphia—and blew it.

That's right. On June 28, the Yankees were 13 games ahead of the Athletics. On Sept. 7, the As swept a doubleheader from Boston and the Yankees dropped two games to Washington to deadlock the race. Philadelphia went ahead the next day, winning two more from the Red Sox.

The decisive battles took place Sept. 9 at Yankee Stadium. The Yankees swept the twin bill from Philadelphia 5-0 and 7-3 and went on to win the pennant by 2½ games.

The biggest lead enjoyed by the current Yankees was 11½ games June 21. Since then they have dropped seven in succession and their lead has shrunk to six games over Cleveland and 6½ over third-place Chicago.

"It's difficult to explain how a club that looked so unbeatable only a short time ago can look so terrible now," moaned Yankee manager Casey Stengel. "We're missing out three ways. We're not getting the hitting, the fielding and the pitching."

As if they haven't had enough trouble, the Yankees may now have to do without Mickey Mantle for awhile. Mantle pulled a muscle in his left leg trying to beat out an infield grounder in the ninth inning of Sunday's game against Cleveland.

Henry Squelches Retirement Hint

Henry is spending the off-season at his hunting and fishing lodge, Hockey Haven, which he operates with another goalie, Charlie Rayner of New York Rangers, in Kenora, Ont.

Henry suffered an ankle injury in the Stanley Cup final series against Montreal Canadiens but he wrote Patrick that it has healed completely.

Goodman, winner of the title in 1950, displaced Vernon as the leader this week as he advanced from second place. Vernon won the crown in 1946 and Kell in 1949.

England Faces Certain Cricket Defeat

Australia, helped by Keith Miller's 109, had carried its second innings total to 368 when England went in to bat for the second time.

England gained a slight lead in the first innings—sending British hopes soaring over the week-end. They made 372 runs in reply to Australia's 346.

Fast bowler Ray Lindwall started the English slide in the second innings, getting Kenyon and Hutton—who made 145 runs in the first inings—caught out for a total of six runs. Bill Johnston dismissed Graveney at the wicket and three of England's top batsmen were out of the game for only 12 runs.

Denis Compton and Willie Watson played carefully and were still batting at the close. But the chances of England snatching victory out of imminent defeat are remote.

Killer Leaves Body On Tracks

LEMINGTON-ON-TYNE, Eng. (AP)—Police today searched for the killer who put Mrs. Catherine Hutchinson's body on a railroad track in an attempt to make her slaying appear an accident.

The cover-up plot failed because the colliery served by the railway spur is closed down—and no trains were running.

The body of Mrs. Hutchinson, 46-year-old wife of a coal miner, was found Monday night about 300 yards from her home. Police said if a train had come by in the darkness it would have cut off her head and the death might have been accepted as accidental.

The victim's husband, George, said his wife was missing when he came home from a movie Sunday night. When she failed to appear the following morning, he notified the police. A search disclosed the corpse on the tracks.

38 Under Arrest

RABAT, French Morocco (CP)—Thirty-eight persons have been arrested following the discovery of an alleged secret nationalist organization here, Agence France-Presse reported today. The agency said the underground organization had been run by the nationalist Istiqlal party since the Casablanca riots of December, 1952.

DAY'S WORK — Cleveland Indian slugger Al Rosen (centre) crosses home plate at the Yankee Stadium in New York after hitting his season's 16th homer with two mates aboard. At left is Larry Doby, next Indian to bat, while Bobby Avila (right) offers his congratulations after being batted in. The Yankee catcher is Yogi Berra. The inning is the first.

VANCOUVER STADIUM MODEL — Added attraction for the display of the model of the Vancouver stadium are two live models, brunette Carlu Carter and blonde Betty Evans. The stadium, when erected, will seat 36,000 and is the proposed site of the 1954 British Empire Games. At left is Sandy Duncan, of London, honorary secretary of the games federation.

Final B.C. Election Count May Be Delayed

By GEORGE FINLAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's long-count in the 1952 provincial election may be repeated this year.

The count of alternative choices on June 9 election ballots is scheduled to start today, but in many of the larger constituencies there may be a delay of days. A faster cleanup is forecast for rural ridings.

In the marathon count last year, the first time the alternative voting system was used in B. C., it took 28 days before the final result was known in all 48 ridings.

In the large Vancouver ridings the final result may not be known until next week, returning officers reported.

Social Credit and CCF candidates in many ridings have asked for a recheck of first-count ballots, and this must be completed before the absentee vote and second choices are counted.

RECHECKS REQUESTED

Rechecks have been requested in Vancouver-Burrard, Centre Point Grey and Vancouver East.

In Victoria, the three Liberal candidates, Mrs. Nancy Hodges, William Straith and D. J. Proudfoot, all trailing on first counts, asked for a recount.

Returning officer Alan MacFarlane said he did not expect the Victoria count to be completed until Friday night.

In Vancouver East, CCF leader Arnold Webster was elected on the first count. In the other three Vancouver ridings Social Credit candidates, including Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston and Attorney-General Robert Bonner, held the lead. Social Credit candidates also lead in Victoria.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, re-elected on the first count in his home constituency of Okanagan, appears to have the best chance of forming a majority government.

His Social Crediters head the list with four members elected, and 26 leading. The CCF has elected two and leads in 15. Labor leads in one.

LEFT IN COLD

The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives were left in the cold. None was elected, and none was leading after the first count election night.

The low-vote Liberals who will be eliminated in the second count will play a part in the final result. The Liberals' second choice may decide the election.

For a working majority in the legislature the winner must have 25 seats.

Premier Bennett's minority government was in power only seven months. Social Credit had 19 members and the CCF 18.

The three-week delay in ballot counting following election day is required under the Elections Act to permit return of absentee ballots to home ridings.

SYSTEM UNDER FIRE

This system has been under fire from both public and political leaders. If Social Credit is returned to office there is talk the waiting period will be changed to 10 days. The CCF is pledged to scrap the alternative voting system if it forms the next government.

CCF leaders have been critical of the alternative votes and want a return to the old X-system of ballot marking.

Under the X system the CCF would have won in 1952 with 21 members in the House against 14 for Social Credit.

When the transfer of ballots was completed a year ago the result was:

Social Credit 19; CCF 18; Liberal 6; Progressive Conservative 4; Labor 1.

HARWOOD (ENS). — The Rev. A. W. Smith, Gore's Landing and Harwood, conducted the funeral service Monday for Alex Young of Harwood. The funeral was held from his residence to Bethesda United Church. The Rev. A. Y. Robertson conducted the service at the graveside.

Flowerbearers at the funeral were H. Minifie, Alex Johnson, Gordon Moffatt, Earl Sherwin, Walter Johnston, Sidney Pomeroy, H. Brisbin, Wesley Cooke and Roy LaPier. Pallbearers were Earle Drope, Russell Johnson, Leo Blastorah, Neil Corkery, L. R. Isaac, and Roy White.

Mr. Young was 80 years old. He is survived by his widow, the former Margaret Jane Cook, and four daughters, Mrs. William Lee, Harwood, Mrs. Milton Clydesdale, Peterborough, Mrs. Whitney Davey, Baltimore, and Mrs. Melville Harvey, Harwood, and seven grandchildren. His three sons predeceased him—Alexander who died overseas in the First World War, Charles who was killed in an accident in 1925, and Kingsley who died of pneumonia in 1927.

MARINE SERVICE

Mr. Young had a colorful career in marine service, spending 20 years as a mariner on excursion steamers working the lower Trent system. In 1899 he shipped as a deckhand on excursions from Peterborough to Healey Falls, 15 miles below Hastings on the Trent River. He served on the Eclipse for three years under Captain Charles W. Calcutt with whom he later transferred to the Water Lily.

On August 4, 1904 Mr. Young obtained his certificate as mate of a passenger steamer in the minor inland waters of Canada. In 1906 Captain William H. White bought the Water Lily and Mr. Young served for two seasons under Capt. G. W. Frewer who now teaches masters and mates for the great lakes and inland waterways at a nautical school in Toronto during the winter.

From 1908 to 1910 Mr. Young served on the Monarch with Capt. C. W. Harris with whom he transferred to the Geneva on which he served until 1917, joining the government tug J. B. McColl in 1918 as engineer. Mr. Young spent two years on the J. B. McColl, sweeping the Trent system, testing the depths during dredging operations. Finally, in 1920, Mr. Young put in one more year in the passenger service, serving aboard the Rainbow before retiring from marine service.

On April 16 of this year, he and his wife celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary.

Newspapers reported that output in that section's Bashkiria field increased 21.5 per cent the first half of 1953 compared with production in the corresponding period of 1952. (As is customary, only a percentage figure, not actual tonnage, was given.)

Too Much Feeling Of Wrong Kind Found In Summer Theatre's Play

BY ROBERTSON DAVIES

It appears to be inescapable that the Summer Theatre should give us a does of Noel Coward every season, and this year it comes early; the first production of the permanent company is "Design For Living". A large and attentive audience saw the first performance on Monday night.

All Coward's plays are difficult to perform we ll, and as they are very slight in themselves, demanding much of technique and personality from the actors, it may be questioned if they are good choices for stock companies. A strong play supports the actors; a fragile play lets them down. It is to be feared that "Design For Living" let them down.

This play demands to be done with consummate technique, and in a light-hearted spirit which will rob the plot of its offence. It must be played in the vein of artificial comedy in which it is written so that nobody's feelings can be hurt, because the characters are shown to have wit, but no feeling. The Summer Theatre company plays heavy-heartedly, and weights the play with too much feeling of the wrong kind. The brilliant artificility of the text— so elusive and, frankly hardly worth bothering about — never emerged.

As a result, the play began as if it were to be a serious triangle-drama, brightened into comedy fitfully, but was brought back to drama by its last scene, because of a curious piece of casting. In this scene Gilda, Otto and Leo, the triangle which seems to work equally well in all directions, are intended to make the ineffectual husband, Ernest, look so foolish that the audience cannot take him seriously. But for the good reason that David Powell, playing Ernest, was the most powerful actor on the stage at that moment, he made Gilda, Otto and Leo look like nothing at all, and we were presented with the odd situation of a farce in which the cuckold makes the libertines look like fools.

The company is an able one, but this is not their play. Fran Mallis shows a talent for dramatic playing, but her voice and particularly her posture are too ominous for artificial comedy. As the painter Otto, Steven Appleby lacked abandon. As Leo, Harry Geldard showed that he had a great deal of technical command, but he worked too hard because I suspect, he was unselfishly trying to give some of his sparkle to his partners in a supposedly irresistible and brilliant trio.

As already indicated.. David Powell carries more guns than Ernest needs, and he gave the only consistently good performance among the principal actors in the piece. The cast was capably completed by Barbara Cummings, Wilf Pegg, Ronald Bailey, Charlotte Schrager, Brenda Davies and Peter McCombe in minor roles.

Eden Resting At Newport

The 56-year-old British diplomat, appearing much healthier than on his arrival from England 3½ weeks ago, left the New England Baptist hospital in Boston Monday. He underwent an operation June 10 to clear a bile duct obstruction.

Eden and his wife, Clarissa, 33, niece of Prime Minister Churchill, came direct from the hospital to the harbor front estate of John Barry Ryan, grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, multi-millionaire New York financier.

Dr. Richard Cattell, the diplomat's surgeon, said in a bulletin "we are convinced that after a full period of convalescence a complete recovery can be assured."

The bulletin said the obstruction in Eden's bile duct, "which was non-malignant, has been shown to be entirely relieved."

Cell-Made Radio Brings Convicts Races

EXETER, England (AP)—Mystified wardens at nearby Dartmoor prison have found out how horse-playing convicts have been getting race results. They had a cell-made radio.

The parts are believed to have been scrounged by a prison work party from the trash bins of resident jailers and their families.

Cigarets were used as currency for the betting. Convict bookies paid off at the track starting prices.

Almost Missed Coronation Says Mayor

Mayor Hugh Waddell almost missed the crowning of Queen Elizabeth although he and his wife were in London in plenty of time.

His worship explained this episode of his recent journey at the Rotary luncheon held Monday at the Empress where he was guest speaker. He received notice in February requesting that he confirm his intention of accepting the Queen's invitation to represent [illegible] immediately replied in the affirmative. He embarked on his journey ahead of schedule and left word that the tickets should be forwarded to him upon arrival—but they didn't arrive.

On the Monday before the big day Mayor Waddell and wife were in a very anxious state. "I sought information everywhere and was finally advised to visit Scotland Yard and special Coronation Information Board set up there. Upon arrival I asked someone where I should go and they in turn asked if I wanted the old or new building. I didn't know, but told them the new building and by good fortune chose correctly.

"They were very courteous here and within a few minutes had located and verified my tickets—they were waiting for me at Canada House."

The next morning the Mayor was up before six and "the usual dim gray dawn or London was pierced by the shouts and pounding feet as the crowds started moving to the Abbey." By the time the mayor had arrived at Westminster, (he was there a half hour before dead-line) the seats were practically filled—and as yet he had no idea where he and his wife would be located. Apparently the seating had been arranged via the lot-drawing method and his seats were in the first row, a pleasant surprise.

Mayor Waddell felt that any description that he might give of the actual proceedings would be of little value considering the masterful covering given the momentous event by the press, radio and television mediums. He was particularly impressed with the smoothness and efficiency with which the nine hour ceremony was carried out. "Time seemed to pass very rapidly due to the incessant parade of pageantry and apart from the Archbishop and his immediate assistants, it is doubtful if anyone saw everything that was going on. A list of everyone's position for any given time was issued and was exceedingly helpful in appreciating the proceedings". Mayor Waddell had the book with him at the luncheon as well as some special pictures which he offered for inspection after dinner.

Another very impressive aspect was the music. The entire London Symphony orchestra was present and the vocal element was provided by the cathedral's boy's choir.

His Worship and Mrs. Waddell spent several days in Peterborough, England, and enjoyed it considerably.

Mayor George R. Hamilton of that city was here in 1951 when he officially opened the city hall.

"They are still talking about that visit, and their only regret is that they could not have stayed longer. There was a reception for us there upon arrival and that evening we were guests at an informal dinner".

A visit was made to Ilford. Their Rotary Club had been assigned to Peterborough, Canada, during the war years, by Rotary's arrangements for extending help to clubs in Britain and continent. Gordon Monkman was chairman of the international service committee. Contributions that were sent overseas during that time were continued after the storms and tidal flood that damaged many coastal cities of England early this year.

"We were entertained at lunch in the mayor's parlors at Ilford and were guests of the Rotary Club. It was another fine experience. If the people learned that you were from Canada, you could immediately feel a special warmth of welcome."

The mayor made a special reference to the bombed areas of London, "a spectacle you don't fully realize until you witness it first hand."

ARMY MASSED BANDS of the Royal Canadian Regiment, First Canadian Infantry Battalion and Royal Canadian Signals will hold a concert for the citizens of Peterborough Sunday. It will take the place of the regularly scheduled band concert at Nicholls Oval. The band is shown here at a practice session.—(National Defence Photo).

TORONTO — (Special) — The employee association at Silverwood Dairies Ltd., Lindsay, has disbanded, J. Piper, CIO-CCL representative told the Labor Relations board Monday.

The Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, was applying for bargaining rights at the plant.

Pupils Visit Thousand Islands

With money earned at dances held in the school throughout the year, the pupils of South Dummer School, accompanied by their teacher Mrs. Roberta Beamish and a few others of the commnuity had a most enjoyable trip on Friday.

Reaching Kingston in the morning they saw old Fort Henry. One hundred and seventeen years ago in 1836, the main portion of the present fort was completed. The site has been a military reserve since 1784, but today, although having the appearance of an impressive fortress, it is no more than a museum, attracting thousands of visitors each year.

The group began their tour of the Thousand Islands after dinner. In a trip covering 80 miles and taking five hours, the group saw beautiful scenery and famous landmarks among the islands. The boat stopped for an hour at Clayton, New York, where supper had been reserved.

Leaving Clayton again at 6:30 the boat arrived back in Kingston at 8:00 p.m. From here the passengers boarded the bus which arrived back at the school at 11:30 p.m. Pleasant weather was an aid to this most successful day.

The pupils present were: Ivan McCoy, Irene Watts, Reg. Turner, Margaret Allman, Everett Chamberlain, Robert Strain, Anne Stinson, Don Chamberlain, Lois Dugan, Bill Dugan, Leona Dugan, Jim Dugan, Bobby Chamberlain, Joyce Chamberlain, Lorna Watts, David Dugan, Jo Anne Danford, Carol Dugan, Ross Chamberlain, Alex Watts, and their teacher Mrs. Roberta Beamish.

Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. Orval Watts, Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Watts, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Baker, Gordon Moore, Gordon Chamberlain, Delwyn Stinson, Mac Danford, Percy Peck, and Johnny Calder.

Ask Debentures Of $75,000 Lay New Mains

General Manager Howard Powell of the Peterborough Utilities Commission on Monday was directed to write to City Council asking them to issue debentures for $75,000 covering the cost of exending water mains to the Downers Corners area.

Work should begin in September and the PUC estimate they will need the money by Oct. 1.

At present the main trunk line extends down Armour Rd. to Sophia St., along block north of the junction of Armour Rd. and the Trent Canal. Plans call for the trunk line to be continued south along the east side of Armour Rd. to Lansdowne St. It will pass under the canal at Maniece Ave.

At Lansdowne St. the trunk line will run two ways—west to the Locks Bridge and east to the Moldaver Lumber Co.

Thsi route was favored by commission members over the alternative. Putting it under the Otonabee River at Lansdowne St. and continuing it out to the eastern suburbs of the city. The alternative was more expensive and there wasn't the same prospects of getting revenue from consumers.

Official Farewell Said To Retiring YW Staff

An "official farewell" to Miss Marion Foster, who has been a very popular program director at the YWCA for the past three years, and to Mrs. Alberta Peters, the residence secretary also for three years, was said by the Y Board of Directors and a representative group of the membership on Monday evening.

The reception was arranged to follow the regular meeting of the Board and was held at this time owing to the summer holiday season. Miss Foster will remain at the Y until late in August when she will leave for a holiday at her home in Calgary and will go to her new position in Surinam (Dutch Guiana), South America, in November.

A special guest at the reception was Miss Francesca Meye, a member and part-time worker of the Surinam Y where Miss Foster to take charge. Miss Meye came from Toronto where she is taking a course in Y work for this occasion. She enlightened the guests about her country by outlining the trip there as Miss Foster will probaly make it and describing the scene and territory enroute.

It was possibly news to some that Surinam is a part of the Dutch Empire and has Queen Juliana as its Queen (similarly to Canada and England). The Dutch language is spoken generally but there is also Spanish and French and sometimes Surinamese—amixture of them all, Miss Meye said.

York in Surinam has been run along similar lines but there is no community chest to help out there and money for everything, including wooden house which serves as the Y, has to be raised by the members. Miss Meye explained that the weather in Surinam is always about as hot as it was in Toronto Monday, except that in July and August it is hotter.

Mrs. Tom Cook had the pleasure of expressing Peterborough friends' feelings about the loss of Miss Foster and Miss Leta Brownscombe then presented a projector and a portable screen as a gift from the Y Board and staff and members of the community.

"I haven't had one unhappy day here," said Miss Foster as she expressed her thanks. She suggested that an exchange of Surinam and Peterborough pictures be arranged and also asker that Y members help herd over the lonesome period when she arrives in Surniam with a shower of letters.

Mrs. Peters also received a gift, a handsome morrocco handbag, and an expression of appreciation of her kindly services and interest in the Y was made by Mrs. D. A. Loucks.

"I will feel as though I am leaving home" said Mrs. Peters who is resigning to make her home wtih her family.

Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Y board president, received with Miss Foster and Mrs. Peters and tea was poured by Mrs. W. G. Ovens and Mrs. S. L. Smoke with staff members and board members assisting.

Miss Foster's position at the Y is to be taken over by Miss Orra Heenan in September and Mrs. Peters will be replaced for the coming three months by Miss Mina Edward of Peterborough.

Elcombe-Quirk

At the College Street Baptist Church, on Saturday at four o'clock, Carol Quirk, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs Eric Quirk of Toronto, became the bride of Laurence Greer Elcombe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Elcombe of Peterborough.

The Rev. Dixon H. Gordon officated. Two standards of pink and white flowers were at the altar. Music was played by Mr. E. J. Fisher and Mr. W. W. White sang "A Wedding Benediction."

A gown of white lace over taffeta, fashioned with scalloped neckline, long sleeves and a full skirt falling to the floor, was the bride's choice. Her fingertip, circular veil was caught to a halo of seed pearls and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and white carnations.

She was given in marriage by her father and attended by Miss Marjorie Quirk as maid of honor, Miss Joanne Hirai as flower girl and Misses Margaret Cripps and Myrna McPherson as bridesmaids.

The attendants were all in floor-length frocks of nylon sheer over taffeta, in peach, green, yellow and blue shades. They wore floral headdress to match their nosegays of talisman roses and Kokoma carnations.

Mr. Bill Friskin attended the groom and the ushers were Douglas Quirk and Ted Cranfield.

The bride's mother wore lace and sheer in ashes of roses color and had matching accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses and mauve 'mums. The groom's mother wore depth blue lace with pink accessories and had pink roses and carnations in her corsage.

Charm Schools Produce $1,000,000 Glamor Business

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — Glamor is made, not born and Patricia Stevens, whose business is putting the polish on beauty, has proved it in building a $1,000,000 business of "charm emporiums."

Originally set up to teach model training, the 25 charm schools she directs under her name in 25 cities in the United States and Canada have become career centres.

Thousands of young women have enrolled to become airline stewardesses, executive secretaries, fashion and merchandising careerists and professional models. But most enrol to get the charm.

Miss Stevens claims 50,000 graduates who are happy homebodies or up-and-coming career girls.

Some 10,000 women enrol annually in classes designed to give the gals what they need to make them charming. Courses include training in drama and speech, make-up, hair-styling, personality, wardrobe planning, general grooming, how to sit, walk and dance. Special training is provided in psychology, social graces and salesmanship.

Miss Stevens herself is liberally endowed with the products of her business — glamor, poise, polish and self-confidence. But her success is based more on shrewdness and salesmanship.

Women Are Nation's Spenders Should Be Interested In Politics

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. C. J. Embree, a Halifax housewife who is president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, has a housewife's practical approach to the question of women in politics.

"All women should be interested in politics," she said recently, "because women are the nation's spenders. If they're not interested in their own business, what will they be interested in?" Mrs. Embree, 50-year-old mother of three grown-up children, has been associated with politics in the Maritimes for about 20 years but she also has a wide interest in educational and social work. Her husband is with the national harbors board in Halifax.

An able public speaker, she has addressed many women's gatherings in Eastern Canada since she was elected in 1952 to head the national organization of Liberal women, a group with a membership of more than 5,000 in 10 provincial federations and some 300 local clubs.

She considers her political activities simply an extension of her household interests.

"Governments are like homes," she says. "The home is a joint partnership and I think government should be too."

Mrs. Embree was active with the St. John Ambulance Association and the Halifax Navy League Hospital during the Second World War and was awarded the Order of St. John, nursing sister, for her work.

She has just finished a three-year term on the Halifax school board, was city playgrounds commissioner for one year and is a director of the Halifax County Vocational School.

She held office in county and provincial women's Liberal groups for a number of years. Then in 1947 when the national federation was reorganized she became its national treasurer. Three years later she became vice-president and last year received an acclamation as national president.

MILLBROOK (ENS).—In a setting of peonies and orange blossoms which banked the chancel of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, on Saturday, Velma Luella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Thexton, became the bride of Anson George Morton, son of Mrs. John James Morton and the late Mr. Morton. The Rev. A. M. Butler performed the double ring ceremony.

Before the bride entered the church Mrs. Lawrence Winslow sang "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register she sang "I'll Walk Beside You." Mrs. Leonard McNeil of Peterborough played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was in a gown of Chantilly lace and net. The bodice, made of net, had a sheer yoke effect, and buttoned down the back with tiny self-covered buttons. It had long lace sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The very full bouffant skirt, worn over a crinoline, had panel insets of lace. Her veil was of silk illusion, fingertip length, and fell from a coronet of lacquered orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Delmer McConnell of Peterborough attended her sister as matron-of-honor; Mrs. Clayton Thexton, Millbrook, was bridesmaid, and Miss Shirley Morton of Cavan, niece of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. The matron-of-honor's gown was pansy shade net over taffeta with brocade bodice and jacket. The bridesmaid's dress was similar, in lime green, and the junior bridesmaid wore pink net over taffeta with low-cut neckline, with insets of net outlined with small rosebuds. Her wide taffeta sash tied in the back to give a bustle effect over the very full skirt. All three wore headdresses of lily-of-the valley and nylon, and lace gloves in shades matching their gowns. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Groomsman was Arnold Best, the groom's nephew, and ushers were Clayton Thexton and Borden Morton, brothers of the bride and groom.

A reception was held in the church parlours where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of bouquet blue intrige material with insets of Alencon type lace and a pink hat. The groom's mother chose a navy gown with mauve trimming and a small mauve hat. Both wore corsages of Briarcliffe roses.

For travelling the bride wore a dress of navy and white Swiss cut embroidered organdy with a small pink hat and corsage of pink carnations. She carried a shortie coat in Windsor rose. After a trip to Niagara Falls and points in the U.S., they will live on the groom's farm at R.R. 1, Cavan.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

It Takes A Few Tricks To Stretch Meals For Guests

Every member of this family is bitten by the same bug They cannot curb their impulses to invite.

When your week's work is done, it seems normal and natural to crave some company. So I telephoned my sisters and invited them over for dinner with Pete and me. A minute later the telephone rang. It was Pete calling from downtown to say he'd invited Thorny for dinner and that they would be home in a half hour.

That brought me up with a start. Could I stretch what I had planned for four to feed five? "I better could"—to quote five-year-old David.

I did some mental gymnastics and decided to make hot raisin muffins as an extender (see recipe for them below).

But before they were in the oven Peter and Thorny arrived, and guess what?—the telephone rang. This time it was Marianne telephoning from the nurses' residence to say she was coming home for dinner— and bringing Irma!

At this point my sisters walked in, so we sat down and laughed together, then with a heave-ho started our assembly-line routine.

I'd made a medium-sized potato salad, so set Doris to work making it bigger with cabbage, cucumber, green pepper and olives. Peady was in charge of a platter containing a pressed veal loaf. It was her job to garnish it profusely.

I had 8 little beets on cooking, so washed the leaves and cooked them. About 1 inch of the bottom of the stems was still on the beets so I left them on, carefully peeling the skin off, and sliced the beets lengthwise through the stems, in halves. I made Harvard sauce. The chopped greens were on the bottom of the entree dish, halved beets on top, cut side up (very pretty too), Harvard sauce over all. A good beet-stretching trick.

For four of us we were to have had individual fruit salads, but they were too fussy to make for so many, so I switched to a fruit cup. This I started with can of Mandarin oranges, 3 sliced bananas, sections from 2 grapefruits. Then I started scouting around for extenders. In the refrigerator I found about 1 cup of stewed rhubarb. I dumped that in the bowl. In the cupboard I found ½ jarful of moist shredded cocoanut I put it went.

Now there is a joke in our house that is hard to explain. If you make something that is sort of nondescript and it needs a glamorous name to give it some distinction we call it "Royale" or "Viennese". So I served this fruit cup mixture with some mental reservations regarding that cocoanut and rhubarb—and with a deadpan expression—waiting for comments that I knew would break out.

When all the desserts were served and we were tasting them Pete quietly observed "Ambrosia Royale' no doubt, mother?" I choked, and my sisters howled—but after they had all had their little joke they insisted it was good—nifty in fact. You can do what you like about it— but remember, we'll never get anywhere unless we try something different once in a while.

EMERGENCY RAISIN MUFFINS

Sift some flour and measure 2 cups. Stand the sifter in the mixing bowl. Put in it the 2 cups sifted flour, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder and½ teaspoon salt. Sift these together into bowl. Add ¼ cup soft shortening, 1 egg and 1 cup milk and beat like mad until the batter is smooth Butter the muffin tins—this amount makes 14—and fill them 2-3 full. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 20 or 35 minutes. I added 1 cup raisins when I added the liquids. Chopped dates, currants, or fresh blueberries, all are good, especially the blueberries when the fresh ones are in season.

I'll admit I was glad I had four husky young people to carry the remnants of food and all of the dirty dishes in from the garden where we ate—and to wash those stacks of dishes. I just wanted to sit and drink coffeee with my buddies, so I did.

DOROTHY DIX:

Boy's Arguments With Dad Upset Mother

DEAR MISS DIX: Could you tell me what seems to be the trouble, either emotionally or mentally, with some fathers of adolescent boys? It's my experience, as well as that of several of my acquaintances, that fathers who are fine otherwise seem unable to engage in any conversation with their teen-age sons without becoming irate. When the boys try to uphold their views, which they are bound to do, the atmosphere becomes so strained that the whole family is uncomfortable. Many a dinner is spoiled for us by arguments between my husband and our son. My husband is a very nervous man; even the radio upsets him.

MRS. E. F.

JOB FOR STEEL NERVES

ANSWER: Coping with adolescent boys is a job to try nerves of steel, as one with triple experience in that line can attest. The reward, however, is more than commensurate with the ordeal. When your unruly, opinionated, rebellious teen-ager suddenly emerges as a poised, respectful, idealistic and devoted son of nineteen or thereabouts, the heated arguments and tense moments are forgotten.

That the task of rearing adolescents to a state of adult maturity does require the utmost patience and forebearance is beyond question. Therefore, when one or the other parent is emotionally disturbed, or ton with nervous tension, the resulting turmoil can readily become unbearable to the entire family. During this period, your son is in a state of physical, mental and emotional growth that cannot be speeded up. Nature must take her time with him, so it's up to the adults of the family to make adjustments. The help of understanding parents is a "must" to children of this age, and since your husband's obviously nervous state naturally precludes much help from that source at present, something must be done with Dad. He should consult a doctor, who will help calm father's nerves, and also tell him enough about the problems of adolescence to make him understand his son better. Apparently there's a special anaesthesia that makes some parents forget the trials of their own teens. I can offer further help in the form of a reading list of inexpensive booklets on adolescence. A self-addressed stamped envelope will bring you the list.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a student in high school, and would appreciate your advice on this problem. My girl friend and I have become friendly with our English teacher. We have been sending her cards on special occasions, and gave her a piece of costume jewelry for Christmas, from both of us. Now her birthday is approaching; my girl friend suggests that we give her a blouse, but I feel this is too personal a gift. Don't you think perfume or something like that would be better?

M.C.

ANSWER: I agree with you. Gifts from pupils to teachers should be kept impersonal. Furthermore, a good blouse would cost more than you should spend, and a cheaper one would not be a complimentary gift.

DEAR MISS DIX: My father disapproves of my going to dances; my mother approves. Which one is right? I am 14 and my school chums are permitted to go.

WANDA R.

ANSWER: If the dances are held in school or church, are well chaperoned, and your escort is known to, and approved by, your parents, I think you should be permitted to go. However, where there is disagreement on the subject between parents, a talk to a faculty advisor at school might settle the question.

DEAR MISS DIX: When a young girl writes to you and tells you her age and the age of the man she's going with, you say "The boy is too old for you." I want to tell you something. When two eople are in love, age doesn't matter. I'll soon be 17 and I'm engaged to a man of 36. We're in love, so what difference does our age make?

BLONDIE.

ANSWER: Let me hear from you five years from now and see if the story is the same. Perhaps you can convince me that a girl of 16 can contract a happy marriage with a man 20 years older, and perhaps you'll agree with my stand that a too great age difference is more often a liability than an asset.

Roseneath Honors Couple

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Approximately 300 neighbors, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Drope on Saturday evening in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Guests were present from California, St. Catharines, Toronto, Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Norwood, Peterborough, Warkworth, Dartford, Codrington, Harwood, Baltimore, Fenella and Roseneath.

The evening was spent in dancing, with Jim Fisher calling for the quadrille dancing.

Major R. E. Drope, Harwood, a cousin of the groom, was master of ceremonies and introduced a piano solo by Miss Carole Drope, Toronto, and a reading by Mrs. Silas Sherwin, Roseneath. Greetings were brought from various relatives of the Drope family.

Douglas L. Coyle, Roseneath, read an address of congratulations on behalf of the relatives and presented two occasional chairs, an electric mix-master and an electric kettle from the relatives. Individual gifts were received from the relatives and a three-tier wedding cake, a gift of Mrs. Earl Drope, Harwood.

MANY GIFTS

On behalf of the neighbors and the community, Mr. C. W. Varcoe extended congratulations. Miss Lorraine Parker presented Mrs. Drope with a bouquet of roses and Paul Winkworth pinned a boutonniere of carnations on Mr. Drope's lapel. Messrs. Earl Braithwaite and E. Rae Brown presented a trilight lamp and an adjustable steel ironing table.

On behalf of St. James' Anglican Church, of which the Dropes are regular attendants, the rector's warden, James L. Timlin, read an address and the people's warden, Herbert J. McCracken, presented an electric tea kettle. Mr. and Mrs. Drope made appropriate replies.

"For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung, concluding with three cheers and a tiger for the bride and groom of 40 years.

John Drope and his bride, the former Amelia Ann Nichol, were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Nichol, Centreton, June 25, 1913, by the Rev. Charles Brooks, rector of Centreton and Grafton at that time. Their entire married life has been spent on the Drope homestead in Alnwick township that has been in the Drope family for upwards of 100 years.

Mrs. Drope is active in church work, a former president of St. James' Anglican WA and a former member of Roseneath Women's Institute. Mr. Drope was a former member of Alnwick township council and Roseneath Agricultural Society, and a former warden of St. James' Anglican Church.

At the conclusion of the program period, the ladies served the lunch they had brought in picnic hampers.

Charm Schools

Patricia Stevens at 16 moved to Chicago to finish business school.

"I had a friend in New York making $75 a week modelling, so I went east," she said.

She soon became a successful Manhattan mannequin. Then she took a part-time job teaching in a New York school for tyro models.

She came to Chicago again in 1942 and with a cash outlay of $82.50 set up shop to dispense glamor. By 1944 she was setting up schools in other cities.

Her firm employs now 1,000 full and part - time instructors. But teenagers receive special attention from Miss Stevens herself. She says:

"If they come to class in leather jackets and blue jeans, and chew gum, we won't let them stay. We send them home."

FRANKENSTEIN COMING TO CAPITOL

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda told today of a gang of millionaire "bloodsuckers" who raked in enormous profits from the resale of medical leeches.

Soviet doctors still often prescribe the old-time remedy of leeches to draw blood in the treatment of certain ailments. The most notable case recently was Stalin's fatal illness last March, when leeches were used in an attempt to reduce the Russian leader's high blood pressure.

Pravda said two brothers named Namedov bought the leeches for the equivalent of three to four cents from pickers in southern Soviet Azerbaidjan, near the Iranian frontier.

The Namedovs resold the worms for the equivalent of 30 cents, pocketing the difference.

The newspaper called for action against the Namedovs, asserting that although one was in jail, the other, with his "bloodsucking" relatives, still was at large.

Queen, Duke Arrive Home

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh returned to London today from their state visit to Scotland.

They travelled by train overnight from Edinburgh and drove to Buckingham Palace from the station.

The return trip was informal despite the red carpet on the platform and the special trimmings of flags and banners.

As the train steamed into the station the Queen, sitting near a window, waved to watching railway workers. The Duke beside her looked up from his morning paper and smiled.

Omemee Honors Memory Of Dead

OMEMEE (ENS)—Emily Cemetery decoration service, under the auspices of Emily district Orange Lodge and the Omemee branch of the Women's Institute, was held Sunday afternoon. The floral tributes were exceptionally lavish.

District Master Melville Moncrief, acting as chairman, opened with a brief address of welcome. Scripture was read by the Rev. K. P. Jull of Fenelon Falls, and the Rev. Charles Richmond of Omemee led in prayer. Two solos, "Good Night and Good Morning" and "Some Day I'll Understand," were sung by Arthur Marshall of Peterborough, accompanied by Norman Harris, who was pianist for the service, and also played a piano solo.

The Rev. H. Kaye of Lakevale and Omemee churches gave the address on the subject of "Life After Death." The greatest of all certainties, said Mr. Kaye, is death; the greatest of all questions is, "If a man die, shall he live again?"; and the greatest of all affirmations is, "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." Some reasons for believing in the immortality of the soul, he said, are: The testimony of universal belief (there never was a known race or tribe of men who did not believe in life after death); the testimony of the human heart (universal desire to live); the testimony of science (conservation of energy); and strongest of all, the testimony of the New Testament, in such declarations as "I am the resurrection and the life," and the parable of the rich man and Lazarus which shows that death does not end all. Death, said Mr. Kaye, is but a transition, but an important event for the coming of which it is necessary to be prepared if people would enter the fuller life.

After the closing hymn, Mr Richmond pronounced the benediction, which was followed by Mr. Marshall's second solo and the National Anthem.

Contest Winners Given Stetsons

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) —At the final meeting of the Rotary Club, under the present executive, President Frank DeCarrol presented Director Leo Doherty's group with Stetson hats. This group was winner of the Hospital Fund contest.

President DeCarrol thanked the club for excellent co-operation as he made the presentation. The winners were Leo Doherty, Jim Archer, Lynd Bradley, F. Rutherford, Wallace Rutherford, H. N. Carr, Grant Anderson, Wm. McComb, Don Bennett, Earl Godden, Dave Ness.

Rotarian Archie Meyers, on behalf of the club, thanked President De Carrol for the excellent leadership given to the club during the past year and wished him success. The retiring president offered his continued interest and whole-hearted support to President Bud Davidson who will be installed in office next Monday.

John F. Smith

The funeral service for John Frederick Smith, 74, of Coe Hill, who died Friday in hospital, was held Monday from the Kaye funeral home to the Colborne Baptist Church.

The Rev. Donald Bonner officiated and the pallbearers were: John Vout, M. J. Kemp, H. Kemp, W. H. Berry, Frank Harding and W. May. Burial was in Colborne cemetery.

Russian Forces Pull Back From East German Cities

BERLIN (AP) — Russian tanks forces gradually pulled back today from leading East German provincial cities still in the grip of martial law.

More than 1,300 new arrests by the East German government's security agents were reported in the strike-crippled steel, uranium, coal and automobile industries.

A sabotage fire inflicted heavy damage to open pit installations in the big coal field at Bitterfied, in Saxony-Anhalt, but no other serious flareup of resistance was confirmed in the Soviet zone.

The 14-day siege following the June 17 workers' rebellion was reported ended in the cities of Chemnitz and Rostock. Large farming districts in Brandenburg and Mecklenburg had been turned back to civilian Communist control Monday by Soviet command.

ARMOR WITHDRAWS

In Leipzig and several other centres of the rebellion, Soviet armor withdrew in an intimation that further lifting of martial law was in prospect. Many of the Red army units patrolling East Berlin already have been recalled to their barracks.

There were other overtures to the easterners.

The anti-Communist West Berlin intelligence organization reported the release from two Soviet military prisons of 52 German prisoners convicted five years ago on charges of espionage and other anti-Russian activities.

The East German Supreme Court commuted to 15 years' imprisonment the death sentences of two 18-year-old youth convicted of murdering a Red secret service agent during the revolt. The court said they had been "stirred to their criminal act by propaganda of RIAS," the U.S. state department's radio station in West Berlin.

that the Council's response would not take the edge off Mr. Outram's initiative and aggressive interest in the city's administration. He cited, as examples, several instances of voluntary undertakings by Mr. Outram, informed, timely and helpful, in one case to the Civic Hospital governors to whom he had no responsibility.

ONE OF THE BEST

"I think Mr. Outram is a good city clerk, one of the best, but I've been put here to represent the people," Ald. Norman Graham said. "Mr. Outram has been very kind and helpful to me. That is all one side of it, but there is also the taxpayer's, and I think we are doing mighty well in giving him this increase."

The motion was seconded by Ald. Gordon Farquharson.

Early in May City Clerk Outram presented to the City Council a summary of his duties, which he said "were far beyond those associated with the same position in any other city in the province."

This was shown, he wrote, in a survey made by J. J. Woods and Gordon Ltd. for a city "somewhat larger than Peterborough" to find the weaknesses in its administration and recommend procedures for their correction.

That statement reviewed weaknesses that were ascertained, recommended the appointment of a clerk-comptroller, with specified duties, and also proposed that one of the chief assistants to the clerk-comptroller be responsible for specified duties.

COMPARED LIST

Mr. Outram pointed out that he was doing, in most of the details, the work assigned to those two officials elsewhere, that is a clerk-comptroller and his assistant in the role of deputy clerk. Finally he reduced these responsibilities to summarized form and compared them with his own affairs as city clerk.

The work of the clerk-comptroller of the Woods-Gordon survey, and that of Mr. Outram is identical in the following particulars: supervise his own department; personnel administrator; prepare agenda for city council meetings; interpret and follow up council decisions; submit monthly report; signing officer with the mayor.

A difference is noted in the following duties: Supervise preparation of the annual budget. Mr. Outram's notation respecting himself, was "No, although he advises committee chairman".

Long term financing plan. This is a duty of the Clerk-Comptroller, and Mr. Outram's comment as clerk: "This originated here with Herbert Bradburn when he was Alderman, who showed the need for it and introduced it".

Co-ordinate accounting activities: Clerk-Comptroller "yes"; Mr. Outram: "Responsible for advising on purchase of equipment, which has made this possible; manages machine room."

Negotiate for sale of debentures: Clerk - Comptroller—"Yes"; here, this is a duty of City Treasurer Couper; but Mr. Outram recalled that in 1946 he was active in negotiating sale "of the cheapest debentures ever sold by the city".

PERFORMED BY DEPUTY

The statement in summary continues down a blank list for Clerk-Comptroller, with the information that in that Woods-Gordon information these duties are performed by the Deputy Clerk, and in Peterborough by the City Clerk.

Prepare voters list and election material; act as election returning officer; record, file, index all city documents; supervise re vital statistics; supervise all council and committee minutes and process correspondence thereof; supervise marriage licenses and burial permits; prepare advertisements for tenders; taxing officer, supervise local improvement charges and Court of Revision procedures; interview, select and recommend job applicants (in most instances);

MORE WORK

Further work done by Mr. Outram, but by neither the Clerk-Comptroller nor Deputy-Clerk in the comparative statement:—manager of city properties, including collection of rents; manager of City Hall, supervise maintenance staff; police court clerk; Department liaison—advises on policy, public relations, staff problems, etc., with all departments; secretary and public relations officer planning boards; receiver of parking penalties and adjuster of complaints; servicing all claims against the city; issuer of most city licenses; secretary local Board of Health; secretary Police Commission; securing facts to aid Council's decisions, assisting in negotiating agreements, etc....

The publishing of the comparative statement should not convey to readers any impression tending to exclude or diminish the responsibility and the authority of the council. In one particular, for instance, the buying of property, the placing of insurance, rests with the council, as in all final decisions, but information is generally obtained for them as the basis of their consideration and action.

Mr. Outram expanded in one page of his report the scope of work involved in such matters as: manager of city properties, manager of the City Hall; purchase of properties for various city uses; police court clerk, etc.; staff relationships, etc.

One of those topics was under the caption, general relationship to council and its committees with this notation: "One major service the Clerk has tried to perform in this connection is to have before each committee factual material to aid the committee in deciding policy. Frequently this requires effort and thought to secure the material and the special co-operation of other departments and their employees—whose active co-operation he gains without actual authority. The Clerk believes sincerely that, given the facts on any matter, the council's committees will reach the best decision."

Wage Settlement Prospect Better

KITCHENER (CP) — Prospects for settlement of the wage issue with Local 68, Civic Workers' Union (AFL-TLC), appeared brighter today as Kitchener city council endorsed two proposals aimed at ending the stalemate.

The proposals came out of a recent meeting of a small group representing city council and the union, Alderman Donald Weber, chairman of the council committee handling the negotiations, said.

The two-way proposition now is before the union. One proposal would see the present basic rate of $1.15½ an hour retained as the starting rate with an employee after one year receiving $1.18.

Other increases would be calculated on the same percentage to the nearest half-cent.

The alternate proposal would have the civic workers yield two of their present 10 statutory holidays in return for a rate of $1.20 after one year.

An agreement would mean $250 increased for first-, second-, third- and fourth-year firemen and $350 for fifth-year men.

Under the agreement, salaries will range from $2,650 for first year men to $3,000 for fifth-year men; $3,900 for lieutenants; $4,300 for captains and $4,500 for platoon commanders.

Gardiner Gives Talk On Wheat

GOODEVE, Sask. (CP) — Agriculture Minister James Gardiner said Monday night that it is not possible for Canada to strike a new international wheat agreement without considering that the United States wants the present IWA price and has large reserves to sell.

Mr. Gardiner, touring his home constituency of Melville, reviewed the new wheat agreement in a campaign address in this town 75 miles northeast of Regina.

He said the U. S. is supplying most of the money to European countries which buy Canadian wheat.

Canada is producing little more livestock products than she could use herself. He rejected opposition claims that the country is losing markets for those products. Canada could sell bacon, pork or beef to Britain if she was willing to accept lower prices. But present home consumption made selling to Britain illogical.

Doesn't Believe TV Real Threat

BOSTON (AP)—Ralph B. Novak, executive vice-president of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO), said Monday that the fear of some publishers that television is going to ruin the newspaper business is not true.

Novak told the first day's session of the guild's 20th annual convention that TV "is mostly entertainment and is not a threat to us."

He said guildsmen have a particular opportunity—and the "intelligence and know-how—to keep the newspaper industry alive."

Novak said guild members in the United States and Canada now total 26,348, an increase of 2,085 in the last 16 months. The guild is made up of editorial and business employees of newspapers, wire services and news magazines.

Windsor Bus Firm Increases Fares

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The local bus company, which granted pay increases to its 350 employees last week after they threatened strike action, today announced an increase in fares, effective Wednesday.

The Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway Co., which operates bus lines in Windsor and nearby districts, said in a statement the price increase will effect all city and some interurban lines.

City fares will be 15 cents each and four tickets for 50 cents instead of the present 12 cents cash and four tickets for 45 cents.

The threatened strike was called off after employees accepted a nine-cent hourly increase for drivers, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Begin Clearing Debris After Worst Flood

TOKYO (AP)—Weary residents of Japan's southern island of Kyushu today began to clear debris left by modern Japan's worst flood even as more disaster threatened.

Rainclouds and scattered showers were predicted for at least two more days and a typhoon was heading toward the island, expected to hit within a week, barring a change in course.

Much of the northern part of Kyushu is under water. Property damage was estimated at $280,000,000. Some 1,000,000 persons are homeless.

The toll stood at 474 dead, 402 missing, and 979 injured, as reported by Japanese national police headquarters.

Naval Error

ST. DAY, England (CP) — The Royal Navy band wavered for a moment in its spirited procession down the main street of this Cornwall town. The head of the drum major's gilt staff had broken off and flown through a plate-glass window.

Return Bodies Of 2 Van Doos From Stream

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The bodies of two Van Doos missing since a patrol the night of May 19 have been recovered from the bank of a stream in no man's land.

The bodies are those of 21-year-old Sgt. J. A. G. Desjardins of Winnipeg, and Pte. H. J. Moreau of Penetanguishene, Ont.

Desjardins led an 11-man patrol from the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, trying to intercept and capture a prisoner.

Only four of his men returned, bringing with them a story of a patrol that criss-crossed all night through no man's land looking for the enemy, finally moving to a point 1,500 yards south of its assigned area.

There it was trapped between a Chinese outpost and a Chinese patrol trailing behind. When last seen Desjardins was shooting it out, a pistol in his right hand, a sten gun in his left.

TAKEN FOR SANDBAGS

It had been hoped that the missing had been captured.

This appeared strengthened when two outlines in the stream, at first thought to be bodies, were declared by soldiers who patrolled near them to be sandbags that had floated downstream.

During recent rains, however, the objects were raised again to the view of observers who constantly watch no man's land and enemy territory through high-powered binoculars.

They again appeared to be bodies. Lt.-Col. Antoine Poulin, the CO, sent out a small patrol to check. They were bodies, apparently now washed onto the bank.

Suspecting that the Chinese might have placed them there and booby-trapped them, Poulin ordered the bodies watched and had the area carefully gone over.

Finally the night of June 13 a strong patrol under 2nd Lieut. J. B. Riffow of Cap des Rosiers, Que., was sent out to bring them in.

QUEEN WENDIE WOO—Six-year-old Wendie Woo, of Vancouver, was crowned queen of her kindergarten class and held court with two male courtiers on graduation day at the Chinese Good Shepherd Mission School. Six-year-old twins Errol and Darrel Jung pay their homage.

Palance Wants To Stop Scaring People

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The most sensational movie menace in many years, Jack Palance, wants to give up scaring people.

The squarely-built coal miner's son and former prize fighter made a solid impression with film fans when he played a murderous game of hide-and-seek with Richard Widmark in "Panic in the Streets." He landed an Oscar nomination for trying to bump off Joan Crawford in "Sudden Fear." He's a hit now in his role of attempting the same for Alan Ladd in "Shane."

"I want to get away from sadistic killers," he said. "When I go home at night, I get the feeling that people are following me."

"I don't want to get typed as a sadistic killer. I like being an actor, and I know you have to get varied roles to stay in business."

MAIL BACKS THEORY

He says his fan mail supports his theory. He gets a lot of letters to the effect of "don't let them type you in pictures." Right now he's getting his wish. He has Joan Fontaine and Corinne Calvet clamoring for him in "Flight to Tangier."

Palance's career is following the pattern established by a number of film greats. Humphrey Bogart started in films as the gangster Duke Mantee in "Petrified Forest" and spent years trying to get on the right side of the law. He finally made it. Clark Gable also started as a dame-slapping bad guy, then mellowed into leading man parts.

Palance appears less menacing in person than he does in films. He is handsomer, his face being more rugged and not as severe-looking as in his pictures.

Palace interrupted his college studies at the University of North Carolina to enter the ring as a professional boxer. His promising ring career, 20 fights, 18 wins, was in turn interrupted by the air force. When he got out of the service, he returned to school, this time at Stanford. That's when he turned actor.

STORMY CROSSING — The Canadian navy's aircraft carrier Magnificent rolls through rough seas as she crosses the Atlantic after taking part in a seven-week cruise and the Spithead Coronation naval review. The carrier's aircraft were snugged close to the pitching deck. Arrival in Halifax of the Coronation squadron, accompanied by the Australian carrier Sydney, brought the heaviest concentration of naval strength in Canadian history.

Board Reserves Judgment On Rate Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners reserved judgment Monday on an appeal against a $1,000,000-a-year freight rate boost on west coast lumber shipped to Toronto, Montreal and other Eastern Canadian markets.

C. W. Brazier of Vancouver, counsel for the British Columbia Lumber Manufacturers Association and other western lumber groups which initiated the appeal, said the rate boost would throw the whole western lumber rate structure into "utter confusion."

He charged the increase was part of a secret tariff deal between Canadian and American railway interests operating out of the Pacific coast. The charge was promptly denied by railway witnesses.

The rate increase was imposed by the railways last May 1 when it decided that west coast lumber moving into markets east of the Great Lakes should be in the "competitive" rate class, thereby withdrawing it from the $7,000,000-a-year federal railway "bridge" subsidy on hauls between Eastern and Western Canada.

The increase is suspended by the board pending the outcome of the appeal.

Army, Red Cross Co-operate To Aid Men

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Two instances of the army and Red Cross co-operating to bring a touch of humanity to war have come to light.

In one, a United States army sergeant whose wife and children live in Sarnia, Ont., worried about their safety when news reached the theatre that a tornado had struck the city.

The American Red Cross operates a home service to check through for soldiers in such cases. Sgt. Bartholomew J. Wells of the 89th tank battalion, therefore, went to the A.R.C. field worker at 25th US infantry division headquarters and asked for a check to be made with the Sarnia home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Speers, his wife's parents.

But the Canadian brigade was alongside at the time and he got in touch with Maj. Murray MacDonald of Edmonton and Ottawa, the brigade major, and asked if he could help.

The brigade is connected to Ottawa by teleprinter and MacDonald asked army headquarters if they would do what they could. Ottawa got busy.

Within three days MacDonald was able to have Wells informed that his wife and children were well, there was no damage to their home, and no need to worry.

ANOTHER CASE

In the other instance the A.R.C., the Korean Red Cross, the Canadian Red Cross and the Canadian Army co-operated to meet the wish of a Toronto father and mother that a wreath be placed on their son's grave on the first anniversary of his death.

Pte. Kenneth Sidney Brooks was killed just over a year ago while serving with the 1st battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, on his second tour of duty in Korea. Fragments from an exploding mortar bomb killed him barely a week after he returned to the theatre. He was buried in the UN cemetery at Pusan.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Brooks, Toronto, asked Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, Canadian Red Cross commissioner, if a wreath could be placed. He forwarded their request to the A.R.C. and in time the Korean Red Cross obtained a wreath.

"B" squadron of Lord Strathcona's Horse was homeward-bound through Pusan at the time and the Red Cross workers thoughtfully invited the Strathconas to place the wreath.
